The freehold of the church is in the rector; but the rector holds the freehold subject to the jurisdiction of the ordinary, & for general & public purposes, not for his own; for the benefit of the parishioners at large, not for his own sole benefit & emolument. The object is, that he shall be enabled to furnish all his parishioners from time to time with reasonable & convenient space for the purposes of burial, & if he had the power to grant to one individual an exclusive right of burial to an individual, not a parishioner, & his family such as plff. now claims, that object might be defeated because the greater portion of the church might become appropriated to wealthy individuals who could afford to pay largely to the rector for such a privilege, to the actual exclusion of the poorer parishioners. (2) Semble: such a right cannot be granted at all, except by means of a faculty, to a parishioner, & annexed to a mansion within the parish. In the case of a pew, a faculty is necessary for such a grant; (3) Semble: it is equally necessary in the case of a tomb or vault.

In both cases the governing principle ought to be, to regulate the accommodation according to the rights & wants of the parishioners; & a faculty can do no more than limit, in the one case the right of sitting, & in the other the right of burial, to inhabitants of the parish. Generally in the case of a pew, the faculty is confined to persons inhabiting a particular house within the parish, & if not, it is annexed to a parishioner, in the character of parishioner, supposing it may be so, still when the party removes from the parish, the exclusive privilege ceases, & the rights of other persons coming into the parish attach.—*BRYAN v. Land having been conveyed under above Acts to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as a site for a church, a church was afterwards erected on a part of the land, & the church & part only of the land were consecrated:—Held: upon such consecration, the whole of the land so conveyed to the Comrs. vested in the incumbent.—*PLUMSTEAD DISTRICT BOARD OF WORKS v. 411. Liability for repairs—Under Metropolitan Building Act, 1855 (c. 122)—Whether “owner.”—The incumbent of a district church in the Metropolis, although the freehold of such church is vested in him under Church Building Acts, is not the “owner” of the church within the above Act, so as to be personally liable for the expenses incurred by the Metropolitan Board of Works in respect of such church as a dangerous structure.—R. v. 412. Right to pew rents—Whether interest in land.]—Where the right to receive for his own benefit the pew rents of a church is vested in the vicar by virtue of his office, even though such right arise merely by implication from the terms of the licence of the bishop when appointing the vicar, the pew rents may, in such circumstances, constitute an equitable freehold interest in land within Registration Act, 1420, c. 7.

413. — Parish church erected under Church Building Acts—No special provisions in Order in Council or deed of consecration.]—Legal possession of the freehold of a church by the vicar, coupled with the receipt of pew rents, is not sufficient to create an occupation within Representation of the People Act, 1832 (c. 45), s. 24; to create such an occupation, there must be actual, as well as legal, possession. Semble: the fact that, in the case of a new parish church erected under Church Building Acts, neither the Ord. in Council creating the new parish nor the deed of consecration of the church, contains the special provisions relating to pew rents embodied in Church Building Acts, does not render the collection & receipt of pew rents by, or on behalf of, the vicar, illegal.—WOLFE v. II. The Chancel.

414. The site—Nature of estate in.]—ANON. (1616), 1 Brownl. 45; 123 E. R. 655.

Annotation:—Consd. Griffin v. Dighton & Davies (1863), 33 L. J. Q. B. 39. The notion that the chancel is part of the rector’s glebe, though entertained by Lord Coke, is now exploded (COCKBURN, C. J.).

415. — —.]—The freehold of a church, including chancel & churchyard, is in the rector, but the right to the corporal possession is in the spiritual incumbent after induction; & therefore a lay rector has not, as against the vicar, any right to the possession or control of the chancel.

In contemplation of law, the freehold of the church, & therefore that of the chancel, which forms part of the church, as well as the freehold of the churchyard, is in the rector, whether spiritual or lay; but this naked & abstract right carries with it, in our judgment, no right of possession; the latter being in the incumbent, who is responsible to the Ordinary for the celebration of public worship (COCKBURN, C. J.).—GRIFFIN v. DIGHTON (1863), 5 B. & S. 93; 2 New Rep. 270; 33 L. J. Q. B. 29; 8 L. T. 500; 27 J. P. 350; 10 Jur. N. S. 69; 11 W. R. 804; 122 E. R. 707; affd. (1864), 5 B. & S. 93, 108, Ex. 416. — — As spiritual rector—Subject to use of parishioners.]—(1) The lay rector is not entitled as of right to make a vault or affix tablets in the chancel without leave of the Ordinary, nor is he entitled to a faculty for such purposes without laying before the Ordinary such particulars as will afford the vicar & parishioners an opportunity of judging of it, & satisfy the Ordinary that such vaults or tablets will not interrupt the parishioners in the use & enjoyment of the chancel: nor has the vicar an absolute veto, though he may show cause against the grant of a faculty.

Semble: the consent of the lay rector must precede the leave of the Ordinary for the construction of a vault or the erection of tablets in the chancel.

(2) Though the freehold of the chancel be in the rector, lay or spiritual, the use of it belongs to the parishioners & the Ordinary, as protector of their rights, must see that neither their present nor future accommodation be unduly prejudiced.

(3) No fee to the vicar for consent to interments in the chancel is due of common right; & any special custom to such effect must limit the amount, & be strictly proved.—RICH v. BUSHNELL (1827), 4 Hag. Ecc. 164.

417. Right to construct vault—Where rector only.]—COUSSMAKER v. LONDON (BP.) (1734), 2 Wood, 359.

418. Liability for repairs.]—At common law, the parishioners of every parish are bound to repair the church; but by the canon law, the parson is obliged to do it; & in London the parishioners by particular custom repair both church & chancel; though the freehold is in the parson. Here those of a chapelry may prescribe to be exempt from repairing the mother church, where it buries & christens within itself, & has never contributed to it; but in this case it appears that the chapel was only a latter erection in case & favour of them of the chapelry, they having buried at the mother sued for & recovered accordingly; & in the meantime, & until the balance & interest should be paid, W. should have a lien on the organ; & in default of any or either of such payments at the time thereinbefore mentioned, W. might either dispose of or remove the organ as he might think proper:—Held: the property in the organ remained in A. until the instalments were paid.

The instalments being unpaid, A. demanded the organ of the vicar of C. & the churchwardens. The vicar kept the church door locked, & refused to allow the organ to be removed, claiming a lien upon it. The churchwardens did nothing:—Held: (2) the vicar was liable in trover, & not the churchwardens. Semble: (3) the absence of a faculty for the removal of the organ was no answer to plff.'s claim.—WALKER v. (LYDE) (1861), 10 C. B. N. S. 381; 142 E. R. 500.

431. The churchyard—Estate in.—(1) Articles having been admitted against churchwardens for making a new footpath across a churchyard, etc., an allegation in reply, pleading facts showing that the churchwardens acted bona fide & for the benefit of the parishioners, was rejected, as not setting up a legal defence.

(2) As to the churchyard, by the common law the rector has the freehold therein, qualified undoubtedly by the rights of the parishioners, but subject thereto he may bring an action for trespass if his right be unjustly invaded (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(3) The churchwardens by virtue of their office are bound to see that the footpaths are kept in proper order & the fences in repair (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(4) Individuals may by prescription have a right of way; & parishioners have the same right for the purpose of attending divine worship, vestries, & other fit occasions. The public may also have a right of way which is not to be infringed upon (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(5) Neither the rector nor the churchwardens can make a new path without a faculty from the Consistory Ct. In strictness that is by law required. The consent of the rector is necessary by reason of his common law right. The churchyard being consecrated ground, this ct. has cognisance of the matter, & it is the duty of the ct. to protect it against any unauthorised or illegal invasion whatever (DR. LUSHINGTON).—WALTER v. MOUNTAGUE & LAMPRELL (1836), 1 Curt. 253; 163 E. R. 85.

(2) The solrs. in ecclesiastical suits are, as officers of the ct., personally responsible for & bound to pay into the registry the ct. fees incurred by them on behalf of their respective clients; but the solr. having so paid the fees is entitled, if his client is unsuccessful in the suit, to obtain an order on the unsuccessful party to recoup him for the payments made by him.—*PEARSON v. was no proof of consecration, nor of any composition, between the patron, incumbent, & ordinary; such chapel is merely proprietary, & the minister, nominated by the rector of the parish & licensed by the bishop, cannot perform parochial duties therein, nor distribute the alms collected at the Lord's supper.

(2) Proprietary chapels are anomalies unknown to the constitution, & to the ecclesiastical establishments of the Church of England, & can possess no parochial rights.

(3) The performance of baptisms, marriages, & burials, in a chapel existing from time immemorial, might possibly be presumptive evidence of consecration, & of a composition: aliter as to a chapel, the origin of which is ascertained.

441. — Offertory at Holy Communion.]—

(1) Money given at the offertory in the communion office must still be disposed of, as directed by the rubric, to such pious & charitable uses as the minister & churchwardens shall think fit; or, in case of disagreement, as the ordinary shall appoint.

(2) An announcement of the objects beforehand is not obligatory, but is not unlawful. Collections in church, during morning or evening prayer, may lawfully be made & announced, at the discretion of the incumbent. But the allocation of money so collected is now a matter for the joint decision of the incumbent & the parochial church council. (3) It is not an ecclesiastical offence in the case of the Holy Communion being combined with, or following, another service, to take two collections, one at the offertory, from the same gathering. (4) Churchwardens never had, & parochial church councils have not now, any voice in the disposal of money collected at extra-legal services or meetings held under the authority of the incumbent elsewhere than in church, unless such money has been allocated to "church purposes" within Parochial Church Councils (Powers) Measures, 1921, [No. 1], s. 4 (1), (ii.) (a). Gift for substantial repairs of church — Discretion in application.]—(1) A church rate carried by a majority of one, was, inter alia, questioned on the alleged ground that the vicar & occupiers of the church lands were not entitled to vote, as they were not liable to pay church rate:—Held: the vicar & occupiers of church lands were entitled to vote, & the opponent to the rate had failed in his objections & the rate would be pronounced for with costs.

(2) It had been decided to undertake certain repairs to a church, & the vicar was given by an anonymous donor a sum of money towards the "substantial repairs":—Held: the parishioners had no right to direct the particular application of such money; the money was deposited with the vicar for a special purpose & was clearly intended to be applied at the vicar's discretion, & that discretion might be exercised by him in replacing stone mullions, etc., which were decayed.

(3) For an omission to rate persons liable to be rated to the church rate to render that unequal, it must be shown that in consequence thereof, an unjust burden, that can be appreciated, has been thrown on the complainant.

(4) A parishioner ought to have an opportunity of comparing the church rate with the poor rate book, when the former does not contain a specification of the properties, in order to satisfy himself that he is fairly charged with reference to other persons assessed (SIR HERBERT JENNER PUST).—*MARSON & KNOTT v. was no proof of consecration, nor of any composition, between the patron, incumbent, & ordinary; such chapel is merely proprietary, & the minister, nominated by the rector of the parish & licensed by the bishop, cannot perform parochial duties therein, nor distribute the alms collected at the Lord's supper.

(2) Proprietary chapels are anomalies unknown to the constitution, & to the ecclesiastical establishments of the Church of England, & can possess no parochial rights.

(3) The performance of baptisms, marriages, & burials, in a chapel existing from time immemorial, might possibly be presumptive evidence of consecration, & of a composition: aliter as to a chapel, the origin of which is ascertained.

(4) Alms, collected in chapels as well as in parish churches during the reading of the offertory, are by the direction of the rubric at the disposal of the incumbent of the parish & the churchwardens thereof, & not of the minister or proprietors of the chapel.—*MOYSEY v. 441. — Offertory at Holy Communion.—

(1) Money given at the offertory in the communion office must still be disposed of, as directed by the rubric, to such pious & charitable uses as the minister & churchwardens shall think fit; or, in case of disagreement, as the ordinary shall appoint.

(2) An announcement of the objects beforehand is not obligatory, but is not unlawful. Collections in church, during morning or evening prayer, may lawfully be made & announced, at the discretion of the incumbent. But the allocation of money so collected is now a matter for the joint decision of the incumbent & the parochial church council. (3) It is not an ecclesiastical offence in the case of the Holy Communion being combined with, or following, another service, to take two collections, one at the offertory, from the same gathering. (4) Churchwardens never had, & parochial church councils have not now, any voice in the disposal of money collected at extra-legal services or meetings held under the authority of the incumbent elsewhere than in church, unless such money has been allocated to "church purposes" within Parochial Church Councils (Powers) Measures, 1921, [No. 1], s. 4 (1), (ii.) (a). Money collected at such services or meetings, unless so allocated, must be applied to the objects (if any) announced by the incumbent: Semble: (5) in a criminal suit in the Arches Ct. the arts. exhibited should state seriatim the particular laws alleged to have been infringed. Such arts. should also be signed by counsel, the ancient practice of the ct., which required the signature of an advocate, being now satisfied by the signature of a barrister.—*MARSON v. 443. Gift for substantial repairs of church—Discretion in application.—(1) A church rate carried by a majority of one, was, inter alia, questioned on the alleged ground that the vicar & occupiers of the church lands were not entitled to vote, as they were not liable to pay church rate:—Held: the vicar & occupiers of church lands were entitled to vote, & the opponent to the rate had failed in his objections & the rate would be pronounced for with costs.

(2) It had been decided to undertake certain repairs to a church, & the vicar was given by an anonymous donor a sum of money towards the "substantial repairs":—Held: the parishioners had no right to direct the particular application of such money; the money was deposited with the vicar for a special purpose & was clearly intended to be applied at the vicar's discretion, & that discretion might be exercised by him in replacing stone mullions, etc., which were decayed.

(3) For an omission to rate persons liable to be rated to the church rate to render that unequal, it must be shown that in consequence thereof, an unjust burden, that can be appreciated, has been thrown on the complainant.

(4) A parishioner ought to have an opportunity of comparing the church rate with the poor rate book, when the former does not contain a specification of the properties, in order to satisfy himself that he is fairly charged with reference to other persons assessed (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).—*RANSON & KNOTT v. *Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes :
Sub-sects. 3 & 4, A., B. & C. (a).]*

The incumbent & churchwardens of a parish church removed, but without having obtained a faculty, or the consent of the justices under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 39, certain ancient steps leading down from the churchyard to the adjoining high road. These steps had been included in the churchyard, being recessed within the churchyard wall, & they had formed one of the approaches to a path in the churchyard leading to the church door. An action was thereupon brought by four parishioners against the incumbent & churchwardens for a mandatory injunction to compel the restoration of the steps. One of these plffs. was also the lay rector of the parish, but in fact sued only as a parishioner:—Held: the ct. would not exercise jurisdiction by granting a mandatory injunction, on the grounds: (a) that the steps constituted a churchway, the right to use which was solely in the parishioners, & not a footway common to the public, & the ct. would not exercise jurisdiction in respect of the interference with a churchway within the churchyard at the suit of a parishioner, a jurisdiction which was vested in the ecclesiastical ct.; & (b) that, even if a mandatory injunction were granted, it might be rendered nugatory by a faculty confirming the acts of the incumbent & churchwardens.

476. Rights in churchyard—As against incumbent.—(1) An impropriate rectory, after its surrender to the Crown on the dissolution of monasteries, was granted by Queen Elizabeth to lay impropriators. Up to 1826 the impropriators appointed a curate with a yearly stipend of £31 10s.; in that year the curacy was augmented out of Queen Anne's Bounty, & the then lay impropriator charged the rectory, glebe land, tithes, etc., with the yearly rentcharge of £31 10s., payable to the curate for the time being; the curacy then became a perpetual benefice by force of Queen Anne's Bounty Act, 1714 (c. 10). Pltf. was duly nominated, licensed & instituted to the benefice in 1852. From the time of the grant of Elizabeth the lay impropriators had had exclusive possession of all the tithes & glebe lands; & during living memory these lands had been let to tenants together with the right of depasturing the churchyard with sheep, & the tenants had exercised this right without interruption till 1860, when pltf. gave deff., the present tenant, notice not to trespass, & then brought an action. On a case stating the above facts, the ct. having power to draw inferences of fact:—Held: the action was not maintainable: for that though pltf. had possession of the churchyard for spiritual purposes, it was not such a possession as excluded the lay impropriator, or his tenants, in whom the soil & herbage were still vested.

The freehold was vested in the rector & he was entitled to the land, including the grass, herbage & everything else, as fully as the original owner had been; but as the land had been set apart by consecration for the church & churchyard, the right which the rector as the owner of the freehold had in the profits was proportionately diminished, because he could not desecrate it, or use it for any purpose which was inconsistent with the object of its consecration (BLACKBURN, J.).

SUB-SECT. 4.—THE VESTRY.

A. Constitution.

479. Qualification of vestryman—Tenement owner—Assessed to poor rate instead of occupier.]—The effect of Vestries Acts, 1818 (c. 69), & 1819 (c. 85), although there are no privative words, is to make rating to the poor rate the exclusive qualification for voting in all parish vestries.

Where, therefore, Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), has been adopted in a parish, the occupiers of small tenements, not being rated to the poor rate, although still liable to the church rate, are not entitled to vote at a vestry held for the purpose of making a church rate.

Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, gave to persons assessed to the last poor rate one vote for every £25 value, "so, nevertheless, that no inhabitant shall be entitled to give more than six votes"; by Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), s. 6, the owner of a small tenement, rated under the Act "shall have the same right to vote in vestry as if he were an occupier duly rated in respect of the same tenement":—Held: the owner of more than six small tenements, rated under the latter Act, was entitled to no more than six votes by force of the proviso in the former Act.—RICHARDSON v. GLADWIN (1858), E. B. & E. 138; 27 L. J. M. C. 192; 31 L. T. O. S. 97; 22 J. P. 688; 4 Jur. N. S. 377; 6 W. R. 473; 120 E. R. 400. Annotation:—Consd. Lambe & Clarke v. Gieves (1862), 26 J. 510. Control of election.—Where no presiding officer.]—Where there is no regular presiding sworn officer at an election, e.g. of churchwarden, one of whom by custom was chosen by parishioners paying scot & lot, & the other appointed by the rector, which latter in fact presided, the control of the election devolves at common law upon the electors themselves; but unless there be a custom to regulate the time for making such election, it is not competent to a majority of the electors assembled at the time of such election to narrow the period which the common law would allow; & therefore a resolution by them that it shall conclude at a given time must at least limit a time reasonable in itself with respect to numbers & distance, & be of sufficient notoriety. But whether a resolution by a majority of the vestry on the first day of the election to close the poll at 4 o'clock on the next day in a parish where the number of electors did not exceed 180, & where the affidavits stated a custom for 200 years not to keep the poll open for more than two days, & no instance within living memory of extending it beyond 4 o'clock on the second day, were sufficient to warrant the closing of the poll, at that time, while some of the voters were still coming in to poll, & others had no notice of the resolution; was a fit question to be tried upon a mandamus.—R. v. WINCHESTER, BISHOP'S COMMISSARY COURT (1806), 7 East, 573; 103 E. R. 222.

511. Latitude of discussion allowed.]—In a vestry meeting for civil purposes, as a full latitude of discussion must be allowed mere coarse expressions do not constitute brawling.—HOILE v. SCALES (1820), 2 Hag. Ecc. 506; 102 E. R. 958.

512. Formalities.—Whether strict formality necessary.]—(1) The observance of strict formality in putting motions & amendments thereon to vestry meetings is unnecessary; it is enough if conflicting propositions be so put to such a meeting, that those present understand what it is that they are called on to decide.

(2) At a meeting in vestry of the inhabitants of the parish of H. held under a local Act for the purpose of determining the application "to some public purpose, beneficial to the inhabitants," of moneys paid by two railway cos. in compensation of certain commonable rights of the inhabitants, a proposition was made that the money should be applied partly to a district church, & partly to almshouses. The proposition was met by an amendment to the effect that the money be applied to almshouses only. The chairman having inquired whether any one else wished to address the meeting, & no third proposition having been made, the amendment was put & carried. A poll was then demanded; & at the polling place the inhabitants were called on to vote for "the district church & almshouses," or for "the almshouses only." The result was in favour of the proposition for the district church & almshouses:—Held: the vestry must be taken to have agreed that the money should be applied in one of the two methods proposed, & the poll was rightly so taken as to determine the question which of these two methods was preferred by the majority of the parishioners.

(3) Though a poll must not be so taken as to prevent a scrutiny, & therefore must not be taken by ballot, a voter has no right to insist on a scrutiny.—R. v. HAMMERSMITH (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS) (1852), 3 B. & S. 504, n.; 19 L. T. O. S. 203; 122 E. R. 190; sub nom. Re HAMMERSMITH VESTRY, Ex p. STEVENS, 16 J. P. 632.

513. Control by court.—What court has jurisdiction.]—The Ecclesiastical Ct. has jurisdiction, ratione loci, over the order & proceedings of vestry meetings, held in a church; & therefore, where a rector had libelled, in that ct., a parishioner, for preventing him from presiding as chairman at such a meeting, a prohibition was refused.

It is pleaded in the arts. & on their admissibility must be taken as true, that the minister's presiding at vestry meetings "is observed in & throughout the whole realm." The fact of such general usage for the minister so to preside is notorious, & has not been denied even in argument. Now such an usage, unless absurd or improper, I take to found a common law right (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—WILSON v. M'MATH (1819), 3 B. & Ald. 241; 3 Phillim. 67; 100 E. R. 650.

The 80th Canon of the Canons of 1603 is declaratory of the common law. In this canon the parishioners are mentioned in such a way as to show that, in case the vestry cannot agree, the minister is to choose his own churchwarden, & the parishioners, as opposed to & distinguished from him, are to choose their churchwarden. The term "parishioners" in the Canon means, in fact, the minister's parishioners, & would not include the minister himself (A. L. SMITH, M.R.).—*R. v. The majority of parishioners who had negatived the granting a rate having quitted the vestry, the churchwardens & the minority continued to remain in vestry, & re-proposed & carried the necessary rate:—Held: such rate was a legal & valid church rate.

540. "Division" of a vestry — How taken.]—A "division" of a vestry, "to be taken in the manner prescribed by Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69)," may be taken by a poll of all the ratepayers, such poll being an adjournment of the vestry.

At such poll the original proposition & an amendment inconsistent with it, being the only one proposed, may be put to the vote, & affirmative & negative votes may be taken upon each, & in that way the sense of the votes may be ascertained.

(e) The Poll.

i. In General.

545. Proper mode of taking vote.]—The proper way of taking the vote at a vestry is by a poll, the meeting being adjourned for that purpose, if necessary or convenient.—Re EGHAM BURIAL BOARD (1857), 29 L. T. O. S. 343; 30 L. T. O. S. 163; 21 J. P. 563; 3 Jur. N. S. 956.

546. Whether show of hands condition precedent.]—One of two candidates for the office of churchwarden was elected at a vestry, & subscribed the declaration of office, but the election was alleged to have been so improperly conducted that the proceedings were void. To give the parties impugning the election an opportunity of trying its validity, the ct., considering a prima facie case to be presented, granted a mandamus calling on the rector & churchwardens to convene a vestry for electing a churchwarden for the remainder of the year. At an election in vestry, where the right of voting is regulated by Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, it is no objection to the proceedings that the chairman directed a poll without first taking a show of hands: although a show of hands was demanded, & the poll was not demanded, but was objected to.—R. v. BIRMINGHAM (RECTOR, ETC.) (1837), 7 Ad. & El. 254; 1 J. P. 211; 1 Jur. 754; 112 E. R. 467.

547. — Votes calculated in writing.]—At a vestry to elect churchwardens, the chairman, after the minister had nominated his, & after two candidates had been proposed & seconded, refused, on a request & protest of ratepayers, to take a show of hands, but took down the names of those present, & their respective votes, & added them up, & then declared the one having a majority to be duly elected; whereupon a ratepayer demanded a poll, which was refused:—Held: (1) the proceedings were irregular, & a poll ought to have been granted; but (2) as the affidavits did not state that any ratepayers had been prevented from voting, a rule for a mandamus to re-assemble the vestry & proceed to a fresh election was refused.—R. v. GOOLE (INCUMBENT & CHURCHWARDENS) (1861), 4 L. T. 322; 25 J. P. 308.

548. Method of taking — With closed doors — Whether proper.]—In the election of churchwardens, if a poll be demanded, the votes are to be given by the qualified inhabitants present; but all qualified inhabitants, whether they were present or not at the show of hands, have a right to be admitted into the vestry-room & vote during such poll: although the qualified inhabitants present at the time of granting the poll resolve that the poll shall be confined to those then present. (2) It is not a sufficient ground for impeaching such election (on motion for a mandamus to elect) that the poll was taken with closed doors, unless it be expressly sworn that some qualified person who meant to vote was thereby

551. — Ruling by chairman contrary to resolution of meeting.—Whether election invalidated.—No voters prevented from voting.—The advowson of a parish church being vested in trustees who were bound to present the nominee of the parishioners & inhabitants, a vacancy occurred, & at a meeting of parishioners convened by the churchwardens & presided over by one of them, Aug. 30 was fixed upon for a meeting to proceed to the election of a vicar. Meanwhile, upon the requisition of certain inhabitants, a meeting of Aug. 25, summoned by the churchwardens, but at which they declined to preside, was held, at which resolutions were passed to the effect that the election should be by ballot, on one day only, & at several polling places, & that the poll should be open from 9 to 9. On Aug. 30 the meeting resolved upon was held, candidates were nominated, a show of hands taken, & a poll demanded, & one of the churchwardens, who was in the chair, announced that the poll would be taken by open voting, on the following & two successive days, at one polling place only, & that the poll would be kept open from 8 to 8. Upon a parishioner rising to move amendments similar to those of Aug. 25, the chairman left the chair, & declared the meeting at an end. After the churchwarden had left the chair, another chairman was chosen, & a series of resolutions similar to those of Aug. 25, were moved & carried. The poll having been taken in the way announced by the chairman of the meeting of Aug. 30:—Held: (1) the conduct of the churchwardens had been erroneous & illegal; (2) there being no evidence of any voter having been deprived of an opportunity of voting, the election could not be disturbed. Semble: (3) an election by ballot, if duly resolved upon, is not at the present day an illegal mode of election.—*SHAW v. 552. Amendment negating resolution.—Whether separate poll necessary.—The churchwardens of C. gave notice that a vestry of the parish would be held to make a rate for the repair of the parish church: & in the notice it was stated that a show of hands would be taken on each proposition or amendment which might be submitted to the meeting, & if a poll should be demanded, the polling would be taken at an adjourned meeting on all the propositions & amendments made at the original meeting. At the meeting a rate of 2d. in the pound was proposed, & an amendment was moved "that no rate be granted." The majority were in favour of the amendment. Upon a poll being demanded, the vestry was adjourned for the purpose of taking it. At the poll the voting was "for the motion" & "for the amendment"; & at the close of it the chairman declared the motion to be carried, & no other amendment was allowed to be put:—Held: the amendment being a direct negative of the original motion, it was not necessary to take the poll on each; & no amendment could be brought forward after the close of the poll.—R. v. ROBERTS (1863), 3 B. & S. 495; 32 L. J. M. C. 153; 122 E. R. 186; sub nom. R. v. SURREY JJ., 7 L. T. 822; 27 J. P. 709; sub nom. ST. GILES, CAMBERWELL (CHURCHWARDENS) v. SURREY JJ., 11 W. 553. — — — — ——At a vestry meeting, a motion having been made & seconded that a rate be made, an amendment was proposed that it was not legal or expedient to make a church rate for the district. The amendment, & afterwards the original question, was put to the meeting: the first was negatived & the latter carried. A poll was demanded on the amendment only, & the vestry was adjourned for that purpose. On the day to which the vestry had been adjourned the chairman declared the state of the poll under the headings (1) the number for the amendment & against the rate, (2) the number against the amendment & for the rate, & declared the majority to be for the rate; & then dissolved the meeting without having put the original motion a second time:—Held: the proceedings, though irregular, were not sufficiently so to vitiate the rate.—TARKS v. HUTTON (1860), L. R. 1 A. & E. 270; 35 L. J. Eccl. 11; 31 J. P. 23; 12 Jur. N. S. 1013.

ii. Right to and Demand of Poll.

556. The right to a poll.—Incident to election by show of hands.—Election of parish officer.—The right to demand a poll is by law incident to the election of a parish officer by a show of hands. At the election of a churchwarden of the parish of P. (subsequently to Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69)), the show of hands was in favour of M. A poll was demanded by a ratepayer present, who required that it should be taken according to sect. 3 of

*Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes :
Sub-sect. 4, C. (e) ii. & iii.]*

above Act (allowing plurality of votes to individuals in respect of property), to which mode an inhabitant present objected. The poll was taken by plurality of votes, by which H. & G. had the majority; they also had the majority at the poll, reckoning by single votes. During the poll, several parishioners protested against the mode of taking it, & did not vote. By sect. 8 of above Act, nothing in that Act is to change or affect the right or manner of voting in any vestry or meeting holden by virtue of any ancient or special usage or custom. By a local Act, vestrymen of the parish of P. are to be elected by ballot, by plurality of votes, as under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3; elections of churchwardens are to be conducted in such manner as hath been usual in the same parish; & overseers are to be nominated by the vestry as may be done by parishioners in vestry in other cases. Before either Act passed, & ever since, churchwardens were elected in P. by show of hands, no poll ever having been demanded:—Held: (1) assuming Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, to be inapplicable to the parish of P, G. & H. were duly elected, the irregularity in the form of demanding the poll, if any, having been waived by the poll being in fact taken without objection from either party to there being a poll; & H. & G. having a majority on the poll according to either way of reckoning the votes; (2) sect. 3 of above Act was applicable to P.; for that the fact of no poll ever having been demanded did not show that the usage de facto in P. excluded a poll, & the elections were, at the time of passing the local Act, subject to sect. 3 of Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), in the event of a poll being demanded; (3) a poll may be demanded at an election of parish officers, after the chairman has declared the result of a show of hands.—CAMPBELL v. MAUND (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 865; 2 Har. & W. 457; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 558; 1 Nev. & P. M. C. 229; 6 L. J. M. C. 145; 111 E. R. 1304, Ex. Ch.

559. — Objection to churchwardens' accounts.]—A vestry meeting was held for the purpose of passing the churchwardens' accounts; & upon the motion being proposed that such accounts should be allowed, an amendment was proposed by an inhabitant, who objected to certain items, that such accounts should not be allowed. Upon this a show of hands was taken, when the chairman declared that the original motion was carried. Hereupon a poll was demanded, which the chairman refused to grant:—Held: he was wrong, & a mandamus was granted for the purpose of taking such poll.—R. v. ROBINSON, Ex p. OXFORD (1856), 27 L. 560. — Of whole parish — Effect of agreement.]—At a vestry, held under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), for the purpose of electing surveyors of highways, of which public notice had been given, it was agreed that the vote should be taken by a show of hands, leaving it open to any one to propose that the votes should be taken according to the statute. A. & B. were respectively proposed & seconded for the office of surveyor; & on a show of hands, A. had a majority. It was then proposed & seconded, on behalf of B., that the votes should be taken according to the statute. No objection was made; & on the votes being so taken, B. had a majority, & was declared duly elected. A. then demanded a poll of the whole parish:—Held: (1) the meeting having agreed to a poll being taken according to the statute, no one was entitled afterwards to demand a poll of the whole parish; (2) the election of B. was valid; (3) a mandamus for another meeting to elect would not lie.—*R. v. 564. — During calculation of votes after abortive show of hands.]—A vestry was duly summoned to consider as to the mode of raising money to pay for rebuilding the parish church. A resolution was moved & seconded that an application should be made to the comrs. of public works, to which an amendment was moved & seconded, that “this vestry refuses to sanction the application.” It being difficult to tell the numbers on a show of hands, the chairman suggested that the names be taken down in writing, to which no objection was made. The supporters of the amendment, however, seeing the numbers would be against them, one of them demanded during the reckoning that a poll be taken, & moved “that the vestry be kept open till Saturday.” The chairman refused to grant a poll, on the ground that there was a resolution pending & not disposed of:—Held: the poll ought to have been granted, there being substantially a demand for it, & mandamus granted accordingly to the rector to re-assemble the vestry & grant a poll.—R. v. WALTERS (1860), 24 J. P. 421.

566. Effect of refusal—Election imperfect.]—On the election of a surveyor of highways for a parish, the chairman of the vestry took a show of hands, but refused to allow a poll which was demanded. On an application on behalf of the person who appeared successful on the show of hands, the ct. granted a rule nisi for a mandamus, commanding the inhabitants to meet in vestry & take a poll, on the ground that the election was imperfect.—Ex p. GROSSMITH (1841), 5 Jur.; 551 sub nom. Ex p. GROSSMITH, 10 L. The majority of two-thirds of the vestrymen present at a vestry meeting of a parish having voted for the appointment of such a board, a poll was demanded by the minority, which the chairman refused, & a board were then nominated & appointed:—Held: (1) a poll was demandable of common right; (2) the right was not excluded by the words of the statute; (3) the board were therefore not duly elected.—*R. v. 568. — Proceedings void—Church rate.]—

At a duly assembled vestry A. proposed a church rate of twopence in the pound, & was seconded by B., C. proposed, as an amendment, a halfpenny rate, & was seconded by D. On show of hands the amendment was negatived; C. then demanded a poll, which the chairman refused; the original motion was then put & carried on show of hands. D. demanded a poll, the result of which was that the original motion was carried by 43 to 42:—Held: all proceedings subsequent to the refusal of the poll on the amendment were null, & the ct. pronounced against the rate.—St. Michael, Oxford (Churchwardens) v. Luff (1858), 31 L. T. O. S. 358; 7 W. R. 20.

569. — — — — — J.—(1) The only legitimate way in which a parish can express its desire to do an act is, by convening a vestry, & duly conducting the proceedings therein to their legal determination, viz., by show of hands, or by a poll when a poll is duly demanded. (2) A meeting of vestry was held for the purpose of considering the propriety of purchasing an additional burial-ground for the parish of P. A resolution to that effect having been put & agreed to by the majority of those present, a poll was demanded, & refused. The resolution of the vestry was communicated to the church building comrs., who thereupon authorised the parish to purchase the land & to levy rates to defray the expenses, under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 25, & Church Building Act, 1822 (c. 72), s. 26. Money was accordingly borrowed by the churchwardens, & a rate made. A parishioner declining to pay the rate, on the ground of invalidity, the churchwardens instituted against him a suit in the Consistory Ct., in which suit the respondent tendered a responsive allegation, stating that at the vestry a poll had been duly demanded, & refused. The judge of the Consistory Ct. having declined to admit this responsive allegation, the respondent appealed to the Ct. of Arches, by which ct. the decision of the ct. below was confirmed. Upon an application to this ct. for a writ of prohibition, on the ground that the judge of the Consistory Ct. had improperly refused to receive the responsive allegation, anet was directed to declare in prohibition; & it having so done:—Held: there had been no legal expression of the desire of the parish, & the responsive allegation ought to have been admitted to proof in the ecclesiastical ct. (3) An appeal from the Consistory Ct. to the Ct. of Arches is no application for a prohibition.—White (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 383; 31 L. J. C. P.

E. had on June 16, before the rule was made absolute, given notice that he had refused the poll under a mistake, but would hold another vestry, & grant a poll, which he forthwith did:—Held: D. was not entitled to his costs of the rule & writ of mandamus, because on E.'s submission after the rule nisi was obtained, he had done all in his power to correct the mistake, & the further prosecution of the rule was quite unnecessary.—*R. v. 572. Place of holding—Private property—Whether proper place—Town Hall.]—Notice having been given of a meeting in vestry for the purpose of granting a church rate, & that if a poll should be demanded, that a meeting would be immediately adjourned to the town hall. The meeting being held & a poll demanded, the chairman immediately adjourned the meeting to the town hall, where the poll was taken:—Held: (1) the proceeding was regular, no business having been interrupted by it, & the adjournment being part of the original appointment; (2) the town hall was not an improper place to take the poll, by reason of its being private property, no person having been prevented from voting on that account; (3) the time for taking the poll being limited to eleven hours, such time was sufficient if due diligence had been used, 785 persons being the greatest number proved to have voted on any occasion.—Baker & Downing v. Wood (Curt. 507).

Annotation:—As to (3) Folld. Westerton v. Davidson (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 385.

573. — — — — — Convenient place—Late voters prevented from voting by crowd—Whether ground for mandamus.]—Where at a vestry meeting a poll is demanded, if the time & place for taking such poll are convenient, it is no ground for a mandamus to hold another vestry for the same purpose, that in consequence of the crowded state of the place where the poll was taken, a number of voters were unable to give their votes. Voters should use diligence in voting, & if they hold back until a late period, & then in consequence of the crowd of voters, some of them are unable to vote before the poll closes, this ct. will not assist them.

581. — Discretion of incumbent.]—A vestry meeting of the parish of H., of which meeting notice had been posted on the church door, was held for the election of churchwardens. The rector nominated one churchwarden, & there were two candidates for the office of parishioners' churchwarden, one being the existing churchwarden, & the other a candidate put forward by a party dissatisfied with the administration of the parish charities. The show of hands was in favour of the last-named candidate. The poll was closed by the rector at five o'clock on the day of the election, when there appeared a majority of votes for the existing churchwarden. The validity of the election was questioned by a rule for a mandamus to the rector & churchwardens, to hold a new election:—Held: (1) the closing of the poll was a matter in the discretion of the rector, which had not been shown to be unreasonably exercised; (2) it had not been shown that, had the poll been kept open, the result of the election would have been different; (3) there had been too great delay in questioning the election. Rule discharged.—R. v. HANDBOROUGH (CHURCHWARDENS) (1877), 37 L. T. 400; 41 J. P. 807.

582. — Poll improperly closed—Costs of mandamus for new election.]—Where the ct granted a mandamus to a vicar & churchwarden to proceed to the election of a churchwarden, on the ground that the vicar had improperly closed the poll, but no corrupt motive was imputed to defts. & prosecutor failed at the election, the ct. refused to make defts. pay the costs of the mandamus.—R. v. ASTON (VICAR & CHURCHWARDEN) (1844), 2 L. T. O. S. 308; 8 J. P. Jo. 120.

583. — — — — —.]—Where a poll was closed too soon, the main cause of it being a great disturbance caused by the agent of one of the candidates, who also succeeded in getting a mandamus for a new election, the ct. refused to give costs of the mandamus against the churchwardens, on the ground that the party who obtained it was chiefly blameable.—R. v. 586. Effect of custom as to assessment of property—Plurality of votes.]—By Vestry Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, persons rated to the poor in respect of any annual rent, profit or value, not amounting to £50, shall be entitled to one vote

& no more at vestry meetings, & to an additional vote in respect of every additional £25, to which they shall be rated, not exceeding six votes in the whole. Where, however, in the parish of St. M. the poor rates had, according to ancient custom been always assessed without regard to the annual value of property in the parish, but according to the supposed ability of the person assessed:—Held: persons so rated were not within the benefit of sect. 3 of the above Act, as to the plurality of votes, although assessed in respect of property exceeding £50 in amount.—NIGHTINGALE v. MARSHALL (1823), 2 B. & C. 313; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 549; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 43; 107 E. R. 400.

587. Local Act—Election of guardians—Effect of Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69)—Plurality of votes.]—A local Act passed before Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), for the regulation of parish vestries, created the office of guardians of the poor for a particular parish, & enacted, that vacancies should be annually filled up by the rated inhabitants assembled in the vestry room, who should elect persons in the room of those going out:—Held: after the passing of the above Act the inhabitants ought to be allowed in such election the number of votes, in proportion to their respective assessments, defined in the latter Act; for the local Act did not give this vestry such a peculiar constitution as to bring it within sect. 8 of the above Act, which preserved to vestries holden under any special Act, the powers & rights of voting which they previously enjoyed.—R. v. ST. JAMES, (CLERKENWELL (CHURCHWARDENS) (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 317; 3 L. J. M. C. 99; 110 E. R. 1226.

588. — Trusteeship of church funds—Erection of house for minister—Mandamus to account on application by minister.]—A local Act provides, that if there should be a surplus from fees & payments received by vestry of a parish on account of certain district churches, the surplus should be put aside by the vestry to form a fund, to erect a residence for the minister. A mandamus was granted against the vestry to return the accounts relating to a church on the application of the minister, when there were affidavits both as to the existence & non-existence of a surplus.—R. v. ST. MARYLEBONE VESTRY (1838), 2 J. P. 344.

589. — Election of officers—"Most proper & convenient" method—Power to select.]—A local Act enacted, that at a vestry meeting to be held on Easter Tuesday in every year, all the vacancies in the list of governors & guardians of the poor should "be filled up by poll or ballot, or in such way of election as should be deemed most proper & convenient." At a vestry meeting held accordingly, the mode of election pursued was as follows: Two candidates were proposed for each vacancy; on a show of hands being taken, the one, in whose favour it appeared to be, was declared elected; & then two other candidates were proposed for the next vacancy; & so on, till all the vacancies were filled up. One of the rejected candidates demanded a poll of the inhabitants of the parish, which was refused by the chairman, who proceeded to complete the elections according to the mode above described:—Held: (1) this mode of election could not be sustained; (2) it was the meeting itself, & not the chairman, which was to pronounce what was the "most proper & convenient" mode of election; the right to determine the mode of election being limited to a choice among such modes as might best fulfil the object of the section, which was to secure the filling up of the vacancies by a real election made by the inhabitants in vestry assembled.—R. v. St. Mary Newington (Governors & Guardians) (1818) 6 Dow. & L. 162; Cripps' Church Cas. 117; 2 Saund. & C. 303; 17 L. J. Q. B. 220; 11 L. T. O. S. 205; 12 Jur. 918.

BLIZARD* (1829), 9 B. & C. 851; 4 Man. & Ry. K. B. 641; 2 Man. & Ry. M. C. 309; 109 E. R. 317; sub nom. FREEMAN v. MEYMOOT, BLACKETT v. BLIZARD, 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 85.

591. Notice of meeting—Three clear days after publication on Sunday unnecessary.—(1) By Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 60), no vestry or meeting of inhabitants in vestry of or for any parish shall be holden until public notice shall have been given of such vestry, three clear days at least before the day to be appointed for holding such vestry, by the publication of such notice on the parish church or chapel on some Sunday during or immediately after divine service, & by fixing the same, fairly written or printed, on the principal door of such church or chapel:—Held: this statute does not apply to a vestry of an ecclesiastical district formed under the Church Building Acts.

593. Notice of meeting—Omission to notify one member—Whether meeting invalidated.—To an action of trespass for an assault, debts, pleaded that they were overseers of the poor, & that a select vestry of the parish was duly assembled & holden in a certain school room within the parish, & that debts, as overseers, were present; that pltf. unlawfully entered the room, & debts, expelled him; it was proved that one of the five members who constituted the select vestry, had not been summoned, or received any previous notice of the meeting:—Held: the plea was not proved, as the meeting was not a legally constituted vestry, so as to support the allegation, that the selected vestry was duly assembled.—DOBSON v. FUSSEY (1831), 7 Bing. 305; 2 Man. & Ry. M. C. 470; 5 Moo. & P. 112; 9 L. J. O. S. C. P. 72; 131 E. R. 117.

594. Appointment of members—Appointment by justices after election by parishioners—Whether discretionary.—The justices have no discretionary power as to the appointment of persons nominated & elected by the parishioners as members of the select vestry, under Poor Relief Act, 1819 (c. 12), s. 1, but are bound to appoint those whose names are returned to them; even though a person returned may hold an office, the duties of which may be inconsistent with the duties of a select vestryman, as if he be a magistrate acting within the district in which the parish lies.—*R. v. 598. — Indefinite numbers of members—Members co-opted.—A custom that there shall be a select vestry of an indefinite number of persons, continued by election of new members made by itself, & not by the parishioners, is valid in law. Semble: it must be part of such custom that there should always be a reasonable number, & that the reasonableness of the number must be decided with reference to long established usage, & to the population of the parish; such a custom having existed from time immemorial in a parish.—GOLDING v. FENN (1828), 7 B. & C. 765; 1 Man. & Ry. K. B. 647; 1 Man. & Ry. M. C. 303; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 178; 108 E. R. 909.

602. — Co-option of new members by existing members—Whether valid.—GOLDING v. FENN, No. 598, ante.

603. — New members elected from limited class only.—By ancient custom a select vestry was to consist of the rector, churchwardens, & those who had served the office of upper churchwarden, & other parishioners to be elected by the vestrymen. The practice in modern times had been to elect as vestrymen those parishioners only who had been fined for not serving the office of upper churchwarden:—Held: they were good vestrymen.—R. v. BRAIN (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 614; 1 L. J. M. C. 53; 110 E. R. 224.

604. — Appointment of additional members by parishioners.—Although a parish be governed by a select vestry by prescription, & confirmed by local Acts, the parishioners have a right to exercise the powers of Poor Relief Act, 1819 (c. 12), in all matters not interfering with the previous powers; & for that purpose they may appoint additional select vestrymen.—R. v. St. Martin-in-the-Fields (Churchwardens & Overseers) (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 907; 1 L. J. M. C. 96; 110 E. R. 333.

605. — Evidence of custom.—In the parish of S., in London, there was a select vestry, consisting of the parson & those persons who had served the office of churchwarden, or paid a fine for not doing so; & by this body the churchwardens were elected. From the earliest records of the parish, commencing in 1648, it appeared that a fresh churchwarden was annually elected to serve the office of junior churchwarden, & the junior churchwarden for the preceding year became the senior churchwarden for that year. This custom had been acted upon from the year 1648 up to the great fire of London, when two persons acted as junior & senior churchwardens during five years; the custom was then renewed & acted upon up to the year 1734, & during the interval from that year to 1775 there were no records; from the latter year to 1824 the same course was pursued, with four exceptions. Upon a case, on which it was agreed that the ct. should have the power of drawing inferences in the same manner as a jury:—Held: there was a custom that a parishioner, not a member of the select vestry, should be elected every year to serve the office of junior churchwarden, who in the next ensuing year should succeed to the office of senior churchwarden, & at the expiration of that year should become a member of the select vestry, by which means its members would be supplied; & the election of G., a member of the select vestry, who had served previously the offices of junior & senior churchwarden, to serve the office of junior churchwarden in 1844, was void.—(GIBBS v. FLIGHT (1840), 3 C. B. 581; 16 L. J. M. C. 73; 8 L. T. O. S. 213; 11 Jur. 19; 136 E. R. 232.)

606. Powers. Proof of custom to elect churchwardens.—Admissibility of evidence.—BERRY v. BANNER, No. 169, ante.

607. —To elect another select vestry. Under Poor Relief Act, 1819 (c. 12).—A select vestry for the management of the parish affairs existing by ancient custom, cannot elect another select vestry for the management of the poor within the above Act.—R. v. WOODMAN (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 507; 100 E. R. 1023.

Annotation:—Refd. R. v. St. Bartholomew the Great (1831), 2 B. & Ald. 506.

608. —Whether vestry within Poor Relief Act, 1819.—To a mandamus calling on churchwardens & overseers to summon a meeting for the purpose of establishing a select vestry for the concerns of the poor, pursuant to the above Act, a return was made, stating that there was by custom, an ancient vestry in the parish, which had from time immemorial consulted & deliberated on parochial matters, & acted as a select vestry for the concerns of the poor; & that they had immemorially been accustomed to perform the duties imposed on select vestries by the statute:—Held: the return was bad, since the statute imposes some duties, as the management of money raised by poor rates, & making orders for the government of overseers, which could not have existed before Poor Relief Act, 1801 (c. 2).—R. v. ST. BARTHOLOMEW THE GREAT (1831), 2 B. & Ald. 506; 109 E. R. 1230.

(c) Under Local Acts.

610. Adoption of Vestries Act, 1831 (c. 60)—Joint vestry for two parishes.—The ancient parish of St. Giles in the Fields was divided under certain Acts of Parliament into two parishes, St. Giles in the Fields & St. George, Bloomsbury, which were made separate & distinct for all purposes except as to church, highway, & poor. Separate vestrymen were appointed for the new parish. By local Acts for regulating the affairs of the joint parishes of St. Giles & St. George, & of the separate parishes of St. Giles & St. George, the vestry of each parish was to be composed of 42 persons, besides the rector & churchwardens, elected by the vestrymen duly qualified; each vestry was to appoint its own churchwardens & auditors & make its own church rates, & to manage some other affairs of the separate parish; & the vestrymen of the two parishes were to be the joint vestry of the parishes, & to appoint overseers & directors & other officers to manage the relief of the poor of the joint parish, to make its poor rates, & to exercise other powers relative to the poor & concerning the parishes jointly. Questions before the joint vestry were to be decided by a majority of the vestrymen present:—Held: the parishioners of one of the parishes could not separately adopt the provisions of the above Act for the election of their own vestry.—R. v. BASSIST (1851), 17 Q. B. 332; 117 E. R. 1307.

611. Voting.—Statutory majority—Constructive of Act—Members present but not voting.—By a local Act, the management of the affairs of a parish was confided to a select vestry, consisting of an indefinite body. The Act provided that the vestry at their meetings, "or the major part of such of them as shall be assembled at such meetings," might do whatever could be done by an ordinary vestry. By a subsequent Act, power was given to the vestry "or them" to appoint & dismiss a collector of the poor rate. B. was appointed a collector of the poor rate. A charge being brought against him, a meeting of the vestry was duly convened to consider. The vestry then consisted of eight persons; 35 attended the meeting. A motion was made to dismiss B., sixteen voted for it, & eleven voted against it. It was declared to be carried & B. was dismissed:—Held: although the motion was carried by a majority of those voting, yet, not being carried by a majority of those present, it was not carried by a majority of those assembled; the vestrymen declining to vote not being considered in point of law absent; consequently, the dismissal was not effectual.—R. v. CHURCH OF OVERSEERS (1857), 7 E. & B. 409; 27 L. J. M. C. 23; 29 L. T. O. S. 328; 21 J. P. 533; 3 Jur. N. S. 1074; 5 W. R. 755; 119 E. R. 1209, Ex. Ch.

224. — Reservation of certain causes.]—By letters patent appointing a chancellor for a diocese the bishop gave him power, in the absence of the bishop from his Consistory Ct., to determine certain causes, "Nevertheless first consulting us & our successors, & having our consent in case either party earnestly craved our judgment." A suit was promoted for the removal of certain ornaments from a church in the diocese, & the respondents in their reply asked that the bishop should be first consulted & his consent had, & earnestly craved his judgment. The chancellor heard the suit, & delivered a judgment in which he held that he had jurisdiction & dealt with the merits of the case. It appeared from the judgment, though not so stated in terms, that he had not consulted the bishop or obtained his consent either to the hearing of the suit or the terms of the judgment. On appeal from a refusal to direct the issue of a writ of prohibition:—Held: the limitation in the patent was not illegal; it did not relate to procedure, but had the effect of excluding the jurisdiction of the chancellor over the excepted causes; the absence of jurisdiction sufficiently appeared on the face of the proceedings; & as the objection to the hearing of the suit by the chancellor had not been abandoned or waived, a writ of prohibition should issue.—R. v. 229. Improper exercise of jurisdiction—Liability in damages.]—(1) An action upon the case was held not to lie against the vicar-general of the bishop for excommunicating pltf. with the greater excommunication, for contumacy in not taking upon him administration of an intestate's effects, to whom pltf. was next of kin, & had intermeddled with the goods, etc., although the citation by which pltf. was cited was void, by reason that it required him to appear & take administration, etc., without leaving him an option to renounce it, & the proceedings thereupon had been set aside upon appeal; for the vicar-general had jurisdiction over the subject-matter, viz. the granting administration, & there was no malice.

(2) This action is not maintainable if the ecclesiastical ct. had a general jurisdiction over the subject-matter, & that it had general jurisdiction over the subject-matter, & in regard to some of the particulars mentioned in the citation, there can be no doubt. I accede however to the decision of the Ct. of Delegates that this citation must be considered as a nullity. Sect. 10 enacts, "that in case any person shall, in his own name, or in the name of any other person, make, do, act, exercise, or perform any act, matter, or thing whatsoever, in any way appertaining or belonging to the office, function, or practice of a proctor, for or in consideration of any gain, fee, or reward, or with a view to participate in the benefit to be derived from the office, function, or practice of a proctor, without being admitted & enrolled, he shall forfeit £50":—Held: construing these two sections together, the acts intended by the latter section to be prohibited were those which were legally incident to the office of a proctor; not those which, though usually performed by him, were not of right incident to his office.

(2) Therefore, a registrar of an ecclesiastical ct., who, in cases where there was no testamentary contest, had prepared the documents, & done the acts necessary, for obtaining letters testamentary, & probates of wills, & other similar matters, had not thereby subjected himself to the penalty imposed by sect. 10.—STEPHENSON v. The registrars appointed a deputy, subject to the approbation & consent of the bishop, who on being informed of it, answered that "for good & sufficient reasons" he disapproved of the party nominated, but declined specifying his reasons. 264. Receiver—Restrained from performing alleged duties—Remedy.—By a grant or patent, dated in 1801, the then Bishop of E. having, as the grant stated, "confidence in the probity, fidelity, care & industry of P." granted to P., who was a solicitor, "the office of receiver of all issues, profits, & sums of money, arising & issuing" from the possessions of the see, to hold to P. by himself or his sufficient deputy or deputies, to be approved of by the bishop & his successors, for his life. The office of receiver was an ancient office, & had been exercised before the restraining statute of 1 Eliz., c. 19. P. held the office under three successive bishops, during the whole of which time he not only received the rents, but negotiated the renewals of leases, & prepared the leases of the see, & likewise attended all searches for records in the bishop's muniment room, of which he kept a key; for the performance of which acts he received fees & emoluments. It appeared also that his predecessor in office, who had held the office since 1785, had done the same. Upon the accession of A. to the bishopric in 1836, he refused to admit P.'s claim of right to perform these last-mentioned acts; upon which P. filed his bill against the bishop, praying a declaration of the rights in question in his favour, that he might be quieted in the possession of the office, & that the bishop might be restrained by injunction from obstructing pltf. in the exercise of such rights, & from doing acts in contravention of them:—Held: (1) pltf.'s claims were not of such a nature as to induce this ct. to interfere to protect them, without being well satisfied (which the ct. was not) that his legal remedy was insufficient to do him complete justice; (2) the relief sought being analogous to the specific performance of an agreement, the bill must fail, on the ground of want of mutuality; the nature of the duties and services asserted by pltf. being such as to preclude the possibility of a decree in this ct. against him, compelling their specific performance.—PICKERING v. ELY (Bp.) (1843), 2 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 249; 12 L. J. Ch. 271; 7 Jur. 479; 63 E. R. 109.

265. Seal keeper—Tenure of office.—Upon the trial of various issues raised upon a return to a writ of mandamus, commanding deft. to deliver up the seal of the Consistory Ct. of the diocese of L., it appeared that deft. had been appointed by the chancellor of 1821, by an instrument under seal, to hold the office of seal keeper "in as full & ample a manner as his predecessors had held it." It appeared that for many years, as far back as 1766, the office had been held for life, or during good behaviour, if the grantor should so long continue in the office of chancellor; but there was no record of such an office in the registry of the diocese in very ancient times, nor in very old books; & it appeared that in the cts. of the Archbishop of Canterbury & Bishop of London, the seal keeper was orally appointed during will & pleasure:—Held: this was evidence from which the ct., being placed in the situation of a jury, ought to infer, that the office of seal keeper was an ancient office, which might be granted to the holder for life, or during good behaviour, if the grantor should so long continue in the office of chancellor.—R. v.

But where the archdeaconry is not peculiar, the bishop & archdeacon have concurrent jurisdiction.—ROBINSON v. GODSALVE (1690), 1 Ld. Raym. 123; 91 E. R. 978.

274. ———Whether independent of diocesan chancellor.]—The Dean of Arches declined to accept letters of request presented jointly by the Archdeacon & Chancellor of N.

The archdeacon has not a jurisdiction entirely independent of the chancellor of the diocese, but an appeal lies from the archdeacon to the chancellor of the diocese, & from him to the Arches Ct. of Canterbury. The Archdeacon of N. has no separate jurisdiction, therefore it is not competent for him to sign letters of request to this ct.; his is not an exempt jurisdiction. The Chancellor of N. has jurisdiction, even if the archdeacon has no separate jurisdiction, & although the proceedings were commenced in his ct., there cannot be joint letters of request signed by the archdeacon & the chancellor of the diocese together to this ct. passing over the intermediate right of appeal. A delegated power is given to the chancellor, & it cannot be delegated to this ct.—STEWART v. BATEMAN (1842), 3 Curt. 201; 163 E. R. 702.

The ct. then requested the archdeacon of the district in which the church is situated to inspect such alterations, & to report to it as to their nature & propriety, which he did:—Held: the ct. would adopt the recommendation of such a report, unless it contained some grievous misstatements of fact, or erroneous conclusion of law.

(2) The ct. ordered a confirmatory faculty to issue in regard to those alterations which met with the archdeacon's approval, & admonished the clergyman to restore the church in every other respect to the state it was in before he commenced the alterations.—*SIEVEKING & EVANS v. C. Visitation.

277. Right to fees—Procurations—In respect of impropriate rectory.]—SANDERSON v. CLAGGET, No. 191, ante.

278. ———Liability of incumbents & churchwardens.]—(1) Except in those archdeaconries where by arrangement with the Ecclesiastical Comrs. procurations in respect of the archidiaconal procurations are not required to be paid by the clergy, the incumbents of parishes cited to attend the annual visitation of the archdeacon within whose jurisdiction their benefices are situated, if not otherwise exempt, are legally bound to pay procurations to the archdeacon at the customary rate, notwithstanding that the archdeacon has not personally visited the parish in respect of which the procurations are claimed either personally or by deputy, & although the visitation is held in another parish or in the cathedral of the diocese & for a number of parishes collectively.

The Archdeacon of E. claimed in a civil suit brought against the incumbent of a parish within his archdeaconry a procuration of ten shillings in respect of his annual visitation in that year held for a number of parishes within the archdeaconry, including deft.'s parish, on May 8, 1911, in a parish of which deft. was not the incumbent, & in the cathedral of the diocese. Deft. was cited to attend the visitation, but did not appear at it or pay the sum claimed from him. At the hearing it appeared that no arrangement had been made with the Ecclesiastical Comrs. under which procurations in respect of the archdeacon's visitation would not be required to be paid, & that ten shillings was the amount at which the procurations in kind formerly payable to the archdeacon in respect of deft.'s parish had been commuted:—Held: (2) deft. was legally liable to pay to the promovent the customary procuracion of ten shillings due & payable to him as archdeacon in respect of his visitation in 1911, notwithstanding that the archdeacon had not visited deft.'s parish either personally or by deputy, but had held his visitation outside deft.'s parish & for a number of parishes at one & the same time; (3) Ecclesiastical Fees Act, 1867 (c. 135), & the Tables of Fees thereunder afforded no defence to the suit, as the fees under that Act, so far as they relate to visitations, are confined to fees payable by the churchwardens of parishes in cases where they have funds to pay them, & are not fees which affect, or are substituted for, procuracions payable by the incumbents of parishes.

(4) The ct. ordered that as long as deft. remained beneficed in the benefice of which he was incumbent at the date of the judgment in the suit, he should pay to the Archdeacon of E. for the time being the annual sum of ten shillings in respect of procuracions due & payable by him to the archdeacon in respect of the archidiaconal visitations from & inclusive of the year 1912 & onwards.—*EXETER (ARCHDEACON) v. 280. Registrar—Nature of office—Whether within Sale of Offices Act, 1551 (c. 16).—A bond given by any of the officers mentioned in above Act for securing all the profits of the office to the person appointing, is void by that statute. So is a bond given by such an officer to surrender whenever the person appointing chose. The office of registrar of an archdeaconry is an office within that statute.—*LAYNG v. 284. Right to visitation fees—From churchwardens—By custom.—From 1727 to 1801 visitation fees of the unvarying amount of 7s. 6d. for the Easter visitation, & 4s. 6d. for the Michaelmas visitation, were received by the registrars of an archidiaconal ct. from the churchwardens of a parish within the archdeaconry. From 1801 to 1857 fees of a varying amount, but always slightly in excess of 7s. 6d., & 4s. 6d. were received. A dispute having arisen in 1857, as to the fees payable to the registrars, & an action having been brought by the registrars, to recover fees of 7s. 6d. & 4s. 6d. for the Easter & Michaelmas visitations in 1857 & subsequent years:—Held: the uniform receipt for 71 years of the amounts of 7s. 6d. & 4s. 6d. was overwhelming evidence that the excess subsequently claimed was an usurpation on the part of the registrars, but that such modern usurpation did not affect their title to the original fees of 7s. 6d. & 4s. 6d. which had been received for 130 years, & that in favour of vested interests a legal origin of the right to those fees would be presumed unless the contrary were proved.—*SHEPARD v. 285. Nature of churchwardens' liability.—The liability of churchwardens to pay the fee of the registrar to an archdeacon is not personal, but is contingent upon their possessing funds out of which the fees may be legally paid. Therefore, where churchwardens had no funds in their hands for the repairs of the church, or for any other expense incident to their office, except by voluntary subscriptions, & were without the means of obtaining funds:—Held: they were not liable to pay the fee of the registrar due upon a visitation of the archdeacon.—VELEY v. PERTWEE (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 573; 39 L. J. Q. B. 195; 22 L. T. 713; 34 J. P. 824; 18 W. R. 1025.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

291. Creation.—By translation of abbot & prior —Whether valid.]—Hen. 8, translated the Abbot & Prior of Norwich by his letters patent, & created them by the name of dean & chapter, who surrendered their possessions to Edw. 6; Edw. 6 reincorporated them by the name of "The Dean & Chapter of the Cathedral Church of the Holy & undivided Trinity of Norwich, of the foundation of Edward the Sixth," & regranted their possessions to them, omitting the words "of the foundation of Edward the Sixth:"—Held: (1) the translation, if there were any defect in it, was made good by 35 Eliz. c. 3; (2) the misnomer in the regrant by Edw. 6, if material, was cured by the Statute of Confirmations, 1547 (c. 8); (3) the old corporation remained, notwithstanding the surrender.—NORWICH'S (DEAN & CHAPTER) CASE (1598), 3 Co. 292. As corporation aggregate—Chapter apart from dean.]—FERRE'S CASE (1563), Moore, K. B. 51; 72 E. R. 434.

293. ————.]—By the common law a dean & chapter, being a corp. aggregate, might have made what estates they would of their possessions, as any person owner of a fee simple might do. But a bishop, or a dean of the possessions of his deanery, or other ecclesiastical person being a single corp., were not entrusted by the law singly, without the consent of the chapter, patron, or ordinary, as the case required, to alien their possessions. . . . The dean & chapter are one thing & the dean another in person & possession; yet the dean & chapter cannot present the dean to the church; but they may present one of the chapter; for it is no perfect corp. without the dean, as it is without the chapter. Therefore a gift or alienation to the chapter, the deanery being void, is not good (BRIDGMAN, O. J.).—LYN v. WYN (1665), O. Bridg. 122; 124 E. R. 502.

title of incorporation from grant.]—NORWICH'S (DEAN & CHAPTER) CASE, No. 291, ante.

297. Regulation—By statutes made by bishop—Statute contrary to policy of ecclesiastical establishment—Construction.]—A statute made in 1663 by the Bishop, with the consent of the chapter, of Exeter, conferring upon every canon residentiary who should cease to be such by promotion to a higher degree & dignity in the Church of England (unless it be by voluntary resignation, etc.) the right of receiving to his own use the whole profits & advantages of the canonry for the following year, supposing such a statute to be valid, is at all events contrary to the policy of the ecclesiastical establishment, & to be construed strictly: therefore, where deft., who was dean & canon of that chapter, resigned the same in order to obtain promotion to another deanery, to which he was shortly afterwards promoted:—Held: he was not within the statute, not having ceased to be a member of the former church by promotion to the latter, but having ceased to be so before his promotion: besides, his resignation having been voluntary, he was expressly excluded by the terms of the exception; a promotion from one deanery to another seems not a promotion to a higher degree. The admission of plff. as canon into plenum jus, although not made until a year after his first admission, related back to the time when his title to the profits accrued, so as to enable him to maintain an action for them.—GARNETT v. GORDON (1813), 1 M. & S. 205; 105 E. R. 77.

300. ———— Whether valid—Chapter without dean.]—A chapter although it hath no dean, is within 13 Eliz., c. 10; which is a general law; therefore if such chapter grant a next avoidance, it is void ab initio; for otherwise, as there is no dean on whose death it might determine, it would be good for ever.—SOUTHWELL (CHAPTER) v. 303. Relationship with bishop.—The statute regulating appeals from archdeacons does not appear to me to regulate any appeals from deans & chapters; for a dean & chapter are of higher rank than an archdeacon. . . . The dean & chapter have in some instances a control over the bishop; while the archdeacon is only an officer of the bishop, & is sometimes called oculus episcopi, subordinate to him, & supervising for him (SIR JOHN NICOLL).—*PARHAM v. 304. Legal proceedings by & against.—Pleading.—Omission of part of corporate name.—(1) In trespass for taking a load of wheat, if deft. justify for tithes under a feoffment from the dean & chapter of the rectory, it shall be intended there was glebe land appertaining thereto, whereof a feoffment might be made.

(2) In pleading an act done by a corp., as entering for a forfeiture, a deed to enter need not be shown. In pleading a lease by a dean & chapter the omission of part of their corporate name, is fatal.—EDGAR & WEBB v. SORRELL (1829), Cro. Car. 169; 79 E. R. 748.

305. — Variance.—An action for use & occupation may be maintained by a corporation aggregate.

In such an action by a dean & chapter, if the name of the present dean is mentioned at the beginning of the declaration, & it is afterwards laid that the occupation was, "by the permission of the dean & chapter," & it appears in evidence that deft. occupied only in the time & by the permission of a former dean, this is a fatal variance.—ROCHESTER (DEAN & CHAPTER) v. PIERCE (1808), 1 Camp. 460.

306. Whether subject to statutes of limitation.—The Dean & Chapter of W. made a grant of manor lands for three lives. In 1820, shortly after the death of the surviving life, they, by letter, requested the party holding the deed of grant to deliver it up to them. In 1822, the deed not having been delivered up, they wrote a second letter, referring to an interview held on the subject, & expressing surprise that no time had been fixed for handing over the document. Of this letter no notice was taken by the party holding the grant. In 1844, the dean & chapter filed a bill for the delivery up of the deed. Deft. by his answer set up Stat. Limitations as a bar to their claim:—Held: the non-compliance with the letter of 1822 constituted a conversion; p'ts. were barred by the statute.

If I am to consider the dean & chapter in the same position as any man under no disability, of full age, seised in fee simple of the land, & I think, I must so consider them, the question is, is there not, if the letters written in 1822 were not followed by compliance, such a refusal as acts as a conversion, & which puts the parties in a position adverse to each other? Very little establishes conversion. P'ts.' counsel have not established any especial parliamentary privilege in the dean & chapter exempting them from the operation of Stat. Limitations. I must, therefore, hold them to be barred by it (KNIGHT-BRUCE, V.C.).—WELLS (DEAN & CHAPTER) v. DODDINGTON (1845), 2 Coll. 73; 14 L. J. Ch. 304; 5 L. T. O. S. 170; 9 Jur. 768; 63 E. R. 642.

310. Nature of office.—Whether temporal or spiritual promotion.—Deanery created by Act of Parliament.—The Deanery of Wells is a spiritual & not a temporal promotion, nor is it a donative, therefore leases made by the dean need not the confirmation of the King, nor even of the bishop, & the Act of Parliament that erected the new deanery on the surrender of the old one, & gave the nomination of the dean to the King, enacting also, that the new dean & his successors might grant, demise or depart with their possessions in the same manner as the ancient deans could, whose leases only required the confirmation of their chapter.

311. Appointment.—Old foundation.—Right of Crown to nominate.—The Deanery of Exeter was founded & endowed by the bishop of that see in 1225; the dean to be elected freely by the chapter from among the prebendaries. For more than 300 years from the foundation the course pursued at the election of dean was for the bishop to issue his licence to the chapter to elect, for the chapter to elect & present to the bishop, & for the bishop to confirm. Elizabeth issued letters recommendatory on a vacancy occurring in 1559, & the person recommended by her was elected by the chapter, & all the formalities of previous elections were observed. Charles II. & succeeding monarchs down to 1839, granted the deanery as it became vacant by letters patent & as of full right, but the same formalities were always observed, the bishop issuing his license, the chapter electing, & then the bishop confirming. In 1839 the Crown issued letters patent granting the deanery, to which the chapter paid no attention. The Crown afterwards issued letters recommendatory in favour of the same person who was grantee under the letters patent, but the chapter elected another person. A rule for a mandamus to elect the person recommended by the Crown was discharged, on the grounds, that the Crown had not the right, which it appeared to claim, of recommending a person whom the chapter would be bound to elect, so that the election of any other would be void; & that, on the other hand, if the deanery were donative in the Crown, it would pass by letters patent, & the person elected by the chapter be a mere trespasser; that, if it were in the presentation of the Crown as patron, or the Crown had a right to nominate a person to the chapter to be by them presented to the bishop for institution, the proper remedy was quare impedit.—*R. v. 315. Rectory annexed to deanery.—Effect of Ecclesiastical Commissioners Act, 1840 (c. 113).—Whether rectory vested in commissioners.]—A private Act united & annexed the rectory of T. (not in the cathedral city of Lichfield) to the deanery of Lichfield, & the dean was to be instituted thereto on application to the bishop, without presentation, & be possessed thereof in right of his deanery. Ecclesiastical Commissioners Act, 1840 (c. 113), provided that all the estate of the holder of any deanery or canonry & his successors should be vested in the Ecclesiastical Comrs. for the purposes of the act. Ecclesiastical Commissioners Act, 1850 (c. 94), s. 19, provided that no dean should hold with his deanery any benefice unless in the cathedral city:—Held: the rectory of T. did not pass to the Ecclesiastical Comrs., & the dean of Lichfield was not disabled by the last named Act from holding it.—*R. v. 317. Sub-dean.—Whether independent of cathedral authority.]—(1) If the foundation of the cathedral & the grant of the adjoining land date before the year 1189 & the institution of civil parishes, it will be presumed that neither the site of the cathedral nor of the precincts are within the limits of any parish.

In the cathedral church of A., from a very early period, there has been an officer called the sub-dean, who is not a member of the chapter, & is not inducted into a stall. Except on very rare occasions, the sub-dean has been also vicar of the parish in which the cathedral is locally situated. For many centuries, & until the year 1852, the north transept of the cathedral was used as a church by the parishioners of the same parish, & the churchyard adjoining the cathedral as their place of burial. No church rate was ever levied upon the parish for the repairs of the north transept, but the whole expense of the maintenance of the north transept & the churchyard was defrayed by the dean & chapter, & the services regulated & controlled by them also. The inhabitants of the precincts of the close maintained their own poor, & held an annual vestry in the south transept of the cathedral to lay a rate for that purpose, nor were they inhabitants of the parish, so that they could be presented to the ordinary if they did not receive the sacrament in the parish church at Easter. The vicar & sub-dean kept the registers both of the parish & of the precincts of the close. Before the year 1813 the names of the inhabitants of the parish & of the close were entered promiscuously in the register books of baptisms, marriages & burials. After 1813 the marriages of inhabitants of the parish & the close were still entered in the same book, but the baptisms & burials were entered in separate books for the parish & for the close. The vicar & sub-dean performed all the ordinary ministerial duties for, & received the usual fees from, the inhabitants of the parish & of the close, & for many years some of the inhabitants of the precincts of the close paid Easter offerings to the vicar & sub-dean:—Held: (3) the right conceded to the parish by using the north transept for divine service & the churchyard for burials, was only a limited privilege, & the incumbent of the parish had only such rights as vicar as were incidental to the privileges conceded, & were limited accordingly; (4) such rights were extinguished in 1852, when a new church was substituted for the north transept, & in 1854, when the cathedral churchyard was closed for burials by an Ord. in Council; (5) the sub-dean, as distinguished from the vicar, had separate rights & duties, namely, the discharge of spiritual functions within the close, & the ministerial fees arising from the duties so discharged; (6) the appointment of sub-dean did not legally incapacitate the dean, when he thought fit, from personally discharging the spiritual duties in respect of the inhabitants of the close.—*BRAITHWAITE v. In such action it is not necessary to allege in the declaration that the benefice has the cure of souls; & its being alleged that he absented himself for a period exceeding eight months together (to wit), on Oct. 10, 1810, for the space of nine months then next following is sufficiently certain of the time of absence, for it shall be intended to be for more than eight months immediately consecutive to Oct. 10, the jury having found a verdict for a penalty corresponding with that period of absence. 331. — Hereford.]—By Eccles. Comrs. Act, 1840 (c. 113), s. 25, in the cathedral church of York, as soon as a vacancy shall occur in the deanery, & in the cathedral churches of Chichester, Exeter, Hereford, Salisbury, & Wells respectively, as soon as every person who was a member of the respective chapters of such churches at the passing of this Act shall cease to be such member, all the canonries shall be in the direct patronage of the Archbishop of York & of the bishops of the respective sees, who shall upon the vacancy of any canonry collate thereto a spiritual person, who shall thereupon be entitled to installation as a canon of such church.

In the cathedral church of Hereford the capitular body consisted at the time of the passing of the Act of a dean & five residentiary canons, who were called the "close chapter," & twenty-two non-residentiary canons, making up the "general chapter." One of the officers in the body was the praetor, who by customary right on a vacancy succeeded to one of the residentiary canonries, & a new praetor was appointed out of the non-residentiary canons by the close chapter. The non-residentiary canons were appointed by the bishop. At York the dean alone appointed the residentiary canons from out of the non-residentiaries. Since the passing of the Act a praetor had been appointed at Hereford; & the last of those persons who were members of the close chapter at the passing of the statute having afterwards died, the bishop claimed under the statute to appoint direct to the vacant canonry residentiary. The praetor claimed to succeed to the vacancy on the ground that several who were members of the general chapter at the passing of the Act were still members;—Held: "chapter" meant the "close chapter"; for that it was the intention of the statute to preserve the vested rights of patronage alone, without any regard to the rights of the body out of which the selection was to be made; & the residentiary canonries therefore were now in the direct patronage of the bishop.—*R. v. 338. Annexation to archdeaconry—Whether severable—Effect of separate grant.]—Henry VIII. by his letters patent erected & refounded the cathedral church of Rochester, & appointed therein a chapter, consisting of a dean & six prebendaries, as well as other functionaries, & officers not of the chapter, & directed that the dean should appoint the inferior officers; reserving to the King, his heirs & successors, the right of nominating the dean & six prebendaries, & their successors, as vacancies occurred. Charles I. by his letters patent granted to A., Archdeacon of Rochester, & his successors the first canonry or prebend which after the date of the letters patent should become vacant by death, resignation, etc., & that the said prebend or canonry should be united & annexed to the archdeacon & his successors. In 1630 A. was admitted to the prebend; he & his successors, being archdeacons, had from that time till 1827 held that prebend, when B., the last archdeacon, died. Each of them was collated & inducted to the archdeaconry, & instituted & inducted to the prebend, separately & distinctly. When the last archdeacon died, W. was bishop, & by him C. was collated & admitted to the archdeaconry, & also instituted to the prebend, but he had not been inducted into either at the time of the bishop's death in Feb. 1827. On June 12, 1827, the see continuing vacant, another clergyman, D., was presented by the Lord Chancellor to the prebend by letters patent under the Great Seal, & he was inducted thereto on June 16, 1827. On June 27, the see being still vacant, George IV. granted the archdeaconry to C., habendum for life, with all profits, pre-eminences, etc. thereto belonging; & on July 14 following, C. was duly inducted into the archdeaconry:—Held: (1) the prebend being an ecclesiastical benefice, & not a mere office, the Crown might alienate it; (2) Charles I. might lawfully annex it to the archdeaconry, the archdeacon being a corporation sole, & also a spiritual person capable of discharging all the duties & exercising all the functions belonging to a prebend,

& the letters patent were sufficient for the purpose of annexing it, though the annexation was only of that prebend which should first become vacant; (3) C. was entitled to the prebend, & not D.; because an annexation once made cannot be severed, & because C. became prebend in fact, as well as in law, by his institution & induction into the archdeaconry, & the prior institution & induction of D. to the prebend was wholly void.—KING v. 341. Profits—During vacancy—Recovery by new appointee.]—28 Hen. VIII., c. 11, s. 3, gives the "tithes, fruits, oblations, obventions, emoluments, commodities, advantages, rents, & all other whatsoever revenues, casualties, or profits, certain & uncertain, belonging to any" dignity, prebend, or benefice therein mentioned, which shall accrue between the occurrence of a vacancy & a new appointment, to the appointee. 5 & 6 Will. IV., c. 30, directs the profits of dignities or benefices, without cure of souls, becoming vacant during the existence of a certain ecclesiastical commission, to be paid to the treasurer of Queen Anne's Bounty, who is to keep an account of the receipts & expenses, & retain the balance until he shall be otherwise ordered "by competent authority." By a subsequent statute the Crown is declared entitled to appoint, notwithstanding the existence of the commission in question, three persons to certain prebends therein named. One of these appointees, having duly demanded from the Treasurer of Queen Anne's Bounty the profits received by him during the vacancy, brought an action for money had & received, to recover them. A special verdict (on a verdict found in his favour), declared these to be "the net profits of the prebend":—Held: a judgment for pltf. given on this verdict could not be sustained, because it did not distinguish the sources from which these profits might arise, nor show whether they were derived from the corpus of the prebend to which he was individually entitled, or from sums due to him in respect of his share of the funds of the corporation aggregate, of which, as prebend, he was a member.—REPTON v. HODGSON (1850), 3 H. L. Cas. 72; 10 E. R. 28, H. L.; affy. S. C. sub nom. HODGSON v. REPTON (1845), 7 Q. B. 96, Ex. Ch.

Musgrave, of the Queen's free chapel of St. George at Windsor, & all glebe & other lands, messuages, tenements, & hereditaments belonging thereto; & all & every the rights, rents, profits, etc., to the canonry belonging." On ejectment brought on the demise of the mtgee., it appeared in evidence that there was no property attached to any individual canonry, but that the whole property belonged to the dean & chapter, & that the surplus rents, after payment of certain expenses thereout, were divided equally among the dean & the other members of the chapter; that all the canons had houses assigned to them for their residence, but that no particular house was appropriated to any one canonry; that whenever a vacancy occurred the canons had a right of choice of the vacant house according to their seniority, & that the house which was left after the other canons had made their selection, was assigned to the new canon. Deft. had retained possession of the same house which was assigned to him upon his installation:—Held: (1) ejectment would not lie either for the canonry of deft., or for the house assigned to him for his residence as canon; (2) deft. was not estopped, by the mtge. deed, from showing that the house in question did not belong to the canonry.—*DOE d. For supposing him entitled to make an option of the entire premises, & to have it entered in the act book, as against the corpn.; yet no such option having been made & entered in the act book according to the custom, he had no separate legal title to the premises in question, on which he could maintain an ejectment.—*GOODTITLE d. SECT. 7.—CONSTITUTION OF THE CHURCH INTO PARISHES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—THE PARISH.

A. In General.

355. What constitutes—Within Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), s. 59.]—(1) The township of B. was a populous district situated within the parish of W., had constables of its own, & maintained its own poor. It had, from time immemorial, chapelwardens & a chapel of its own. Divine service was performed, & the sacraments of the church administered, in the chapel, the repairs of which were paid for by the township. It had had its own burial ground from the year 1727; but, until then, it had had none but that of W.: &, down to 1740, but not later, the township made payments to the clergy of W. church in respect of burials at B. There was evidence of payments made from 1727 to 1740, to the clergy of W. for churchings at B. Chapel; & of marriages having been celebrated there by license & banns from 1695 to 1754, but not afterwards till 1843, when the chapel was licensed under the Registration Act, 1836 (c. 85). There was also evidence of payments made, from time to time by B. to the churchwardens of W., on account of W. church, beginning in 1689 & ending in 1752: which payments were sometimes entered in account as "levies":—Held: these facts did not show B. to be a parish, within the above Act.

(2) The chapel of B. being insufficient for the accommodation of its inhabitants, they, in vestry, resolved that a grant offered to them by the Society for Promoting the Enlargement, etc., of Churches & Chapels should be accepted, & that the chapel should be enlarged according to the society's plans, "any deficiency in the expense to be made up by the sale" of certain private pews, " & by rates under the Act of Parliament." They also resolved to petition the Comrs. for Building New Churches to erect a new church in the township; & the petition was presented, stating the inability of the inhabitants to build a church, & that the enlargement, now agreed upon, would require a rate of 1s. in the pound for five years, which they had pledged for that purpose. The chapelwardens then borrowed of an individual £600, on the security of the existing & future rates, for the purpose of the enlargement. On mandamus to repay the £600; return, that the sum was not borrowed with the consent of the vestry within the meaning of the above Act:—Held: the writ could not be enforced, the resolutions of vestry not being a consent to the borrowing of money within the above Act.—*R. v. 362. Publication—Sufficiency—At principal door of church.]—(1) In the township of T. where was an ancient chapel, a new church was built & consecrated in 1832, since which period divine service had been regularly performed on Sundays in the new church, though parish meetings continued to be held in the chapel, where christenings & burials were also occasionally performed:—Held: (1) the new church, being the church de facto of the place, it was a sufficient publication of a poor rate if the notice required by Parish Notices Act, 1837 (c. 45) were affixed at or near the door thereof, & not at that of the chapel; (2) it was a sufficient publication if the notice were affixed to the principal door only of the church.

(3) In the same place a room was hired for a schoolhouse, in which divine service was regularly celebrated on Sundays according to the rites of the Church of England:—Held: it was not necessary to affix any notice on the door of the school.—*ORMEROD v. D. Distinct and Separate Parishes.

367. Creation—Under Church Building Acts, 1818 (c. 45), & 1819 (c. 134)—Enrolment of boundaries.]—In the year 1823, a piece of ground in the parish of M., Leicester, was purchased by subscription of the inhabitants, & conveyed to the Comrs. for Building New Churches, who erected a chapel on part of it & inclosed the remainder for a burial ground. In 1827, the chapel & burial ground were consecrated. In 1828 an Ord. in Council was made & published, whereby, after reciting sect. 16 of Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), which empowers the comrs. to divide populous parishes into two or more distinct & separate parishes; also reciting sect. 21 of that Act, which empowers the comrs. to divide populous parishes into ecclesiastical districts; also reciting that the comrs. had made a representation to the Crown respecting the increase of population & insufficient Church accommodation in the parish; also reciting that it appeared to the comrs. expedient that an ecclesiastical district should be assigned to the new chapel under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134); & that the consent of the bishop had been obtained: His Majesty ordered that the proposed division should be made & effected according to the provisions of the Acts. The boundaries of the district were duly enrolled under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 22. No Ord. in Council was made respecting the performance of the offices of the Church in the said chapel, or the appropriation of the fees payable in respect thereof, nor did the comrs. make any order as to whether the fees for burials, etc. were to be reserved to the incumbent of the parish, or assigned to the curate of the chapel, or whether burials, etc. should be performed in such chapel. In the year 1848, the corp'n. of Leicester established a cemetery within the borough, under a local Act, by which the burial service over deceased persons removed for interment in the cemetery was to be performed by, & the fees paid to the incumbent who might have been required to perform the service, & would have been entitled to the fees, if the interment had taken place in his parish or ecclesiastical district:—Held: the Ord. in Council was made under Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), s. 21, & not under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 16; & that, upon enrolment of the boundaries, the chapelry became a separate district parish for all ecclesiastical purposes; & after the death of the then incumbent of the original parish, the curate of the district parish was entitled to the fees for burial, both in his parish & in respect of deceased persons removed therefrom for interment in the cemetery.—*EDGEILL v. 369. — —.]—In 1851, the church of T. was built & consecrated, & in 1852 a district was assigned to it by Ord. in Council, as a chapel of ease under Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), & Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 16, out of the ancient parish of W. At that time deceased inhabitants were all buried in the parish churchyard. By the Act of Consecration & Ord. in Council authority was given to perform baptisms, marriages, & burials in the new church, & the fees were to be received by the incumbent of the district:—Held: the district of T. became a distinct & new parish in 1856 under New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), s. 14, & was a "new parish" within Burial Act, 1857 (c. 81), s. 5.—*ORONSHAW v. 370. Evidence—Separate churches—Lands intermixed.]—Two parishes, the lands of which were intermixed, had each a separate church, with one patron & one incumbent, who celebrated divine service in each church once each Sunday morning or evening alternately, & christened the children in either irrespective of the residence of the parents. There was also one parish clerk, one communion plate, & one burial ground. There had always been overseers, churchwardens, & surveyors of highways appointed for each parish separately, but the same poor rate in amount had always been assessed in both parishes, & when collected, the amount was thrown into one fund, & applied to the poor of both parishes indiscriminately:—Held: the preponderance of evidence was in favour of these being distinct & separate parishes, & therefore, a joint appointment of overseers for the united parishes was invalid.—R. v. TOMBLESON (1863), 1 New Rep. 521; 27 J. P. 150.

371. Effect of division of existing parish—On right to choose churchwardens—Private Act.]—As a rule, existing customs or rights are not to be taken away by mere general words in an Act of Parliament. But without words especially abrogating them, they may be abrogated by plain directions to do something which is wholly inconsistent with them. And this may be the case though the Act is a private Act of Parliament, & though the particular custom may have been confirmed, years before, by a verdict in a ct. of law.

A parish consisted of four townships or hamlets, D., W., M., & B. D. contained the parish church,

Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes; Sub-sect. 1, D., E., F. & G.]

& gave the name to the whole parish. One of the churchwardens of D. was appointed by the rector, the other was elected by the parishioners. The two persons who, in the township or hamlet of M., performed the various duties of churchwardens & overseers, were elected by the inhabitants of M., which hamlet raised & administered its rates quite independently of D., & the churchwardens of D. proper never interfered; & this custom of election in M. by the inhabitants, had been confirmed by a verdict in a ct. of law many years ago. A private Act of Parliament was passed creating D. & W. into one parish, M. into another, & B. into a third. The Act contained a provision that when the three parishes had been constituted, the churchwardens of each should be chosen as those of D. had been chosen & appointed:—Held: though there were no particular words in the Act expressly putting an end to the custom of the inhabitants of the hamlet of M. electing the churchwardens, there were words clearly directing something else to be done entirely inconsistent with that custom, which, therefore, on M.'s being constituted a parish, ceased, & the rector of the new parish of M. became entitled, as the rector of D. had always been, to appoint one of the churchwardens, while the other was elected by the parishioners at large, for that the Act had made D. the model on which the newly created parishes were formed, & were to be governed.—*GREEN v. (2) Consolidated chapelries are within New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), s. 14.

(3) Where an ecclesiastical district has been formed out of several parishes, the incumbent of the chapelry in the new district will not be entitled to the fees of marriages, etc. within sect. 12 of above Act until after the next avoidance, or the relinquishment of fees by the incumbents of all the parishes out of which the chapelry has been formed. The incumbent of two parishes from which portions were taken in order to form a consolidated chapelry, appeared to have made no formal resignation of fees accruing in respect of such portions of the chapelry, but stated that when they gave up the right to the parish they considered that they had given up everything:—Held: there was sufficient evidence of a relinquishment of such fees within the sect.

377. Whether part of parish—Evidence.]—A chapelry may form part of a parish although the inhabitants of the chapelry have never been assessed for church rates or repairs, or taken any part in the election of churchwardens of the parish church, & although owing to the magnitude of the parish the chapelry has always appointed separate overseers & levied separate poor rates under Poor Relief Act, 1662 (c. 12). The fact that the vicar of the parish receives the vicarial tithe of the chapelry & that residents in the chapelry are in the habit of being married at the parish church is almost conclusive evidence that the chapelry is part of the parish.—*Re SANDBACH SCHOOL & ALMSHOUSE FOUNDATION, A.-G. v. (3) The insertion in a general Act of Parliament of a saving clause, providing, that the Act shall not apply to a special case which had previously been regulated by a special Act of Parliament not otherwise referred to, will not prevent the application of the rule of construction mentioned above.

382. — Effect on prior trust deed.—Construction of Order in Council.—By a deed of 1840 a certain chapel was vested in trustees, upon trust to permit same to be used as a chapel of ease, dependent upon the parish church, & to permit the vicar for the time being or his curates to officiate as ministers thereof, & to allow the vicar & churchwardens to let the pews, & to permit the churchwardens to receive the pew rents & other emoluments for the benefit of the vicar, after paying the necessary expenses; & the vicar & churchwardens were authorised to appoint the clerk, pew openers & other officers of the chapel. By an Ord. in Council, dated Oct. 1860, the chapel was constituted a district chapelry, & it was ordered that marriages, baptisms, etc., should be solemnised & performed in the chapel, & that the fees should belong to the minister of such chapel for the time being, subject to a proviso that so long as the existing vicar remained vicar the fees should be paid to him, but the Ord. did not mention or affect to deal with the pew rents:—Held: (1) the effect of the Ord. in Council was to withdraw the chapel from all the purposes included in the trust deed; (2) to constitute the district chapelry a benefice; & (3) to deprive the vicar & churchwardens of the parish church of all right to receive the pew rents, or to nominate the officers of the church. Qu.: whether after the creation of the district chapelry the pews of the chapel could lawfully be let & the pew rents received for the benefit of the minister of the chapel.—*FITZGERALD v. 385. —.]—The ancient parish of St. Mary comprised, inter alia, the district parish of St. Mark, attached to the district church of which was a churchyard wherein the remains of the inhabitants of St. Mark were interred. In 1852 a burial board was formed for the whole of the parish of St. Mary, & in 1853 the churchyard of the district parish of St. Mark was closed by order of the Secretary of State, & the remains of the inhabitants of St. Mark's were thenceforth interred in the burial ground provided by the burial board of St. Mary. Such burial ground was consecrated in 1854, & from that time became the burial ground of St. Mary. In 1875 a church called St. James was built & consecrated in the district parish of St. Mark, & a district, part of the district parish of St. Mark, assigned to it by Ord. in Council. By the sentence of consecration & Ord. in Council authority was given to solemnise & perform burials, etc., at the church of St. James, the fees to arise therefrom to be paid & belong to the minister of such church for the time being. The incumbent of St. James' having brought an action claiming to perform the burial service in defts.' burial ground over the bodies of the inhabitants of St. James' buried therein, & to receive the fees for such services:—Held: the district of St. James was a "new parish" within Burial Act, 1857 (c. 81), s. 5.—*HARRIS v. 386. Distinguished from district constituted under Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38).]—By sect. 16 of above Act, two churchwardens are to be appointed for every church or chapel built under the provisions of that Act; one by the incumbent, & the other by the renters of pews. Marriage Act, 1836 (c. 85), s. 20, empowers the bishop of a diocese, by license under his hand & seal, to authorise the solemnisation of marriages in a district chapel, for persons residing within the district. By sect. 32 the bishop may, with the consent of the Archbishop of the province, revoke this license. New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), s. 15, enacts that when any church or chapel shall be built in any district, & consecrated as the church or chapel of such district, the district shall, from & after such consecration, be & be deemed to be a new parish for ecclesiastical purposes. &, by sect. 17, in every such case of a district so becoming a new parish, two churchwardens are to be chosen for it; one by the perpetual curate of the new parish & the other by the resident inhabitants having a similar qualification to that which would entitle inhabitants to vote at the election of churchwardens for the principal parish. New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), s. 11, empowers the Ecclesiastical Comrs., upon the application of the incumbent of a district church or chapel, with the written consent of the bishop of the diocese, to make an order under their seal, authorising the publication of banns of matrimony & the solemnisation therein of marriages, baptisms, churchings, & burials; all the fees for the performance of which offices are to be payable, & to be paid to the incumbent. & by sect. 14, wheresoever or as soon as banns of matrimony & the solemnisation of marriages, churchings, & baptisms, are authorised to be published or performed in any consecrated district church or chapel, such district not being at the time of the passing of that Act a separate & distinct parish for ecclesiastical purposes, & the incumbent of which is, by such authority, entitled for his own benefit to the entire fees for the performance of such offices, without any reservations thereout, such district shall become & be a separate & distinct parish for ecclesiastical purposes, such as is contemplated by New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), s. 15; the church of the district shall be the church of such parish; & all the provisions of New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), relative to new parishes, upon their becoming such, & to the matters & things consequent thereon, shall extend & apply to the said parish & church as fully & effectually as if it had become a new parish under the provisions of that Act. The church of C. was built, & had a district assigned to it, under Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38). In the year 1840 the bishop of the diocese granted, under Marriage Act, 1836 (c. 85), s. 20, his license for the publication of banns & the solemnisation of marriages in the church, & for taking the same fees in respect thereof as were taken in the mother church by the minister & incumbent thereof for the time being; to which the fees for churchings, baptisms, & burials were afterwards added. From the consecration of the church down to the issuing of the writ of mandamus in the present case, two churchwardens were chosen for the church in the manner directed by Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38), s. 10; one by the incumbent, & the other by the pew renters. Upon denurrer to the return to a mandamus to the incumbent of the district to convene a meeting of the inhabitants to elect a churchwarden, the return alleging that the incumbent & the pew renters had the privilege of electing the churchwardens, & that sect. 15 of New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), & sect. 14 of New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), were inapplicable:—Held: the return was good. The authority contemplated by New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), s. 14, was not a revocable license by the bishop, but an authority under an order of the Comrs. under sect. 11 of that Act; therefore the district was not brought within the operation of sect. 14 of the Act. Scilicet: New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), s. 15, is inapplicable to the case of a district constituted, not under that Act, but under Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38), with a license by the bishop under Marriage Act, 1836 (c. 85).

This authority, if it had been granted by the order of the Comrs., would be of a permanent & irrevocable character; but it has not been granted, & we are of opinion that the revocable authority or license of the bishop is not enough to bring this district within sect. 14 of New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104) (per Cur.).—*R. v. 387. Whether "place having a known & defined boundary"—Local Government Act, 1858 (c. 98), sect. 12—Parts of two townships each maintaining own poor & highways.]—A district formed for ecclesiastical purposes under New Parishes Act, 1843 (c. 37), consisting of parts of two townships, each of which townships separately maintains its own poor & its own highways, was "a place having a known & defined boundary" within sect. 12 of above Act, & was not a less place included within a greater within the meaning of sect. 14. Preliminary proceedings under sects. 14 & 16 were therefore unnecessary, & the district might at once adopt the Act, at a meeting of owners & ratepayers, convened by the churchwardens; & an order of the Secretary of State confirming such adoption was valid.—It. v. NORTHOWRAM & CLAYTON (RATEPAYERS) (1865), L. R. 1 Q. B. 110; 7 B. & S. 110; 35 L. J. Q. B. 90; 30 J. P. 181.

390. —Entries in—On whom duty lies.—An entry in the register book by the minister of the parish of the baptism of a child, which had taken place before he became minister or had any connection with the parish, & of which he received information from the parish clerk, is not admissible in evidence, nor is the private memorandum of the fact made by the clerk who was present at the baptism.

Registers should be made up promptly, & by the person whose duty it is to make them up. The register of baptism, in this case, purports to bear date Feb. 6, 1776, but it was not made up till June, 1777, & then it was made up—not by the person who was minister of the parish at the time of the baptism, or by a person who appeared at that time to have any connection with the parish—but by one who afterwards became the minister of the parish. It must be taken, therefore, that he made this entry after the death of the minister of the parish who was present at the baptism. . . . I think, therefore, the register itself clearly ought not to have been received in evidence (BAYLEY, J.).—DOE d. WARREN v. BRAY (1828), 8 B. & C. 813; 3 Man. & Ry. K. B. 428; 2 Man. & Ry. M. 395. Rights—Subordinated to spiritual duties.—Claim: that pltf. was vicar of a parish; that a chapel was erected within it & endowed & consecrated for the administration of the sacraments & the performance of all other divine offices according to the rites of the Church of England; that pltf. as such vicar was entitled to nominate & present, & had nominated & presented a clerk to the chapel, but another clerk had been licensed, instituted, & admitted by deft. bishop on the nomination & presentation of certain other defts., who thereby hindered pltf. in the exercise of his right; & he claimed to have his right established & declared. Defence of the last mentioned defts.: That certain freeholders had erected the chapel & conveyed to the Ecclesiastical Comrs., & applied to them under Church Building Act, 1851 (c. 97), to declare the right of nomination to be in defts. who had endowed the chapel, & that before making such declaration a copy of the application was according to the Act, sent by the Comrs. to pltf., he being both patron & incumbent of the parish; that if he had ceased to be patron he stood by & knowingly allowed those defts. to endow the chapel & procure the same to be consecrated in the belief entertained by them as he well knew that he was patron, & that the sending of such copy to him was in fact a sending of a copy both to the patron & incumbent, as required by the Act, & pltf. was therefore estopped from denying that he was patron; & that the right of nomination had been declared to be in those defts., who afterwards nominated. On demurrer to the allegation of estoppel:—Held: (1) it was bad, because the rights of the vicar were not merely private but were accompanied by spiritual & other duties in which his parishioners were interested, & he could not therefore waive or divest himself of those rights & duties by the conduct imputed to him; (2) the claim was bad, inasmuch as it did not allege that the chapel was a chapel of ease, or otherwise show any right in the vicar to nominate and present a clerk to it.

(3) Defts. claiming relief over against the Ecclesiastical Comrs. served upon them a notice under R. S. C., Ord. 16, r. 18. They entered an appearance under r. 20, & an order was afterwards made at chambers, under r. 21, that they should be at liberty to appear & defend this action so far as related to the question whether all things required to be done by them, in order to enable them as against pltf. to make a valid declaration of the right of nomination & to vest that right in defts., were done by them, & that they should be bound by the finding upon that question. The pltf. then obtained an order on the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for discovery of documents:—Held: the third parties having appeared in the action to litigate with pltf., he was entitled to discovery from them, & the order for it was right.

The vicar of a parish as such, has only the right to present to a public consecrated chapel within his parish, when such chapel is a chapel of ease, though he has the right to forbid any person to officiate within his parish without his consent, unless he has been deprived of such right by some statute or some arrangement binding on the bishop of his diocese, the patron of the mother church, & the patron thereof.—MACALLISTER v. ROCHESTER (Bp.) (1880), 5 C. P. D. 194; 49 L. J. Q. B. 114, 443; 42 L. T. 22, 481; 28 W. R. 584, D. C.

396. — Consistent with those of parishioners.—The incumbent has only such rights as are consistent & co-equal with the rights of the parishioners (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).

No one can lawfully read a service over a corpse in a churchyard, & for this purpose the consecrated portion of a cemetery is the same thing as a churchyard, unless he is the incumbent or some clergyman duly authorised by him . . . speaking generally, no clergyman can perform sacred rites in the parish of another clergyman without the consent of the incumbent; to do so would be an ecclesiastical offence (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).

Consecration is effected by the decree of a competent ecclesiastical etc., that is to say, the act or sentence of consecration, signed by the bishops, setting aside the ground or building in sanctus usus (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).—*WOOD v. 403. The site.]—A grant by a rector to an individual of the exclusive right of burial for himself, his family, & friends, in a vault under the church, is a grant of an easement arising out of land & cannot be made by parol. No action will lie for the disturbance of such a right against a rector; if it would, case & not trespass would be the proper form. (1) Semble: a rector has no power to make such a grant, even by deed.

The freehold of the church is in the rector; but the rector holds the freehold subject to the jurisdiction of the ordinary, & for general & public purposes, not for his own; for the benefit of the parishioners at large, not for his own sole benefit & emolument. The object is, that he shall be enabled to furnish all his parishioners from time to time with reasonable & convenient space for the purposes of burial, & if he had the power to grant to one individual an exclusive right of burial to an individual, not a parishioner, & his family such as pltf. now claims, that object might be defeated because the greater portion of the church might become appropriated to wealthy individuals who could afford to pay largely to the rector for such a privilege, to the actual exclusion of the poorer parishioners. (2) Semble: such a right cannot be granted at all, except by means of a faculty, to a parishioner, & annexed to a mansion within the parish. In the case of a pew, a faculty is necessary for such a grant; (3) Semble: it is equally necessary in the case of a tomb or vault.

In both cases the governing principle ought to be, to regulate the accommodation according to the rights & wants of the parishioners; & a faculty can do no more than limit, in the one case the right of sitting, & in the other the right of burial, to inhabitants of the parish. Generally in the case of a pew, the faculty is confined to persons inhabiting a particular house within the parish, & if not, it is annexed to a parishioner, in the character of parishioner, supposing it may be so, still when the party removes from the parish, the exclusive privilege ceases, & the rights of other persons coming into the parish attach.—*BRYAN v. Land having been conveyed under above Acts to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as a site for a church, a church was afterwards erected on a part of the land, & the church & part only of the land were consecrated:—Held: upon such consecration, the whole of the land so conveyed to the Comrs. vested in the incumbent.—*PLUMSTEAD DISTRICT BOARD OF WORKS v. 412. Right to pew rents.—Whether interest in land.—Where the right to receive for his own benefit the pew rents of a church is vested in the vicar by virtue of his office, even though such right arise merely by implication from the terms of the licence of the bishop when appointing the vicar, the pew rents may, in such circumstances, constitute an equitable freehold interest in land within Registration Act, 1429, c. 7.

Qu.: whether the mere actual receipt of pew rents by the vicar for his own use would of itself be sufficient to constitute an interest in land.—VICKERS v. SELWYN (1903), 89 L. T. 747; 68 J. P. 9; 52 W. R. 153; 48 Sol. Jo. 52; 1 Smith, Reg. Cas. 325, D. C.

413. — Parish church erected under Church Building Acts—No special provisions in Order in Council or deed of consecration.—Legal possession of the freehold of a church by the vicar, coupled with the receipt of pew rents, is not sufficient to create an occupation within Representation of the People Act, 1832 (c. 45), s. 24; to create such an occupation, there must be actual, as well as legal, possession. Semble: the fact that, in the case of a new parish church erected under Church Building Acts, neither the Ord. in Council creating the new parish nor the deed of consecration of the church, contains the special provisions relating to pew rents embodied in Church Building Acts, does not render the collection & receipt of pew rents by, or on behalf of, the vicar, illegal.—*WOLFE v. Annotation:—Consd. Griffin v. Dighton & Davies (1863), 33 L. J. Q. B. 29. The notion that the chancel is part of the rector’s globe, though entertained by Lord Coke, is now exploded (COCKBURN, C. J.).

415. — — ——The freehold of a church, including chancel & churchyard, is in the rector, but the right to the corporal possession is in the spiritual incumbent after induction; & therefore a lay rector has not, as against the vicar, any right to the possession or control of the chancel.

In contemplation of law, the freehold of the church, & therefore that of the chancel, which forms part of the church, as well as the freehold of the churchyard, is in the rector, whether spiritual or lay; but this naked & abstract right carries with it, in our judgment, no right of possession; the latter being in the incumbent, who is responsible to the Ordinary for the celebration of public worship (COCKBURN, C. J.).—GRIFFIN v. DIGHTON (1863), 5 B. & S. 93; 2 New Rep. 270; 33 L. J. Q. B. 29; 8 L. T. 500; 27 J. P. 359; 10 Jur. N. S. 69; 11 W. R. 804; 122 E. R. 767; affd. (1864), 5 B. & S. 93, 108, Ex. 416. — — — As spiritual rector.—Subject to use of parishioners.—(1) The lay rector is not entitled as of right to make a vault or affix tablets in the chancel without leave of the Ordinary, nor is he entitled to a faculty for such purposes without laying before the Ordinary such particulars as will afford the vicar & parishioners an opportunity of judging of it, & satisfy the Ordinary that such vaults or tablets will not interrupt the parishioners in the use & enjoyment of the chancel: nor has the vicar an absolute veto, though he may show cause against the grant of a faculty.

Semble: the consent of the lay rector must precede the leave of the Ordinary for the construction of a vault or the erection of tablets in the chancel.

(2) Though the freehold of the chancel be in the rector, lay or spiritual, the use of it belongs to the parishioners & the Ordinary, as protector of their rights, must see that neither their present nor future accommodation be unduly prejudiced.

(3) No fee to the vicar for consent to interments in the chancel is due of common right; & any special custom to such effect must limit the amount, & be strictly proved.—RICH v. BUSHNELL (1827), 4 Hag. Ecc. 164.

418. Liability for repairs.—At common law, the parishioners of every parish are bound to repair the church; but by the canon law, the parson is obliged to do it; & in London the parishioners by particular custom repair both church & chancel; though the freehold is in the parson. Here those of a chapelry may prescribe to be exempt from repairing the mother church, where it buries & christens within itself, & has never contributed to it; but in this case it appears that the chapel was only a latter erection in case & favour of them of the chapelry, they having buried at the mother

421. —[.] —(1) The liability of an incumbent to repair the parsonage house & the chancel, is a liability at common law, & has not been enlarged by any statute.

(2) The principle upon which that liability is to be ascertained in amount is, that the premises are to be put into such a state of repair as an outgoing lay tenant ought to leave his buildings, where he is under covenant to leave them in good & sufficient repair.

(3) But he is not bound to supply or maintain anything in the nature of ornament. Painting, white-washing, & papering, are for this purpose considered as ornament; except where the painting be necessary to preserve exposed timber from decay.—*WISE v. 422. —[.] —Where parishioners liable for decoration.]—If there be a special custom in a parish, that the adorning of the inside of the chancel of the church shall be done at the charge of the owners & occupiers of ancient houses, yet they are not bound by such a custom both to ornament & to repair the chancel; for the parson is bound to repair of common right, & the custom does not release him: nor can the owners & occupiers of mills or racks be rated towards such ornaments; for where a temporal inheritance is to be charged by a particular custom, the custom must be strictly pursued.—HAWKIN'S CASE (1698), 5 Mod. Rep. 389; 87 E. R. 723.

(2) The rector of a parish church has no legal right without the sanction of a faculty to remove out of the chancel church ornaments such as military colours, placed there without a faculty in a permanent position with the concurrence of a former rector & former churchwardens.

(3) Semble: churchwardens of a parish church to which military colours, no longer required for use, have been presented, have vested in them the legal property in the colours for the purpose of safe custody in all cases where the colours are not affixed to the freehold.—*VINCENT v. The instalments being unpaid, A. demanded the organ of the vicar of C. & the churchwardens. The vicar kept the church door locked, & refused to allow the organ to be removed, claiming a lien upon it. The churchwardens did nothing:—Held: (2) the vicar was liable in trover, & not the churchwardens. Semble: (3) the absence of a faculty for the removal of the organ was no answer to plff.'s claim.—*WALKER v. The churchyard—Estate in.]—(1) Articles having been admitted against churchwardens for making a new footpath across a churchyard, etc., an allegation in reply, pleading facts showing that the churchwardens acted bonâ fide & for the benefit of the parishioners, was rejected, as not setting up a legal defence.

(2) As to the churchyard, by the common law the rector has the freehold therein, qualified undoubtedly by the rights of the parishioners, but subject thereto he may bring an action for trespass if his right be unjustly invaded (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(3) The churchwardens by virtue of their office are bound to see that the footpaths are kept in proper order & the fences in repair (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(4) Individuals may by prescription have a right of way; & parishioners have the same right for the purpose of attending divine worship, vestries, & other fit occasions. The public may also have a right of way which is not to be infringed upon (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(5) Neither the rector nor the churchwardens can make a new path without a faculty from the Consistory Ct. In strictness that is by law required. The consent of the rector is necessary by reason of his common law right. The churchyard being consecrated ground, this ct. has cognisance of the matter, & it is the duty of the ct. to protect it against any unauthorised or illegal invasion whatever (*DR. was no proof of consecration, nor of any composition, between the patron, incumbent, & ordinary; such chapel is merely proprietary, & the minister, nominated by the rector of the parish & licensed by the bishop, cannot perform parochial duties therein, nor distribute the alms collected at the Lord's supper.

(2) Proprietary chapels are anomalies unknown to the constitution, & to the ecclesiastical establishments of the Church of England, & can possess no parochial rights.

(3) The performance of baptisms, marriages, & burials, in a chapel existing from time immemorial, might possibly be presumptive evidence of consecration, & of a composition: ulter as to a chapel, the origin of which is ascertained.

441. — Offertory at Holy Communion.]—(1) Money given at the offertory in the communion office must still be disposed of, as directed by the rubric, to such pious & charitable uses as the minister & churchwardens shall think fit; or, in case of disagreement, as the ordinary shall appoint. (2) An announcement of the objects beforehand is not obligatory, but is not unlawful. Collections in church, during morning or evening prayer, may lawfully be made & announced, at the discretion of the incumbent. But the allocation of money so collected is now a matter for the joint decision of the incumbent & the parochial church council. (3) It is not an ecclesiastical offence in the case of the Holy Communion being combined with, or following, another service, to take two collections, one at the offertory, from the same gathering. (4) Churchwardens never had, & parochial church councils have not now, any voice in the disposal of money collected at extra-legal services or meetings held under the authority of the incumbent elsewhere than in church, unless such money has been allocated to "church purposes" within Parochial Church Councils (Powers) Measures, 1921, [No. 1], s. 4 (1), (ii.) (a). Gift for substantial repairs of church—Discretion in application.]—(1) A church rate carried by a majority of one, was, inter alia, questioned on the alleged ground that the vicar & occupiers of the church lands were not entitled to vote, as they were not liable to pay church rate:—Held: the vicar & occupiers of church lands were entitled to vote, & the opponent to the rate had failed in his objections & the rate would be pronounced for with costs.

(2) It had been decided to undertake certain repairs to a church, & the vicar was given by an anonymous donor a sum of money towards the "substantial repairs":—Held: the parishioners had no right to direct the particular application of such money; the money was deposited with the vicar for a special purpose & was clearly intended to be applied at the vicar's discretion, & that discretion might be exercised by him in replacing stone mullions, etc., which were decayed.

(3) For an omission to rate persons liable to be rated to the church rate to render that unequal, it must be shown that in consequence thereof, an unjust burden, that can be appreciated, has been thrown on the complainant.

(4) A parishioner ought to have an opportunity of comparing the church rate with the poor rate book, when the former does not contain a specification of the properties, in order to satisfy himself that he is fairly charged with reference to other persons assessed (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).—*IRANSON & KNOTT v. Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes :
Sub-sects. 3 & 4, A., B. & C. (a).]

The incumbent & churchwardens of a parish church removed, but without having obtained a faculty, or the consent of the justices under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 39, certain ancient steps leading down from the churchyard to the adjoining high road. These steps had been included in the churchyard, being recessed within the churchyard wall, & they had formed one of the approaches to a path in the churchyard leading to the church door. An action was thereupon brought by four parishioners against the incumbent & churchwardens for a mandatory injunction to compel the restoration of the steps. One of these plffs. was also the lay rector of the parish, but in fact sued only as a parishioner:—Held: the ct. would not exercise jurisdiction by granting a mandatory injunction, on the grounds: (a) that the steps constituted a churchway, the right to use which was solely in the parishioners, & not a footway common to the public, & the ct. would not exercise jurisdiction in respect of the interference with a churchway within the churchyard at the suit of a parishioner, a jurisdiction which was vested in the ecclesiastical ct.; & (b) that, even if a mandatory injunction were granted, it might be rendered nugatory by a faculty confirming the acts of the incumbent & churchwardens.

476. Rights in churchyard—As against incumbent.]—(1) An impropriate rectory, after its surrender to the Crown on the dissolution of monasteries, was granted by Queen Elizabeth to lay impropriators. Up to 1820 the impropriators appointed a curate with a yearly stipend of £31 10s.; in that year the curacy was augmented out of Queen Anne's Bounty, & the then lay impropriator charged the rectory, glebe land, tithes, etc., with the yearly rentcharge of £31 10s., payable to the curate for the time being: the curacy then became a perpetual benefice by force of Queen Anne's Bounty Act, 1714 (c. 10). Pltf. was duly nominated, licensed & instituted to the benefice in 1852. From the time of the grant of Elizabeth the lay impropriators had had exclusive possession of all the tithes & glebe lands; & during living memory these lands had been let to tenants together with the right of depasturing the churchyard with sheep, & the tenants had exercised this right without interruption till 1806, when pltf. gave debt., the present tenant, notice not to trespass, & then brought an action. On a case stating the above facts, the ct. having power to draw inferences of fact:—Held: the action was not maintainable: for that though pltf. had possession of the churchyard for spiritual purposes, it was not such a possession as excluded the lay impropriator, or his tenants, in whom the soil & herbage were still vested.

The freehold was vested in the rector & he was entitled to the land, including the grass, herbage & everything else, as fully as the original owner had been; but as the land had been set apart by consecration for the church & churchyard, the right which the rector as the owner of the freehold had in the profits was proportionately diminished, because he could not desecrate it, or use it for any purpose which was inconsistent with the object of its consecration (BLACKBURN, J.).

SUB-SECT. 4.—THE VESTRY.

A. Constitution.

479. Qualification of vestryman—Tenement owner—Assessed to poor rate instead of occupier.—The effect of Vestries Acts, 1818 (c. 69), & 1819 (c. 85), although there are no privative words, is to make rating to the poor rate the exclusive qualification for voting in all parish vestries.

Where, therefore, Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), has been adopted in a parish, the occupiers of small tenements, not being rated to the poor rate, although still liable to the church rate, are not entitled to vote at a vestry held for the purpose of making a church rate.

Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, gave to persons assessed to the last poor rate one vote for every £25 value, "so, nevertheless, that no inhabitant shall be entitled to give more than six votes"; by Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), s. 6, the owner of a small tenement, rated under the Act "shall have the same right to vote in vestry as if he were an occupier duly rated in respect of the same tenement":—Held: the owner of more than six small tenements, rated under the latter Act, was entitled to no more than six votes by force of the proviso in the former Act.—*RICHARDSON v. 482. — Value of rated property—Part of property sublet.—Where a person is rated as the occupier of premises of the requisite value for qualifying for the office of vestryman, he is not disqualified from election to & acting in such office, merely because his personal occupation is reduced below the qualifying value by reason of his having sublet portions of the premises.—*HILTON v. 473. ——— Jurisdiction of ecclesiastical courts in respect of.—The arts. in a criminal suit promoted by the churchwardens of a parish against the lay rector of a parish church, charged that the chancel of the church was in a very dilapidated condition, & that resp., though legally bound to repair it, had for four years refused & neglected to do so. On resp. giving an affirmative issue to the arts. & submitting to judgment, the ordinary pronounced that resp. had offended against the ecclesiastical law, & admonished him to do the repairs required.—MORLEY v. LEACROFT, [1896] P. 92.

474. ————————The ecclesiastical cts. have no jurisdiction to entertain a criminal suit against a lay rector who has neglected to perform his duty of repairing the chancel of the church of which he is the rector, unless the chancel was out of repair at the time of the institution of the suit.—NEVILLE v. KIRBY, [1898] P. 160.

476. Rights in churchyard—As against incumbent.—(1) An impropriate rectory, after its surrender to the Crown on the dissolution of monasteries, was granted by Queen Elizabeth to lay impropriators. Up to 1826 the impropriators appointed a curate with a yearly stipend of £31 10s.; in that year the curacy was augmented out of Queen Anne's Bounty, & the then lay impropriator charged the rectory, glebe land, tithes, etc., with the yearly rentcharge of £31 10s., payable to the curate for the time being: the curacy then became a perpetual benefice by force of Queen Anne's Bounty Act, 1714 (c. 10). Pltf. was duly nominated, licensed & instituted to the benefice in 1852. From the time of the grant of Elizabeth the lay impropriators had had exclusive possession of all the tithes & glebe lands; & during living memory these lands had been let to tenants together with the right of depasturing the churchyard with sheep, & the tenants had exercised this right without interruption till 1866, when pltf. gave debt., the present tenant, notice not to trespass, & then brought an action. On a case stating the above facts, the ct. having power to draw inferences of fact:—Held: the action was not maintainable: for that though pltf. had possession of the churchyard for spiritual purposes, it was not such a possession as excluded the lay impropriator, or his tenants, in whom the soil & herbage were still vested.

The freehold was vested in the rector & he was entitled to the land, including the grass, herbage & everything else, as fully as the original owner had been; but as the land had been set apart by consecration for the church & churchyard, the right which the rector as the owner of the freehold had in the profits was proportionately diminished, because he could not desecrate it, or use it for any purpose which was inconsistent with the object of its consecration (BLACKBURN, J.).

478. Action against incumbent—Claiming freehold of chancel & churchyard—What interrogatories allowed.—In an action by the lay rector of a parish claiming the freehold in the chancel & churchyard against the vicar of the parish & his churchwardens, interrogatories were disallowed which went to inquire into the evidence of pltf.'s title.—GARLAND v. ORAM (1890), 55 J. P. 374; 7 T. L. R. 80, D. C.

SUB-SECT. 4.—THE VESTRY.

A. Constitution.

479. Qualification of vestryman—Tenement owner—Assessed to poor rate instead of occupier.—The effect of Vestries Acts, 1818 (c. 60), & 1819 (c. 85), although there are no privative words, is to make rating to the poor rate the exclusive qualification for voting in all parish vestries.

Where, therefore, Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), has been adopted in a parish, the occupiers of small tenements, not being rated to the poor rate, although still liable to the church rate, are not entitled to vote at a vestry held for the purpose of making a church rate.

Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 60), s. 3, gave to persons assessed to the last poor rate one vote for every £25 value, "so, nevertheless, that no inhabitant shall be entitled to give more than six votes"; by Small Tenements Act, 1850 (c. 99), s. 6, the owner of a small tenement, rated under the Act "shall have the same right to vote in vestry as if he were an occupier duly rated in respect of the same tenement"—Held: the owner of more than six small tenements, rated under the latter Act, was entitled to no more than six votes by force of the proviso in the former Act.—RICHARDSON v. GLADWIN (1858), E. B. & E. 138; 27 L. J. M. C. 192; 31 L. T. O. S. 97; 22 J. P. 688; 4 Jur. N. S. 377; 6 W. R. 473; 120 E. R. 460. Annotation:—Consd. Lambe & Clarke v. Griefes (1862), 26 J. 480. — Occupier—Where tenement owner rated to poor rate.—RICHARDSON v. GLADWIN, No. 479, ante.

481. — Residence—Temporary absence with intention to return.—Temporary absence with an intention & right to return does not prevent a qualification for vestryman being obtained by residence during twelve months.—STANFORD v. WILLIAMS (1899), 80 L. T. 490; 15 T. L. R. 316; 43 Sol. Jo. 419, D. C.

Annotation:—Reid. R. v. Townson, Ex p. Broderip (1908), 72 J. P. 368.

482. — Value of rated property—Part of property sublet.—Where a person is rated as the occupier of premises of the requisite value for qualifying for the office of vestryman, he is not disqualified from election to & acting in such office, merely because his personal occupation is reduced below the qualifying value by reason of his having sublet portions of the premises.—HILTON v. HAYNES (1894), 11 T. L. R. 8; 39 Sol. Jo. 12; 15 R. 41.

483. Former duties.—The vestry being the body mentioned in Burial Act, 1857 (c. 81), s. 4, is beyond all doubt a body which enjoyed powers & owed duties divisible into two classes, namely those which do, & those which do not, relate to the affairs of the church (BUCKLEY, L.J.).—WEST-

485. — Election of churchwarden—On release of existing churchwarden.—I know of no authority to the effect that because a vestry first fixes upon one person & subsequently sees some good & reasonable cause . . . to excuse him, it may not rescind that election & proceed to a new election. Nor do I know of any authority that because the vestry has, even for some bad reason, excused the individual first fixed upon, a proper person, subsequently chosen at the same meeting, is not duly elected nor liable to serve (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—BIRNIE v. BURDER (1841), 12 Ad. & El. 265; Arn. & H. 194; 10 L. J. Ex. 532; 5 J. P. 401; 5 Jur. 1013; 113 E. R. 813, Ex. Ch.; affg. S. C. sub nom. *BURDER v. 488. Who may summon—Whether civil court will take judicial notice.—Mandamus to churchwardens to call a vestry to elect churchwardens refused.

PART III. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 4.—A.

n. Qualification of vestryman—Prop holder—By purchase or lease.—Under 3 Vict. c. 74, ss. 2, 3, 6, a vestry capable of electing churchwardens must be composed of persons holding pews in the church by purchase or lease, or holding sittings therein by lease from the churchwardens. The churchwardens of a church where the sittings were wholly free, were therefore held not liable on a contract made by their predecessors for building the church.—ANDERSON v. WORTER (1882), 32 C. P. 659.—CAN.

Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes :
Sub-sect. 4, C. (a), (b) & (c) i.]

There was no instance of such a mandamus, & they [the ct.] could not take notice who had a right to call the vestry, & consequently did not know to whom it should be directed (per CUR.).—ANON. (1726), 2 Stra. 686; 93 E. R. 783.

489. — Churchwardens with consent of incumbent.]—A private parishioner has no right during the time of divine service, & of his own authority to publish such a notice . . . or any other notice in the church (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).

Vestries, for church matters, regularly are to be called by the churchwardens with the consent of the minister. 492. — To do illegal act—Misapplication of charitable fund.]—The ct. will not grant a mandamus to churchwardens to assemble the parishioners for the purpose of taking a poll upon a motion carried by a show of hands at a vestry meeting to do an illegal act, as to apply a portion of a fund held in trust for charitable purposes, to the erection of a monument to the memory of the donor of the fund.—R. v. 493. — To assess church rate—For repairs of church.]—Although a mandamus does not lie to the churchwardens to make a church rate, yet it lies to the churchwardens, etc., of two united parishes, under 10 Ann. c. 11, s. 24, to assemble a meeting, for the purpose of agreeing upon & ascertaining the moneys & rates to be assessed for the repair of the church of one of those parishes.—R. v. 495. Power of summoning authority—To fix time of meeting.]—The vicar & churchwardens of a parish declined to enter upon the notice paper of a vestry meeting a notice of motion by a parishioner that future meetings should be held in the evening :—Held : the summoning authority had power to fix the time of each vestry meeting, & there was no duty to allow notice of a motion which could not have any effect.—R. v. TOTTENHAM (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS) (1880), 49 L. J. Q. B. 870; sub nom. R. v. WILSON, ETC. (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS OF TOTTENHAM), 43 L. T. 560; 45 J. P. 140, C. A.

498. — Rector—For election of parish officers.]—At a vestry meeting summoned by the churchwardens for the purpose of electing new churchwardens in a parish regulated by Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), the rector has a right to preside, & he may adjourn such meeting, though against the wish of the majority present, on his legal responsibility if in so doing he improperly disturbs the proceedings. A poll being demanded, he may of his own authority grant such poll. On the election of churchwardens at a vestry in such parish as above mentioned, a poll having been demanded, the rector granted the poll, & ordered it to be held immediately on the close of the other business, & continued for three successive days, at a time & a place in the parish deemed by him most convenient, & which he had appointed by previous notice, after the publication of a summons by the old churchwardens, in case a poll should be demanded : & he refused to put a motion which had been proposed for a different appointment, of which a majority of the old churchwardens had given previous notice. The other business lasting till seven in the evening, he directed that the poll should commence on the following morning at the time & place of which notice had been given; a majority of the meeting, as was alleged, dissenting. The poll was taken accordingly :—Held : rightly taken.

Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 1, requires notice of the vestry to be given, but does not say who is to give it. We are of opinion that the rector is the fit person; he is at the head of the parish for this purpose; & in the present case he was to nominate one churchwarden at the vestry (DENMAN, C.J.).—R. v. 499. Time of publication—Whether during Sunday service.]—On Apr. 6 notice was posted on the church door for a vestry meeting to appoint churchwardens on Apr. 10, which was Tuesday. On that day A. & B. were elected churchwardens. Doubts having arisen as to the sufficiency of the notice, it not having been published in church on the Sunday, another notice was duly given & read during service on the following Sunday that a vestry meeting would be held to elect churchwardens on the ensuing Thursday, on which day A. & B. were again elected:—Held: A. & B. were duly elected churchwardens, as one or the other of the two elections was valid.—Re ST. 500. Place of publication.—Where more than one church in township.]—By Lighting & Watching Act, 1833 (c. 90), s. 33, the overseers are required to proceed in the same manner, for the purpose of collecting, raising, & levying the rate under that Act, as for levying money for the relief of the poor; & by Parish Notices Act, 1837 (c. 45), s. 2, all notices theretofore made in churches or chapels, are to be affixed on or near to the doors of all the churches & chapels within the parish.

A lighting & watching rate was made for the township of C., & a written notice of it was affixed to the door of the church of St. Michael, in the township, which was stated to be the only place where rates for the relief of the poor had theretofore been published. At the time of the publication of the rate, there were two other churches of the Established Church in the township of C., on the doors of which no notice of the rate was affixed:—Held: the publication of the rate was insufficient.—R. v. WHITE (1843), 4 Q. B. 141; 3 Gal. & Dav. 372; 12 L. J. M. C. 64; 7 J. P. 656; 7 Jur. 194; 114 E. R. 850.

501. — Parish divided into separate parish & particular district.—Publication at all churches except those in separate parish.]—Prior to the Burial Act, 1835 (c. 128), ss. 12, 13, the parish of T. included T. W., an ecclesiastical district formed under Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), & S., a hamlet containing a church, to which a district had been assigned under Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38). Neither T. W. nor S. separately maintained their own poor, there being a common poor rate for the entire parish of T., but each had its separate burial ground. A vestry meeting of the inhabitants of the parish of T. was called, by notice affixed to the doors of all the churches in the parish, including that at S., but excluding those in T. W., to consider whether a burial ground should be provided for such part of the parish of T. as was not included in T. W., & if so, to appoint a burial board for such part of the parish. A burial board for T., excluding T. W., was appointed at this meeting:—Held: (1) the board was well appointed; (2) a poor rate made on that part of T. for which such board was appointed, for defraying the expenses of the board, was good; & that occupiers of property in S. were properly assessed to the rate; for though T. W. was entitled to a separate burial board, S. was not.—VINER v. TONBRIDGE OVERSEERS (1859), 2 E. & E. 9; 28 L. J. M. C. 251; 33 L. T. O. S. 202; 23 J. P. 773; 5 Jur. N. S. 1293; 7 W. 502. Length of notice.—"Three clear days"—What constitutes.]—On Mar. 22 a notice was posted for a vestry meeting, to appoint parish officers on Mar. 25; the meeting being held, two surveyors of highways were appointed. On Apr. 11, at a special sessions for highways, it appeared to the justices that the appointment was invalid, as there had not been three clear days' notice of the vestry meeting which is requisite under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), & they then appointed two other surveyors under Highway Act, 1835 (c. 50), s. 11. The new surveyors, on Oct. 1, made a rate which some of the inhabitants refused to pay. On Nov. 20 they made another rate, & W., one of the inhabitants refused to pay. The justices refused to grant a distress warrant whereupon the surveyors obtained a rule nisi for a mandamus:—Held: the appointment at the vestry meeting was invalid on account of the insufficiency of the notice.—R. v. BEST (1847), 5 Dow. & L. 40; 2 New Sess. Cas. 655; 2 Saund. & C. 90; 16 L. J. M. C. 102; sub nom. R. v. SURREY JJ., 11 Jur. 489.

503. Sufficiency.—Whether notice of specific purpose necessary.]—Not necessary in all cases that notice should be given of the specific purpose for which a parish vestry is convened.—CLUTTON v. CHERRY (1816), 2 Phillim. 373.

504. — Intention to raise loan.—At a vestry meeting, certain plans were produced for improving the parish church, & were referred to a committee. At a subsequent vestry their report, recommending an enlargement, was received & adopted, & a resolution passed for borrowing money on the parish rates to carry the plans into execution. The notice of holding the latter vestry, published in pursuance of Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 1, stated the purpose of it to be to receive a report from the church committee, & to adopt such measures as may appear necessary for carrying that report into execution:—Held: this was a sufficient notice of the intention to propose borrowing money on the church rates for the purpose of executing the plans.—BLUNT v. HARWOOD (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 610; 1 Curt. 648; 3 Nev. & P. K. B. 577; 1 Will. Woll. & H. 515; 7 L. J. M. C. 107; 2 J. P. 424; 2 Jur. 617; 112 E. R. 909.

505. — Omission of name of parish.—Whether material.]—A notice of a vestry meeting affixed on the parish church door, & addressed "to the churchwardens, overseers, & principal inhabitants of this parish" is a valid notice though it does not name the parish, & although it is addressed to the principal inhabitants.—*RAND v. 510. Control of election.—Where no presiding officer.]—Where there is no regular presiding sworn officer at an election, e.g. of churchwardens, one of whom by custom was chosen by parishioners paying scot & lot, & the other appointed by the rector, which latter in fact presided, the control of the election devolves at common law upon the electors themselves; but unless there be a custom to regulate the time for making such election, it is not competent to a majority of the electors assembled at the time of such election to narrow the period which the common law would allow; & therefore a resolution by them that it shall conclude at a given time must at least limit a time reasonable in itself with respect to numbers & distance, & be of sufficient notoriety. But whether a resolution by a majority of the vestry on the first day of the election to close the poll at 4 o'clock on the next day in a parish where the number of electors did not exceed 180, & where the affidavits stated a custom for 200 years not to keep the poll open for more than two days, & no instance within living memory of extending it beyond 4 o'clock on the second day, were sufficient to warrant the closing of the poll, at that time, while some of the voters were still coming in to poll, & others had no notice of the resolution; was a fit question to be tried upon a mandamus.—R. v. WINCHESTER, BISHOP'S COMMISSARY COURT (1800), 7 East, 573; 103 E. R. 222.

511. Latitude of discussion allowed.]—In a vestry meeting for civil purposes, as a full latitude of discussion must be allowed more coarse expressions do not constitute brawling.—HOLLIS v. SCALES (1829), 2 Hag. Ecc. 506; 162 E. R. 958.

512. Formalities.—Whether strict formality necessary.]—(1) The observance of strict formality in putting motions & amendments thereon to vestry meetings is unnecessary; it is enough if conflicting propositions be so put to such a meeting, that those present understand what it is that they are called on to decide.

(2) At a meeting in vestry of the inhabitants of the parish of H. held under a local Act for the purpose of determining the application "to some public purpose, beneficial to the inhabitants," of moneys paid by two railway cos. in compensation of certain commonable rights of the inhabitants, a proposition was made that the money should be applied partly to a district church, & partly to almshouses. The proposition was met by an amendment to the effect that the money be applied to almshouses only. The chairman having inquired whether any one else wished to address the meeting, & no third proposition having been made, the amendment was put & carried. A poll was then demanded; & at the polling place the inhabitants were called on to vote for "the district church & almshouses," or for "the almshouses only." The result was in favour of the proposition for the district church & almshouses:—Held: the vestry must be taken to have agreed that the money should be applied in one of the two methods proposed, & the poll was rightly so taken as to determine the question which of these two methods was preferred by the majority of the parishioners.

(3) Though a poll must not be so taken as to prevent a scrutiny, & therefore must not be taken by ballot, a voter has no right to insist on a scrutiny.—R. v. HAMMERSMITH (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS) (1852), 3 B. & S. 504, n.; 19 L. T. O. S. 203; 122 E. R. 190; sub nom. Re HAMMERSMITH VESTRY, Ex p. STEVENS, 16 J. P. 632.

513. Control by court.—What court has jurisdiction.]—The Ecclesiastical Ct. has jurisdiction, ratione loci, over the order & proceedings of vestry meetings, held in a church; & therefore, where a rector had libelled, in that et., a parishioner, for preventing him from presiding as chairman at such a meeting, a prohibition was refused.

It is pleaded in the arts. & on their admissibility must be taken as true, that the minister's presiding at vestry meetings "is observed in & throughout the whole realm." The fact of such general usage for the minister so to preside is notorious, & has not been denied even in argument. Now such an usage, unless absurd or improper, I take to found a common law right (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—WILSON v. M'MATH (1819), 3 B. & Ald. 211; 3 Phillim. 67; 106 E. R. 650.

But they are not entitled to vote separately for each class of property so as to exceed the number of votes which would be allowed by the above mode of computation.—*LAMBE & CLARKE v. 529. — On election of people's churchwarden — Incumbent nominating other warden.]—An incumbent of a parish, who, upon the failure of himself & the parishioners to agree upon the choice of churchwardens, exercises his right of appointing one churchwarden, is not entitled either by the common law or under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, in his capacity as a ratepayer to vote at the election of the second churchwarden.

The 89th Canon of the Canons of 1603 is declaratory of the common law. In this canon the parishioners are mentioned in such a way as to show that, in case the vestry cannot agree, the minister is to choose his own churchwarden, & the parishioners, as opposed to & distinguished from him, are to choose their churchwarden. The term "parishioners" in the Canon means, in fact, the minister's parishioners, & would not include the minister himself (A. L. SMITH, M.R.).—*R. v. A rate having been proposed & seconded, an amendment was moved & seconded, & on a show of hands, was carried. The majority of parishioners who had negatived the granting a rate having quitted the vestry, the churchwardens & the minority continued to remain in vestry, & re-proposed & carried the necessary rate:—Held: such rate was a legal & valid church rate.

The obligation of the parishioners to repair the churches is absolute; the performance of such obligation may be compelled; & the performance of it may be properly enforced by the ecclesiastical cts., subject to the control of the cts. of common law, when the ecclesiastical cts. exceed their jurisdiction, or attempt to enforce a rate which is illegal & invalid.—*VELEY & JOSLIN v. 546. Whether show of hands condition precedent.]—One of two candidates for the office of churchwarden was elected at a vestry, & subscribed the declaration of office, but the election was alleged to have been so improperly conducted that the proceedings were void. To give the parties impugning the election an opportunity of trying its validity, the ct., considering a prima facie case to be presented, granted a mandamus calling on the rector & churchwardens to convene a vestry for electing a churchwarden for the remainder of the year. At an election in vestry, where the right of voting is regulated by Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, it is no objection to the proceedings that the chairman directed a poll without first taking a show of hands: although a show of hands was demanded, & the poll was not demanded, but was objected to.—R. v. 551. — Ruling by chairman contrary to resolution of meeting—Whether election invalidated—No voters prevented from voting.—The advowson of a parish church being vested in trustees who were bound to present the nominee of the parishioners & inhabitants, a vacancy occurred, & at a meeting of parishioners convened by the churchwardens & presided over by one of them, Aug. 30 was fixed upon for a meeting to proceed to the election of a vicar. Meanwhile, upon the requisition of certain inhabitants, a meeting of Aug. 25, summoned by the churchwardens, but at which they declined to preside, was held, at which resolutions were passed to the effect that the election should be by ballot, on one day only, & at several polling places, & that the poll should be open from 9 to 9. On Aug. 30 the meeting resolved upon was held, candidates were nominated, a show of hands taken, & a poll demanded, & one of the churchwardens, who was in the chair, announced that the poll would be taken by open voting, on the following & two successive days, at one polling place only, & that the poll would be kept open from 8 to 8. Upon a parishioner rising to move amendments similar to those of Aug. 25, the chairman left the chair, & declared the meeting at an end. After the churchwarden had left the chair, another chairman was chosen, & a series of resolutions similar to those of Aug. 25, were moved & carried. The poll having been taken in the way announced by the chairman of the meeting of Aug. 30:—Held: (1) the conduct of the churchwardens had been erroneous & illegal; (2) there being no evidence of any voter having been deprived of an opportunity of voting, the election could not be disturbed. Semble: (3) an election by ballot, if duly resolved upon, is not at the present day an illegal mode of election.—SHAW v. THOMPSON (1876), 3 Ch. D. 233; 45 L. J. Ch. 827; 34 L. T. 721.

552. Amendment negating resolution—Whether separate poll necessary.—The churchwardens of C. gave notice that a vestry of the parish would be held to make a rate for the repair of the parish church: & in the notice it was stated that a show of hands would be taken on each proposition or amendment which might be submitted to the meeting, & if a poll should be demanded, the polling would be taken at an adjourned meeting on all the propositions & amendments made at the original meeting. At the meeting a rate of 2d. in the pound was proposed, & an amendment was moved "that no rate be granted." The majority were in favour of the amendment. Upon a poll being demanded, the vestry was adjourned for the purpose of taking it. At the poll the voting was "for the motion" & "for the amendment"; & at the close of it the chairman declared the motion to be carried, & no other amendment was allowed to be put:—Held: the amendment being a direct negative of the original motion, it was not necessary to take the poll on each; & no amendment could be brought forward after the close of the poll.—R. v. ROBERTS (1863), 3 B. & S. 495; 32 L. J. M. C. 153; 122 E. R. 186; sub nom. R. v. SURREY JJ., 7 L. T. 822; 27 J. P. 709; sub nom. St. GILES, CAMBERWELL (CHURCHWARDENS) v. SURREY JJ., 11 W. 553. ——At a vestry meeting, a motion having been made & seconded that a rate be made, an amendment was proposed that it was not legal or expedient to make a church rate for the district. The amendment, & afterwards the original question, was put to the meeting: the first was negatived & the latter carried. A poll was demanded on the amendment only, & the vestry was adjourned for that purpose. On the day to which the vestry had been adjourned the chairman declared the state of the poll under the headings (1) the number for the amendment & against the rate, (2) the number against the amendment & for the rate, & declared the majority to be for the rate; & then dissolved the meeting without having put the original motion a second time:—Held: the proceedings, though irregular, were not sufficiently so to vitiate the rate.—THIRKS v. HUTTON (1866), L. R. 1 A. & B. 270; 35 L. J. Eccl. 11; 31 J. P. 23; 12 Jur. N. S. 1013.

ii. Right to and Demand of Poll.

556. The right to a poll—Incident to election by show of hands—Election of parish officer.—The right to demand a poll is by law incident to the election of a parish officer by a show of hands. At the election of a churchwarden of the parish of P. (subsequently to Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69)), the show of hands was in favour of M. A poll was demanded by a ratepayer present, who required that it should be taken according to sect. 3 of

*Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes:

above Act (allowing plurality of votes to individuals in respect of property), to which mode an inhabitant present objected. The poll was taken by plurality of votes, by which H. & G. had the majority; they also had the majority at the poll, reckoning by single votes. During the poll, several parishioners protested against the mode of taking it, & did not vote. By sect. 8 of above Act, nothing in that Act is to change or affect the right or manner of voting in any vestry or meeting holden by virtue of any ancient or special usage or custom. By a local Act, vestrymen of the parish of P. are to be elected by ballot, by plurality of votes, as under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3; elections of churchwardens are to be conducted in such manner as hath been usual in the same parish; & overseers are to be nominated by the vestry as may be done by parishioners in vestry in other cases. Before either Act passed, & ever since, churchwardens were elected in P. by show of hands, no poll ever having been demanded:—Held: (1) assuming Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 3, to be inapplicable to the parish of P, (G. & H. were duly elected, the irregularity in the form of demanding the poll, if any, having been waived by the poll being in fact taken without objection from either party to there being a poll; & H. & G. having a majority on the poll according to either way of reckoning the votes; (2) sect. 3 of above Act was applicable to P.; for that the fact of no poll ever having been demanded did not show that the usage de facto in P. excluded a poll, & the elections were, at the time of passing the local Act, subject to sect. 3 of Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), in the event of a poll being demanded; (3) a poll may be demanded at an election of parish officers, after the chairman has declared the result of a show of hands.—CAMPBELL v. MAUND (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 805; 2 Har. & W. 457; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 558; 1 Nev. & P. M. C. 229; 6 L. J. M. C. 145; 111 E. R. 1394, Ex. Ch.

559. — Objection to churchwardens' accounts.]—A vestry meeting was held for the purpose of passing the churchwardens' accounts; & upon the motion being proposed that such accounts should be allowed, an amendment was proposed by an inhabitant, who objected to certain items, that such accounts should not be allowed. Upon this a show of hands was taken, when the chairman declared that the original motion was carried thereupon a poll was demanded, which the chairman refused to grant:—Held: he was wrong, & a mandamus was granted for the purpose of taking such poll.—R. v. ROBINSON, Ex p. OXFORD (1850), 27 L. T. O. S. 110; 20 J. P. 311.

560. — Of whole parish.—Effect of agreement.]—At a vestry, held under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), for the purpose of electing surveyors of highways, of which public notice had been given, it was agreed that the vote should be taken by a show of hands, leaving it open to any one to propose that the votes should be taken according to the statute. A. & B. were respectively proposed & seconded for the office of surveyor; & on a show of hands, A. had a majority. It was then proposed & seconded, on behalf of B., that the votes should be taken according to the statute. No objection was made; & on the votes being so taken, B. had a majority, & was declared duly elected. A. then demanded a poll of the whole parish:—Held: (1) the meeting having agreed to a poll being taken according to the statute, no one was entitled afterwards to demand a poll of the whole parish; (2) the election of B. was valid; (3) a mandamus for another meeting to elect would not lie.—R. v. HILLINGDON (VICAR, ETC.) (1852), 18 Q. B. 718; 19 L. T. O. S. 184; 16 J. P. Jo. 374; 118 E. R. 271.

564. — During calculation of votes after abortive show of hands.]—A vestry was duly summoned to consider as to the mode of raising money to pay for rebuilding the parish church. A resolution was moved & seconded that an application should be made to the comrs. of public works, to which an amendment was moved & seconded, that "this vestry refuses to sanction the application." It being difficult to tell the numbers on a show of hands, the chairman suggested that the names be taken down in writing, to which no objection was made. The supporters of the amendment, however, seeing the numbers would be against them, one of them demanded during the reckoning that a poll be taken, & moved "that the vestry be kept open till Saturday." The chairman refused to grant a poll, on the ground that there was a resolution pending & not disposed of:—Held: the poll ought to have been granted, there being substantially a demand for it, & mandamus granted accordingly to the rector to re-assemble the vestry & grant a poll.—R. v. WALTERS (1860), 24 J. P. 421.

565. Irregularity in demand—Waiver.]—CAMPBELL v. MAUND, No. 556, ante.

566. Effect of refusal—Election imperfect.]—On the election of a surveyor of highways for a parish, the chairman of the vestry took a show of hands, but refused to allow a poll which was demanded. On an application on behalf of the person who appeared successful on the show of hands, the ct. granted a rule nisi for a mandamus, commanding the inhabitants to meet in vestry & take a poll, on the ground that the election was imperfect.—*Ex p. 567. —]—Highway Act, 1835 (c. 50), s. 18, enacts, that "if it shall be determined by a majority of two-thirds of the votes of the vestrymen present at the meeting," to form a highway board for the parish, it shall be lawful for the vestry to nominate & elect a certain number of persons to form the board. The majority of two-thirds of the vestrymen present at a vestry meeting of a parish having voted for the appointment of such a board, a poll was demanded by the minority, which the chairman refused, & a board were then nominated & appointed:—Held: (1) a poll was demandable of common right; (2) the right was not excluded by the words of the statute; (3) the board were therefore not duly elected.—R. v. How (1863), 33 L. J. M. C. 53; 9 L. T. 385; 27 J. P. 773.

568. — Proceedings void—Church rate.]—

At a duly assembled vestry A. proposed a church rate of twopence in the pound, & was seconded by B., C. proposed, as an amendment, a halfpenny rate, & was seconded by D. On show of hands the amendment was negative; C. then demanded a poll, which the chairman refused; the original motion was then put & carried on show of hands. D. demanded a poll, the result of which was that the original motion was carried by 43 to 42:—Held: all proceedings subsequent to the refusal of the poll on the amendment were null, & the ct. pronounced against the rate.—ST. MICHAEL, OXFORD (CHURCHWARDENS) v. LUFF (1858), 31 L. T. O. S. 358; 7 W. R. 20.

569. — [—(1) The only legitimate way in which a parish can express its desire to do an act is, by convening a vestry, & duly conducting the proceedings therein to their legal determination, viz., by show of hands, or by a poll when a poll is duly demanded. (2) A meeting of vestry was held for the purpose of considering the propriety of purchasing an additional burial-ground for the parish of P. A resolution to that effect having been put & agreed to by the majority of those present, a poll was demanded, & refused. The resolution of the vestry was communicated to the church building comrs., who thereupon authorised the parish to purchase the land & to levy rates to defray the expenses, under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 25, & Church Building Act, 1822 (c. 72), s. 26. Money was accordingly borrowed by the churchwardens, & a rate made. A parishioner declining to pay the rate, on the ground of invalidity, the churchwardens instituted against him a suit in the Consistory Ct., in which suit the respondent tendered a responsive allegation, stating that at the vestry a poll had been duly demanded, & refused. The judge of the Consistory Ct. having declined to admit this responsive allegation, the respondent appealed to the Ct. of Arches, by which ct. the decision of the ct. below was confirmed. Upon an application to this ct. for a writ of prohibition, on the ground that the judge of the Consistory Ct. had improperly refused to receive the responsive allegation, appt. was directed to declare in prohibition; & he having so done:—Held: there had been no legal expression of the desire of the parish, & the responsive allegation ought to have been admitted to proof in the ecclesiastical ct. (3) An appeal from the Consistory Ct. to the Ct. of Arches is no bar to an application for a prohibition.—WHITE v. STEELE (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 383; 31 L. J. C. P. 265; 6 L. T. 686; 8 Jur. N. 570. — Costs.]—E., the vicar of a parish, at an election of churchwardens, refused to grant a poll demanded by D., one of two candidates. A writ for a mandamus was obtained on June 11, (1855), 5 A. & W. 640. Genl. M. & W. 640. Genl. 1 Hare, 1; R. v. Hinc

& afterwards made absolute on June 21, & then a writ of mandamus issued, to which E. made a return that he had obeyed the rule. E. had on June 16, before the rule was made absolute, given notice that he had refused the poll under a mistake, but would hold another vestry, & grant a poll, which he forthwith did:—Held: D. was not entitled to his costs of the rule & writ of mandamus, because on E.'s submission after the rule nisi was obtained, he had done all in his power to correct the mistake, & the further prosecution of the rule was quite unnecessary.—*R. v. The meeting being held & a poll demanded, the chairman immediately adjourned the meeting to the town hall, where the poll was taken:—Held: (1) the proceeding was regular, no business having been interrupted by it, & the adjournment being part of the original appointment; (2) the town hall was not an improper place to take the poll, by reason of its being private property, no person having been prevented from voting on that account; (3) the time for taking the poll being limited to eleven hours, such time was sufficient if due diligence had been used, 785 persons being the greatest number proved to have voted on any occasion.—*BAKER & DOWNING v. 573. — Convenient place—Late voters prevented from voting by crowd—Whether ground for mandamus.]—Where at a vestry meeting a poll is demanded, if the time & place for taking such poll are convenient, it is no ground for a mandamus to hold another vestry for the same purpose, that in consequence of the crowded state of the place where the poll was taken, a number of voters were unable to give their votes. Voters should use diligence in voting, & if they hold back until a late period, & then in consequence of the crowd of voters, some of them are unable to vote before the poll closes, this ct. will not assist them.

581. — Discretion of incumbent.]—A vestry meeting of the parish of H., of which meeting notice had been posted on the church door, was held for the election of churchwardens. The rector nominated one churchwarden, & there were two candidates for the office of parishioners' churchwarden, one being the existing churchwarden, & the other a candidate put forward by a party dissatisfied with the administration of the parish charities. The show of hands was in favour of the last-named candidate. The poll was closed by the rector at five o'clock on the day of the election, when there appeared a majority of votes for the existing churchwarden. The validity of the election was questioned by a rule for a mandamus to the rector & churchwardens, to hold a new election:—Held: (1) the closing of the poll was a matter in the discretion of the rector, which had not been shown to be unreasonably exercised; (2) it had not been shown that, had the poll been kept open, the result of the election would have been different; (3) there had been too great delay in questioning the election. Rule discharged.—R. v. HANDBOROUGH (CHURCHWARDENS) (1877), 37 L. T. 400; 41 J. P. 807.

582. — Poll improperly closed—Costs of mandamus for new election.]—Where the ct granted a mandamus to a vicar & churchwarden to proceed to the election of a churchwarden, on the ground that the vicar had improperly closed the poll, but no corrupt motive was imputed to defts. & prosecutor failed at the election, the ct. refused to make defts. pay the costs of the mandamus.—R. v. & no more at vestry meetings, & to an additional vote in respect of every additional £25, to which they shall be rated, not exceeding six votes in the whole. Where, however, in the parish of St. M. the poor rates had, according to ancient custom been always assessed without regard to the annual value of property in the parish, but according to the supposed ability of the person assessed:—Held: persons so rated were not within the benefit of sect. 3 of the above Act, as to the plurality of votes, although assessed in respect of property exceeding £50 in amount.—NIGHTINGALE v. MARSHALL (1823), 2 B. & C. 313; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 549; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 43; 107 E. R. 400.

587. Local Act—Election of guardians—Effect of Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69)—Plurality of votes.]—A local Act passed before Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), for the regulation of parish vestries, created the office of guardians of the poor for a particular parish, & enacted, that vacancies should be annually filled up by the rated inhabitants assembled in the vestry room, who should elect persons in the room of those going out:—Held: after the passing of the above Act the inhabitants ought to be allowed in such election the number of votes, in proportion to their respective assessments, defined in the latter Act; for the local Act did not give this vestry such a peculiar constitution as to bring it within sect. 8 of the above Act, which preserved to vestries holden under any special Act, the powers & rights of voting which they previously enjoyed.—R. v. ST. JAMES, (CLERKENWELL, CHURCHWARDENS) (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 317; 3 L. J. M. C. 99; 110 E. R. 1226.

588. — Trusteeship of church funds—Erection of house for minister—Mandamus to account on application by minister.]—A local Act provides, that if there should be a surplus from fees & payments received by vestry of a parish on account of certain district churches, the surplus should be put aside by the vestry to form a fund, to erect a residence for the minister. A mandamus was granted against the vestry to return the accounts relating to a church on the application of the minister, when there were affidavits both as to the existence & non-existence of a surplus.—R. v. ST. MARYLEBONE VESTRY (1838), 2 J. P. 344.

589. — Election of officers—"Most proper & convenient" method—Power to select.]—A local Act enacted, that at a vestry meeting to be held on Easter Tuesday in every year, all the vacancies in the list of governors & guardians of the poor should "be filled up by poll or ballot, or in such way of election as should be deemed most proper & convenient." At a vestry meeting held accordingly, the mode of election pursued was as follows: Two candidates were proposed for each vacancy; on a show of hands being taken, the one, in whose favour it appeared to be, was declared elected; & then two other candidates were proposed for the next vacancy; & so on, till all the vacancies were filled up. One of the rejected candidates demanded a poll of the inhabitants of the parish, which was refused by the chairman, who proceeded to complete the elections according to the mode above described:—Held: (1) this mode of election could not be sustained; (2) it was the meeting itself, & not the chairman, which was to pronounce what was the "most proper & convenient" mode of election; the right to determine the mode of election being limited to a choice among such modes as might best fulfil the object of the section, which was to secure the filling up of the vacancies by a ^{four of persons to} ^{f two-thirds of} ^{y meeting of a}

613. Nomination of inspectors of votes—How effected.]—As to the nomination of inspectors of votes, preliminary to the election of vestrymen, under Vestries Act, 1831 (c. 60), s. 14.

Qu. : if on such nomination a show of hands is taken & the result disputed, is the question to be determined by a division of those present, or by a general poll? At all events the decision of the returning officer as to the result of the show of hands is not conclusive, if it appear to have been influenced by partiality.—R. v. ST. PANCRAZ (VESTRYMEN, ETC.) (1839), 11 Ad. & El. 15; 4 Per. & Dav. 66; 9 L. J. M. C. 120, n.; 113 E. R. 317. Annotations :—Reid. *R. v. D'Oyly, R. v. G. The Vestry Clerk.

614. Nature of office—Officer of those representing the parish.]—Information filed against churchwardens & vestry clerk, to establish a charity. Vestry clerk demurred generally :—Held : he was bound to answer, as being the officer of those representing the parish, although no relief prayed against him.—A.-G. v. ST. MARGARET'S, WESTMINSTER (CHURCHWARDENS) (1832), 1 L. J. Ch. 127.

615. Appointment—Whether 'mandamus to admit lies.]—A mandamus to admit a vestry clerk refused.

This is not a fixed permanent office, for which a mandamus will lie. It depends altogether on the will of the inhabitants, who may elect a different clerk at each vestry (LORD KENYON, C.J.)—R. v. CROYDON (CHURCHWARDENS) (1794), 5 Term Rep. 713; 101 E. R. 396.

616. — Validity of election—How tested.]—Quo warranto will lie to inquire into the validity of the election of a clerk to a vestry under Vestries Act, 1850 (c. 57), ss. 6, 7.—R. v. BURROWS, [1892] 1 Q. B. 399; 61 L. J. Q. B. 88; 66 L. T. 25; 40 W. R. 207; 55 J. P. Jo. 725, D. C. Annotation :—Mentd. R. v. Speyer, R. v. Cassel, [1916] 1 K. B. 595.

617. — Invalid election—Exercise of office—What amounts to.]—In order to make the remedy by quo warranto applicable in the case of a non-corporate office there must be something more than the mere acceptance of the office. Deft., while holding the office of churchwarden, was proposed for the office of vestry clerk & declared elected. He published a letter thanking the electors, but never acted as vestry clerk. On an application for a quo warranto on the ground that the office of vestry clerk was incompatible with that of churchwarden :—Held : what deft. had done was not such an exercise of the office of vestry clerk as to render the remedy by quo warranto applicable.—R. v. TIDY, [1892] 2 Q. B. 179; 61 L. J. Q. B. 791; 67 L. T. 319; 56 J. P. 650; 41 W. R. 128; 8 T. L. R. 646, D. C.

618. — Evidence of.]—To an action brought by the vestry clerk of the parish of St. P., under a local Act, deft. pleaded that pltf. was not vestry clerk :—Held : (1) evidence of his acting as vestry clerk was sufficient prima facie evidence of his appointment; (2) one of the directors of the vestry was a competent witness for pltf.—M'GAHEY v. ALSTON (1836), 2 M. & W. 206; 2 Gale, 238; Tyr. & Gr. 981; 6 L. J. Ex. 29; 150 E. R. 731.

619. Vestry-book—Right to possession—How enforced.]—A mandamus to the churchwardens to deliver up a vestry-book to the vestry clerk was refused.

If the muniments belonged to him [the vestry clerk] as annexed to his office, he may bring an action of detinue or trover (LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J.)—ANON. (1816), 2 Chit. 255.

620. — Production as evidence.]—A vestry clerk who is called as a witness, cannot, on the ground that it may criminate himself, object to produce the vestry book, kept under Vestries Act, 1818 (c. 69), s. 2.—BRADSHAW v. MURPHY (1830), 7 C. & P. 612.

621. Documents from parish chest—Production of.]—The ct. will not compel the vestry clerk of a parish to produce & permit copies to be taken of documents from the parish chest in his custody, for any other than parochial purposes.—MAY v. GWYNNE (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 301; 106 E. R. 948.

622. As party to action against churchwardens—Information to establish a charity.]—A.-G. v. ST. MARGARET'S, WESTMINSTER (CHURCHWARDENS), No. 614, ante.

623. Power to summon auditors to audit accounts—New auditors elected—Enforcement by mandamus.]—Where a local statute confers a power of investigating accounts upon auditors to be annually elected, & to be summoned by the vestry clerk, at certain stated intervals, to audit the accounts, the ct. will not grant a mandamus to compel the latter, when new auditors have been elected for the succeeding year, to call a meeting of the old auditors to audit the accounts of the past year.—Re ST. GILES & ST. GEORGE'S PARISHES (1833), 1 Dowl. 540.

624. Arrears of salary—Enforcement of payment.]—A writ of mandamus will lie to the overseers of the poor of a parish commanding them to pay to the vestry clerk of the parish the arrears of his salary due under sect. 8 of Vestries Act, 1850 (c. 57), such salary being made chargeable upon & payable out of the moneys to be raised for the relief of the poor.—*R. v. 641. Sufficiency of qualification—Residence—Room occasionally resorted to—Convenience or pleasure.]—The occupation by a ratepayer of a room in a parish, to which he resorts for convenience or pleasure, is a good qualification for the office of churchwarden.—HARRISON v. BARRETT (1876), Trist. 43.

642. — New parish constituted under Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45)—Residence in portion of old parish.]—An inhabitant ratepayer, in a parish constituted under the above Act, is eligible for the office of churchwarden in such parish, notwithstanding that he is resident in a portion of a consolidated chapelry carved out of the old parish, under Church Building Acts, 1815 (c. 70), & 1851 (c. 97); 19 & 20 Vict., c. 55.—JONES v. HAYWORTH (1881), Trist. 47.

643. — Sleeping within parish—Joint-owner of property in parish.]—At the annual Easter vestry meeting of a parish the rector nominated K. as rector's churchwarden. K.'s family owned property in the parish & neighbourhood, & K. was joint-owner of some property in the parish. He frequently stayed with his brother in an adjoining parish, but until the present year he had no residence of his own in the parish. Shortly before his nomination he rented a small cottage in the parish for six months. He slept in the cottage, but had no meals there, & there was no servant there. He stated that he intended to reside in the parish & perform his duties as churchwarden. He had two years previously been nominated by the rector as his warden, & had performed his duties as such:—Held. K.'s occupation was not a mere colourable occupation, & he had a sufficient legal qualification by residence to support his nomination as churchwarden.—R. v. TOWNSON, Ex p. BRODERIP (1908), 99 L. 651. — — — — — Custom of the City of London.]—
 I understand, from those who are well acquainted with the customs of the city of London that persons are eligible to civil offices, who are not personally resident in the parish, but are partners of a house of trade situate within it. This must be understood to be the rule in future, & if it is proper to be reversed, must be reversed elsewhere, by a superior
 ct. (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—STEPHENSON v.

652. Non-resident parishioner.]—Qu.: whether a non-resident parishioner elected to the office of churchwarden can be compelled to serve.

It may be that the true explanation of the apparent conflict on the point whether residence within the parish is or is not necessary to qualify for the office is this, that although non-residence does not disqualify for the office, a non-resident parishioner cannot be compelled to serve in the office (EVE, J.).—MEYERS v. HENNEL, [1912] 2

 functions of the office.—ADEY v. THEOBALD (1836),

D. Appointment.

(a) In General.

658. Form of appointment—Whether instrument in writing necessary.]—The office of church-warden was by common law, & yet that is for a

659. Control by patron.]—The patrons of a church have no right to controvert the election of churchwardens; unless it can be shown that the parishioners have no right to elect churchwardens, & that the churchwardens of the particular parish are exempt from the jurisdiction of the ordinary.—ST. THOMAS'S HOSPITAL house, on the demise of A. & B., stated in the declaration to be the churchwardens & overseers wardens & overseers at the time of the alleged demise is sufficient prima facie proof, for the purposes of the action, that they held the offices at that time.—DOE d. BOWLEY v. BARNES (1846),

Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes :
Sub-sect. 6, D. (b) iii. & (c), E. & F.]

in which it was agreed that the ct. should draw inferences of fact:—Held: (1) the custom was valid & sufficiently proved, notwithstanding the occasional deviations; & the severance of the hamlet of Whitefield from the rest of the parish of Prestwich did not affect the validity of the ancient custom. Declarations of a deceased rector were received as evidence of the custom.

In 1863, the ratepayers of the township of Prestwich claimed to be entitled to appoint a churchwarden, or to nominate two persons to be submitted to the rector, for his choice; & at a meeting held for that purpose deft. was appointed churchwarden, & proceeded to collect a church-rate in the township of Prestwich. In an action by the five churchwardens appointed according to the above custom, to recover from him the money so levied:—Held: (2) the action was maintainable, although it appeared that some of plffs. had omitted to make the declaration prescribed by Statutory Declarations Act, 1835 (c. 62), s. 9, the ct. having power under Common Law Procedure Act, 1860 (c. 126), s. 19, to give judgment for such of plffs. as might be proved to be entitled; & Seemle: a churchwarden of the former year, who had made the necessary declaration, might, if necessary, be substituted for the disqualified plff.

There remains an objection of form, viz., that one of the five plffs. had not made the declaration required by Statutory Declarations Act, 1835 (c. 62), s. 9, & therefore was not qualified to act as churchwarden. The answer to this objection is, that, if that person was incapable of acting, the former churchwarden for that township continues in office. The churchwarden is appointed for one year, & until a successor is legally appointed; & it cannot be necessary for a churchwarden so continuing in office to make a fresh declaration (EMLE, C. J.).—BREMNER v. HULL (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 748; 11 Har. & Ruth. 800; 35 L. J. C. P. 332; 15 L. T. 352; 12 Jur. N. S. 648; 14 W. R. 904.

698. — Without consent of parishioners.—(1) A perpetual curate is the minister of a parish within the general custom, by which, in conformity with Canon 89, the churchwardens are chosen by the joint consent of the minister & parishioners, & if they cannot agree, the minister chooses one & the parishioners the other. A perpetual curate has therefore a right to take part in the election of churchwardens, in the absence of proof of any other custom. To a mandamus directing the minister & churchwardens to call a vestry for the purpose of electing a churchwarden by the parishioners, in conformity with the above custom, the churchwardens returned that a vestry was duly held & the minister did not propose a person nor endeavour to obtain the consent of the parishioners to his election; & therefore the parishioners elected two churchwardens. To this prosecutor pleaded that the parishioners had before & still denied the right of the minister to choose churchwardens jointly with the parishioners; wherefore the minister, as he lawfully might, nominated his churchwardens without attempting to get the parishioners' consent:—Held: the plea was good.

(2) Where a mandamus is addressed to churchwardens during their year of office & disobeyed by them during that period, it is no reason for refusing a peremptory writ that their year of office has expired.—*R. v. (3) Where it appears that the chairman of a vestry meeting took notes of the proceedings thereat, which was his habit, as required by the statute, to enter in a book kept for that purpose:—Held: the notes & entry in that book are the only legal evidence of what took place at the meeting, & it is necessary to produce them, in order to go into such.—*R. v. (2) In the course of the argument deft.'s counsel said that the churchwardens of a parish are a corp'n. for a particular purpose, namely, to take care of the goods of the church; but, speaking in legal language, that is not so; they are in that case only quid a corp'n. 746. Whether churchwarden of whole parish—Churchwardens elected by separate tithings.]—Where a parish is divided into four tithings separately maintaining their own poor, & having separate overseers, & by custom the inhabitants of each tithing, at a general parish meeting, separately choose a churchwarden, & each of the churchwardens though sworn in the usual form, to the faithful execution of the office within his parish, acts only for the particular tithing for which he is chosen, except that all the four churchwardens unite in signing the annual presentment, to the archdeacon, of the state of the repairs, of the church, & other presentable matters; each of such persons is a churchwarden for the whole parish. Therefore, where a comr. for inclosure of lands in an adjoining parish serves upon the churchwarden acting for one of such tithings a description of an ascertainment of boundaries between another of the tithings & such adjoining parish, such service is a sufficient compliance with 41 Geo. 3 (c. 109), s. 3. Where the validity of such an ascertainment of boundaries is disputed, on the ground that the description was not served upon a proper officer, the ct. will require such ground of objection to be fully & convincingly made out:—Held: in such a case evidence that the comr., before ascertaining the boundaries, had not given the required notices, & had received evidence not upon oath, was not admissible.

747. —[Parish divided by city & county boundary—Churchwardens elected by separate vestries for each part.]—The parish church of St. Sepulchre is within the city of London, but the parish of St. Sepulchre is situate partly within the city of London & partly in the county of Middlesex, & five churchwardens of the parish church are annually elected, three by the vestry of the portion of the parish within the city of London & two by the vestry of the portion of the parish in the county of Middlesex. The vicar & the churchwardens elected by the City portion of the parish having petitioned the Ordinary for a faculty to authorise certain repairs in the parish church, the churchwardens elected by the Middlesex portion of the parish appeared as opponents in the cause, & prayed the ct. to direct the faculty, if granted, to issue to them jointly with petitioners, & to declare what were the rights of the respective parties to the suit with respect to church management. It was admitted that the churchwardens elected by the City portion of the parish had for a long series of years had the sole control of a certain trust fund available for payment of the costs of the proposed alterations:—Held: (1) the churchwardens elected by each portion of the parish were equally officers of the Ordinary in all matters relating to the management of the parish church, & a faculty must issue to petitioners & the opponents jointly; (2) for convenience the practice is to join with the churchwardens in a faculty for the restoration of a church any person who may contribute or make himself responsible for the whole of the expenses of the restoration, & for him to sign the contract or the works; (3) the judge of the Consistory Ct. sits as representative of the bishop of the diocese, & where there is a fair & honest difference of opinion as to what alterations should be made in a parish church amongst the parishioners, either party is entitled to take the opinion of the Bishop's Ct. on the subject without being liable to condemnation in costs.—*ST. Churchwardens for ecclesiastical purposes only.]—

A rule was obtained calling on the overseers of a parish to show cause why two justices should not issue their warrant, under Lighting & Watching Act, 1833 (c. 90), s. 38, to levy by distress on the goods of the overseers two sums of money ordered to be paid by the inspectors of a district within the parish, in which the provisions of that Act had been adopted. By the affidavits it appeared that the district was one assigned to a chapel for ecclesiastical purposes, under Church Building Act, 1831 (c. 38); & that the provisions of Lighting & Watching Act, 1833 (c. 90), had been adopted, more than two years before the application, at a meeting convened by the churchwardens of the district church. These churchwardens, as was shown affirmatively by the affidavits, were churchwardens for ecclesiastical purposes only, & never in the habit of calling meetings for secular purposes:—Held: the meeting was improperly convened, the churchwardens of the district church not being such churchwardens as are contemplated by Lighting & Watching Act, 1833 (c. 90), s. 5; consequently the provisions of the Act had never been duly adopted in the district; & the order of inspectors was void.—R. v. KINGSWINFORD OVERSEERS (1854), 3 E. & B. 688; 23 L. J. Q. B. 337; 18 J. P. 678; 118 E. R. 1290; sub nom. R. v. LEIGH & COPE, STAFFORDSHIRE J.J., 18 Jur. 1073.

753. Right of one to pledge credit of other.]—One of several churchwardens cannot pledge the credit of the others without their knowledge, even for work which, by the duties of their office, they are bound to have executed. Thus where one of several churchwardens gave orders to debt. to make certain necessary repairs in the church, & it did not appear that the other churchwardens had authorised him to give such orders, or to pledge their credit:—Held: debt. was entitled to set off his claim for such repairs, in an action by the exor. if the churchwarden, by whose orders the work was performed.—NORTHWAITE v. BENNETT (1834), 2 Cr. & M. 316; 2 Nev. & M. M. C. 330; 4 Tyr. 236; 3 L. J. M. C. 3; 149 E. R. 781.

755. — Right to perform—How enforced.]—At the election at an Easter vestry of a people's churchwarden for a parish a woman was proposed & seconded, & a poll was demanded on her behalf. The chairman refused a poll, but the K. B. Div. granted a mandamus directing the vicar & inhabitants of the parish to hold a poll. At the election she was chosen people's churchwarden, but the vicar's churchwarden refused to allow her to perform the duties of the office:—Held: her remedy was to institute a criminal suit in the Ecclesiastical Ct. against the other churchwarden for the purpose of enforcing her right to perform her official duties.—*GORDON v. a. — — —.]—Land was granted by the Crown in 1837 to certain officials to hold in trust, to be conveyed to the several corps. of the Church of England in the parishes where the lands were situated, when such corps. should be established. By 9 Vict. c. 17, the churchwardens & vestry of every church then, or thereafter to be erected in the province, should, when elected, be a corp. by the name of "the rector, churchwardens & vestry" of the parish to which they belonged; & in case of the death or absence from the province of any rector, or where no rector had been appointed, the churchwardens & vestry, should have the same power & authority as were given to the rectors, churchwardens & vestry; & that all suits & proceedings by them should be done & prosecuted in the name of the rector, churchwardens & vestry:—Held: though no rector had been appointed to the parish, the election of churchwardens & vestrymen created a corp. by the Act; the title to the land vested in such corp. by the deed of the Church Society, & they could sue in the name of the rector, churchwardens & vestry.—*DOE d. Plea as to the imprisonment, a justification on the ground of pltf.'s having conducted himself indecently in the church during divine service, & disturbed the congregation, wherefore defts., being the churchwardens, after his refusal to leave the church, for the preserving of decency & reverence, & preventing disturbance of the congregation, removed him therefrom, & because he threatened to return & renew the disturbance, imprisoned him & kept & detained him so imprisoned for a reasonable time, two hours; quæ est eadem, etc. Replication, de injuriâ, & new assignment, that defts., after the expiration of a reasonable time, etc., continued to imprison pltf., & kept & detained him in prison, without reasonable or probable cause, for a long time, two hours:—Held: the replication & new assignment were good, & were not open to the objection of duplicity.

A second plea to the declaration, except as to the imprisonment, was that just before the time when, etc., pltf. wilfully & contemptuously came into the church during the time that divine service was being celebrated therein, & disturbed the same & the congregation there, by then wrongfully getting into the clerk's desk, & preventing the lawful clerk from getting therein, & by making loud noises & by reading & singing in a loud, noisy & unbecoming manner, & by otherwise conducting himself in an indecent & irreverent manner; whereupon deft., T., then being one of the churchwardens for the preserving due decorum, decency & reverence in the church, & for removing the interruption & disturbance of the congregation, requested pltf. to leave the desk, & to cease such disturbances & noises, etc., which pltf. refused to do, & continued in the church, in the desk, during the time divine service was being celebrated therein, disturbing the same & the congregation thereof; wherefore deft., T., as such churchwarden, & deft., R., then being rector of the parish church, & the other defts., being constables, in aid of T., & at his request, for the preserving of the decorum & reverence in the church, & for removing the interruption & disturbance, & because they could not otherwise preserve such decorum, etc., nor remove such disturbance, etc., gently laid their hands on pltf., & forced him out of the desk & church:—Held: this plea was not supported by proof of misconduct in the church before the commencement of divine service.

(1) Question of practice:—Held: on a citation to appear on a day fixed, & receive articles, etc., a person is not entitled to demand that the arts. shall be delivered on the first ct. day, or that otherwise he shall be dismissed.

(2) Churchwardens are appointed to provide the furniture of the church, the bread & wine for the holy sacrament, the surplice, & the books necessary for the performance of divine worship, & such as are directed by law; but it is the minister who has the use. If, indeed, he errs in this respect, it is just matter of complaint, which the churchwardens are obliged to attend to, but the law would not oblige them to complain, if they had a power in themselves to redress the abuse (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(3) In the service, the churchwardens have nothing to do, but to collect the alms at the offertory; & they may refuse the admission of strange preachers into the pulpit (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(3) Semble: the powers conferred upon the churchwardens of a parish cannot be exercised by one of the churchwardens without the concurrence of his colleague.

(4) Churchwardens have a right of access to the church at proper seasons, but they are not entitled to the custody of the keys of the church.—RITCHINGS v. CORDINGLEY (1868), L. R. 3 A. & E. 113; sub nom. RICHINGS v. CORDINGLEY, 19 L. T. 26; 32 J. P. 611.

d. Ornaments—Power to remove.] —

Churchwardens have a right to remove from the church any articles they may deem injurious to its appearance or offensive to the members of the congregation.—NEWMAN v. CHURCHWARDENS (1823), 1 Nfld. L. R. 310.—NFLD.

790. ———.]—DURST v. MASTERS, No. 2799, post.

791. Collection boxes—Power to remove—Without faculty.—The rector, the promoter of this suit, placed, without a faculty, & without the concurrence of the churchwardens, two collection boxes immediately above the two ancient poor boxes at the west end of the church, with an inscription: "For the Altar Flowers." Deft., as senior churchwarden, objected to their remaining there, on the ground that they intercepted alms from the poor. His objection being disregarded by the curate in charge, they were removed by the churchwardens' orders. The rector articlede deft. for having removed them without authority, & prayed the ct. to admonish him for having so done, & to order him to replace them in their former position, & to condemn him in costs:—Held: (1) deft. had committed an offence against Ecclesiastical Law by removing the boxes without the sanction of a faculty; (2) it would not be a proper exercise of the discretion of the ct. to order their restoration in opposition to the wishes of both the churchwardens, who must be assumed to represent the parishioners, as they were not directed to be placed in a church by the Rubrics, or the Canons; (3) the ct. was bound to admonish deft. for having removed the boxes without lawful authority, & to admonish him not to repeat the offence; (4) deft. ought to pay the costs necessarily incurred by the promoter for the purpose of obtaining the admonition, & of opposing the admission of deft.'s original plea; but the promoter ought to pay the costs incurred by deft. in resisting the order for the restoration of the boxes.—EVANS v. DODSON (1874), Trist, 20.

792. Lighting & heating apparatus—Erected by incumbent at own expense.—In an action of trespass by the churchwardens of the church at P. against the incumbent for taking away from the church certain gas-fittings & stoves, which had been erected by the incumbent for lighting & warming the church at his own cost & expense:—Held: plffs. were entitled to a verdict, on the ground that the property in the church being vested in the churchwardens, the vicar or rector had no power to remove the gas-fittings, unless at the time of putting them up, he had given notice that he should remove them at the time of his departure.—MOORE v. COOK (1841), 5 J. P. 467.

793. — Installed by wish of majority of ratepayers—No restraint at instance of one ratepayer.—The churchwardens of a parish who proceed bonâ fide to carry into effect the resolutions of the ratepayers to warm the church by the introduction of hot air or water pipes under the floor of the church, will not be restrained at the instance of one ratepayer from doing so. Qu.: whether such a bill can be sustained by a single inhabitant ratepayer.—WOODMAN v. ROBINSON (1852), 2 Sim. N. S. 204; 19 L. T. O. S. 8; 61 E. R. 318.

794. Lead of coffin in private vault.—In an indictment for larceny in stealing from a private vault in a public church, the lead which had composed a coffin therein deposited, the property in the lead is well laid in the churchwardens & overseers of the parish or township to which such church belongs, though it may be locally situated out of such, & in another parish or township, & though it may have been long disused for every other purpose than the burial of the dead.—R. v. GARLICK (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 479; 1 Cox, C. O. 52.

795. Military colours presented to church.—VINCENT v. EYTON, No. 420, ante.

iv. As to Repairs.

796. Power to repair—General rule.—[GAUDERN v. SELBY, No. 899, post.

797. Duty to repair—Enforcement—By monition.—A monition issued against churchwardens to repair & reinstate in its original form the spire of a church which had been destroyed by lightning.—MAYNARD v. BRAND & PHILPOT (1821), 3 Phillim. 501; 161 E. R. 1397.

798. Failure to repair—Liability to criminal proceedings.—Criminal proceedings against churchwardens for "not repairing or keeping in proper order the parish church," & "for neglecting & disobeying the lawful orders & directions of the archdeacon." The church being still out of repair, & the archdeacon having ordered the same to be repaired, not sustained, there being no proof that the churchwardens had personally neglected their duty, or that they had wilfully disobeyed the order of the archdeacon:—Held: in order to justify criminal proceedings against churchwardens for neglecting to repair their parish church, it must be shown that they have been guilty of personal & wilful neglect, affirming the sentence of the Consistory Ct. of London.

If the church be out of repair, & a fortiori, if the archdeacon order the repairs according to circumstances, there are two modes of proceeding open, the two modes of proceeding cannot be resorted to indiscriminately; if the churchwardens are wilfully disobedient, & neglect to take all the clearly legal means in their power to have the church repaired, a criminal proceeding may properly be instituted against them. If no fault is ascribed personally to the churchwardens, but a question arises as to the propriety of the repairs, or if the churchwardens do, or are willing to do their duty, but obstacles out of their power intervene, then the proper mode of proceeding is in the civil form. MILLAR & SIMES v. PALMER & KILBY (1837), 1 Curt. 510, 550; 1 J. P. 6, 190; 163 E. R. 189.

800. Right to indemnity for disbursements.—[GAUDERN v. SELBY, No. 899, post.

801. — Effect of resolution by parishioners.—A parish being indebted to A. for repairs done to the church, the parishioners agreed at a vestry that the parish officers should give a bond for the amount; that A. should give the parish 12 months' notice when he required payment, & that the parish should be at liberty to pay the debt by instalments: &, at another vestry held shortly afterwards, it was resolved that the obligors should be indemnified by the parishioners & out of the rates, & the parish officers for the time being were authorised & directed to pay the interest & the principal, when required, out of the rates. A., who was himself a parishioner, & several of the other parishioners, signed both the agreement & resolution; & he received the interest on his debt for several years, & part of the principal also, out of the rates, & never called on the obligors to pay the interest:—Held: as the parishioners had no power to bind the parish, the obligors were not exempted from their liability on the bond, notwithstanding A. had signed both the agreement & the resolution.—JACQUET v. LEWIS (1837), 8 Sim. 480; 6 L. J. Ch. 313; 59 E. R. 191; sub nom. JACQUET v. LEWIS, 1 Jur. 511.

802. — Order for repairs signed by parishioners—Right of contribution.]—Where churchwardens have neglected to make a prospective rate for raising a sum of money, necessary to the completion of repairs to the church, ordered by them pursuant to resolutions entered into at a vestry meeting, they are liable for the payment of them, & are not entitled to contribution from the parishioners attending the meeting, & signing the resolutions sanctioning the repairs being made. The attendance of those persons at such meeting, & their signature to such resolutions, is only to be considered as given by them in their character of vestrymen, & not in their individual capacity.—LANCHESTER v. TRICKER (1823), 1 Bing. 201; 8 Moore, C. P. 20; 1 L. J. O. S. C. P. 56; 130 E. R. 81.

803. — — — — —.]—Twenty parishioners joined at a vestry in signing an order for the repairs of the church, & one of them, a churchwarden, paid the artificers, but the rate for reimbursing him was quashed:—Held: he could not sue for contribution the persons who signed the order.—LANCHESTER v. FREWER (1824), 2 Bing. 301; 9 Moore, C. P. 688; 3 L. J. O. S. C. P. 40; 130 E. R. 345.

804. Vote by churchwarden against church rate for repairs—Repairs not prevented—Whether ecclesiastical offence.]—At a vestry meeting called, by notice signed by the churchwardens for the purpose of making a church rate for the repair of the church, a resolution was moved & seconded, "That this vestry, considering church rates at all times bad in principle & particularly unjust in practice, & quite uncalled for at the present time, resolved to adjourn all further consideration of the subject for which it has been called, till this day twelve-months," which resolution was carried:—Held: one of the churchwardens, in having voted in favour of the resolution & against the rate proposed, 2d. in the pound, was not guilty of any ecclesiastical offence, it not being averred that in consequence of the refusal of the rate, the church was still out of repair.—*COOPER v. 807. Duty to maintain—Repair of footpath & fences.]—WALTER v. MOUNTAGUE & LAMPRELL, No. 431, ante.

808. — Repair of wall—Whether faculty necessary.]—A contractor when rebuilding a house abutting on a churchyard unlawfully pulled down the churchyard wall for the purpose of obtaining for the lower windows of the house light & air from the churchyard, & rebuilt the house a few inches from the site of the old wall, & outside the churchyard. The rector & churchwardens, in order to vindicate their right to rebuild the wall, placed an iron screen of the same height as the old wall immediately opposite to the windows of the new house. On an application by the rector & churchwardens for a faculty to rebuild the wall:—Held: where a churchyard wall has been wilfully pulled down, or fallen down, it is the duty of the churchwardens to rebuild it, & if they do so without alteration no faculty is necessary, unless their right to rebuild it is in dispute.—ST. STEPHEN, WALBROOK (RECTOR & CHURCHWARDENS) & GROCERS CO. v. SUN FIRE OFFICE TRUSTEES (1883), Trist. 103.

810. Right to collect—Alms.]—HUTCHINS v. DENZLOE & LOVELAND, No. 773, ante.

811. —.]—Upon an information under Ecclesiastical Courts Jurisdiction Act, 1860 (c. 32), s. 2, against resps., for unlawfully molesting applt., "then being a clergyman in holy orders celebrating divine service" in the parish church, the evidence was that applt., the incumbent, whilst engaged in collecting the offertory during the reading of the offertory sentences by another clergyman was obstructed by resps., who claimed as churchwardens the right of themselves collecting. The magistrates decided that resps. had not been guilty of the offence charged, inasmuch as applt. was not, at the time he was so obstructed, "ministering or celebrating any sacrament or any divine service, rite, or office":—Held: their decision was right; the duty of collecting the offertory being a lay duty imposed by the rubric upon the "deacons, churchwardens, or other fit person" of lower degree, "appointed for that purpose."—COPE v. BARBER (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 393; 41 L. J. M. C. 137; 26 L. T. 891; 20 W. R. 885; sub nom. COPE v. BARBER, CLARKE & HOBSON, 30 J. P. 439.

J. Accounts.

833. Duty to keep.]—Every churchwarden is bound by law to keep an accurate account of the parochial funds during his continuance in office, & at the expiration thereof, to produce the same to his successors. Where this production of such accounts is delayed by the outgoing churchwarden, & no satisfactory excuse alleged for the delay, the ct. will enforce the production of the accounts, & visit the late churchwarden with a fine.—*CHAMBERS v. 846. Right of inspection—Special reason must be alleged.]—Where a party applies for a mandamus to compel churchwardens to allow him to inspect their accounts according to Poor Relief Act, 1744 (c. 38), he must state some special reason for which he wishes to see the accounts.—R. v. CLEAR (1825), 4 B. & C. 899; 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 393; 3 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 438; 4 L. J. O. S. K. B. 53; 107 E. R. 1293.

847. — — —.]—There is no general unqualified right on the part of the ratepayers to inspect & take extracts from the churchwardens books of accounts. To entitle a ratepayer to a mandamus to compel such inspection some special & public ground must be shown.

Therefore, where the affidavit stated that the application had been made bonâ fide, & for the purpose of enabling appt. & other parishioners & ratepayers to take part in the proceedings of the vestry, & that he & they might properly understand & act upon the business to be brought before it, & not for any unlawful or improper purpose or object:—Held: a mandamus commanding the churchwardens to permit appt. to inspect & take extracts from the churchwardens books of accounts ought not to be granted.—Ex p. BRIGGS (1859), 1 E. & E. 881; 28 L. J. Q. B. 272; 120 E. R. 1141; sub nom. R. v. DAVENTRY (CHURCHWARDENS), 33 L. T. O. S. 134; 23 J. P. 700; 5 Jur. N. S. 940; 7 W. R. 445.

849. Authorised charges—Refreshment & visitation expenses.]—As to the illegal expenses, I find bills to Dry & Morton for £14 for a parish feast, & another year £17 for visitation expenses. Now, I can understand that large expenses may be incurred by churchwardens who are living far off, & obliged to attend visitations, for necessary refreshments; but here they are distant only two miles & a half; & I do not think there can be any ground for this expense; & as to the salary of the sidesmen I do not see how that is to be maintained; but as to the clothes of the clerk & sexton, which were ordered at a proper vestry, these, I think, may be legal charges, & so a moderate sum for drink to the bell-ringers (SIR H. JENNER FUST).—HORNCHURCH (CHURCHWARDENS) v. PIGOTT (1842), 6 Jur. 608.

pulling down of churchyard wall.]—A suit by the churchwardens of a parish to restrain a person from pulling down the churchyard wall is maintainable: & the churchwardens, notwithstanding their office has ceased, may file a supplemental bill for the purpose of stating facts occurred since the filing of the original bill, & may join their successors as co-plffs. with them in the supplemental suit.—MARRIOTT v. In pursuance of these instructions, & in accordance with a practice which had prevailed in the parish for fifty or sixty years, the vestry clerk applied a portion of the money arising from a church rate made in plffs.' year of office as churchwarden to the payment of certain parochial charges not legally payable out of the church rate:—Held: inasmuch as one of the churchwardens was aware of the manner in which the money was about to be disposed of; he having previously filled the office of overseer, & also of auditor of the parish accounts: & did not object, the two were precluded from suing the vestry clerk for this misapplication of the rate.—COOPER v. Subsequently to the issue of this inhibition another person was elected as churchwarden in the place of complainant, & complainant ceased to reside in the parish. Afterwards the newly appointed churchwarden applied to the ct. by motion for leave to intervene in the suit or to be substituted as party therein in place of the complainant. The appointment was in the vicar:—Held: as the pauper was not even colourably appointed or chosen, he did not by his service as clerk, execute an office within the parish so as to gain a settlement under Poor Relief Act, 1691 (c. 11), s. 6.

T. continued to act as such clerk for eight years, with the full knowledge of the vicar who, during that time, held the cure of the parish in which part of the district lay. At the time of the appointment, the vicar denied the power of the curate to appoint, but he took no further or subsequent objection. On appeal against an adjudication of T.'s settlement in another township:—Held: the office was a public annual office within Poor Relief Act, 1691 (c. 11), & T. acquired a settlement in township A.—R. v. 922. Whether assignable.—N., having been appointed parish clerk of the parish of Manchester before the passing of 13 & 14 Vict. c. 41, purported to assign by deed his office of parish clerk to D. By 13 & 14 Vict., c. 41, s. 6, an Act passed for subdividing the parish of Manchester, it was provided that there should be paid to the rectors of the new parishes for marriages, churchings, & burials, the fees usually payable at the parish church during the continuance in office of the chaplains, minor canons, & clerks of the parish church then being in office, or any of them; & that the rectors should pay same to one of the chaplains or minor canons, who should distribute them to the persons entitled. All the chaplains & minor canons had ceased to hold office. N. having sued the rector of one of the parishes created under the Act for his portion of the marriage fees:—Held: (1) the office of parish clerk could not be assigned, & N. was, therefore, still the parish clerk; (2) the mode by which the fees received by the rectors were to be paid to the parties entitled was only machinery appointed by the Act for the purpose, & there being no chaplains or minor canons remaining through whom it could be carried out, N. was entitled to recover by action from the rector the amount due to him.—*NICHOLS v. Pauper accordingly entered upon the office. Soon afterwards, two parishioners objected to what the rector had done, who answered that he should persist. The parish were in the habit of paying a salary to the parish clerk & sexton; the overseer refusing to pay the pauper, the rector threatened him with legal proceedings, upon which the salary was paid, & the vestry afterwards increased it. Pauper executed the office, & received the emoluments, residing in B., for several years:—Held: he was well appointed, & gained a settlement in B.—R. v. Pltf. having, during the continuance of the suspension, sued deft., in respect of these fees, for money had & received:—Held: (1) K. had the right of appointing the parish clerk; (2) the appointment of pltf.

was good; (3) a general appointment by K. would be more advisable than one limited to the time of D.'s suspension.—PINDER v. BARR (1854), 4 E. & B. 105; 2 C. L. R. 1613; 24 L. J. Q. B. 30; 23 L. T. O. S. 254; 18 J. P. 824; 1 Jur. N. S. 205; 2 W. R. 589; 119 E. R. 41.

The office of parish clerk having become vacant during the sequestration, the rector appointed pltf. to be parish clerk, & subsequently, the curate appointed deft. to the same office. On a motion by pltf. to restrain deft. from receiving the fees & emoluments of the office :—Held: the appointment of parish clerk had been rightly made by the rector, notwithstanding the sequestration, & pltf. was accordingly entitled to an injunction.

1851. — Chapel of ease constituted separate district.—Under 28 Geo. 3, c. 10, & 30 Geo. 3, c. 69, a chapel became vested in trustees to be used as a chapel of ease to the parish church; & in 1843, deft. & pltf. were respectively appointed, by the vicar of the parish, minister & clerk of such chapel. By an Ord. in Council, made in 1854, under Church Building Acts, 1819 (c. 134), s. 16, & 1839 (c. 49), s. 3, a district was assigned to the chapel so as to form a district chapelry. By Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 29, the clerk in every church & chapel erected, built, or acquired or appropriated under the provisions of that Act, or of Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), shall be annually appointed by the minister of the church or chapel. By Church Building Act, 1845 (c. 70), s. 17, the church of any district chapelry shall be a perpetual curacy & benefice; & the minister shall be a perpetual curate, & shall not be in anywise subject to the control or interference of the rector of the parish. Pltf. never received any appointment as clerk from deft., but continued to act as clerk without interruption until Aug. 18 1855, when he received from deft. a notice to quit on Aug. 26. On Sept. 26, 1855, pltf. went to the vestry of the chapel to perform his duties as clerk, when deft. ordered him to leave, & on his refusal, had him turned out of the vestry room. In answer to questions raised by an arbitrator upon the reference of an action by pltf. for an assault:—Held: (1) the office of clerk was an annual appointment in the power of deft. as minister of the chapel, & the continuance of pltf. in the office in successive years without an express reappointment should be construed to amount to a reappointment in each year; (2) the appointment of clerk was an office, & deft. had no power to dismiss from the office during the year of office without cause, & therefore, the notice to pltf. to leave in Aug., there being no evidence when the year of office began, did not remove pltf.; (3) the possession of the vestry room was in deft. as minister, so as to make the entry & remaining of pltf., the clerk, therein after a prohibition by deft. a wrong which justified defts. in removing pltf., & entitled defts. to judgment upon a plea alleging such facts by way of justification.—

949. District chapelry.—Rights of clerk of original parish.]—In 1810, a chapel was purchased for the purpose of being consecrated as a chapel of ease in the parish of A. The chapel was consecrated under the provisions of a deed, dated Aug. 25, 1810, by which the parish clerk & sexton were to be entitled to the fees for christening, burials & marriages in the chapel & cemetery thereof, as if they had taken place in the mother church. By an Ord. in Council, of Aug. 2, 1853, the chapel was created a district chapelry under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 16. By sect. 10 of that Act, when any parish shall be divided under the provisions of Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), or this Act, all fees belonging to the parish clerk or sexton respectively of any such parish, which shall thereafter arise "in any district or division of any parish divided" under the provisions of Church Building Act, 1818 (c. 45), shall belong to & be recoverable by the clerks & sextons of each of the divisions of the parish to which they shall be assigned. Pltf., who was clerk & sexton of the parish of A., having brought an action for money had & received, against def., the clerk & sexton of the chapel, for the fees received by him for christenings, burials, & marriages in the chapel:—Held: (1) the action for money had & received would lie for these fees; (2) this being a "district chapelry" was not within Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 10. & therefore, pltf., as clerk & sexton of the parish, was entitled to the fees arising at the chapel.—ROBERTS v. Ancient fee payable on grave being opened in churchyard.—Whether payment issuing out of or charged on land.]—A. was in 1826 appointed parish clerk of St. J., Dover; & by licence under the seal of the Archbishop of Canterbury, dated in 1832, he was confirmed in his office, "together with all & singular the fees, salaries, & profits either by law or ancient custom belonging to same." Part of the emoluments attached to the office consisted of the clerk's share of an ancient due payable to the clerk & sexton upon the opening of every grave in the churchyard of the parish. The parish clerk had not himself to perform any of the work of or incident to the opening of the graves, this being done by the sexton:—Held: the ancient fee was in the nature of a remuneration for services rendered in conducting the funeral rites, & not a payment or emolument issuing out of or charged upon any land.—BUSHELL v. In an action to try the truth of the return:—Held: deft. would be confined to the acts committed between the restoration & second removal, & a refusal to publish a notice for a parish meeting, which he was required by deft. to publish unless he was paid a fee of 1s., & likewise to fetch & deliver up the keys of the church & register chest when required by the minister & churchwardens to do so, were sufficient grounds to justify a dismissal. Semble: the demand of a fee for publishing a notice in church was illegal in 1834, when notices were by law allowed to be there published.—*CIRKETT v. The clerk brought an action for a false return, & in his declaration recited the return, & negatived the allegations contained in it. The rector, by his plea, repeated the charges contained in the return. On these pleadings:—Held: deft. had the right to begin.

Deft. ought to begin. The affirmative is certainly upon him, & as the presumption is, that plff. has not been guilty of the misconduct imputed to him until the contrary is shown, deft. ought to proceed to prove such misconduct on the part of plff.—BOWLES v. NEALE (1835), 7 C. & P. 262.

974. ———— Quo warranto against successor.]—

(1) It is the duty of the churchwardens to preserve public peace & decorum during the celebration of divine service, & in the execution of that duty, they are not bound to enter into any inquiry as to the circumstances under which any breach of that peace & decorum is committed, or the conflicting rights of parties engaged therein.

(2) For the purpose of preserving peace & decorum, the churchwardens have authority to remove all parties committing any breach thereof, or who they may reasonably apprehend are about to do so, from the church itself, even though the service may not have actually commenced.

(3) Where A. was removed by the vicar from the office of parish clerk, & that fact was intimated to the churchwardens:—Held: they were justified in turning him, A., out of the church, as well as from the clerk's pew, just before the commencement of divine service, on his persisting in taking possession of the pew from the person appointed to succeed him in his office by the vicar, & that it mattered not to them whether he had been legally removed or not by the vicar from the office in question.

(4) If a parish clerk has been removed from that office by the vicar without the due forms, his remedy is by quo warranto, or by action for money had & received against his successor.—*BURTON v. 979. Tenure—Whether freehold.]—There is no presumption of law that the office of sexton in an ancient parish is a freehold for life. The ct. will therefore not issue a mandamus to restore a person to the office of sexton unless evidence is given that he held the office as a freehold for life.—R. v. DYMOCK (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS), [1915] 1 K. B. 147; sub nom. R. v. DYMOCK (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS), Ex p. BROOKE, 84 L. J. K. B. 294; 79 J. P. 91; 31 T. L. R. 11; 13 L. G. (b) Appointment.

980. Who may appoint—How tested.]—(1) If it be made to appear, that a considerable number of the parishioners are desirous of having a vestry called, & they are not enabled to call a vestry, from the refusal of the minister & churchwardens to aid them in doing so, the ct. will grant a mandamus to the ministers & churchwardens to convene a vestry.

(2) Where the application was to convene a vestry to elect a sexton, the office being full by the appointment of the rector, the ct. required, that there should be very strong evidence of the existence of a custom for the parishioners to elect to that office, before they would grant a mandamus to try the right; there being another remedy, by action for money had & received, brought by a party wishing to dispute the title of the sexton against him, the fees having been paid under a protest or by refusal to pay the fees, when the sexton would have his action against the party so refusing.—R. v. STOKES DAMEREL (MINISTER & CHURCHWARDENS) (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 584; 2 Har. & W. 346; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 56; 6 L. J. M. C. 14; 111 E. R. 1286.

981. ———— Whether incumbent, churchwardens or parishioners at large.]—The appointment to the office of sexton, prima facie is not vested in the inhabitants of the parish at large. Where the duties of that office consist in the care of the sacred vestments & vessels, in the care of the church, by keeping it clean, in ringing the bells, & in opening & closing the doors for divine service, the presumption is, that the churchwardens have the right of appointment; & where the duties are confined to the churchyard in digging graves, etc., the presumption is that the appointment is in the incumbent; & where the office embraces both the above-mentioned duties, the presumption

(2) The hearing which the ct. requires in such cases must be one in the nature of a judicial inquiry; the party proceeded against must have notice of it; & to justify his removal for want of appearance, the notice must distinctly acquaint him that the inquiry takes place with a view to his removal.—*Ex p. 1000. — Loss of right to relief—Delay in application.]—A party desiring the assistance of this ct. by way of mandamus must apply promptly.

On July 9, 1855, appet. was removed by the rector from his office of parish sexton. On June 10, 1856, he applied to this ct. for a rule, calling upon the rector to show cause why a mandamus should not issue, commanding him to restore him to his office. No special circumstances were stated why the application was not sooner made:—Held: the application was not made within a reasonable time, & was, therefore, too late.—R. v. TOWNSEND, *Ex p. C. Organists.

1001. Appointment—Whether vicar, churchwardens & parishioners bound to appoint.]—A mandamus will not lie to the vicar, churchwardens, & inhabitants of a parish, to elect an organist to the parish church, though there has always been such an officer beyond the time of living memory,

Sect. 7.—Constitution of the Church into parishes:
Sub-sect. 8, C.; sub-sect. 9, A. & B. (a).]

& a yearly salary has been invariably paid him out of the church rates, as it is optional with the parishioners whether the organ shall be played.

Upon a vacancy in the office of organist to a parish church, the vestry unanimously resolved that the course adopted on the previous election should be pursued; & thereupon, appointed a committee to reduce the number of candidates to six, each of whom should take the service on a Sunday; & this resolution was, at a subsequent vestry, unanimously confirmed. The committee having selected six out of the sixty candidates who presented themselves, at the time of the election a motion was made & seconded, that A., a candidate, who had not been thus selected, should be eligible, but this was negatived on a division. Afterwards, a poll having been demanded, a greater number of votes were tendered, & received as tendered only, on behalf of A. than on behalf of any other candidate:—Held: this was a reasonable mode of conducting the election, it never having been objected to at the previous meetings, & the votes given for A. were thrown away, & a mandamus would not lie to compel her admission to the office.—R. v. ST. STEPHEN'S, COLEMAN STREET (VICAR, CHURCHWARDENS & INHABITANTS) (1844), 14 L. J. Q. B. 34; 4 L. T. O. S. 161; 9 J. P. 344; 9 Jur. 255; sub nom. Ex p. LE CREN, 2 Dow. & L. 571.

1005. Control of—Organist appointed & paid by vestry.—The organist of a parish church, although appointed & paid by the vestry, is guilty of an ecclesiastical offence if he plays on the organ immediately before or during, or immediately after divine service, contrary to the directions of the incumbent.

In a criminal suit promoted by the vicar of a parish against the organist of his parish church for playing on the organ of the church contrary to the directions of the vicar, deft. filed a responsive plea, in which it was alleged that by the ecclesiastical law the incumbent of a parish had not an unlimited right to control the use of the organ, or to put a stop to the ordinary musical services of the church, in an arbitrary manner, without reasonable or proper cause, or the sanction of the ordinary, & that the promoter, in prohibiting deft. from playing on the organ, had acted without such sanction, & without reasonable or proper cause. The responsive plea further alleged in effect that deft. had been appointed organist, & was paid a salary by the vestry, & that the majority of the parishioners were anxious that the customary performance on the organ should continue. On application on behalf of the promoter:—Held: the responsive plea would be rejected as inadmissible.—WYNDHAM v. COLE (1875), 1 P. D. 130.

(1) Though the church & churchyard be in law the soil & freehold of the parson, yet the use of the body of the church, & the repair & maintenance of it is common to all the parishioners, & for avoiding of confusion, the distribution & disposing of seats & charges of repair belong to the Ordinary, & therefore, no man can challenge a peculiar seat without a special reason. 1016. ———. ———.]—(1) The majority of the parishioners in vestry assembled having refused to make a rate for necessary repairs of the parish church, the churchwardens cannot, of their own authority, at a subsequent time, & not at any parish meeting, make a valid rate.

(2) If a rate be so made, & proceedings be taken by the churchwardens in the ecclesiastical ct. to enforce its payment, a ct. of common law will grant a prohibition.

(3) The obligation by which the parishioners, that is, the actual residents within, or the occupiers of lands or tenements in every parish, are bound to repair the body of the parish church whenever necessary, & to provide all things essential to the performance of divine service therein, is an obligation imposed on them by the common law of the land. That such obligation is not grounded on the force of the general ecclesiastical law, is manifest from this, that, according to the authority of all writers on the general canon law, the repairs of the whole of the parish church, both the body & the chancel, fall upon the rectors or owners of the tithes, except that, by custom in some countries, part falls upon the parishioners (TINDAL, C.J.).

(4) Where the spiritual ct., having taken upon itself to declare the common law, declares it in a manner different from that in which the common law cts. would do, as in the present instance, where the very groundwork & foundation of the proceeding in the spiritual ct. is the holding of a supposed church rate to be a valid rate, which, in a ct. of common law, is held to be no rate at all; in these cases, in order to prevent the conflict which would arise from a decision one way in the spiritual ct., & the opposite way in the cts. of common law, the prohibition is allowed to go (TINDAL, C.J.).—*VELEY v. (a) In relation to Church.

1040. Rights of ownership—Church furniture—Pews.—(1) Pews in a church belong to the parish for the use of the inhabitants & cannot be sold nor let excepting under the provisions of an Act of Parliament.

(2) Churchwardens must exercise a just discretion in the allotment of them subject to the correction of the Ordinary.

(3) A pew can only be appropriated to a house by faculty or prescription. Where the occupier of a pew merely allotted to him by the churchwardens ceases to reside in the parish he cannot let the pew with & thus annex it to his house, but it reverts to the disposal of the churchwardens.—*WYLLIE v. 1045. As to services—Performance of divine service in parish church.—(1) Lapse of time is not an absolute bar to a criminal suit where the evil complained of is a customary one, e.g. that a church was unroofed & dismantled, whereby the parishioners were & still are prevented from resorting to their parish church; but the ct. expected the delay to be accounted for, & unless a reasonable explanation can be given, might not, although the suit proceeded to a sentence against deft., accompany that sentence with costs.

(2) Where the contents or substance of a document, e.g. of an order in council, are pleaded, the document itself must be annexed to the articles.

(3) Parishioners have a right to demand that divine offices should be celebrated in their own parish church, unless such right has been limited by lawful authority.

(4) Notwithstanding the delay in instituting proceedings the ct. was bound to order A. to restore the ancient parish church of B. to the state it was in when he had it dismantled, & to condemn him in the costs of the suit.—ST. DAVID (BP.) v. DE RUTZEN (BARON) (1861), 4 L. T. 90; 25 J. P. 803; 7 Jur. N. S. 884.

1046. — Administration of Holy Communion.—HENLEY v. BURSTOW (1666), 1 Keb. 947; 83 E. R. 1335.

1047. — — — — ——The prima facie right of a parishioner to partake of the Holy Communion being distinctly declared by 1 Edw. 6, c. 1, s. 9, the only cause which is sufficient under the rubric to justify a minister in repelling him of his own authority, is that he is "an open & notorious evil liver"; & under Canon 27, that he is "a common & notorious depraver of the Book of Common Prayer."

Appl., a man of irreproachable moral character, published a book entitled "Selections from the Old & New Testaments," for use at family worship, & also a book of family prayers compiled from the Prayer Book. Afterwards, at the request of resp., the vicar of the parish, he wrote a private letter to him in which he stated that he omitted certain parts of the Bible from his family reading because he did not concur in the construction which in his opinion was usually put upon them :—Held : (1) resp. was not justified in repelling him from the Communion either under the rubric or the canon, omission not being rejection, nor rejection necessarily depravation; (2) the conduct of resp., being unjustifiable when it took place, could not be affected by anything which occurred afterwards between him & his bishop, there being nothing in the rubric or canon to shift the responsibility to the latter; (3) proceedings were properly taken against resp., under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), without a previous appeal to the bishop.—JENKINS v. COOK (1876), 1 P. D. 80; 45 L. J. P. C. 1; 34 L. T. 1; 40 J. P. 260; 21 W. R. 439, P. C.

1051. Seat in church.—Faculty for erecting a gallery, for the accommodation of the increased population of the parish, granted. Objections, on the part of certain parishioners, overruled.

It is distinctly proved that new houses have been built, & that several families are prevented from going to the parish church by want of seats, while others are obliged to go to neighbouring churches; that repeated applications have been made to the churchwardens for pews, that the church is not capable of holding more than 200 persons, & that there are 70 or 80 families, which, on the lowest calculation, will be too many for the present capacity of the building. These then are inconveniences against which the parish is bound, & may be compelled by ecclesiastical censures, to provide, for every man, who settles as a householder, has a right to call on the parish for a convenient seat. The inference, indeed, is almost admitted by the objectors, & on their own showing, that the church is insufficient—for, how do they attempt to prove the contrary? First, that several persons omit coming to church. It is impossible to sanction an objection to a reasonable increase of the accommodation of the church, on the supposition that any of the parishioners neglect their duty. The et, must rather adopt the supposition that they are desirous of doing their duty, & of availing themselves of their right to be accommodated. . . . I am bound to conclude, that the erecting a gallery is conformable to the wishes of the parishioners, & that their opinions have been fairly obtained; & thinking some addition is necessary, & no other method being proposed, of which I can judiciously take notice, I am of opinion that this faculty ought to be granted (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—GROVES & WRIGHT v. HORNSEY (RECTOR, ETC.) (1793), 1 Hag. Con. 188; 161 E. R. 521.

Claverley (Vicar, etc.), Gatacre & Legh v. Claverley (Vicar, etc.), [1909] P. 195.

1052. —“Without payment.”—(1) The party has shown that there are pews occupied by persons not living in the parish, & that a particular individual has obtained a large portion of the church, & let his own pew to a non-resident person. There is one pew appurtenant to the house of A., who does not live in the parish, & who covenants with his tenant, that he shall not occupy it, in order that he may let it out to others. This is clearly illegal. If a pew is rightly appurtenant, the occupancy of it must pass with the house; & the individuals cannot, by contract between themselves defeat the general right of the parish. It appears that the house has been built only eighty years, which is not sufficient to establish a prescriptive right, because it might be presumed that evidence of the grant of a faculty was not extinct in that time; but even if there was a prescriptive right, it could not be exercised by transferring it to persons, not inhabitants of the house, or of the parish. Such possession cannot be maintained (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(2) It seems that B. has kept a school some years, & applied to the churchwarden for an allotment of room in the gallery, which was given, she retaining her pew; & that she has since let out her pew to some ladies of another parish. The churchwardens of that time did wrong; for they ought, if the pew was really appurtenant, which does not appear, either to have granted additional space with the old pew, or to have insisted that it should be given up to some parishioner; but that she should take sufficient room for her accommodation elsewhere, & be allowed to let out her pew to persons not resident in the parish, is an abuse which cannot be maintained; for it is a wild conceit that there can be such use made of pews, as of villas or other common property (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(3) It has been held, that a faculty to a man & his heirs would be bad, because his heirs may reside out of the parish, & it would be an unjust usurpation in the parishioner, to detain such a privilege for the use of others (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(4) A. says, that his house has been built upwards of eighty years, & that the pew has been exclusively held by him, & that he has covenanted with his tenant that he shall not sit in it—which is an unjust attempt, & an illegal exercise of his exclusive right, if he ever possessed such (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(5) Six years possession is not sufficient against a mere disturber, much less against the Ordinary (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(6) A person, claiming a pew, must show either a faculty, or prescription, which will suppose a faculty. But mere presumption is not sufficient, without some evidence, on which a faculty may reasonably be presumed. The strongest evidence of that kind, is the building & repairing time out of mind; for mere repairing for 30 or 40 years will not exclude the Ordinary. In this case the person was offered a particular space; & if he had built on it, it would not be sufficient to supersede the authority of the Ordinary. The possession must be ancient, & going beyond memory; & though, on this subject, I do not mean the high legal memory, it must be larger than appears in the circumstances of this case (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(7) It is alleged that the house has been built eighty years, but it is not said that the seat was built & maintained by the owner of the house. The time of sixty years has been held not sufficient against a wrongdoer. The law does not favour claims against the Ordinary & no ground is stated, here, on which such a right can be established against him. By A.'s own affidavit, it appears that, whatever his claim might be, it ceased when he went out of the parish, & has since been used improperly. I have no hesitation in saying that this is to be considered as a vacant pew, which the Ordinary has a right to confer, for present possession, on any inhabitant (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).

(8) It is my duty, therefore, to decree a monition to issue to the churchwardens to seat C. in this pew. At the same time, as the parties have been acting under a mistake, which has been general in the parish, this must not be done with precipitation, but with all reasonable attention to the convenience of the parties. It is clearly the law that a parishioner has a right to a seat in the church without payment (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—WALTER v. GUNNER & DRURY (1798), 1 Hag. Con. 314; 161 E. R. 565.

The consistory cts., visitation cts., & cts. for the consecration of churches & churchyards have been held continuously since the Reformation, not by virtue of any particular statute or canon, but as being part of the ecclesiastical system established in this country prior to the Reformation, & which was continued by the Reformed Church as part of its ecclesiastical system & so recognised in the civil cts. & incidentally by the statutes & canons of 1603. But, if the validity or liability be in question, the Ecclesiastical Cts. have jurisdiction, though the party has not been summoned before a justice. (2) Seemle: the Consistory Ct. of the Bishop, the Ct. of Arches, & the Ct. of Delegates, are superior cts.

(3) There is no doubt that, in the case of prohibitions to be granted for the sake of trial, as distinguished from those which are to be granted upon account of a wrong trial or erroneous judgment, the rule is established, that a party neglecting to contest the jurisdiction in the first instance, & taking his chance of a favourable decree, shall not be allowed after sentence to allege the want of jurisdiction as a ground of prohibition, unless the defect appears on the face of the pleadings (LORD DENMAN, C.J.).—RICKETTS v. 1076. — Disposal of records.]—On the petition of the Ambassador of the United States of America, the Chancellor of the Diocese of London directed that the manuscript known as "The Log of the Mayflower," & containing the history of the voyage of that vessel to America in 1620 & of the then new-founded Plymouth plantation, together with entries of the births, marriages, & deaths of many of the first settlers in New England & their immediate descendants, should, as a record of the greatest national interest & importance to the President & citizens of the United States be delivered out of the custody of the officials of the Sec of London to the Ambassador for the purpose of being transmitted to America, & there deposited under the official custody of the Governor of Massachusetts for the time being, on the conditions that a photographic facsimile reproduction of the manuscript, verified by affidavit, should be deposited in the registry of the Consistory Ct. of London, & that all proper facilities should be afforded by the future custodians of the original to persons desiring to make searches therein or of obtaining extracts therefrom, & that a certificate of the due delivery thereof, signed by the Governor of Massachusetts, of having received it, & testifying his acceptance of its custody on the conditions imposed, be transmitted to the registrar. The Ambassador of the United States having ceased to hold office since the decree was made, the ct. did not think fit to vary the decree; for in taking charge of the manuscript he was to act not as ambassador, but as the personal delegate of the ct.

At the time when the manuscript was transmitted to Fulham Palace, the Bishop of London's registry in Doctors' Commons was a legitimate place for depositing registers or certificates of marriages, baptisms, & death of persons resident in the Colonies as well as of persons resident in the London diocese in England (Dr. TRISTRAM).—

1091. — Effect of letters of request.—(1) One of two churchwardens has no right, without the other's consent, to use the latter's name as co-pltf. in a suit against a parishioner, for subtraction of church rate, & there is no implied authority in such circumstances, the proper remedy, if any, being the removal of the obstinate churchwarden for misconduct.

1092. — Form of letters of request—Motion to accept.—(1) Money was advanced under Public Works Loans Act, 1824 (c. 36), by the Comrs. of Public Works for the repair of a church, to be repaid by instalments. Part was spent in repairing the chancel. A rate was made for the payment of the first instalment, which deft. refused to pay:—Held: the money was properly spent, the word "church" including "chancel"; & the rate was not vitiated.

Semble: (2) even if the money had been improperly spent, the rate would have been good, inasmuch as the Comrs. having advanced money on proper security, could not be deprived of that security by the after acts of the parish.

(3) Letters of request in a cause of subtraction of church-rates must state the date on which the rate was made, & the circumstances taking the rate out of Compulsory Church-rate Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109). The acceptance of letters of request must in every case for the future be moved by counsel.—RIPPIN v. BASTIN (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 386; 38 L. J. Eccl. 22, 33; 20 L. T. 622; 33 J. P. 675.

1093. — Pleading.—On Mar. 29, 1869, a rate was made by the churchwardens & overseers of the parish of E., in the diocese of L., for the repayment of money borrowed from the Public Works Loan Comrs., under the provisions of Public Works Loans Act, 1824 (c. 36). Deft. occupied a messuage & premises in the parish, in respect of which he was assessed, for the purposes of the rate, at the sum of 10s. 9d.; he refused to pay this sum, & disputed the validity of the rate. Letters of request were granted by the chancellor of the Bishop of L., directed to the judge of the Ct. of Arches, requesting the judge to call deft. before him to answer in respect of the assessment. A decree by letters of request was issued on Apr. 29, 1870, & the suit proceeded in the Arches Ct. Deft. pleaded that the tithe rent-charge, the property of & received by the rector of the parish in commutation of certain tithes within the parish, was not assessed to the rate, & that a glebe house & lands within the parish, of which the rector was the owner & occupier, had been omitted from the assessment. Pltfs. filed a responsive allegation, in which it was alleged that, in Jan. 1871, a meeting was duly held to amend the rate & the assessment on which the rate was made; & at the meeting, the churchwardens of the parish, with the concurrence of the overseers, amended the assessment by adding to & including in such assessment the rectorial tithes, & glebe house & lands, & amended the rate by reducing the assessment on all the ratable property, & assessed the rector as owner of the tithes, & as owner & occupier of the glebe house & lands, & that the sum, in respect of which deft. was assessed in the amended rate & assessment, amounted to 9s. 5d. instead of 10s. 9d., & that pltfs. only claimed to recover the sum of 9s. 5d. Deft. opposed the admission of the responsive allegation:—Held: the responsive allegation was inadmissible, because the ct. had no jurisdiction to inquire concerning any other assessment than that mentioned in the letters of request.—ASTERLEY v. ADAMS (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 361.

The comrs. reported that there were sufficient prima facie grounds for instituting proceedings against him as to certain charges alleged, but not as to others:—Held: it was not necessary for the letters of request issued by the bishop in consequence of the return to the commission to refer to the charges not found by the comrs., as the office of letters of request is to present to the Ct. of Arches the subject of future proceedings, viz. that which is to form the matter of charge to be inquired into.

(2) Facts, occurring out of the diocese, & not charged against a clergyman by the report of the comrs., may be alleged in the arts. & proved in evidence at the hearing, for the purpose of explaining facts occurring within the diocese & charged against him by the comrs.

(3) The insertion of an objectionable item of charge in one of the arts. will not invalidate others that are well laid, if the judge has confined himself to the charges that are well laid.

(4) The dean of the Ct. of Arches has power by the practice of the ct. to pronounce sentence of deprivation, independently of the bishop or archbishop.

1110. Over layman—For falsely swearing affidavit—For issue of marriage licence.]—The Arches Ct. of Canterbury has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit by letters of request against a layman for falsely swearing before a surrogate to an affidavit to lead to the issue of a marriage licence.

A recurrence to the punishment of the laity for the good of their souls by ecclesiastical cts., would not be in harmony with modern ideas, or the position which ecclesiastical authority now occupies in the country. Nor do I think that the enforcement of such powers where they still exist, if they do exist, is likely to benefit the community. These considerations form no reason for rejecting the jurisdiction if it exists in law, but they ought to make the ct. careful in asserting such a jurisdiction if its existence is not plainly established (LORD PENZANCE).—PHILLIMORE v. C. Appellate Jurisdiction.

1112. When appeal lies—Informality in original proceedings—Existence of ground for appeal from decision.]—It is the duty of the Ct. of Arches to correct the errors of cts. below. An appeal is not to be rejected on account of an informality in the proceedings of an inferior ct., where there is apparent ground for appeal from the decision.

VERDON (1754), 1 Lee, 625; 161 E. R. 229.

1115. — 1903 Rules.]—(1) A faculty was granted to remove out of a parish church as illegal church ornaments certain pictures known as Stations of the Cross, placed in the church without a faculty having been obtained for their introduction, & set up, not for purposes of decoration only, but intended to take a place & play a part in devotions to be paid to the Deity before them, & having been in fact used as intended.

(2) A confirmatory faculty was also granted for the retention in the same church of a small figure standing on a bracket under a canopy representing our Saviour as the Good Shepherd, the whole figure made of oak & uncoloured, & affixed about ten feet from the ground to the east wall of the church on the south side of the chancel arch, it being held to be a mere architectural decoration not liable to give occasion to superstitious reverence in any form.

(3) An application for a confirmatory faculty to authorise the retention in a parish church of church ornaments not illegal of themselves, but placed in the church without the authority of a faculty, cannot be regarded in any more favourable light than an application for a faculty for the first introduction into the church of the same church ornaments, & in all such cases the ordinary will refuse to grant the confirmatory faculty prayed for unless there is before him sufficient evidence of a general desire of the churchgoing parishioners for the retention in the church of the church ornaments in question.

Where, therefore, two isolated crucifixes had been placed over the pulpits in a parish church by the incumbent without the sanction of a faculty, the ordinary, without deciding either whether the crucifixes were illegal per se or whether on the evidence they were or were not liable to be abused by superstitious reverence, being of opinion that it had been sufficiently proved that no general desire on the part of the churchgoing parishioners existed for the retention in the church of such unusual adjuncts of the pulpits of the churches of the Church of England, refused to grant a confirmatory faculty authorising their remaining in the church, & decreed a faculty to issue for their removal.

(4) A bishop does not by consecrating or dedicating a church give any episcopal sanction, direct or indirect, for the retention in the church of church ornaments or decorations which may have been in the church at the time of its consecration or dedication.

SUB-SECT. 2.—PROVINCIAL COURT OF YORK.

NOTE.—Cases in respect of the Audience Court of York have been omitted as obsolete.

1118. Chancery Court of York—Power to sit outside province.]—A representation having been made against a clerk, rector of a parish within the County Palatine of Lancaster, in the province of York, under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), for offences against sect. 8 of that Act committed in the parish church, the bishop of the diocese sent the matter to the Archbishop of York, who sent a requisition to Lord Penzance—the judge appointed under the Act, who had since the passing of the Act become official principal of the Chancery Ct. of York—requiring him to hear & determine the matter of the representation at any place in London or Westminster, or within the province of York or diocese of Manchester, as he might deem fit. The judge heard it at Westminster, & there pronounced judgment, & issued a monition ordering the clerk to abstain from the practices complained of. The clerk having disobeyed the monition the judge, sitting at Westminster, issued an inhibition inhibiting the clerk for three months & thereafter until relaxation from performing any service of the church within the diocese, & on his persisting in his disobedience, pronounced him contumacious & issued a significavit under Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127), s. 1. The tenor of the significavit was sent by millimus from the Petty Bag Office to the Chancellor of the County Palatine of Lancaster. In accordance with an order made by the Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine sitting at Lincoln's Inn, a writ de contumace capiendo was issued, under which the clerk was arrested by the sheriff of Lancashire & lodged in Lancaster Gaol. On a motion for a habeas corpus:—Held: (1) the matter so heard before the judge, as official principal of the Chancery Ct. of York, was a cause cognisable in an ecclesiastical ct. within the meaning of Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127), s. 1, & the judge had power to pronounce the contumacy & issue the significavit under that Act; (2) the County Palatine being one of the exempt jurisdictions mentioned in 5 Eliz. c. 23, s. 11, the procedure required by that sect. as to the millimus & the issue of the writ de contumace capiendo was applicable & was duly followed; (3) the millimus was not one of the writs referred to in R. S. C., Ord. 2, r. 8, & was properly tested as in the name of the Queen by the Master of the Rolls; (4) under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), s. 9, the judge had power not merely to "hear," but

SECT. 4.—JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF PRIVY COUNCIL.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

1123. Judicial Committee is ecclesiastical court of appeal.]—(1) The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is an ecclesiastical ct. of appeal, & the Ct. of Q. B. will not interfere by a prohibition to stop proceedings in it of which it has legal cognisance, on the supposition that it may come to an erroneous conclusion in point of law or of fact.

(2) A party who appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council against a decree of an inferior ecclesiastical ct., is not thereby prevented from applying to the ct., to prohibit the Judicial Committee from further proceeding in the suit.

(3) In a case where the question in dispute in the ecclesiastical ct. was the enforcement of the payment of a church rate; & the rate appeared to be, according to the rules of the common law, bad upon the face of it:—Held: that circumstance would not justify the ct. in presuming that the Judicial Committee would wrongly decide the common law question, when sitting upon an appeal as the Supreme Ecclesiastical Ct. of the country: & a rule for a prohibition, obtained on that ground, was therefore discharged. (4) But, Semble: the prohibition would have been granted if it had appeared that the Judicial Committee was proceeding beyond its jurisdiction.—CHESTERTON v. FARLAR (1838), 7 Ad. & El. 713; 7 L. 1124. Surrogates of Judicial Committee—Powers.—To order security for costs.]—On a motion for security for costs:—Held: the Ct. of Surrogates of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is not competent to direct security to be given for costs.

I cannot take upon myself to grant the motion; I must refer it to the Judicial Committee; it is more than a surrogate can take upon himself to do. I sit here to expedite proceedings, & I could not delay them on account of a collateral matter (DR. BURNABY).—FIFE v. BLUNT (1842), 1 Notes of Cases, 364; subsequent proceedings (1843), 2 L. T. O. S. 185, P. C.

1125. ———— To amend monition.]—A monition to carry into execution a judgment of the Judicial Committee approved by H.M. in Council was issued against P. & E., the church or chapel-wardens of St. B., to remove certain ornaments & do other acts in the chapel of St. B., as therein directed. At the time the monition was served on P. & E. they had ceased to be chapel-wardens. Upon motion by the original promont, B., a new monition was directed to be issued addressed to & monishing the church or chapel-wardens, for the time being, of St. B. by their official designation only, to do the acts directed by the former monition. Semble: such an application ought not to be made to one of the surrogates of the Privy Council.

B., a parishioner, instituted proceedings against the incumbent & church or chapel-wardens of St. B. for removal of a structure of stone used as a Communion Table, & other of the church ornaments; upon which a monition issued monishing the church or chapel-wardens to remove such structure of stone, together with the cross on or near the same, & to provide instead thereof a flat, movable table of wood; & further to remove any cover used at the administration of the Lord's Supper, worked or embroidered with lace, or otherwise ornamented, & to provide a fair white linen cloth, without lace or embroidery, or other ornament, to cover the Communion Table, at the time of the administration of the Lord's Supper, & further to cause the ten commandments to be set up on or against the east side of the church, in compliance with Canon 82. The stone table & the ornaments were removed. B., afterwards, brought in an Act on petition to enforce the monition, alleging that it was in a great part uncomplied with: first, that the metal cross had been placed on the sill of the great eastern window of the church above the Communion Table; second, that the table which had been substituted for the stone altar was not a flat table, but had an elevation, or super altar; third, that the ten commandments were not set up on or against the east end of the church over the Communion Table, but were set up against the walls on each side of the chancel screen. In the answer it was alleged that the monition had been obeyed; that the cross was disconnected with the Communion Table; that the table was flat, the elevation being a movable ledge of wood at the back of the table, on which the candlesticks were placed, & lastly, on account of the structure of the church the congregation would not be able to read the commandments if they were placed over the Communion Table:—Held: (1) the monition had been substantially complied with, as the metal cross was a legal ornament & was not attached to the Communion Table, & the wooden ledge on the Communion Table was not a superstitious ornament, or contrary to law, & the placing of the ten commandments against the walls on each side of the chancel screen was from the structure of the church a substantial compliance with the monition, & was not an evasion thereof; (2) B., when the monition was served, was a parishioner, but at the time he moved for the enforcement of the new monition had ceased to be so. In the circumstances, & by consent, B. was permitted to be heard upon the petition.—LIDDLELL v. BEAL (1860), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 1; 3 L. T. 218; 24 J. P. 788; 8 W. R. 569; 15 E. R. 206, P. C.

relating to wills, to matrimony & divorce, & to tithes, oblations, & obventions, were to be determined in the King's cts.; & where, in such cases, the appeal used to be made to the see of Rome, it was thenceforward to be carried from the archdeacon's ct., if commenced therein, to the bishop's ct., & from the bishop's ct. to that of the archbishop, whose decision was to be final. By sect. 9, in case any such cause should touch the King, the appeal from any of the said cts. was to be made to the upper house of convocation for the province. By 25 Hen. 8, c. 19, ss. 3, 4, no appeal was to be made to Rome in any cause arising within this realm; but all appeals were to be made in the manner limited by 24 Hen. 8, c. 12, for causes of matrimony, tithes, oblations, etc. An ulterior appeal was given, for lack of justice in the Archbishop's cts., to the King in Chancery; & on such appeal, a commission under the great seal was to issue to such persons as the King should name, to hear such appeal. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council was substituted for such commission, by Privy Council Appeals Act, 1832 (c. 92), s. 3, & Judicial Committee Act, 1833 (c. 41), s. 3:—Held: if the Crown presented a clerk to a vicarage in its gift, & the ordinary refused to admit him, on the ground that he maintained unsound doctrine, & on a duplex querela brought in the Archbishop's ct., the judge, for the same reason, pronounced sentence confirming such refusal to admit, the appeal lay to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, & not to the upper house of convocation.—*Re GORHAM v. IV., c. 41, from a decision of the Archbishop of Canterbury, confirming the revocation of the licence of a stipendiary curate, under the provisions of 1 & 2 Vict., c. 106.

In an ex parte application by P. for leave to appeal to the Queen in Council, from a sentence of the Archbishop of Canterbury confirming the revocation by the Bishop of London of P.'s licence as an assistant stipendiary curate in a church in the Diocese of London, an appeal was admitted; but the question as to the competency of the appeal was reserved & upon protest by the Bishop, the right of appeal ultimately decided against.—*POOLE v. (2) We cannot in a criminal case draw a distinction between accusations not proved & accusations disproved, or suffer any prejudice to remain on our mind in examining the remaining charge from the recollection of those charges which we have on mature deliberation rejected; still less can we suffer any reference to those rejected charges to influence our belief of the rest (LORD BROUGHAM).—*CRAIG v. The promoter of the suit appealed from such sentence to the Queen in Council, but, after inhibition & citation had issued, died. On a motion for the substitution of another parishioner as promoter of the appeal, who was not authorised by the ordinary, or connected with the original promoter, & had no personal or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the suit:—Held: though the suit, as a criminal suit, had determined by the death of the original promoter, yet, having regard to the ancient practice of the Ct. of Delegates in such cases, & the peculiar circumstances of the suit, it was the duty of the Ct. of Appeal not to permit its abatement, but to allow a proper person to be substituted in the place of deceased applt. & to revive the appeal.

1147. — — — On courts of common law.]— The patron of a benefice presented a clerk to the bishop for institution. The bishop having been informed that the clerk in his former church habitually practised the reservation of the sacrament, the ceremonial use of incense, the use of candles on & above the communion table not required for light, & the wearing of certain eucharistic vestments, inquired of him whether that was the fact, & on his admitting that it was required him to undertake to discontinue those practices. The clerk, who denied the illegality of the practices, declined to give that undertaking, but expressed his willingness to subscribe the declaration of assent set out in Clerical Subscription Act, 1865 (c. 122). The bishop refused to institute him. In an action of quare impedit:—Held: (1) the bishop was entitled to interrogate the clerk as to his practices & to require him to discontinue them if they were illegal; (2) the court had jurisdiction to determine the legality of those practices, & it was not necessary to send the matter to the Archbishop for trial & certificate; (3) the first three of these practices were illegal; (4) the clerk having refused to discontinue them was not a fit person & the bishop was consequently justified in his refusal to institute him.

(5) It is established law that a presentation need not be by deed; a letter fulfilling the requisites will suffice (LORD COLERIDGE, J.).

(6) Apart from the question whether in a suit of quare impedit this ct. of common law is irrevocably bound by those decisions of the Privy Council, which, although of course great weight should be attached to them, I am not prepared to concede, the fact that the Judicial Committee does not think itself bound by its own decisions is an argument to show that neither am I bound by them, although, as I have said, great weight must attach to its authority (LORD COLERIDGE, J.). —GORE-BOOTH v. SECT. 5.—COURT UNDER BENEFICES ACT, 1898.

1150. Functions of Judge & Archbishop.—(1) In an appeal under Benefices Act, 1898 (c. 48), against the inhibition by the bishop of the diocese of an incumbent of a parish in the diocese as to whom the majority of a commission under the Pluralities Acts & the above Act has reported that the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice had been inadequately performed owing to the negligence of the incumbent & against the appointment by the bishop of a curate to perform the duties of the benefice, applt. begins.

(2) The incumbent of a parish church was inhibited by the bishop of the diocese, in which the parish church was situate, from performing until further notice any of the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice after the majority of the comrs. appointed on a commission issued under the Pluralities Acts & Benefices Act, 1898 (c. 48), had reported that the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice had been inadequately performed, & that that was due to the negligence of the incumbent. The bishop further appointed a curate to perform the duties of the benefice. Against the inhibition & against the order of the bishop so appointing a curate applt. appealed to this ct. The appeal was heard before the Archbishop of Canterbury, within whose province was the diocese of the bishop by whom the inhibition had been issued, & LORD COLERIDGE, J., the judge appointed to be judge of the ct. constituted under the Benefices Act, 1898 (c. 48); & after witnesses had been examined orally on behalf of applt. & of resp., the bishop of the diocese, the judge, after observing that he was the sole judge of law & fact, & in discharging the function laid upon him had to find whether & in what respect applt. had been negligent by causing the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice to be inadequately performed, whilst the Archbishop had to determine whether or not, having regard to the findings of the judge, applt. should be inhibited & whether a curate should or should not have been appointed, decided that applt. had been negligent in the performance of the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice, comprising in those words the observance of the promises as to conduct which applt. had solemnly made at his ordination in the following matters: i.e. that he had grossly abused the legitimate use of the pulpit by, in his sermons, denouncing persons by name & holding them up to the ridicule, contempt & opprobrium of the congregation; had habitually used foul language in the parish; had been proved in several instances to have so conducted himself with intemperate language & violent & threatening gestures as calculated to undermine the whole influence which any person in Holy Orders should wield; & had been convicted of an assault. Thereupon the Archbishop in his discretion pronounced that the appointment of the curate had been rightly made & that applt. should be inhibited from the performance until further notice of all the ecclesiastical duties of the benefice.

(3) It is not necessary to render a report of the majority of the comrs. on a commission under Pluralities Acts & Benefices Act, 1898 (c. 48), valid that the draft report should have been submitted to those comrs. in the minority who dissent from the conclusion come to by the majority of the comrs. Any objection founded on the draft report not having been sent to all the comrs. is a formal objection within Benefices Rules, 1899, r. 43, & is therefore bad.

SECT. 6.—JURISDICTION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

1154. How controlled by courts of law.]—ST. BALAUNCE'S PARISH CASE (1619), Palm. 50; 81 E. R. 973.

Annotation:—Reid. Ex p. Titchmarsh (1845), 9 Jur. 159.

1155. —.]—Qu.: whether Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127), s. 7, which gives power to justices to enforce the payment of a sum not exceeding £10 due upon a church rate, where neither the validity of the rate nor the liability of the party has been questioned, takes away the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical ct. in such cases.

But, assuming that it does, it seems that it is still competent to institute a suit in that ct. for payment of a sum under £10 due upon a church rate, because, until deft. has appeared in such a suit, there may be no means of knowing whether the validity or liability is in dispute or not. Therefore, where a significavit, as recited in the return to a writ of habeas corpus, stated that prisoner had been pronounced guilty of contumacy, for non-payment of a sum of £2 5s. to certain churchwardens, with their costs of suit, pursuant to a monition duly issued in a certain cause of subtraction of church rate, the proceedings wherein were carried on in pain of the contumacy of prisoner, who, though duly cited with the usual intimation, had not appeared, an objection, that the cause was not sufficiently described, for want of an averment that the validity of the rate or the liability of the party was in dispute, was overruled.

The object of the control which this ct. has over the ecclesiastical cts. by means of the writ of habeas corpus is to keep those cts. within the jurisdiction which the law has assigned to them, & not to correct any error into which they may fall in the exercise of it; & therefore, objections taken to a significavit upon the ground that it did not sufficiently show that deft. had been regularly cited, & upon the further ground, that the ecclesiastical ct. was not, according to its own practice, authorised to proceed to judgment, upon the merits, against a party who had never appeared, were overruled.—Re BAINES (1810), Cr. & Ph. 31; 10 L. 1156. Ouster—By statute—Giving remedy at common law—Alteration of offence & punishment.]

—(1) A statute simply giving remedy at common law for a thing before recoverable in the spiritual ct. only, does not take away the jurisdiction of the spiritual ct. A statute altering the nature of the offence & inflicting a new penalty does.

(2) A commitment under 27 Hen. 8, c. 20, for a contempt in a suit in the spiritual ct. of ecclesiastical dues, must specify the kind of dues for which the party was sued.—R. v. SANCHEZ (1698), 1 Ld. Raym. 323; 12 Mod. Rep. 105; Holt, K. B. 657; 91 E. R. 1111.

(2) A plurality of persons joined in one citation is irregular; but an objection thereto after issue joined is not fatal; if taken before, it would probably be sustained.

(3) Judges of Ecclesiastical Cts. have no original jurisdiction, all they have is derivative, the extent of their authority is specified in their patents, they are bound to act in accordance with the power therein given them; if they exceed that authority, there must be a mode of correcting the undue exercise, they must be responsible to a superior ct. 1159. How ascertained—Determination by common law court.] (1) The construction of Act of Supremacy, 1558 (c. 1), & of the letters patent of high commission in ecclesiastical causes, founded upon that Act, belongs to the judges of the common law.

(2) When there is any question concerning what power or jurisdiction belongs to ecclesiastical judges, in any particular case, the determination of such question belongs to the judges of the common law.

(3) If a counsellor at law, in his argument, scandals the King or his govt. temporal, or ecclesiastical, it is a misdemeanour & contempt; but he is not punishable in ct.-christian: but if he publish any heresy, schism or erroneous opinion in religion, he may be convicted for it before the ecclesiastical judges.—FULLER'S CASE (1607), 12 Co. 1167. ——— Discretion—Subject to appeal.]—(1) Ordinaries at the present day are bound not to issue faculties appropriating pews to individuals but under special circumstances.

(2) A possessory right to a pew is only co-extensive in duration with actual possession, which last, if abandoned, the right itself wholly ceases & determines.

(3) Reparation from time to time is necessary to be pleaded & proved, in order to make a prescriptive title to a pew.

(4) A pew can only be annexed by prescription to a house; it cannot be to lands. Where so annexed to a house, the occupier of the house, for the time being, is entitled to the use of the pew; not the owner of the estate.

(5) A faculty is good & valid, if once issued, even against the ordinary himself (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).

(6) Faculties, generally, are matters so much within the discretion of the local judge that I should scruple to reverse his sentence so far, for I should be unwilling to disturb the judgment of any local ordinary in a matter of this nature, unless it could be clearly shown, that it either involved the plain violation of some private right, or would give rise, actually or probably, to some considerable degree of general inconvenience (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).

(7) Costs, too, are pretty much within the discretion of the ct. that awards them; so that also I see no ground for reversing that part of sentence appealed from (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—WOOLLOCOMBE v. OULDRIDGE (1825), 3 Add. 1; 162 E. R. 381.

1171. Validity of order made by ecclesiastical commissioners—Power of question.]—Under Church Buildings Acts, 1819 (c. 134), s. 25, & 1822 (c. 72), s. 26, if a parish wishes for an extension to be made to its churchyard, it is directed to express its desire to the Ecclesiastical Comrs., who may, upon the same being notified to them, authorise the parish to purchase the land by means of rates to defray the expenses, etc.:—Held: a resolution passed at a vestry meeting convened for the purpose, but which resolution had been passed by a majority of the meeting, when a poll, which had been demanded by a dissentient minority, was refused, did not legally express the desire of the parish; & the order of the comrs. founded thereon, & all that had been done under that order, including a church rate which had been laid in pursuance of it, were illegal & void.

The learned judges seem to have thought that the Ecclesiastical Ct. could not look behind the order of the comrs., & were, therefore, bound to regard it as effectual. But the plain words of Church Building Act, 1822 (c. 72), s. 26, empowers the comrs. to act only in cases where the parish is desirous that they should act. The desire of the parish legally expressed, appears to us a condition precedent, without which any order or authority of the comrs. is devoid of any legal force (WILLES, J.).—WHITE v. Ct., the proceedings being carried on in pain of the contumacy of deft. duly cited to appear in the cause, etc., with the usual intimation, but not appearing this ct. will not discharge him on habeas corpus. For a practice of the ecclesiastical ct. to give judgment against a party on such non-appearance may be legal; & if no such practice exists the party should appeal. (3) The writ shows sufficiently that the ecclesiastical ct. had jurisdiction, if it state that deft. was contumacious in not paying the churchwardens of St. M. the sum of £2 5s. Upon motion for discharge on habeas corpus.—Held: the alleged variance could not be taken advantage of on a return setting out the writ, though the motion was supported by an affidavit verifying a copy of the writ; for that the proper course was to move that the writ itself might be set aside for irregularity. Qu.: whether a writ describing deft. as "W. 1215. ——— Obligation to renew.—The Bishop of W. being lord of the manor of A. in 1695 granted, under an Act for that purpose, a lease for three lives at a certain rent. Since then a renewal had taken place at three different times, the last in 1807. In 1830 one life only remained to continue this last lease. Application was then made to the present bishop to renew, & upon a question as to whether the Act was obligatory to renew upon every bishop in perpetuum :—Held : such a question was a purely legal one, & cognisable only in a ct. of law.—BATTERSHILL v. 1220. ———.]—The spiritual cts. have power to construe a statute, the effect of which comes incidentally before them in the course of a proceeding where they have jurisdiction. Therefore, where, on objection taken to a declaration in prohibition, on general demurrer, it appeared only that, in a proceeding to enforce a church rate, the spiritual ct. would have to determine the effect of an Act of Parliament, this ct. gave judgment for deff. in prohibition, on the ground that the spiritual ct. did not appear to have done anything as yet, & it was not to be presumed that they would construe the statute erroneously; & under such circumstances, this ct. would not give leave to amend for the purpose of raising the question here on the effect of the statute.—HALL v. 1228. ———.]—The ecclesiastical ct. has no jurisdiction to try a suit directly in respect of title to freehold.

If deffs. give notice of their intention to apply for a prohibition, & move for one within a reasonable time, the ct., in accordance with the practice of the Consistory Ct. of London, will suspend making any decree until the result of such application is communicated to it.

He [the Chancellor] may by a faculty grant leave to a parishioner to erect a pew on a certain space in the chancel . . . but faculty pews have for many years rarely been granted, & then only in return for a valuable consideration, such as in exchange for the chief pew in the chancel, when the site of it is required for the choir, or in exchange for a freehold chapel, aisle, or pew, the use of which the owner has consented to give to the parish, or to a parishioner who has enlarged the church at his own expense (DR. TRISTRAM).—WEST PECKHAM (VICAR & CHURCHWARDENS) v. GEARY, DALISON INTERVENING (1889), Trist. 189.

1229. Vicarage—Existence of.—The spiritual ct. cannot try the existence of a vicarage. A prohibition cannot be granted upon a suggestion which is false.—SMITH v. WALLIS (1700), 1 Id. Raym. 587; 91 E. R. 1293.

1230. Criminal offence.—Certainly this [Ecclesiastical] ct. cannot inquire into a felony directly, even where a clergyman is sued for the purpose of deprivation. . . .

But it is very frequent, & has so occurred in the course of practice, to admit a fact in itself criminal to be pleaded as a necessary fact of the evidence in a civil suit (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—

ii. Excess or Absence of Jurisdiction.

1273. General rule.]—A premunire lies against an ecclesiastical judge.

Where a cause originally belongs to the cognisance of the ecclesiastical ct., although all circumstances being disclosed the cognisance belongs to the King's temporal Court; yet, if the suit is prosecuted there in the same nature as the cognisance belongs to them, no premunire lies, but a prohibition. But if in such case plff. sue in the nature of a suit which doth not belong to the ecclesiastical ct., but to the common law, a premunire lieth.

When the case originally belongs to the cognisance of the common law, & not to the ecclesiastical court, a premunire lies, although it may be libelled for according to the course of the ecclesiastical law.—PREMUNIRE (1608), 12 Co. Rep. 37; 77 E. R. 1310.

If the ecclesiastical judges encroach upon the jurisdiction of the common pleas to hold plea of any thing against the common law of the land, or of any thing triable by the law, this principal ct. of common law shall grant a prohibition.

There are several writs of express prohibitions; & express prohibitions are in two manners, the one founded upon suggestion, the other upon record.—LANGDALE'S CASE (1608), 12 Co. Rep. 58; 77 E. R. 1338.

1283. —.]—Prohibition to the spiritual ct. lies only where that ct. is proceeding in a matter which is clearly out of its jurisdiction, or in a manner that is manifestly contrary to the general principles of justice. A. was cited to appear, & did appear, in the consistorial ct., in a suit promoted against him by his wife, for restitution of conjugal rights. In the course of that suit, two orders were made, decreeing restitution, & alimony pendente lite, for disobedience of which A. was about to be pronounced in contempt:—Held: inasmuch as A. had once appeared, this ct. could not pronounce the giving of judgment against him in his absence, & without previous notice thereof to him, a proceeding without jurisdiction, or contrary to justice.—*Ex p. in a parish church was prayed for, petitioner against, & answer & reply put in & admitted by the ct.; the suit was at issue, & the ct. had ordered it to be proceeded with. On declaration in prohibition & demurrer:—Held: prohibitor did not lie, several distinct things being comprised in the faculty, some of which might be granted consistently with the common law, though others might not; & no question having yet been raised in the ecclesiastical ct. as to its jurisdiction to grant any in particular, nor any intimation given by the ct. of its intention to grant or refuse any. Qu.: whether prohibition lies in any case against the granting of a faculty, before it be granted.—*HALLACK v. 1294. —.]—Applicant having no special interest.

—A prohibition will not be granted to restrain a petition in the ecclesiastical ct. where it is within the jurisdiction of such ct. to grant some of the privileges prayed for, especially where the applicant has no special interest in the proceedings.

The guardians of a parish having presented a petition to the ecclesiastical ct., praying for a faculty to enable them to desecrate ground duly consecrated for the burial of the dead by erecting on part of it the parish workhouse & upon the rest a chapel for the inmates of the workhouse, a person, not being a ratepayer or in any way interested in the burial ground, applied for a prohibition to restrain the ecclesiastical ct. from proceeding with the petition. It appeared that the burial ground had been disused for many years, & that the workhouse had recently at a great expense been erected on a part of it where no corpses had been buried:—Held: the prohibitor must be refused on two grounds: (1) although ground once duly consecrated for the burial of the dead can only be applied to secular purposes by Act of Parliament, yet so much of the petition as prayed leave to erect the chapel was within the jurisdiction of the ct., & it could not be presumed that the ct. would entertain the residue of it; (2) because the erection of the workhouse appeared to have been bonâ fide, & the appet. had no interest in the proceedings greater than what was common to the public at large.—R. v. TWISS (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 407; 10 B. & S. 298; 38 L. J. Q. B. 228; 20 L. T. 522; 33 J. P. 516; 17 W. R. 765.

What remedy a party wrongfully excommunicated has.

(1) Where deft., in a cause of defamation for calling plff. a whore, is cited before the Dean &

Arches out of the proper diocese against 23 Hen. 8, c. 9, & after sentence a writ of excommunicato capiendo is granted, no prohibition lies upon that statute.

(2) Where it appears to the ct., that the matter of the libel is not within the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical ct., a prohibition lies with clause to deliver the party.—PROHIBITION CASE (1611), 12 Co. Rep. 76; 77 E. R. 1354.

It was objected that the depositions were improperly taken with reference to sect. 9, of Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1829 (c. 53). To this objection the answer is, that even if it were so, that is a matter of irregularity in practice only, & is no ground for this ct. to interfere by writ of prohibition (DENMAN, C. J.).—JOLLY v. BAINES (1840), 12 Ad. & El. 201; 4 Per. & Dav. 224; 9 L. J. Q. B. 349; 5 Jur. 22; 113 E. R. 787.

SUB-SECT. 2.—PROMOTION OF SUIT.

(2) No one can doubt that, if sufficiently established, the charges [of drunkenness against a clergyman] constitute an ecclesiastical offence of a serious nature, for habitual drunkenness, or even frequent drunkenness, in a clergyman, who is pastor of a parish, & whose duty it is to set an example of sobriety & moral conduct to his parishioners, is a highly penal offence, involving very serious consequences on the person who is guilty of it. The offence is greatly increased when such habits are indulged in at the time the person is actually engaged in the performance of divine worship (SIR H. JENNET).—*BURDER v. Afterwards the Bishop of W., who was the promoter of the cause, resigned his see:—Held: the cause had not abated, & it might be continued at the suit of the same promoter in his individual capacity on the title of the cause being amended. 1361. Civil suit—Necessity for interest in suit—Lay rector—Impeachment of licence to preach.]

(1) It is generally true that a bishop licensing a person to preach within a parish must hear the incumbent first, & that the consent of the incumbent to the erection & use of a chapel is requisite.

(2) A lay rector has not cure of souls, in fact or in presumption of law.

(3) There were two sorts of appropriation: (a) where the interests in the benefice, spiritual & temporal, were annexed to a religious house, & (b) where temporal interests only were conveyed; but the cure of souls resided in an endowed perpetual vicar.

(4) Stipendiary curacies originated where the impropriator is bound to provide divine service, but may do it by a curate, not instituted but only licensed by the bishop.

(5) Licence to preach in a chapel is not allowed to be impeached by proceedings on the part of the impropriator in a civil suit, he not showing an interest that would entitle him to maintain such a suit.

Where there are other interests in which every man partakes, & which entitle anyone to institute proceedings, such proceedings must be ad publicam vindictam, & by criminal articles exhibited in due form. The question is reduced to one point only—the right of the party who is the object of such proceedings; whereas in civil suits a previous question may arise of equal difficulty on the right & title of the person instituting the suit (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—PORTLAND (DUKE) v. 1362. ——— Interest need not appear on monition—How objection to interest raised.]

A monition issued out of the ct. at the petition of A., which, after reciting that it had been alleged by the promoter that there were affixed to the walls of St. P.'s Church, F., certain representations of stations of the Cross & Passion of our Lord, such as are used in Roman Catholic chapels, but not in churches of the Church of England; that such stations had been introduced into the church since its consecration & without the authority of a faculty, & that their use & exhibition was contrary to the law of the Church, monished the incumbent of the parish & the churchwardens to remove such stations without delay, or to appear & show cause in the ct. why an order should not issue for their removal:—Held: it was not necessary to the validity of the monition that it should show on the face of it the interest, official or private, of A., in the matter complained of; & as the object of the monition was to enforce obedience to the law, & everyone has an interest in preserving public order & is entitled to institute proceedings for that purpose, the monition, therefore, on the face of it, assuming the doctrine of interest to be applicable to the case, showed that A. had an interest to sustain it.

To sustain a civil suit a pltf. should show an interest; but the correct mode of raising an objection to his interest is either by the party cited appearing under protest, or praying the ct. to order pltf. to propound his interest, or by raising it on the admission of the libel, or by or on the subsequent pleadings.—LEE v. RIDSDALE (1873), 42 L. J. Eccl. 1; 37 J. P. 804.

1365. Delay in prosecution—Effect.]—On appeal in a criminal suit, an extension of the term probatory being prayed by the promoter, a delay of nine months without making substantial progress in the cause, or examining a single witness, after the suit had been already depending in the Ct. of Appeal, two years, is a sufficient ground to dismiss deft., & condemn the promoter in payment of a sum nomine expensarum.—JENKINS v. 1378. ———. ———. Delay in objection.]—It is now alleged that the true name is Austin; but whoever alleges a misnomer is bound to assign the true name by which he means to abide.

When a person appears, it may morally justify the presumption that he is the party intended; the law, however, allows the benefit of the exception, as to the validity of the citation, but under the condition before mentioned. The material question is, how the mistake originated. Upon that question the ct. must presume that the proctor would not make that averment without authority; it must therefore be considered to be the act of the party. It may be true, that a proctor may introduce new matter on his protest, but not such as is inconsistent with a former allegation. I think, therefore, that the attempt, which has been made to delay these proceedings, on this last objection, is improper, & that the protest must be overruled (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—*PRITCHARD v. 1382. ———. ———. Necessity for—To give bishop jurisdiction to pass sentence of suspension.]—

By the letters patent erecting the See of Jamaica, the bishop is empowered to exercise spiritual & ecclesiastical jurisdiction, & among other things, to punish rectors, etc., according to the laws & canons of the Church of England. The rector of a parish within the diocese of Jamaica, having, in the opinion of the bishop, transgressed the provisions of the Clergy Act of Jamaica, in declining to enter a marriage on the registry of his parish, solemnised in a place which was supposed not to be within the parish, was cited by the bishop, & being required, made an entry of the marriage, whereupon the bishop, without having exhibited articles or a libel, passed sentence of suspension for such previous refusal, & directed the same to be published:—Held: such proceedings were wholly irregular & the sentence reversed with costs.

SUB-SECT. 5.—PLEADINGS.

A. In Criminal Suits.

(a) Articles.

1389. Necessity for bringing in—Where defendant confesses.]—A clergyman having read prayers & preached, etc., in an unconsecrated building without the consent of the incumbent of the parish, after receiving notice from the latter, & having challenged interference, the incumbent promoted a criminal suit against him in the Arches Ct. Deft. admitted he had offended:—Held: the articles must nevertheless be brought into ct. to know what sentence to pass; & as deft., by his conduct, had caused the suit to be commenced, he was liable in costs.—JONES v. JELF (1863), 8 L. T. 399; 27 J. P. 483.

Annotation:—Rejd. Kitson v. Drury (1865), 29 J. P. 643.

1390. Contents—General rules—Whole charge must be specifically set out.]—(1) The admissibility of these articles has been attacked, generally, if I understand, upon the broad principle of additional articles being, universally, inadmissible in criminal suits. I am aware, however, of no such rule as this. Additional articles may be offered, even in criminal suits. At the same time, they are not admissible as a matter of course, or indeed at all, without special ground for their admission, such, for instance, as this suit presents, in the circumstance of the articles having been admitted, in the first instance, most hastily & unadvisedly, in a ct. not, it may be conjectured, much in the habit of dealing with cases of this description. Even where admissible at all, additional articles must be such as to occasion, taken in conjunction with the original articles, no substantial breach of the rules of criminal pleading, in order to make good their claim to be actually admitted (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).

(2) It is matter of perfect notoriety, that in proceedings by articles, the articles must be brought in on the court-day immediately subsequent to that on which deft. has appeared; & that, being so brought in, they must contain the charge, & the whole charge (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).

(3) It is true that the articles, when brought in, may be reformed & amended under the direction of the ct., prior to their actual admission; but when they are once admitted, & issue is joined, either party, I apprehend, is bound by them. In particular promovent is not at liberty to drop in with charges, one after another, with perhaps the single exception, that offences ejusdem generis, subsequently committed, may be pleaded in subsequent articles. But further articles, as matter of course, containing new criminal charges, or even advancing collateral facts & circumstances in proof of such articles of the original set as are, in themselves & directly criminatory, ought not to be admitted (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—SCHULTES v. HODGSON (1822), 1 Add. 318; 162 E. R. 111.

Annotations:—Rejd. Swift v. Swift (1832), 4 Hag. Eccl. 139; Wynn v. Davies & Weaver (1835), 1 Curt. 69; King v. King (1850), 2 Rob. Eccl. 153.

1391. ———.]—BENNETT v. BONAKER, No. 1367, ante.

1392. ———.]—(1) Proceedings against a Clerk in Holy Orders under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), for publishing heretical doctrines in contravention & violation of the Articles of Religion & Formularies of the Church of England, are of a criminal nature, & it is necessary that the accusation should be stated with precision & distinctness in the pleadings.

(2) The Articles of charge must distinctly state the opinions which the clerk has advisedly maintained & must set forth the passages of the work in which those opinions are stated, & such Articles must specify the doctrines of the Church which the opinions of the clerk are alleged to contravene & the particular Articles of Religion & the Formularies which contain such doctrines.

(3) In the eleventh Article of Religion it is laid down that "We are accounted righteous before God only for the merits of our Lord & Saviour Jesus Christ by faith & not for our own works & deservings":—Held: as the Article was wholly silent as to the merits of Jesus Christ being transferred to us, & asserts only that we are justified for the merits of Jesus our Saviour by faith, & by faith alone, it was not penal in a clergyman to speak of merit by transfer as a "fiction," however unseemly that word may be when used in connection with such a subject.

(4) In an Article against a clergyman it was charged that it was a contradiction of the Church of England, as laid down in Articles of Religion VI., & XX., the Nicene Creed, & in the ordination service of priests, to affirm that any part of the canonical books of the Old or New Testament, upon any subject whatever, however unconnected with religious faith or moral duty was not written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit:—Held: the charge that every part of the scriptures was not written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit was not established as it was not to be found either in Articles VI., or XX., the Formularies, the Service for the Ordering of Priests, or the Nicene Creed.

(5) It is not competent to a clergyman of the Church of England to teach or suggest that a hope may be entertained of a state of things contrary to which the Church expressly teaches or declares will be the case.

(6) It is not penal for a clergyman to express a hope of the ultimate pardon of the wicked.

(7) No appeal was interposed from an interlocutory judgment of the Archdeacon, admitting articles of charge against a clergyman proceeded against under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86):—Held: applt. was not concluded by the admission of the Articles & it was competent to him upon appeal from the final sentence, to open the finding of the interlocutory judgment upon the articles.—WILLIAMS v. SALISBURY (Bp.) (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 375; 15 E. R. 913; sub nom. WILLIAMS v. SALISBURY (Bp.), WILSON v. FENDALL, 3 New Rep. 494; Brod. & F. 247; 9 L. T. 787; 10 Jur. N. S. 406; 12 W. 1400. ——— Articles must agree with citation.]—

(1) In a criminal proceeding, it is not competent to the promotor to set forth in the articles an offence not contained in the citation. The articles must agree with the citation.

(2) In a criminal proceeding, the burthen of proving the charge lies on the promotor; & the clergyman of the parish is not an improper person to proceed in such a case, for to the incumbent belongs the superintendence of the church & churchyard, & it is his duty to take care that no inscription should be placed there which could be made the means of disseminating doctrines inconsistent with those of the established religion (SIR H. JENNER).—BREEKS v. WOOLFEY (1838), 1 Curt. 880; 163 E. R. 304.

1401. ——— General charge accompanied with particulars—Sufficiency.—In a suit against a clergyman, for drunkenness & indecent conduct in his church, articles charging him with being addicted to the immoderate use of spirituous liquors, frequenting a public-house, drinking to excess, & thereby becoming intoxicated, followed by charges of drunkenness at different times, one of which was particularly specified, were admitted.

1402. ——— Articles need not specify canon or constitution—Offence cognisable by general ecclesiastical law.—(1) Where an offence is cognisable by the general ecclesiastical law, articles need not specify the particular canon or constitution intended to be relied on as supporting the charges contained in them.

(2) A clergyman was suspended for three years for publishing in a newspaper, a letter, in derogation & depraving of the Book of Common Prayer, & monished to abstain from similar conduct in future.—*SANDERS v. 1403. ——— Articles need not negative exceptions.]—A bishop being the patron of a living held by a clerk charged with an ecclesiastical offence has the power to send letters of request to the Ct. of Appeal of the province under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 24.

It is not necessary, when the ct. has a general jurisdiction over the subject-matter, that the promoter of the office of the judge should negative, in pleading, exceptions; it is for deft. so to do, as a defence to the charge against him.—COOPER v. DODD (1850), 2 Rob. Eccl. 270; 14 Jur. 724; 163 E. R. 1314.

1404. — Averment following exact words of rubric.]—An averment, following the exact words of the third rubric at the end of the Communion service, that there has been communion, that the elements were consecrated & received by the minister, either where no person communicated with him, or where only one person communicated with him, or where only two persons communicated with him, is a sufficient allegation of an ecclesiastical offence having been committed.—PARNELL v. ROUGHTON (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 46; 31 L. T. 594; 39 J. P. 180; 23 W. R. 428, P. C.

1412. — — —.]—In a suit in spiritual ct. ex officio the party is entitled to have a copy of the articles.

It was formerly held by all the judges of England that when there was a proceeding ex officio in the Ecclesiastical Ct., they were not bound to give the party a copy of the articles; but the law is otherwise, for in such cases if they refuse to give a copy of the articles a prohibition shall go quousque they deliver it (HOLT, C.J.).—ANON. (1703), 2 Ld. (b) Answer.

1417. Contents—Redundancy.]—Every averment of a plea must be fully answered, except where the answer might criminate the party. Answers must not be redundant.

The true meaning of the term ["redundancy"] I take to be this: resp. is not to insert in his answer any matter foreign to the articles he is called upon to answer, although such matter may be admissible in plea, but he may, in his answer, plead matter by way of explanation pertinent to the articles, even if such matter shall be solely in his own knowledge, & to such extent incapable of proof; or he may state matter which can be substantiated by witnesses; but, in this latter instance, if such matter be introduced into the answer, & not afterwards put in plea, or proved, the ct. will give no weight or credence to such part of the answer. When once an allegation has been admitted, either on debate or otherwise, it is too late to consider whether any parts of it are admissible or not; such a course would lead to confusion, expense & uncertainty; the ct. would, on objections to an answer, have to take the whole of the pleadings into its consideration (DR. LUSHINGTON).—DYSART v. DYSART (1843), 3 Curt. 543; 7 Jur. 658; 163 E. R. 819; subsequent proceedings (1844), 1 Rob. Eccl. 470.

1418. — — — Necessity for specific denial to each averment.]—In answers it is not open to a party to deny in a general & summary manner any article, but he must give a specific denial to each separate averment in the article.—*BRAYNE & EDWARDS v. 1438. ————]—Attendance—How enforced.—An ecclesiastical judge has no direct power to compel the appearance of a witness resident out of his jurisdiction to undergo an examination; nevertheless he can accomplish this indirectly; he can do so by means of letters of request to the ordinary of the place in which the witness is resident, which ordinary gives his assistance sub mutue vicissitudinis obtentu; & the witness is thus compelled to appear & undergo his examination. This is accomplished, not on the sole authority of the local ordinary who merely compels an appearance, but also by reason of the authority of the judge of the et. having jurisdiction over the cause, from whom the letters of request issued; for the local ordinary could not, of his own mere authority, have examined such witness in a cause over which he had no jurisdiction.—PARKES v. You do not suggest that you offered to prove payment of those offerings by one witness & that they [the Consistory Ct.] rejected such proof; now we are not bound to take notice that by their law they will reject a single witness; nor are you injured till they have actually done so. At this rate we should deprive them of all jurisdiction, for possibly they may receive the evidence of your sole witness, & yet give judgment against his testimony upon the credibility of the man (per Cur.).—ANON. (1729), Fitz-G. 82; 91 E. JACOB (1829), 2 Hag. Ecc. 257; 102 E. R. 853.

1455. When party admitted as pauper—Respondent.]—A resp. may be admitted as a pauper in the Ct. of Appeal, & the ct. looks at his faculties at the time of the application, not at what he may have been possessed of at a former time.—TAYLOR v. MORSE (1830), 3 Hag. Ecc. 179; 102 E. R. 1122.

1458. —.]—In these cts. it has always been held that costs are a matter of discretion, not of capricious discretion, but according to the just consideration of all the circumstances. It is the duty of the ct. on the one hand to protect parties in the fair assertion of their just & legal rights; & on the other hand to check vexatious litigation (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—BURNELL v. JENKINS (1816), 2 Phillim. 391; 161 E. R. 1178.

1459. Right to costs—Unnecessary pleading.]—A party having successfully resisted payment of a church rate, was dismissed, but not with his full costs, he having put matters in plea which caused unnecessary expense.—CHESTERTON & HUTCHINS v. FARLAR (1839), 2 Curt. 77; 163 E. R. 342.

1460. Liability for costs—Abandonment of proceedings—By intervening party.]—Where a party intervening in a cause, alleges that he proceeds no further, costs were given.

It is almost a matter of course where a party alleges that he proceeds no further, to give costs, unless some special circumstances are shown why he should not be liable (per Cur.).—HUNTER v. BULMER (1820), 3 Phillim. 260; 161 E. R. 1319.

1461. — Pursuant to monition to pay—Waiver.]—The obligation to pay costs, pursuant to a monition for payment was held, under the circumstances, not to be dispensed with by the party to whom they were due having bound himself to waive them by an instrument executed out of ct.—COATES v. BROWN (1822), 1 Add. 345; 162 E. R. 121.

Annotation:—Mentd. A.-G. v. Brunning (1859), 4 H. & N. 94.

1462. — Party convicted of brawling—Provocation.]—Arts. for brawling, at a vestry held in the vestry room within the churchyard, being proved, the ct. suspended deft. ab ingressu ecclesie for one week, but did not condemn him in the whole costs, in consequence of irritating expressions having been proved to have been used by the promoter.

If a party, promoting such a suit, shall have been himself guilty of misconduct, he will stand in a different position with respect to the costs than if he had not misconducted himself (Dr. LUSHINGTON).

The clergyman of the parish ought to consider himself superior to his parishioners, & no provocation ought to tempt him to deviate from temper & calmness, or induce him to place himself on a level with ordinary vestrymen. The same expression from an ordinary vestryman would be less censurable than from the clergyman, whose duty it is to keep the peace & set an example to others (Dr. LUSHINGTON).—WILLIAMS v. 1465. — Bishop respondent.]—(1) The evidence of a single witness of good character, whose memory is shown to be inaccurate, & whose acts subsequent to the misconduct alleged are not consistent with a resentment of it, will not be sufficient to convict a clergyman of an attempt, by words only, to solicit the chastity of such witness.

(2) Although all the judgment in the ct. below may be on all sides reversed, a bishop, as resp., will not be condemned in the costs of the proceedings either in the Ct. of Arches or in the Ct. of Appeal, if in instituting them he has acted simply in accordance with his duty to the public.—*BERNEY v. 1478. —(1) A proceeding in the Consistorial Ct. to recover penalties for non-residence under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), ss. 32 & 141, is not a criminal suit within Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 23, but a civil suit, & therefore, is not to be instituted in the mode pointed out by sect. 3 of the latter Act.

(2) The ct. will not issue a writ of prohibition after sentence in an ecclesiastical ct., upon an objection in the nature of a special demurrer to the proceedings in that ct., as that a libel exhibited against a beneficed clergyman, for non-residence, did not sufficiently allege that he had cure of souls, the statement being that he was rector of the rectory of the parish church of W., being rightfully inducted thereto.

(3) The ct. will not issue prohibition upon the ground of an objection which relates merely to a rule of practice in the ct. below.

(4) A sentence of the Consistorial Ct., in such proceeding, condemned the party charged in payment of one-third part of the annual value of his benefice, with the reasonable expense of the promotor of the suit. On motion for a prohibition:—Held: such sentence was valid & consistent with Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), s. 10, though the ct. would order that the amount of such third part & of such expense should "be ascertained in the usual & accustomed manner by the registrar" of the ct., it appearing that the sentence was conformable to the practice of the Consistorial Ct., & by such practice, payment would not be enforced till the bishop had received the registrar's report of the amount, & made an order thereon.—*RACKHAM v. (2) The Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), does not debar a University judge from trying a resident clergyman for a breach of University law, notwithstanding such breach may also constitute an ecclesiastical offence, but the ct. will use its discretion as to trying offences over which it possesses, under ancient statutes, a discretionary criminal jurisdiction, when such offences are of a vague character, & do not amount to overt acts.—*PUSEY v. On Feb. 17, 1840, a clergyman refused to bury a corpse of a parishioner brought for interment; on May 26, 1841, a second request to him to do so was made, & refused. On May 20, 1843, a citation issued against him from this ct.:—Held: protest to appearing, on the ground that the two years, limited by the Act, had expired, would be overruled, the two refusals in respect of the one child being separate offences; (2) a child, baptised with water in the name of the Holy Trinity, by a person alleged to be in heresy or schism with the Church of England, was not unbaptised within the meaning of the Rubric for the burial service, in the book of Common Prayer. 1488. Criminal offence—No conviction by temporal court.—An ecclesiastical ct. may entertain a suit against a clergyman for the purpose of deprivation or suspension from his ecclesiastical preferment, by reason of a public scandal existing against him, although the scandal originates from a charge which, if true, would constitute a criminal offence cognisable solely in a common law ct., & though no conviction by common law is pleaded.—BURDER v. — (1814), 3 Curt. 822; 8 Jur. 520; 163 E. 1489. Sodomy.—Letters of request were presented to the official principal of the Chancery Ct. of York, requesting that a clerk might be cited before him to answer a charge that he had been guilty of the criminal offence of sodomy:—Held: the letters ought not to be accepted, for a charge of so grave a character ought not to be investigated by an ecclesiastical ct. until the person charged had been tried & convicted by a criminal ct. of competent jurisdiction.—Re A. B. (1886), 11 P. D. 56.

1490. Conviction by temporal court—Forgery.—A beneficed clergyman was tried & convicted at the Central Criminal Ct. for forging a transfer of shares, & sentenced to penal servitude for the term of ten years:—Held: he had been guilty of “an offence against the laws ecclesiastical,” within Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 3; & he should be deprived of his living, & inhibited from all future performance of divine offices in the province of Canterbury.—*HUSSEY v. 1493. Retaining alms.—The ct. declined to order a decree or citation in a criminal suit to issue against a clergyman officiating in a chapel to which no district is assigned, for refusing to pay over to the incumbent & churchwardens of the church of the district in which such chapel is situated the alms collected at the offertory in such chapel, there being no satisfactory evidence before the ct. that the district had become a separate parish. It ordered a citation to issue in a civil suit, calling upon the clergyman to show cause why he should not pay over to the incumbent & churchwardens of the district church the moneys he had received at the offertory in his chapel.

J.—VOL. XIX.

It is doubtful whether the disposing to pious & charitable uses of the alms of the parishioners is the exercising of a civil right under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 19, so that a suit in a criminal form can be brought in a consistorial ct. to ascertain to whom such right belongs.—LIDDELL v. RAINSFORD (1808), 37 L. J. Eccl. 83; 32 J. P. 487.

1494. Officiating without consent of incumbent—& in disobedience to inhibition.—It is an ecclesiastical offence under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), for a clerk in holy orders of the Church of England to publicly perform any of the services of the Church of England without lawful authority in a parish without the consent & against the express wish of the incumbent of the parish, & such offence is aggravated where the accused clerk has in so acting disobeyed the inhibition of the Ordinary.—NEBHITT v. WALLACE, [1901] P. 351; 17 T. L. R. 727.

1495. Assuming to exercise episcopal function of ordination.—It is an offence against ecclesiastical law for the incumbent of a parish church, not being a bishop, to purport to ordain a priest without having been given public authority to take upon himself the power of ordination. The incumbent of a parish church, not being himself a bishop, after public notice & in express disobedience to the commands of the bishop of the diocese, read Evening Prayer, celebrated Holy Communion according to the use of the Church of England, & preached a sermon in a Nonconformist chapel in another parish wherein he had no cure of souls, & also then & there purported to ordain a layman as a presbyter of the Church of God, reading portions of the form of ordering of priests according to the Prayer Book, & taking the part of the ordaining bishop:—Held: in a criminal suit by letters of request brought under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), within two years of the above acts, in which suit the incumbent appeared as deft., & attempted to justify his actions as lawful, but at the close of the case regretted his error & submitted to the judgment of the ct., deft., in so purporting to ordain a priest, was guilty of an offence against ecclesiastical law, punishable in the case of an incorrigible offender by a sentence of deprivation.—ST. ALBANS (Bp.) v. FILLINGHAM, [1906] P. 163; 22 T. L. R. 293, 332.

“Scandal or evil report”—Criminal offence—No conviction by temporal court.—See No. 1188, ante.

1496. Drunkenness—Conviction by justices—No inquiry into truth of original charge.—In a suit instituted in the Ct. of Arches against a clerk in orders, the articles alleged that he had been convicted before justices in petty sessions of having been drunk & riotous in a public place, & prayed that he might be punished for the scandal caused thereby. Resp. by his plea, denied that he had been drunk & riotous, or that the conviction had caused scandal, alleged that it had been obtained by perjured evidence, & demanded a full inquiry into the facts. On motion to strike out this plea:—Held: the plea was no answer to the articles & could not be admitted, for the ct. had jurisdiction to suspend a clerk ab officio on account of the scandal caused by the conviction without considering whether the offence charged had been actually committed.—BOROUGH v. COLLINS (1890), 15 P. D. 81.

C. Procedure.

(a) Commission of Inquiry.

1498. Nature of commission.]—(1) A commission issued by the bishop in pursuance of Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), is merely a preparatory step to ascertain whether or not there is sufficient prima facie case for further inquiry before a regular tribunal. It is not necessary, therefore, to state in such commission more than the generic nature of the offence, sufficient to found the arts. on, & to give the party proceeded against notice of the general nature of the charges he is called upon to answer, & which must be fully specified in the arts. to be exhibited.—SHEPPARD v. BENNETT (1870), L. R. 4 P. C. 350; 9 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 120; 39 L. J. Eccl. 59; 23 L. T. 145; 34 J. P. 789; 18 W. R. 650; 17 E. R. 459, P. C. Annotation:—Reid. L. v. Oxford, 13p. (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 245.

1499. Issue of commission.—At whose instance—More than one complainant.]—HEREFORD (Bp.) v. T.—N, No. 1521, post.

1500. —Right of Archbishop—Bishop patron of accused's preferment.]—J. presented the Bishop of B. & W., the diocesan of Archdeacon D., with articles to be filed in the Ct. of Arches, charging the archdeacon with preaching doctrines "contrary to the articles of our religion as by law established, or some of them." The bishop, after a private correspondence with the archdeacon, declined to grant letters of request, & to send the question to be adjudicated on by the Ct. of Arches, but "admonished" the archdeacon in a private letter as to his future conduct. After the decease of the bishop, J. applied to his successor to proceed in the matter by granting letters of request. This the new bishop refused to do, for, among other reasons, that the question had already been adjudicated on by his predecessor. The Archbishop of C. having given notice to the archdeacon of his intention to issue a commission of inquiry under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86):—Held: (1) a rule for a prohibition to restrain the Archbishop from issuing such commission should be refused by the ct.; (2) the above Act regulates the mode of proceeding in a criminal suit against a clerk in holy orders for any offence against the law ecclesiastical; (3) this statute does not only apply to cases where clerks in holy orders are charged with immorality, but to clerks charged with any offence against the laws ecclesiastical, & preaching heretical doctrines contrary to the formularies of the Church is an offence against those laws; (4) the offence created by 13 Eliz. c. 12, s. 2, is not taken away by the former Act, but the mode of proceeding for an offence under 13 Eliz. c. 12, is regulated by the Act of 1840; (5) articles filed in the Ct. of Arches against a clerk in holy orders charging him with preaching doctrines "contrary to the articles of our religion as by law established, or some of them, & contrary to the provisions of 13 Eliz. c. 12," is a criminal suit or proceeding against such clerk for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical; & the admonition given to the archdeacon by the deceased bishop was no adjudication of the charges preferred against him by J. so as to make the issuing of a commission to inquire into such charge an excess of jurisdiction on the part of the Archbishop; (6) letters of request not being granted by the bishop, the Archbishop under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 24, has the power of issuing a commission.

After the passing of Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), a charge of maintaining false doctrine was made against a clerk in holy orders to the bishop of the diocese, who was also patron of the living held by the accused clerk; & the bishop was desired to send the case, by letters of request, to the Ct. of Arches. Instead of doing so, he called upon the clerk for an explanation of his doctrine upon certain points; & having received an answer, wrote to him a letter, wherein he expressed his own opinion that the clerk's views were erroneous, though not absolutely condemned by the Church, & concluded by admonishing him that though he was at liberty to hold as a pious opinion a doctrine which the Church of England had not condemned, he should abstain for the future from all attempts to enforce the acceptance of his own opinion as the only condition of holding faithfully the true doctrine. The bishop declined therefore to issue letters of request; & upon a similar application to his successor, he also declined, on the ground that the case had already been decided. Subsequently, the Archbishop of Canterbury issued a commission of inquiry into the grounds of the above-mentioned charge, pursuant to sect. 3 of the above Act.

(7) This was a criminal suit or proceeding for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical, within the meaning of the above Act; & the bishop had no authority to proceed against the clerk under 13 Eliz. c. 12, s. 2, even if he had intended to do so; (8) upon the correspondence it appeared that the bishop did not intend to proceed judicially under that statute; & he never legally adjudicated upon the charge preferred against the clerk.—Ex p. DENISON (1854), 4 E. & B. 292; 3 C. L. R. 247; 24 L. J. Q. B. 34; 1 Jur. N. S. 517; 110 E. R. 113; sub nom. Re TAUNTON (ARCHDEACON), 24 L. T. O. S. 140; sub nom. Re EAST BRENT (VICAR), 18 J. 1501. —Discretion of bishop—Interest of applicant.]—G., a clerk in holy orders, residing in the city & diocese of O., applied to the Bishop of O. to issue a commission, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 3, against R., rector of the parish of W., in the diocese of C., to inquire into certain charges made by G. against R. of offences against the laws ecclesiastical. G. had no connection with the parish of W. or diocese of C., nor had he any private or personal interest in the said charges. The Bishop declined, after inquiry, to issue a commission. Upon showing cause against a rule for a mandamus to the Bishop, commanding him to issue a commission:—Held: (1) under the statute, the Bishop had a discretion as to issuing a commission or not; (2) as it was in the discretion of the ct. to grant a mandamus or not, the mandamus ought not to issue upon the application of one who was a stranger to the parish & diocese, & had no personal interest in the investigation of the charges.—R. v. CHICHESTER (Bp.) (1859), 2 E. & L. 209; 29 L. J. Q. B. 23; 33 L. T. O. S. 301; 23 J. P. 821; 6 Jur. N. S. 120; 7 W. R. 629; 121 E. R. 80.

1504. ———.]—(1) Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 3, provides that in every case of any clerk in holy orders who may be charged with any offence against the Laws Ecclesiastical, or concerning whom there may exist scandal or evil report as having offended against the laws, it shall be lawful for the bishop of the diocese within which the offence is alleged or reported to have been committed, on the application of any party complaining thereof, or if he shall think fit, of his own mere motion, to issue a commission under his hand & seal to certain persons for the purpose of making inquiry as to the grounds of such charge or report: Held: this sect. gave the bishop complete discretion to issue or decline to issue such commission. The Act recites that the manner of proceeding in cases for the correction of clerks requires amendment. Its provisions, therefore, may be construed independently of the practice under the previously existing law.

1505. Form of commission—Sufficiency of contents—Averment that offence committed within preceding two years.—(1) In a commission issued under Church Discipline Act, 1840, c. 86, it is not necessary that the offences complained of should be stated to have been committed within the two years limited by sect. 20 of that Act, if they are charged & admitted as continuing offences.

(2) No appeal is given by the Act either to the Arches Ct., or thence to Her Majesty in Council, from the decision of the comms. on the regularity or irregularity of the proceedings.

(3) A citation or decree issued by the ct. under letters of request being in the form prescribed by the rules made pursuant to sect. 13 of the Act, it is no valid objection that it does not state the offences complained of to have been committed within two years, the time prescribed. It is sufficient if the letters of request, which are the foundation of the suit, allege that fact.—SIMPSON v. FLAMANK (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 463; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 385; 36 L. J. Eccl. 28; 16 L. 1500. — Right of Archbishop—Bishop patron of accused's preferment.]—J. presented the Bishop of B. & W., the diocesan of Archdeacon D., with articles to be filed in the Ct. of Arches, charging the archdeacon with preaching doctrines "contrary to the articles of our religion as by law established, or some of them." The bishop, after a private correspondence with the archdeacon, declined to grant letters of request, & to send the question to be adjudicated on by the Ct. of Arches, but "admonished" the archdeacon in a private letter as to his future conduct. After the decease of the bishop, J. applied to his successor to proceed in the matter by granting letters of request. This the new bishop refused to do, for, among other reasons, that the question had already been adjudicated on by his predecessor. The Archbishop of C. having given notice to the archdeacon of his intention to issue a commission of inquiry under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86):—Held: (1) a rule for a prohibition to restrain the Archbishop from issuing such commission should be refused by the ct.; (2) the above Act regulates the mode of proceeding in a criminal suit against a clerk in holy orders for any offence against the law ecclesiastical; (3) this statute does not only apply to cases where clerks in holy orders are charged with immorality, but to clerks charged with any offence against the laws ecclesiastical, & preaching heretical doctrines contrary to the formularies of the Church is an offence against those laws; (4) the offence created by 13 Eliz. c. 12, s. 2, is not taken away by the former Act, but the mode of proceeding for an offence under 13 Eliz. c. 12, is regulated by the Act of 1840; (5) articles filed in the Ct. of Arches against a clerk in holy orders charging him with preaching doctrines "contrary to the articles of our religion as by law established, or some of them, & contrary to the provisions of 13 Eliz. c. 12," is a criminal suit or proceeding against such clerk for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical; & the admonition given to the archdeacon by the deceased bishop was no adjudication of the charges preferred against him by J. so as to make the issuing of a commission to inquire into such charge an excess of jurisdiction on the part of the Archbishop; (6) letters of request not being granted by the bishop, the Archbishop under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 24, has the power of issuing a commission.

After the passing of Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), a charge of maintaining false doctrine was made against a clerk in holy orders to the bishop of the diocese, who was also patron of the living held by the accused clerk; & the bishop was desired to send the case, by letters of request, to the Ct. of Arches. Instead of doing so, he called upon the clerk for an explanation of his doctrine upon certain points; & having received an answer, wrote to him a letter, wherein he expressed his own opinion that the clerk's views were erroneous, though not absolutely condemned by the Church, & concluded by admonishing him that though he was at liberty to hold as a pious opinion a doctrine which the Church of England had not condemned, he should abstain for the future from all attempts to enforce the acceptance of his own opinion as the only condition of holding faithfully the true doctrine. The bishop declined therefore to issue letters of request; & upon a similar application to his successor, he also declined, on the ground that the case had already been decided. Subsequently, the Archbishop of Canterbury issued a commission of inquiry into the grounds of the above-mentioned charge, pursuant to sect. 3 of the above Act.

(7) This was a criminal suit or proceeding for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical, within the meaning of the above Act; & the bishop had no authority to proceed against the clerk under 13 Eliz. c. 12, s. 2, even if he had intended to do so; (8) upon the correspondence it appeared that the bishop did not intend to proceed judicially under that statute; & he never legally adjudicated upon the charge preferred against the clerk.—*Ex p. 1501. — Discretion of bishop—Interest of applicant.]—G., a clerk in holy orders, residing in the city & diocese of O., applied to the Bishop of C. to issue a commission, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 3, against R., rector of the parish of W., in the diocese of C., to inquire into certain charges made by G. against R. of offences against the laws ecclesiastical. G. had no connection with the parish of W. or diocese of C., nor had he any private or personal interest in the said charges. The Bishop declined, after inquiry, to issue a commission. Upon showing cause against a rule for a mandamus to the Bishop, commanding him to issue a commission:—Held: (1) under the statute, the Bishop had a discretion as to issuing a commission or not; (2) as it was in the discretion of the ct. to grant a mandamus or not, the mandamus ought not to issue upon the application of one who was a stranger to the parish & diocese, & had no personal interest in the investigation of the charges.—*R. v. 1504. ————]—(1) Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 3, provides that in every case of any clerk in holy orders who may be charged with any offence against the Laws Ecclesiastical, or concerning whom there may exist scandal or evil report as having offended against the laws, it shall be lawful for the bishop of the diocese within which the offence is alleged or reported to have been committed, on the application of any party complaining thereof, or if he shall think fit, of his own mere motion, to issue a commission under his hand & seal to certain persons for the purpose of making inquiry as to the grounds of such charge or report:—Held: this sect. gave the bishop complete discretion to issue or decline to issue such commission. The Act recites that the manner of proceeding in cases for the correction of clerks requires amendment. Its provisions, therefore, may be construed independently of the practice under the previously existing law.

1505. Form of commission—Sufficiency of contents—Averment that offence committed within preceding two years.—(1) In a commission issued under Church Discipline Act, 1840, c. 86, it is not necessary that the offences complained of should be stated to have been committed within the two years limited by sect. 20 of that Act, if they are charged & admitted as continuing offences.

(2) No appeal is given by the Act either to the Arches Ct., or thence to Her Majesty in Council, from the decision of the comrs. on the regularity or irregularity of the proceedings.

(3) A citation or decree issued by the ct. under letters of request being in the form prescribed by the rules made pursuant to sect. 13 of the Act, it is no valid objection that it does not state the offences complained of to have been committed within two years, the time prescribed. It is sufficient if the letters of request, which are the foundation of the suit, allege that fact.—SIMPSON v. FLAMANK (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 463; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 385; 30 L. J. Eccl. 28; 10 L. (2) One of the offences charged was committed in Oct. 1842; the citation was extracted in July, & served in Aug., but not returned till Nov. 1844:—Held: in computing the two years from the commission of the offence, within which the suit must be commenced under sect. 20, the commencement of the suit was to be dated from the time when the citation was served.—BROOKES v. 1515. They ran in the name of the incompetent bishop, & were signed in his name by the bishop performing his functions:—Held: the letters of request were correct in form, & they had been properly signed.—BROOKES v. (c) Proceedings after Inquiry.

i. In General.

1520. Duty of bishop to proceed—Complainant wishing to continue.—On the application of a clerk holding a benefice in the diocese of B., in the province of Canterbury, complaining that a clerk holding preferment in the same diocese had published, in the same diocese, doctrines contrary to the Articles of the Established Church, the patronage of the preferment being in the Bishop of B., the Archbishop of Canterbury, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), ss. 3, 24, issued a commission, which reported that there was sufficient prima facie ground for instituting further proceedings:—Held: (1) complainant thinking fit to proceed against the party accused, the Archbishop was bound, under sects. 9, 11, to require the appearance of the party complained against, & to hear the cause & pronounce sentence, & had no discretion in the matter; (2) the appearance & hearing ought to be within the diocese of B., & not in any place without such diocese, though within the province of Canterbury.—R. v. 1521. Right of bishop to substitute himself for original promoter.—(1) To a citation against a clerk in holy orders, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), the clerk appeared under protest, on the ground that the bishop of the diocese could not substitute himself for the original promoters:—Held: the objection failed.

(2) In a suit by letters of request under sect. 20 of the above Act, the "two years" within which a suit or proceeding must be commenced against a clerk in holy orders for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical, date back from the day on which the decree or citation is issued from the Ct. of Appeal of the province, & not from the day on which the commrs. gave notice to the clerk of their intention to meet to hold an inquiry into the offence charged.—HEREFORD (Bp.) v. The clerk was benefited in the diocese of Lincoln, & the Bishop of Lincoln sent the case by letters of request to the Arches (Ct. in the first instance):—Held: though where there had been a commission of inquiry, which had limited its investigation to a particular offence, the articles afterwards exhibited could not add to the offence, inquired into by the commission, another offence, committed in another diocese which did not come within the scope of this inquiry; yet there was no objection to coupling in the articles offences committed in different dioceses, where the bishop sent the case by letters of request to the Ct. of Arches in the first instance.

(2) Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 20, requires only that the corpus delicti on which the clerk is to be judged shall be shown to have been committed within two years before the service of the citation; but evidence of matters anterior to that period is not thereby excluded. — EDWARDS v. (c) Proceedings after Inquiry.
i. In General.

1520. Duty of bishop to proceed—Complainant wishing to continue.—On the application of a clerk holding a benefice in the diocese of B., in the province of Canterbury, complaining that a clerk holding preferment in the same diocese had published, in the same diocese, doctrines contrary to the Articles of the Established Church, the patronage of the preferment being in the Bishop of B., the Archbishop of Canterbury, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), ss. 3, 24, issued a commission, which reported that there was sufficient prima facie ground for instituting further proceedings:—Held: (1) complainant thinking fit to proceed against the party accused, the Archbishop was bound, under sects. 9, 11, to require the appearance of the party complained against, & to hear the cause & pronounce sentence, & had no discretion in the matter; (2) the appearance & hearing ought to be within the diocese of B., & not in any place without such diocese, though within the province of Canterbury.—R. v. CANTERBURY (ARCHBP.) (1856), 6 E. & B. 540; 25 L. J. Q. B. 346; 27 L. T. O. S. 153; 21 J. P. 20; 2 Jur. N. S. 835; 119 E. R. 968.

1521. Right of bishop to substitute himself for original promotor.—(1) To a citation against a clerk in holy orders, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), the clerk appeared under protest, on the ground that the bishop of the diocese could not substitute himself for the original promoters:—Held: the objection failed.

(2) In a suit by letters of request under sect. 20 of the above Act, the "two years" within which a suit or proceeding must be commenced against a clerk in holy orders for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical, date back from the day on which the decree or citation is issued from the Ct. of Appeal of the province, & not from the day on which the commrs. gave notice to the clerk of their intention to meet to hold an inquiry into the offence charged.—HEREFORD (Bp.) v. iii. Pleadings.

1523. Articles—Contents—Offences committed outside diocese of commission.—(1) Where, after a commission of inquiry, a case is sent, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 13, to the Ct. of Appeal of the province by the bishop of the diocese, within which the clerk proceeded against holds preferment, the articles must be confined to offences committed within that diocese.

(2) Commrs., under sect. 3, are bound to confine their inquiry within the diocese of the bishop who issues the commission.—HOMER & BLOOMER v. JONES (1845), 4 L. T. O. S. 400; 9 Jur. 167.

1525. ———. ———. Case sent by letters of request in first instance.]—(1) In articles against a clerk, offences of incontinency were charged to have been committed in the dioceses of Lincoln & London. The clerk was benefited in the diocese of Lincoln, & the Bishop of Lincoln sent the case by letters of request to the Arches Ct. in the first instance:—Held: though where there had been a commission of inquiry, which had limited its investigation to a particular offence, the articles afterwards exhibited could not add to the offence, inquired into by the commission, another offence, committed in another diocese which did not come within the scope of this inquiry; yet there was no objection to coupling in the articles offences committed in different dioceses, where the bishop sent the case by letters of request to the Ct. of Arches in the first instance.

(2) Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 20, requires only that the corpus delicti on which the clerk is to be judged shall be shown to have been committed within two years before the service of the citation; but evidence of matters anterior to that period is not thereby excluded.—EDWARDS v. 1543. Whether interlocutory or final—Conditional order of suspension.]—A suit having been brought against a clerk in the Ct. of Arches, under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), a sentence of suspension for six months was pronounced against him on Mar. 9, 1878, but was made conditional on an affidavit being filed. Afterwards the affidavit was filed, & an unconditional sentence was pronounced on Mar. 23 & served on deft. A fresh suit was instituted in 1880 for fresh offences, & also for contumacious disobedience to the sentence of Mar. 23, 1878. These offences being proved, deft. was sentenced to be deprived of his benefice. This sentence was pronounced by the Dean of Arches in Committee Room E of the House of Lords. A motion for a prohibition having been brought to restrain the Ct. of Arches from enforcing the sentence:—Held: (1) the sentence of Mar. 9 was an interlocutory order which did not end the suit, & therefore the ct. was not functus officio when it pronounced the unconditional sentence of suspension; (2) even if unconditional sentence had been void, the ct. would not have exceeded its jurisdiction in passing the sentence of deprivation, as there were other offences proved which would have supported it; (3) the site of the old Palace of Westminster is no longer a peculiar, but is within the diocese of London & the jurisdiction of the Ct. of Arches; (4) the new Palace of Westminster is not exempt from the jurisdiction of the ordinary civil & ecclesiastical cts. on the ground of privilege, inasmuch as it had ceased to be a royal residence.

Deft. appealed to the Ct. of Arches. On motion on behalf of the bishop, who had promoted his own office & appeared as resp. in the appeal, the Dean of Arches on proof that deft. was in a state of poverty, & had not paid any part of the costs in which he had been condemned, ordered deft. to give security for the costs of the appeal in the sum of £100 within four months from the date of making the order for security.—*O'MALLEY v. SUB-SECT. 2. UNDER PUBLIC WORSHIP REGULATION ACT, 1874.

A. In General.

Effect of Act—On jurisdiction of Court of Arches.]

—See No. 1719, post.

1549. — On Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86).]—Under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), which applies also to offences such as formed the subject-matter of the complaint by appet., there is no provision for the summoning of a commission of inquiry, but three parishioners can set the bishop in motion, who then has an arbitrary discretion to determine whether the suit shall proceed or not. It is further provided by sect. 18 that, where sentence has been pronounced against an incumbent for an offence under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), he shall not also be proceeded against under the later Act, & vice versa:—Held: the Act of 1874 does not repeal the earlier statute & does not preclude a promoter from applying to the bishop to take proceedings under it, for the Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), was intended to provide a more expeditious & a more simple procedure in criminal ecclesiastical suits.—*R. v. 1550. Powers of judge under Act.—(GREEN v. PENZANCE (LORD), No. 1118, ante.)

1551. —.—[A monition, precisely following a judgment pronounced by the judge under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), admonished a clerk to abstain for the future when officiating in his church from doing each of certain specified acts, & amongst them, from wearing the vestments known as an alb, a chasuble, & a biretta; & from causing to be formed a procession at the commencement of morning service; & also “from all practices, acts, matters & things of the same or a like nature to those hereinbefore particularly set forth or any of them, or from unlawfully permitting the same or any of them.” A subsequent inhibition, after reciting the monition & the disobedience of the clerk thereto in regard to several other matters, recited his disobedience in permitting his curate to wear a vestment known as a biretta & a vestment known as a stole, & also in permitting his curate to form a procession between morning prayer & the communion service, & for such his disobedience inhibited the clerk from performing services for three months & until relaxation. The clerk having applied for a writ of prohibition:—Held: the judge had jurisdiction, subject to correction on appeal, to insert the alia similia clause in the monition; & under sect. 13 of the above Act, the judge had jurisdiction to determine whether the wearing of a stole, & the forming a procession between morning prayer & the communion services were practices, acts, matters & things of the same or a like nature to those particularly set forth in the monition; & if he had determined that question wrongly it might be the subject of appeal—if an appeal lies—but could not afford any ground for prohibition; & even if the wearing of a stole & the forming a procession were not breaches of the monition, yet as it appeared on the face of the inhibition that the clerk had committed several other acts of disobedience any one of which would have justified an inhibition for the full period, there was no excess of jurisdiction & no ground for prohibition. —ENRAGHT v. B. Procedure.

1553. Representation—Service of copy on defendant—Necessity for service within time prescribed by Act.—Public Worship Regulation Act, 1870 (c. 85), s. 9, provides that unless the bishop, to whom a representation of illegal acts or omissions on the part of any incumbent within his diocese has been sent, shall be of opinion, after considering the whole circumstances of the case, that proceedings should not be taken on the representation, “he shall within twenty-one days after receiving the representation transmit a copy thereof to the person complained of, & shall then transmit the representation to the Archbishop, who shall forthwith require the judge to hear the matter of the representation.” By sect. 10 it is further provided that, if any bishop is the patron of the benefice held by the incumbent respecting whom a representation shall have been made, the Archbishop of the province shall act in the place of such bishop in all matters thereafter arising in relation to such representation. A representation, under the above Act, was sent to the bishop of the diocese on Aug. 29, 1876. The bishop received the representation on Aug. 30, & finding that the party complained of was the incumbent of a benefice in his patronage, forwarded it on Sept. 15 to the Archbishop of the province. On Oct. 21, the Archbishop transmitted a copy of the representation to the party complained of. The party complained of did not acknowledge the receipt of the copy of the representation so submitted to him, & though subsequently personally served with a duplicate copy of the representation entered no appearance. Afterwards the Archbishop required the judge to hear the matter of the representation:—Held: the proceedings were void, & must be dismissed by the judge, for the provision as to the time within which a copy of a representation should be transmitted to the party complained of was imperative, & had not been complied with.—HOWARD v. BODINGTON (1877), 2 P. D. 203; 42 J. P. 6.

1554. ——— Power of bishop to proceed—Bishop patron of defendant’s preferment.—SERJEANT v. DALE, No. 166, ante.

1555. ——— Duty of bishop to proceed—Discretion of bishop to refuse to proceed.—(1) By Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), s. 9, it is provided that where a representation has, under sect. 8, been sent to the bishop of the diocese complaining of an unlawful alteration in, or addition to the fabric, ornaments or furniture of a cathedral church, the bishop shall take certain specified steps to have the matter of the complaint tried in one of the ways prescribed by the Act “unless the bishop shall be of opinion, after considering the whole circumstances of the case, that proceedings should not be taken on the representation, in which case he shall state in writing the reason for his opinion,” etc.

A representation was sent to the Bishop of London complaining that the Dean & Chapter of St. Paul’s Cathedral Church had set up on a reredos in that church images of Our Lord & of the Virgin & Child, & that the images tended to encourage ideas & devotions of an unauthorised & superstitious kind, & were unlawful. The bishop replied that, having in pursuance of the Act considered the whole circumstances attending the representation, he was of opinion that proceedings should not be taken for reasons which he stated at length. On an application for a mandamus to compel the bishop to proceed according to the Act, upon the ground that the bishop’s reasons showed that he had not considered the whole circumstances of the case & also had considered matters which were not circumstances of the case, the Ct. of Appeal held that there did not appear to be any ground for either contention & that a mandamus ought not to issue.

*Sect. 9.—Proceedings in respect of offences of clergy :
Sub-sect. 2, B.; sub-sect. 3, A.]*

While the appeal from that decision was pending in this House, a second representation was made to the bishop with regard to the same images & in similar terms, with the additional allegation that the images had in fact encouraged idolatrous & superstitious ideas & devotion, & that idolatrous & superstitious reverence had been paid to them. The bishop replied that, having considered the whole circumstances attending the representation, he was of opinion that proceedings should not be taken for the reason that the questions raised in the case were in substance identical with those raised in the first case, & that the appeal in the first case was then pending in this House. A similar application for a mandamus having been made, the Ct. of Appeal held that there was no ground for the mandamus:—Held: the bishop had acted within his jurisdiction & exercised the discretion vested in him; whether the reasons he gave were good or bad, the bishop having considered all the circumstances which appeared to him, honestly exercising his judgment, to bear upon the particular case, his reasons could not be reviewed: & there was no ground for a mandamus.

(2) The legislature, when using the language "after considering the whole circumstances of the case," intended to show that the bishop's jurisdiction was not confined to the mere question whether there had been an infraction of the law. They intended to widen & enlarge the considerations which might weigh on the bishop's mind in determining the question whether the proceedings should go on (LORD HALSBURY, C.). —*ALLCROFT v. 1556. Requisition to judge—Form.]—A representation under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), was made in July, 1878, by the churchwardens of a parish to the bishop of the diocese, complaining of the incumbent for certain illegal practices in the conduct of divine worship. The bishop & archbishop being alternate patrons of the benefice, the bishop of the diocese of E. was appointed to act in the place of such bishop & archbishop in the matter of the representation under sect. 16 of the above Act. The Bishop of E. having considered the representation sent a requisition to the judge under the above Act, requiring him to hear the case in London or Westminster, or within the diocese:—Held: (1) the requisition under sect. 9 of the Act must name the limits within which, under the sect., the hearing is to take place, but need not name the particular place within such limits; (2) the requisition made by the Bishop of E. was valid, & the form of it was sufficient on the following grounds: first, it sufficiently showed by necessary implication that the parties had been required to state whether they were willing to submit to the directions of the bishop; secondly, it was not competent to the party complained of to object to the form of the requisition to the judge if all the facts essential to the jurisdiction in truth existed; & thirdly, the requisition was in substantial accordance with the form given by the rules & orders.

The judge under the Act proceeded to hear the matter of the above mentioned representation, & issued a monition commanding the incumbent complained of to abstain from certain practices which he pronounced unlawful. The incumbent disregarded such monition, & continued the practices, whereupon the judge issued an inhibition inhibiting the incumbent from the performance of divine service & the exercise of the cure of souls within the diocese for three months, & thereafter until the inhibition should be relaxed. The monition issued while the rules & orders of 1875 were in force, but the inhibition issued after the amended rules of 1879 had come into force. In the monition the judge was styled the official principal of the Arches Ct. of Canterbury, he having become such official principal under sect. 7 of the Act upon the resignation of the previous official principal, but except in this respect the monition exactly followed the form given by the rules & orders of 1875. The inhibition exactly followed the form given by the rules & orders of 1879. The incumbent disregarded the inhibition, & continued to exercise the cure of souls. The judge then issued a significavit against him for contempt. A writ de contumace capiendo was thereupon issued from the Petty Bag Office on Oct. 29, & recorded in the Q. B. on the following day (the ct. not being then sitting), & delivered to the sheriff. Under this writ the incumbent was arrested & lodged in prison:—Held: (3) the judge under the Act is not the judge of a new ct. constituted by the Act, but is the official principal of the old Ct. of Arches, & has all the old powers of that ct., including the power of signifying for contempt if his orders are disobeyed, & that as the Act does not contain any special power of enforcing an inhibition issued under it, such inhibition can be enforced by significavit under Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127); (1) though Petty Bag Act, 1819 (c. 109), authorised the issuing of the writ de contumace capienda in vacation, it did not repeal the enactment that the writ should be opened in the Q. B. in the presence of the justices, & as it had only been brought into the Crown Office at a time when the judges were not sitting, the requisitions of Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127), had not been complied with, & the incumbent was entitled to be discharged from custody.—DALE'S CASE, ENRAGHT'S CASE (1881), 6 Q. 1558. — Place of hearing.]—Public Worship Act, 1874 (c. 85), s. 7, makes provision for the appointment of a Judge of the Provincial Cts. of Canterbury & York. By sect. 8 a representation under certain circumstances may be made to the bishop of illegal acts or omissions in the performance of the church services, by any incumbent within his diocese; by sect. 9, if the bishop is of opinion that proceedings should be taken on the representation, he shall, if the parties are unwilling to submit to his directions without appeal, transmit the representation to the archbishop of the province, & the archbishop "shall forthwith require the judge to hear the matter of the representation at any place within the diocese or province, or in London or Westminster." A representation under the above Act was forwarded to the Bishop of Rochester charging that T., the incumbent of a parish within the diocese, had been guilty of illegal practices in the conduct of divine service. The bishop transmitted the representation to the Archbishop of Canterbury, & the archbishop thereupon by instrument of requisition required the judge to hear & determine the matter of the representation "at any place in London or Westminster, or within the diocese of Rochester, as you may deem fit." Notice was given to T. that the case would be heard in Lambeth Palace, which, although within the province of Canterbury, is neither in London, Westminster, nor the diocese of Rochester. In July, 1876, the case was heard at Lambeth Palace in his absence, & he was adjudged to have been guilty of illegal practices, & a monition was made for him to abstain from them. On his non-compliance with the monition, he was pronounced guilty of contempt & imprisoned. From first to last he took no notice of the proceedings, & in no way acquiesced in them:—Held: the whole proceeding was void & a prohibition must be granted, for the word "London" in the requisition could only be construed in its strict sense as the city proper of London, & the judge had no power, under the Act or otherwise, to sit in any place beyond the limits fixed by the archbishop:—*HUDSON v. 1564. Appeal—Suspension of sentence—Discretion of appellate court.—Although in every appeal in ecclesiastical cases it has been very much a matter of course & a ministerial act of the officer of the ct. to issue an inhibition, yet a discretion rests with the appellate tribunal to issue it or not. Under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), s. 9, the ecclesiastical judge has power to restrain proceedings under the decree during the whole of the appeal. In an appeal pending against a decree of the judge of the Arches Ct. the judge refused to suspend the execution of any part of the decree. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, although no appeal was given from such order by the Act, nevertheless, on motion made, in the exercise of their discretion, directed that by the inhibition the execution of that portion of the decree which related to the crucifix should be suspended pending the appeal.—RIDSDALE v.

A. What Offences within Act.

1565. "Judicial separation in divorce or matrimonial cause"—Separation order.—An order made by justices for a separation between a clergyman & his wife on the ground of his "persistent cruelty," is not an order for judicial separation made "in a divorce or matrimonial cause" within Clergy Discipline Act, 1892 (c. 32), s. 1, (1) (d); & where a bishop, in consequence of such an order having been made against a clergyman, has declared his living vacant in pursuance of the Act, such a declaration will be held to be unauthorised & invalid.—SWISER v. ELY (BP.), [1902] 2 Ch. 508; 71 L. J. Ch. 771; 86 L. T. 679; 50 W. R. 520; 18 T. L. R. 632; 46 Sol. Jo. 531.

1567. "Immoral act"—Occasioning scandal.—(1) The complaint in a criminal suit tried before the Chancellor of the Diocese of Rochester sitting with assessors, under Clergy Discipline Act, 1892 (c. 32), after charging deft., a clergyman holding preferment within the diocese of Rochester, with certain specified offences against morality, further charged him with "occasioning grave scandal & offence in the parish of which he was incumbent by his scandalous conduct in the several preceding charges set forth":—Held: the ecclesiastical offence of "occasioning scandal & evil report" was not an offence which could be legally tried under that Act, & all reference to any such charge must be struck out of the complaint.

(2) Practice of the Consistory Ct. of Rochester as to admitting to proof in a criminal suit charges of habitual drunkenness & of acts of drunkenness, the precise dates of which the prosecutor cannot specify.—ROCHESTER (BP.) v. HARRIS, [1893] P. 137.

1569. — Fraudulent collection of alms.—The collection of alms on false & fraudulent pretences is an immoral act within the meaning of Clergy Discipline Act, 1892 (c. 32).—FITZMAURICE v. HESKETH, [1904] A. C. 266; 73 L. J. P. C. 53; 90 L. T. 216; 20 T. L. R. 302, P. C.

1572. — Habitual swearing & ribaldry.]—On the true construction of Clergy Discipline Act 1892 (c. 34), s. 2, habitual swearing & ribaldry is immoral conduct & an offence thereunder, but it is not established by evidence of occasional use of language of that character.—*MOORE v. 1573. "Offence against morality"—Simony.]—In order to punish the offence of simony in a clerk resort cannot be had to the provisions of Clergy Discipline Act, 1892 (c. 32), but proceedings must still be taken under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86). The immorality against which the Act of 1892 is directed is so defined by ss. 2, 12 as to exclude simony from its scope.

(2) A false declaration against simony under Clerical Subscription Act, 1865 (c. 122), cannot be isolated from the charge of simony & brought within the scope of the Act of 1892.—*BENEFICED CLERK v. B. Procedure.

1580. — — — — —.]—Leave to appeal on matters of fact to the Chancery Ct. of York was granted by the judge of that ct. in a case under Clergy Discipline Act, 1892 (c. 32), where on an appeal on matters of law in the same case it had appeared that material evidence for the prosecutor which ought to have been excluded had been admitted in the ct. below.

Rule 69 of the Clergy Discipline Rules, 1892, provides that the appellate ct. on any appeal as to the facts under the Act may, if in the opinion of the ct. the justice of the case requires it, summon any witness heard at the trial to give evidence with respect to the case, & order any witness not heard at the trial to give evidence with respect to the case. Deft. who had been adjudged guilty in the Consistory Ct. of the diocese in which he held preferment of immoral acts within the provisions of the above Act, appealed to the Chancery Ct. of York in respect of matters of law on the ground, inter alia, of the improper admission of evidence in the ct. below, & also applied in the same case for leave to appeal on matters of fact. On the appeal on matters of law being heard, the appellate ct. was of opinion that certain of the evidence alleged by applt. to have been improperly admitted ought to have been excluded, & on the application for leave to appeal on matters of fact coming on, granted leave to appeal on fact on the ground of the improper admission of evidence in the case as above stated, & directed that under the above rule three witnesses who had given evidence in the ct. below should be recalled for examination at the hearing of the appeal, & that another witness not heard in the ct. below should be summoned to give evidence at the same hearing.—CHESNEY v. NEWSHOLME, NEWSHOLME v. CHESNEY, [1908] P. 301.

SECT. 10.—CENSURES OR PUNISHMENTS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

1587. Duty of judge to pronounce appropriate sentence.—(1) A judge has no discretion, while finding deft. guilty of ecclesiastical offences, to absolve him from all ecclesiastical censure or punishment for those offences, but should pronounce that which he considers to be an appropriate sentence.

(2) The case was remitted to the ct. below for that purpose as, except under peculiar circumstances, a ct. of final appeal ought not to decide any cause in the first instance.

(3) Although it may not be proper to institute a new suit for the mere purpose of punishing contumacy or disobedience to orders passed in a former suit, yet a new suit may be brought for new substantial offences, & the former disobedience be relied upon as a matter of aggravation.

(4) An order having the force of a definitive sentence may inflict canonical punishment, such as deprivation, degradation, & excommunication which cannot lawfully be inflicted for mere contumacy or contempt.—MARTIN v. MACKONOGHIE (1882), 7 P. D. 94; 51 L. J. P. C. 88; 40 L. T. 699; 46 J. P. 213; 31 W. R. 1, P. C.

1596. — — — — ——(1) Under the general ecclesiastical law the punishment of a beneficed clergyman, who is found to have published doctrine contrary to any of the Thirty-Nine Articles is in the judicial discretion of the ct. In the present case the ct. suspended deft. for one year ab officio et beneficio, monished him not to offend in like manner in future & condemned him in the costs.

(2) The true construction of the Articles, Formularies, & Canons has to be ascertained according to strict legal principles.

(3) The clergy are bound by Articles 6, 7, & 20, to conform to all the books of scripture declared by the Church to be canonical, & cannot publish or espouse any opinions to the contrary. Nevertheless the bona fide following or sanctioning conclusions of orthodox divines as to certain verses, or parts of the canonical books having been erroneously introduced into scripture, is not a derogation of the books themselves, or of their authority, & is therefore not an ecclesiastical offence.—*SALISBURY (BP.) v. 1600. Duration of monition.]—(1) Monitions in a criminal suit under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), against a clerk in orders, though general in terms & admonishing deft. to abstain for the future from the like offences to those the ct. at the hearing pronounced him to have committed, are not to be regarded as forbidding him under pain of being pronounced in contempt to resort at any time during his life to the practices from which he has been so admonished to abstain.

(2) Upon an application against a clerk in orders to enforce monitions by which he had been admonished to abstain in future from certain illegal practices in the conduct of Divine Service, it appeared that in July, 1885, deft., a clerk in orders, holding a benefice within the province of York, had been pronounced by the ct. to have, in July, 1884, committed certain offences in matters of ritual when officiating in his church; that two monitions to abstain from the like offences, dated Dec. 31, 1885, & June 7, 1886, obedience to which it was sought to enforce, had been duly served on him on Jan. 2, 1886, & June 13, 1886, respectively; that, founded upon disobedience to the former of these two monitions, a decree of suspension ab officio for six months had been pronounced against him in the same suit in Apr. 1886, & subsequently, the suspension having been disregarded, proceedings by way of significavit had been taken, under which he was imprisoned from May 4, 1887, to May 20 in that year: that during all the time between Aug. 7, 1886, & April 28, 1887, & between May 20, 1887, & Aug. 7, 1890, proceedings in the temporal cts. were pending relative to & in connection with the suit; & that in Oct. 1890, deft. when officiating in the church, repeated some of the offences he had been pronounced guilty of at the hearing. The application to enforce the monitions was made on Apr. 9, 1891; & there was no evidence before the ct. as to the conduct of deft. between May 20, 1887, & Oct. 19, 1890:—Held: having regard to the time which had elapsed since the expiration of the sentence of suspension, the application ought not to be granted. — HAKES v. 1607. ———. ———.]—Power of court.]—(1) In a criminal suit, articles, which charged the vicar of a parish with having offended against the laws ecclesiastical by several illegal ceremonial acts & observances during the celebration of divine service in his parish church, were duly proved, & deft. was ordered to file in the registry a declaration stating whether he would in future abstain from the matters set forth in the articles, with intimation that should he repeat the same & not abstain therefrom, the ct. would proceed as by law directed. Deft. did not file any such declaration, & afterwards repeated certain of the matters set forth in the articles. On proof of the repetition of the last-mentioned matters, the ct. on motion by the promoter & without fresh articles being exhibited, suspended deft. ab officio et a beneficio for six months. Afterwards the promoter proved by affidavit that deft., subsequently to the date of the sentence of suspension, had officiated in his parish church & had repeated certain of the matters before complained of, & moved the ct. to enforce the sentence of suspension.

Before the motion was disposed of the Q. B. D. prohibited the Dean of Arches from enforcing a decree of suspension, in a similar case. The Dean of Arches, in deference to the decision of the Q. B. D., though strongly dissenting from it, ordered the motion to stand over:—Held: (2) the facts of the present case being similar, the judgment must be followed, but the authority of decided cases & the established practice of the ct. showed that the sentence, the execution of which the Q. B. D. had prohibited, was within the jurisdiction of the ct.; & the Q. B. D. had exceeded their jurisdiction in reviewing decisions of the Privy Council; the Q. B. D. had no power to interfere with the Ct. of Arches by way of prohibition in a matter over which the Ct. of Arches had jurisdiction, & the ancient practice of the Ecclesiastical Cts. showed that a monition did prolong the jurisdiction of the ct. so as to warrant punishment, for a repetition of the offence, as for contumacy.—COMBE v. EDWARDS (1878), 3 P. D. 103; 42 J. P. 820; sub nom. COOMBE v. EDWARDS, 39 L. T. 295.

SUB-SECT. 4. — SUSPENSION.

1614. Nature of punishment General rule.

(1) Where a beneficed clergyman charged with an offence by report of comrs. under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), s. 5, consents, under sect. 6, to abide the judgment of the bishop without further proceedings, & is thereupon sentenced to suspension from the functions & emoluments of his office for a term of years, the bishop may lawfully make it a part of such sentence that, when the term expires, the suspended party shall produce a certificate of his good behaviour during such term, under the hands of three beneficed clergymen in his vicinity, such certificate to be approved of by the bishop before the suspension be taken off; & that the suspension shall continue, notwithstanding the expiration of the term, until such approval.

(2) Suspension may be of several kinds; it may be for a limited time, or it may be unqualified in its duration. If it is suspension for ever, it takes the name of deprivation; they are eiusdem generis. As to the bishop taking it for granted at the end of the time of his suspension that during that time he had conducted himself well, it is improper to expect the bishop to assume anything of the kind, & yet if appet. has not done so, he is unfit to resume his duties in the parish. The added condition seems to me most reasonable, & when appet. submitted himself to this particular jurisdiction, he was bound to know that he was taking the case out of the rules of the general law (COLERIDGE, J.).—Ex p. 1618. ———. ———.] (1) The ordinary sentence of deprivation in use in the ecclesiastical cts. is not limited to the particular preferment or benefice stated in the articles to be held by resp., but extends to all ecclesiastical promotions within the jurisdiction held by resp. at the time that sentence is pronounced.

(2) It is contrary to the practice of the Ct. of Arches to pronounce a sentence of perpetual suspension from the performance of Divine Service against a resp. who holds a benefice of which the ct. has jurisdiction to deprive him. The articles in a criminal suit by letters of request under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 86), contained allegations charging that resp. was perpetual curate of the parish of A., in the diocese of London, & that he had within two years of the institution of the suit committed, repeated & aggravated offences against the laws ecclesiastical in matters of ritual whilst officiating in the performance of Divine Service in the parish church of A. At the hearing of the suit the above-mentioned allegations were held to be proved, & the Official Principal, in his discretion, condemned resp. in costs, but refused to pronounce any sentence of deprivation or canonical punishment. The promoter appealed, & the appeal having been allowed, the Queen in Council remitted the cause, with an intimation that resp. ought to be canonically punished. After the cause had been so remitted, but before the terms of the remission had been complied with, resp. resigned the perpetual curacy of A. & was instituted to the incumbency of P. in the diocese of London. On the cause subsequently coming on for sentence, the Official Principal of the Ct. of Arches pronounced sentence depriving resp. of all ecclesiastical promotions within the province of Canterbury of which he was possessed when the sentence was pronounced & of all the ecclesiastical emoluments thereto belonging.—MARTIN v. 1641.—It is the constant practice in Ecclesiastical Cts. to repel the testimony of persons present at clandestine marriages till they have been absolved. Persons present at such marriages are excommunicated ipso facto, & in our cts. it is not thought necessary to have a declaratory sentence of an excommunication ipso facto, for the ct. can ex officio take notice of it (SIR E. SIMPSON).—SCHIMSHIRE v. SCRIMSHIRE (1752) 2 Hag. Con. 395; 161 E. R. 782.

1643. Who can be excommunicated—Party outside diocese.—A bishop can only excommunicate a person within his diocese, though for purposes of ordination he is bishop for all England (WHITELOCK, J.).—BROWN'S CASE (1626), Benl. 200; 73 E. R. 1057.

1644.—An inhabitant of Yorkshire was excommunicated in Worcester diocese.—WILLIMOT v. WORCESTER (CHANCELLOR) (1706), 11 Mod. Rep. 83; 88 E. R. 909.

1645.—At time of citation.]—(1) A writ de excommunicato capiendo stated that deft. was excommunicated in a cause of "defamation & slander merely spiritual":—Held: sufficient.

(2) If the sentence of the greater, instead of the lesser, excommunication be pronounced, it is only a ground of appeal: but this ct. will not quash a writ de excommunicato capiendo for that objection.

(3) It is not necessary that deft. should be resident in the diocese at the time of the excommunication; it is sufficient if he were there at the time of the citation.—R. v. PAYTON (1707), 7 Term Rep. 153; 101 E. R. 906.

Annotation:—As to (2) Reid. Martin v. Mackonochie (1879) 4 Q. B. D. 697.

1646.—Bishop.]—(1) A bishop may be excommunicated & an excommunicato capiendo lies against him.

(2) A writ of excommunicato capiendo reciting that the party was condemned in costs in quodam negotio officii sive correctionis is bad for uncertainty.—R. v. WATSON (1702), 2 Ld. 1647. Certificate of excommunication—By whom made.—(1) An excommunication must be certified by the bishop, & not by his official or commissary, for the bishop is the immediate officer to the ct.; & none shall certify an excommunication whereby any shall be disabled, but he to whom the ct. may write to absolve the party excommunicated.

(2) A certificate directed to a particular ct. & in a particular manner, shall not be extended further.

(3) The certificate ought not to be general, but ought to show the speciality of the cause for which the party is excommunicated.

(4) The bishop must certify that which hath been sentenced in his own ct. & not in another ct.

(5) If the bishop makes a certificate, & dies before it be received, it is a nullity; but his successor ought to certify.

(6) If the bishop is in remotis agendis, the vicar-general may certify an excommunication; a bishop may certify after election & before consecration.—TROLLOP'S CASE (1608), 8 Co. Rep. 68 a; 77 E. R. 577.

SUB-SECT. 8.—ENFORCEMENT OF SENTENCES, DECREES AND ORDERS.

A. In General.

1691. Condition precedent—Service of order.]—Whatever is to be done personally by the party principal in the cause requires, in strictness, a personal service of the notice, or decree, for doing it, upon the party principal. Hence, the service of a decree for answers upon the proctor will not justify the ct. in putting the principal in contempt, if those answers are not brought in.—DURANT v. DURANT (1822), 1 Add. 114; 162 E. R. 40.

Annotation:—Mentid, Swift v. Swift (1832), 4 Hag. Ecc. 139.

1692. Successful party in contempt of Court of King's Bench.]—The ct. will not withhold the enforcement of its order, by reason that the party obtaining such order is in contempt of the Ct. of K. B., & is resident out of the country, in order to evade the process of that ct.—GREENHILL v. GREENHILL (1836), 1 Curt. 462; 163 E. R. 102.

Annotations:—Apld, Morse v. Morse (1846), 5 Notes of Cases, 49. Mentid, Hope v. Hope (1854), 18 Jur. 1086.

1693. Appeal—Confirmation of sentence—Republishing.]—In a suit for brawling in the parish church deft. was sentenced by the Arches Ct. of Canterbury to suspension from his clerical duties for a period of eight calendar months, to be computed from the time of the publication of the sentence. Against that sentence deft. appealed. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council affirmed the sentence of the Arches Ct. & remitted the cause. On a motion that the proceedings might now go on "according to the tenor of former acts," & that the sentence of suspension might be republished:—Held: the ct. would not decree the republication of the sentence.

I must have all the facts before me as to the effect of the different dates. All I can do now is to decree that the proceedings go on according to the tenor of former acts (SIR H. JENNER PUST).—BURDER v. LANGLEY (1814), 2 L. T. O. S. 286.

(b) Signification of Contempt.

1698. Who may signify—Monition issued by three delegates—Significavit by two.]—(1) A writ de contumace capiendo was directed to the Sheriff of Herefordshire & commanded him to take R. of P., in the County of Radnor:—Held: to be bad.

(2) One of these writs recited a significavit by two delegates appointed under a commission, of a contempt in disobeying a monition issued by three delegates:—Held: bad, on the ground that the two could not signify the contempt.—R. v. RICKETTS (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 537; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 680; Will. Woll. & Dav. 294; 6 L. J. K. B. 172; 1 J. P. 197; 112 E. R. 206.

Annotation:—Reid, R. v. Baines (1840), 12 Ad. & El. 210.

1699. ———— Surrogate of bishop's principal official.]—The surrogate of the bishop's official principal is not the proper party to signify the contumacy of deft., in a suit before him as judge of the Consistory Ct.; & this both before & after Ecclesiastical Cts. Act, 1813 (c. 127); & where deft. is taken under a contumace capiendo issued upon such certificate, this ct. will discharge him out of custody.—R. v. JONES (1839), 10 Ad. & El. 576; 113 E. R. 218.

Annotation:—Consd. Dale's Case, Enright's Case (1881), 6 Q. B. D. 376.

1700. ———— Official principal.]—R. v. BAINES, No. 1185, ante.

1701. Whether foundation for significavit—No pronouncement of contempt.]—Deft. condemned in the rate & costs, disobeying a monition to pay the same, the ct. was moved to pronounce him in contempt, but "reserved its pain" & being moved to signify his contempt, refused. On appeal:—Held: deft. not having been pronounced in contempt, there was nothing on which to found a significavit.—BERMAN & CHATTAWAY v. GREVES (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 550.

1702. Form of significavit—Sufficiency of contents—Description of suit.]—Ecclesiastical Courts Act, 1813 (c. 127), substitutes the writ de contumace capiendo for the old writ de excommunicato capiendo, & directs that the former shall be considered in the same way, & be open to the same objections as the latter. Therefore where deft. was committed by an ecclesiastical judge of appeal for contumacy in not paying costs, & the significavit only described the suit to be "a certain cause of appeal, & complaint of nullity" without showing that deft. was committed for a cause within the jurisdiction of the spiritual judge:—Held: deft. was entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus.—R. v. DUGGER (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 791; 1 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 460; 2 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 118; 100 E. R. 1280.

1708. Validity of writ Decree not properly exhibited.—Where a writ de contumace capiendo issued under Ecclesiastical Cts. Act, 1813 (c. 127), signified "that deft. was pronounced guilty of a contempt of the law & jurisdiction ecclesiastical, in not having obeyed a decree made upon him to perform the usual penance in the parish church of St. M. in a certain cause of defamation"; & it appeared that at the time sentence was pronounced, a schedule of penance was made out, but which by the practice of the ecclesiastical ct. could not be delivered to deft. until he had paid costs of suit:—Held: he ought to have had the decree exhibited to him in its more perfect form, before he could be in contempt, especially as nothing was said in the significavit about costs.—*R. v. 1717. Release—Who may apply.—At the hearing of the matter of a representation made under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), against the rector of a parish church in the diocese of Manchester & province of York, the Official Principal of the Chancery Ct. of York pronounced that deft. when officiating in the parish church had committed certain offences against ecclesiastical law, & on June 27, 1879, issued a monition admonishing him to refrain from such offences for the future. Deft. failed to obey the monition, & the Official Principal, in Aug. 1879, by an inhibition under the above Act, inhibited him for three months, & until the inhibition had been relaxed, from performing the services of the church or exercising the cure of souls within the diocese of Manchester. Whilst the inhibition was still in force deft. disobeyed it by officiating in the parish church on several occasions, & thereupon his contempt was signified to the Queen in Chancery, & he was in Mar. 1881, taken into custody under a writ de contumace capiendo. In Aug. 1882, deft. still remained in custody under the writ, but, by the operation of the Act, ceased to be rector of the parish. The Bishop of Manchester then applied to the Official Principal for the discharge of deft. The application was neither supported by deft. nor opposed by complainants:—Held: (1) the application was rightly made by the Bishop of Manchester: (2) deft. had "satisfied his contempt" within Ecclesiastical Cts. Act, 1813 (c. 127), & a writ of deliverance in the form prescribed by that statute ought to issue for his discharge.—DEAN v. GREEN (1882), 8 P. D. 79; 40 J. P. 742.

1719. — ———.]—(1) After the hearing of the matter of a representation in which the vicar of a parish was the party complained of, a monition issued admonishing the vicar to abstain from certain unlawful ceremonies & observances during the performance of divine service in the parish church. The vicar disobeyed this monition, & was served with an inhibition under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), inhibiting him for the term of three months from performing divine service within the diocese. Afterwards, & whilst the inhibition was still in force, complainants applied to the ct. on affidavits, which alleged that since the inhibition the vicar had performed divine service in the church, & had there continued the ceremonies & observances from which he had been admonished to abstain, & had also obstructed the curate appointed by the bishop of the diocese from entering the church, & prayed that the vicar should be pronounced contumacious. Thereupon the vicar was pronounced by the ct. to be contumacious; & his contempt having been signified to the Queen in Chancery, he was arrested & imprisoned under a writ de contumace capiendo. Shortly after the vicar had been thus arrested, divine service was, without any opposition being offered, performed in the church by the curate appointed by the bishop, & complainants applied to the ct. of motion that the vicar should be released: The ct. ordered that the vicar should be forthwith released without previous payment of the costs of his contempt, but without prejudice to any other remedy for such costs; & that such costs should be recoverable as costs in the cause.

1722. Writ of capias cum proclamatione.—Validity.—Discontinuance in same term as return of writ de contumace capiendo.—By a writ of capias cum proclamatione for contempt in not paying costs in the Ecclesiastical Ct. it appeared that a writ de contumace capiendo had, issued in the same cause, returnable Jan. 11, 1838, & had been duly returned, non est inventus; wherefore, the present writ commanded the sheriff to take deft. if found in his bailiwick, & him safely keep, etc., & if he were not found, then to cause proclamation to be made, according to 5 Eliz. c. 23, & Ecclesiastical Cts. Act, 1813 (c. 127). The latter writ was tested May 24, 1838, & did not show any continuance of process from Jan. 11 to May 24. The return of the writ de contumace capiendo was "of Trinity term" 1838, & contained this memorandum, "Received June 13, 1838." On application to set aside the capias, it appeared by affidavit that there had not in fact been any continuance: that the first writ had not been lodged with the sheriff till after the return day; that he made the return on June 13, after he was out of office; & that the capias issued on June 21:—Held: the writ was irregular, because the proceedings did not show a proper continuance.—*R. v. 1737. Application of consecrated land to secular purposes—Discretion of ecclesiastical courts.]—

(1) Land once consecrated is consecrated for ever, or, at any rate, until an Act of Parliament divests it of its sacred character; & no secular ct. has power to grant a faculty for the use of it for secular purposes, although the Ecclesiastical Cts. have jurisdiction to grant faculties, in their discretion, for the erection of buildings & the like in consecrated ground in certain circumstances.

(2) About 1750 a society, which had no trust deed & was not incorporated, was formed of the subscribers towards the foundation of an infirmary for the benefit of the sick & lame poor of certain counties, & in 1752 a lease of land was granted to trustees for the society for a term of years subsequently renewed until 1951. On this land an infirmary was erected, & one of the rooms in the building was appropriated as a chapel & was consecrated by the bishop of the diocese in 1754. From 1754 Church of England services were regularly conducted in the chapel by a chaplain who was a clergyman of that church, & down to 1859 was appointed by the governors of the society, receiving £10 a year under an agreement of the chaplaincy. In 1859 a lady settled a yearly stipend on the chaplain, who was to be appointed by her trustees, & from 1882 to 1906 a further but smaller annual sum was paid to him out of the society's general funds. In 1897, when the society had a written constitution embodied in statutes & rules which recognised & provided for services of the Church of England only in the chapel, the citizens of N., in which the infirmary was situate, subscribed £100,000 to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria by building a new infirmary on the site, & in lieu of the existing building; but a citizen of N. offered £100,000 to the governors towards building a new infirmary on a site different from that of the old infirmary on condition that the subscriptions to the new infirmary building fund became available for the general purposes of the institution & that another £100,000 should be subscribed. This offer was accepted, the lease of the old infirmary was surrendered under authority of an Act of Parliament which also enabled the corp'n. of N. to give a new site for the proposed infirmary, & in 1901, another donor gave £100,000 to be used for the building or endowment of the new infirmary as might seem best to the governors. The new site was conveyed to trustees as a site for the new infirmary, but without any express declaration of trust, & on this site, under the supervision of a building committee appointed by the governors, the new infirmary was built at a cost which absorbed the two sums given by the two individual donors. The plans provided for a chapel, the cost of building which came out of the subscribed funds generally, but the organ, altar, reredos, pulpit, lectern, furnishings & windows were provided by special donations from members of the Church of England. The building committee never considered the question of consecration. On the invitation of the house comnittee on the infirmary, & the petition of the trustees the bishop of the diocese consecrated the chapel:—Held: as the trustees had the bare legal estate & no powers, & the house committee's functions, under the society's constitution, were confined to the administration & management of the infirmary, the invitation to the bishop would have been ultra vires the committee if the old chapel had not been consecrated; but, as the prima facie intention of all parties was to reproduce as nearly as might be the state of things existing in the old infirmary, the committee had performed merely the ministerial duty of inviting the bishop to perform the ceremony necessary to give effect to that intention by replacing the old consecrated chapel through the consecration of the new one, & an action for a declaration that the chapel was held on trust for the general purposes of the charity, including the holding therein of religious services, whether of the Church of England or otherwise, failed.—*SUTTON v. SUB-SECT. 4.—GROUNDS FOR GRANTING OR REFUSING FACULTIES.

A. In General.

1743. Discretion of ordinary.—In 1891 a faculty issued from the registry of the Consistory Ct. of London authorising the rector & churchwardens of a parish in the City of London, in conjunction with a co. owning premises abutting on the churchyard of the parish, a churchyard closed for burials under Order in Council, to make a pathway inclosed on the sides by railings, across the churchyard from the co.'s premises to a public thoroughfare on the opposite side of the churchyard, provided a specified rent was paid to the rector & his successors during a term of years. The faculty recited an agreement between the rector & churchwardens & the co. whereby the former agreed to concur in granting to the co. a right of way over the pathway afterwards authorised by the faculty for the term, & on payment of the rent there mentioned; all the works to be done at the co.'s costs, & "such right of footway to be for themselves, their tenants & any others authorised by them in common with the rector & churchwardens & any others authorised by the rector & churchwardens." In 1892, after the co. had done & paid for the works & whilst the term of years was still unexpired, the rector & churchwardens agreed with other owners of premises abutting on the churchyard adjacent to the co.'s premises to concur in granting to such owners a right of footway over the pathway made under the faculty of 1891, subject to the rights of the co., & also over a new footpath to be made over a piece of the churchyard to join the footpath so already made, & petitioned the Consistory Ct. of London for a faculty to make a new footpath & to remove a portion of the above-mentioned railings; the owners of the premises desiring the right of way over the two footpaths intervening in support of the petition.

The Consistory Ct. of London held that the faculty asked for must be refused, as the faculty of 1891 had granted to the co. & their assigns the enjoyment for a term of years not yet expired of the pathway made under that faculty to the exclusion of the other occupiers of premises abutting on the churchyard, & the ordinary ought not to sanction by faculty anything being done in derogation of the exclusive right so granted. On appeal:—Held: the construction put on that faculty by the Ct. below was correct, & the grant or refusal of the faculty prayed being in the discretion of the ordinary, by whom that discretion had been properly exercised, the Appellate Ct. ought not to interfere, & the appeal must be dismissed.—*ST. B. Wishes of Parishioners.

1749. Whether necessary—Faculty entailing expense.]—This is an application to the ct. for the grant of a faculty for erecting an organ in the parish church of M. The law respecting church ornaments is now generally understood & settled. The consent of the parishioners is not indispensably necessary, unless to charge the parish with any expense for the support of the ornament after it has been put up. But if there is no such charge incurred, the approbation of the majority of the parishioners is not necessary, nor the disapprobation binding on the ordinary. Then if all objection on ground of expense is removed, the ordinary is not restrained by any want of consent on the part of the parish, which is only requisite when it is put to expense for things not necessary but merely ornamental. It may be difficult indeed in some cases to distinguish, whether an addition of this kind to the service of the church, is to be deemed necessary or ornamental, because organs, in some churches may be necessary, though in others only ornamental. In cathedral churches they would, I conceive, be deemed necessary, & the ordinary might compel the dean & chapter to erect an organ as proper & necessary for the service usually performed in such places. In parish churches it would be otherwise; & though I do not concur in the observation, that organs in such places are to be generally discouraged; it might be proper to do so in some cases, & it would depend on the circumstances of the parish, what judgment the ct. would form on the particular case. There may, however, be the expenses arising out of it, as for erecting & keeping in order, & for an organist; & as these may fall on the parish, it may render the consent of the parishioners necessary. On the effect of consent I am disposed to hold the majority of the parish binding on such a question as this, though it might not bind in all cases, as if an organ was to be voted without the authority of the ordinary. In all cases where the parish is competent to act by its own power, it is the majority which must bind; & the majority of a vestry, in cases fit to be there decided, will bind the minority of the parish, though it will not bind the ordinary, in matters subject to his discretion; & if he sees that many of the parishioners object, though they may be the minority, it may be very proper, that he should not be totally inattentive to their opinion. It is usual, therefore, in cases of mere ornament, to tender affidavits showing what the majority in vestry was, in order that the ct. may ascertain what may fairly be considered the predominant wish of the parish. The consent, however, of the parishioners is not the only thing that is material, since the measure may be improper, in consideration of the parish or of the church, or private rights may be affected. It might be the duty of the ordinary, therefore, under particular circumstances, to interpose, & protect the parish from its own indiscretion (SIR WILLIAM SCOTT).—ST. JOHN'S, MARGATE (CHURCHWARDENS) v. ST. JOHN'S, MARGATE (PARISHIONERS, ETC.) (1794), 1 Hag. Con. 108; 161 E. R. 524.

1753. — — —.]—The rector & churchwardens of a parish petitioned the ordinary for a faculty enabling them to substitute for the east end window, almost entirely glazed with plain glass, then existing in the chancel of their parish church, a stained glass memorial window, the cost of which was to be paid for by a parishioner subsequently added as a petitioner. No serious objection was raised to the design of the proposed window; but the grant of the faculty was opposed on the grounds that the majority of the parishioners desired that the existing window should remain unaltered, & that by the erection of the stained glass window the ventilation of the church would suffer, & the chancel be darkened so as to render it inconvenient for public worship. The judge of the Consistory Ct. of the diocese found that the last two of these grounds of objection were not sustained by the evidence, decreed the faculty to issue as prayed, & condemned the opponents in costs. On appeal:—Held: although it was proposed to place the stained glass window in the chancel the discretion of the ordinary as to granting or refusing the faculty was the same as if it had been proposed to place the window in any other part of the church; (2) assuming the evidence proved that the majority of the parishioners wished that the existing window should be retained, their wishes in no wise fettered the Ordinary in exercising such discretion; (3) the ct. below had come to a right conclusion on the evidence, & the decree appealed from must, so far as it directed the faculty to issue, be confirmed; (1) the decree must be varied as regards costs, & each party be left to bear their own costs both in the Appellate Ct. & the ct. below.

1756. ———.]—The rector of a parish church placed a picture of the Crucified Saviour near the pulpit in the parish church without consulting the churchwardens or the congregation. The vestry resolved by 37 votes to 27 that the parishioners should apply for a faculty to remove the picture. On the application for a faculty to confirm the rector's action:—Held: as the introduction of such a picture had not been sanctioned by authority, & as it had not been shown by petitioners that there was a general desire on the part of the churchgoing parishioners for its introduction, a faculty must be decreed for the removal of the picture.—*HUDSON v. The churchwardens, with the concurrence of the vestry, petitioned for a faculty directing the replacement of the reading desk, clerk's desk, & the pews, & for the removal of the choristers' benches. The rector asked for a faculty confirmatory of the alterations:—Held: the reading desk being directed by Canon 82 to be provided at the charge of the parish, & the clerk's desk & pews being the common property of the parish, & it being the wish of the vestry that they should be replaced, petitioners were entitled to a faculty for their restoration, & also for the removal of the choristers' benches, on their providing convenient seats elsewhere for the choristers.—*SERJEANT v. 1763. ———.]—At the time of the erection of a new church, which on consecration became the parish church of A., the foundations were laid & the designs prepared for a stone pulpit, but, from want of funds at the time, a temporary wooden pulpit was placed in the church. Some years afterwards, certain persons connected with the parish gave directions for the execution of the new pulpit, & having raised a portion of the estimated cost of it by voluntary contributions, & given security for the rest, so that the parish could not incur any liability in the matter, they applied to the proper ct. for leave to fix it in the church. Defts., acting on a resolution of the vestry of the parish, refused to consent to the erection of the new pulpit until the debt for the building of the church itself had been paid off. No objection was made to the character or ornamentation of the proposed new pulpit:—Held: as the parish had already provided a substantial pulpit, which continued in good order & was in no way dilapidated, the ct. could not, against the expressed objection of the vestry, order the removal of such temporary pulpit, & that it should be replaced by a new one; but it might allow a faculty to issue on the terms proposed by the vestry.—*JACKSON v. 1764. ———.]—The rector of a parish church applied for a faculty to make certain alterations, at his own expense, in the furniture & fittings of the church, which were not in a dilapidated state. The churchwardens, acting on behalf of the parishioners, opposed the grant of the faculty. Appt. having failed to show either that the existing arrangements in the fittings of the church were so inconvenient & uncomfortable as to deter the parishioners from attending divine service, or that the proposed alterations were so clearly for the increased comfort & advantage of the parishioners as to induce the ct. to overrule their opposition, the faculty was refused.—*EVANS v. 1768. ———.]—Where the vestry of a parish & petitioners are unanimous, or substantially so, in favour of accepting a presentation picture of merit for the decoration of their parish church, the introduction of the picture into the church may be properly sanctioned by a faculty, unless the picture appears to be likely to be abused by superstitious reverence, or be otherwise inappropriate in a church, or be such as might reasonably give offence to present or future parishioners; but where it was proposed that such a picture should be introduced into the church of an admirably worked parish, & conscientious objections which might be entertained by members of the congregation, without disparagement to the views of others in favour of it, were taken to it as a church decoration by a substantial minority of resident parishioners who were members of the Church of England, & it appeared that its introduction into the church would offend the religious feelings of that minority & introduce discord into the parish where it had never existed before:—

1772. Application for faculty for removal of ornaments—Application by defendants for confirmatory faculty—Whether fresh suit & citation necessary.—The vicar & one of the churchwardens, & the parishioners & inhabitants of a parish, were cited in the Consistory Ct. to show cause why a faculty should not be granted for the removal of certain additions & articles alleged to have been placed in the church without a faculty. An appearance was entered on behalf of the vicar & the churchwarden. They brought in an Act on petition which concluded with a prayer to the judge to direct the issue of a faculty confirming the placing of the additions & articles in the church. The judge directed this prayer to be struck out of the act on petition:—Held: the prayer ought not to have been struck out, & defendants below were entitled to pray for a confirmatory faculty without the issue of a fresh citation.—(*GARDNER v. Hearing—Intervention by parochial church council.—(1) In a cause of faculty commenced by citation in the Consistory Ct., praying for the removal of certain ornaments alleged to have been illegally placed in a parish church, the Chancellor ordered the faculty to issue within one month without informing himself at the hearing of the views of the parochial church council. The parochial church council allowed the month to elapse, & on its expiry applied for prohibition on the grounds that they had not been cited, & that their views had not been considered:—Held: even if the alleged error were one of jurisdiction, & not merely of procedure, still there had been such unreasonable delay on the part of the council that prohibition should be refused as a matter of discretion.

1799. — — — — ——Applt., a clerk in orders officiating as a minister of the Church of England in a colony, was nominated to a church built & endowed by a private individual residing in the colony. Applt. was not instituted or inducted into his church & benefice, but he received from the bishop of the colony a licence to officiate, & have the cure of souls within the district assigned to the church, & took an oath of canonical obedience to the bishop. The bishop, without the authority of the Crown or of the local legislature, convened a synod in the colony, to be composed partly of clergy & partly of lay delegates elected in the different parishes of the diocese. Applt. was summoned to attend the synod, & was directed to take steps for the election of a lay delegate in his parish; but he refused to attend the synod, & neglected to take any steps to forward the election of a delegate; he was consequently cited to appear before the bishop & for this disobedience he was first suspended, & afterwards deprived of his benefice:—Held: the oath of canonical obedience does not mean that the clergyman will obey all the commands of the bishop, against which there is no law, but that he will obey all such commands as the bishop by law is authorised to impose.—*LONG v. 1800. False pretence of Holy Orders—Bishop's licence to curacy—To unordained person—No defence.—(1) Where a person is indicted for falsely pretending to be in holy orders, & solemnising matrimony according to the rites of the Church of England, the mere licence by the bishop to a curacy, or the institution by him to a benefice, which renders a clergyman compellable to perform the marriage ceremony between competent parties, is no defence if the person charged knows of the invalidity of the letters of orders on which he has been so licensed or instituted.

(2) Where a person is so indicted it is enough for the prosecution to show that the letters of orders which the person charged has held out to be genuine, & has put forward as a justification for presenting himself as a person in holy orders, are spurious, & it is not incumbent on the prosecution to show that he had no other valid orders.—*R. v. SECT. 2.—STATUS AND POWERS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

1806. Whether lost by holding cure outside England.—Cure within British Empire.—In 1854 a society, formed in 1849 & called the Friend of the Clergy, obtained a charter of incorporation. Its defined object was to provide permanent pensions for the widows & orphan unmarried daughters of "clergymen of the established church of England & Ireland" & to afford temporary assistance to necessitous "clergymen of such church" & their families. On Jan. 1, 1871, the Irish church was disestablished. On July 2, 1873, the original charter was confirmed with immaterial amendments. On Mar. 31, 1920, the Welsh church was disestablished:—Held: clergymen ordained to the ministry of the established church of England retained their status while holding a consistent cure in the disestablished churches of Wales or Ireland, or in the episcopal church of Scotland, or in the British Dominions, & they & their families were within the scope of the charter. Qu.: whether clergymen ordained to the ministry of the disestablished Welsh church, or of the episcopal church of Scotland, or of the established church of England exclusively for service in the Dominions, or of a Dominion church, & not licensed to officiate in England, were within the scope of the charter.—*Re FRIEND OF THE CLERGY'S CHARTERS, FRIEND OF THE CLERGY v. 1807. Whether temporal rights lost by negligence.—One rule applicable to ecclesiastical & lay persons.—Defts., copyholders of a manor, claimed a custom to dig sand from their copyhold tenements; & the practice of digging for this was carried back by the evidence to 27 years, & no more, before the filing of the bill:—Held: (1) Prescription Act, 1831 (c. 72), s. 1, applies only to cases where one man claims, by custom, prescription or grant, some profit or benefit to be taken from or enjoyed upon the land of another; & has no application to the case of a right claimed by a copyholder in his own tenement; (3) the true meaning of sect. 8 of the Act seems to be that no presumption or inference in support of the claim is to be derived from the bare fact of user or enjoyment for less than the prescribed number of years; but where there are other circumstances in addition, the Act does not take away from the fact of enjoyment for a shorter period its natural weight with a jury as evidence; (3) the fact of the late lords of the manor being ecclesiastical persons made no difference.

(4) I cannot listen to the suggestion that the late lords of the manor were ecclesiastical persons & negligent of their rights. There must be one rule applicable to the ecclesiastical person as well as to the layman (LORD WESTHURST, L.C.).—HANMER v. CHANCE (1865), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 626; 6 New Rep. 4; 31 L. J. 1808. "Reverend"—Whether belonging exclusively to clergy of Church of England.—The word "Reverend" is nothing more than a laudatory epithet. It is not a title of honour to be exclusively possessed by the clergy of the Established Church, as having episcopal ordination.

Appl't. was described on a tombstone as "The Rev. H. K., Wesleyan minister":—Held: this was not a sufficient reason for refusing a faculty for the erection of such tombstone.—KERR v. SMITH (1876), 1 P. D. 73; 45 L. J. P. C. 10; 33 L. T. 794; 40 J. P. 100; 21 W. R. 375, P. C.

1809. Whether subject to bankruptcy laws.—A commission of bkpcy. was taken out against petitioner, who insisted that, as he was a clergyman, he was not liable to become bkpt. within the intent of any of the bkpt. statutes. The Lord Chancellor would not supersede the commission, or direct an issue, but left petitioner to his action at law.—Ex p. MEYMOY (1747), 1 Atk. 106; 26 E. R. 127.

a. General rule.—A priest is entitled to have his political opinions, & to exercise his legitimate influence legitimately. It is a mistake to suppose that on a man taking holy orders he ceases to be a citizen, or ceases to be clothed with all the privileges & rights of a citizen. But a priest has no privilege to violate or abuse the law; he has no right to interfere with the rights & privileges of other subjects. He may exercise his own privileges, but he must forbear in respect of others. It is also a mistake to suppose that every act of a priest is a spiritual act; an assault by a priest is simply an assault & not priestly intimidation; & the assault of a priest can & ought to be resented & prosecuted & punished like any other individual.—TIFFERARY CASE (1870), 2 Q. M. & H. 31.—IR.

A clergyman of the Established Church who, during the vacancy, by resignation, of the living of a parish, has been requested by the churchwardens to perform the duty of curate, & has been authorised, by a letter sent by the bishop's direction, but without licence under the bishop's hand & seal, to perform such duty, is a curate within the above enactment.—*DICKINSON v. cases, & the bishop alone, with the consent of the patron & incumbent, in others, shall assign to the minister of the district church—the term “chapelry” means a legal parochial chapelry, & therefore, one which is immemorial.

Upon a trial, where the question was, whether the chapelry of H. was a legal parochial chapelry :—Held : (1) the statement of a witness, that he had heard from a former incumbent of H. that the people of four townships & another parish came to the chapelry, was admissible in evidence, inasmuch as the rights of the chapel in question were sufficiently of a public nature to make reputation admissible; (2) a case stated by a deceased incumbent of H. for the opinion of a proctor, with his opinion thereon, was admissible, on the same principle as the statement of a deceased occupier, which qualified his estate, would be admissible; (3) the answer of the incumbent of H., & other clergymen, to questions sent by the Bishop of C., the diocesan, for the information of the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, at the time an augmentation was made, was admissible, as being in the nature of an inquisition on a public matter.—(AUB v. 1861. Spiritual nature of benefice.]—A benefice is not made spiritual because it can be held only by a person in holy orders; it is the object for which the house is established that makes it a spiritual or lay foundation. If a hospital be established for the relief of the poor, & if there be no cure of souls attached to it, it is a lay foundation, although the founder shall have annexed, as a qualification for the office, that no person shall be master or warden of it except a clerk in holy orders (SIR JOHN ROMILLY, M.R.).—A.-G. v. St. CROSS HOSPITAL (1853), 17 Beav. 435; 1 Eq. Rep. 585; 22 L. J. Ch. 793; 22 L. T. O. S. 188; 1 W. R. 525; 51 E. R. 1103.

1862. Incumbent privy in law to patron.]—An incumbent who comes into a benefice is a privy in law to the patron who appointed him, so as to be entitled to the benefit, & subject to the burden, of the same estoppel as the patron.

R., the incumbent of a living, sent in his resignation of the benefice to the bishop, on the understanding that the resignation was not to be formally accepted, nor the benefice declared vacant, until a date agreed upon between himself & the bishop. Before this date arrived R. withdrew his resignation, but the bishop refused to accept the withdrawal, & at the time agreed upon declared the benefice vacant, after which the patrons appointed another incumbent, who was duly instituted & inducted into the benefice. R. brought an action against the bishop to have his resignation declared null & void. To this action the patrons of the living were parties, & the sole question was whether the resignation was effectual, & it was decided against R. that the resignation was effectual & complete. R. refused to give up the parsonage-house & glebe lands, & in an action, brought against him by the new incumbent, for an injunction to restrain him from continuing in wrongful possession of the premises & for trespass, R. set up, substantially, the same defence as in the former action, namely, that his resignation was not effectual :—Held : as the question of the effectuality of the resignation was raised patrons were parties, & as R. would have been estopped from raising that question again in any proceedings between himself & the patrons, he was also estopped from raising the same question as a defence against the incumbent, who, as being a privy in law to the patrons, was entitled to take advantage of the same estoppel, & such defence should be struck out as frivolous & vexatious.—MAGRATH v. (2) The parson, patron, & ordinary, may create a vicarage without the King's assent.

(3) Since 4 Hen. 4, c. 12, a vicarage cannot be dissolved.

(4) The vicarage does not pass by a grant from the King of the rectory or parsonage.

(5) The original of vicarages is uncertain.

(6) The parson & vicar may have the cure of souls, the one habitualiter, the other actualiter.

(7) A vicar is spiritual as to the cure, & temporal as to the corp.

(8) The King's assent is necessary to unite a vicarage to a deanery & chapter, or to dissolve it into a parsonage appropriately.

(9) Since 31 Hen. 8, c. 13, the ordinary cannot dissolve a vicarage when the parsonage is in lay hands.—BRITTON v. WADE (1620), Cro. Jac. 515; 79 E. R. 440; sub nom. BRITTON v. WARD, Palm. 113; 2 Roll. Rep. 97, 127; sub nom. WARD v. BRITTON, Palm. 219, Ex. Ch.

1884. Rights of perpetual curate—As to church & churchyard—Right to maintain trespass—Against churchwarden unlawfully entering.]—

(1) The perpetual curate of an augmented parochial chapelry has a sufficient possession whereon to maintain trespass for breaking & entering the chapel & destroying the pews.

(2) A chapelwarden of a parochial chapelry has not, by virtue of his office, any authority to enter the chapel & remove the pews, without the consent of the perpetual curate.—JONES v. ELLIS (1828), 2 Y. & J. 265; 148 E. R. 918.

1886. — Right to bring action as to site of ruins.]—This action was brought by the perpetual curate & one of the churchwardens of the parish church of M. against the lord of the manor to recover possession of certain ruins which were formerly choir aisles & transepts of the church, but had been in possession of the lord of the manor since the dissolution of the lesser monasteries in 1535. The parish church, as it is now, & had been for generations, used, consisted of the tower & choir only of a larger church, which had been at some time walled off from the ruined aisles & transepts. The question was whether the original church had been a parish church appropriated to the priory, or a conventual church in part of which the parishioners had been allowed to worship. The site of the priory which included the church if it was conventual had been granted by the Crown to depts. predecessors in title, & they had been in possession of the ruins ever since. A preliminary objection was taken that plffs. had no right to sue:—Held: (1) one of two churchwardens cannot sue alone, & as against the churchwardens the objection was good; (2) a perpetual curate has sufficient possession of everything which forms part of the parish church to enable him to sue for possession & for rights over the church for the spiritual purposes of his cure, & against him the objection failed.—FOWKE v. BERINGTON, [1914] 2 Ch. 308; 83 L. J. Ch. 820, 878; 111 L. T. 440; 58 Sol. Jo. 379, 610.

manor, & the owner mortgages the manor in fee, excepting the advowson, by this means it is become in gross; but if the money be paid punctually at the day, then it is become appendant again, & if it is paid after the day, it is appendant in reputation, & may pass by the name of an advowson appendant in a grant or other conveyance, though in reality the appendancy is destroyed; for if it is severed one instant from the manor, by the act of the party, it is then in gross, & not appendant (HOLT, C.J.).

(2) So where the owner of a manor, to which an advowson was appendant, accepts a fine of the advowson, with a grant & render back of every second turn; now for such turn the advowson is in gross, but for other turns the appendancy still continues; but if a man levy a fine of the advowson, & accepts a grant & render of every other turn, the appendancy is quite gone, because there was an instant of time in which it became severed (HOLT, C.J.).

(3) So where there are two coparceners of a manor, to which an advowson is appendant, & they make partition of the manor, without taking notice of the advowson, at every other turn it is still appendant; but if there had been any express exception of the advowson, it would then be in gross (HOLT, C.J.)—*R. v. 1920. — — — — — Deed of consolidation.]—By an act of union or deed of consolidation, dated in 1738, the rectory & parish of P. were incorporated with the vicarage & church of D. to all intents & purposes in law whatsoever, constituting & appointing the church of D. to be the mother church to which, together with the rectory of P., all future incumbents should be promoted, instituted, & inducted. At the date of the union there was only one patron of the two benefices, & no provision was made by the deed for alternate presentation or otherwise. By an order of exchange made in 1890 by the Board of Agriculture under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1878, & Board of Agriculture Act, 1889 (c. 30), certain lands & hereditaments in the two parishes including "the advowson of the vicarage of D.," were ordered to be exchanged:—Held: after the union the old advowsons ceased to exist, & what passed by the order of exchange under the description of "the advowson of the vicarage of D." was the advowson of the new united benefice of D.-cum-P.—ELCHO (LORD) v. ANDREWS, [1910] 1 Ch. 706; 79 L. J. Ch. 588; 102 L. T. 403, C. A.

1921. — — — — — Benefices held by several patrons—Deed of consolidation.]—A count in quare impedit stated that one A. was seised in fee of a moiety of the advowson of the church of Brauncwell-with-Dunsby-and-Anwick, & was entitled to present to same every alternate turn, the other moiety of the advowson belonging to B.; that A., in his turn, being so seised, presented C., who was on such presentation admitted, instituted, & inducted; that, afterwards, the church became vacant by the resignation of C., whereupon B. presented A., who was admitted, instituted, & inducted; that A., being so seised of the moiety of the advowson, died; that the moiety descended to pltf.; & that, the church having become vacant by the death of A., it belonged to pltf. to present in the turn of A. Deft. pleaded, that A. was not seised of a moiety of the advowson of the church of Brauncwell-with-Dunsby-and-Anwick, modo et forma. It was found, by a special verdict, that Brauncwell-with-Dunsby was a rectory, & Anwick a vicarage, the rectory having been theretofore appropriated & the vicarage endowed according to law; that R. being seised in fee of the advowson of the vicarage of Anwick, & the Earl of Bristol of the advowson of the rectory of Brauncwell-with-Dunsby, by deed, dated in Mar. 1703, reciting that the parties were desirous that the cure of the vicarage & rectory should both be supplied by one clerk, it was agreed, that, whenever the churches should be void, the Earl & R., their heirs & assigns, should present their clerks to the same alterius vicibus; that, in Apr. 1718, an act of union was made by the bishop of the diocese, with the consent of R., the then patron of the vicarage of Anwick, & the Earl of Bristol, the patron of the rectory of Brauncwell, & sealed with the episcopal seal, whereby the bishop "consolidated, united, & annexed the vicarage & parish church of Anwick, with its rights, etc., to the aforesaid rectory & parish church of Brauncwell, & did, by those presents, commit the cure of the souls of the parishioners of the church of Anwick to the then rector of the parish church of Brauncwell, & the rectors thenceforward for the time being of the church of Brauncwell, & decreed that the united churches should from that time be thereafter held & reputed as one benefice only, & that one fit person, at the alternate presentation of the Earl of Bristol & R., their heirs & assigns, to be canonically instituted, etc., should at all times thereafter possess same," etc. After the making of this act of union, no more separate presentations to the rectory of Brauncwell & vicarage of Anwick respectively were made; but from thenceforth one clerk was presented & instituted to the united benefice, by the name of "the rectory of Brauncwell-with-Anwick," in alternate turns, by the parties claiming title under R. & the Earl respectively. In Dec. 1760, R., son & heir of R. in the act of union mentioned, & S., his wife, conveyed to A. "all that the perpetual advowson, nomination, donation, or alternative right of presentation, & free disposition, of & to the vicarage of the parish church of Anwick aforesaid, & all other the manors or lordships, advowsons, impropriations, tenements, tithes, hereditaments, & parts & shares of manors or lordships, advowsons, etc., of them, the said R., & S., his wife, or either of them, situate & being in Anwick aforesaid." The special verdict further found that the title of A. to the moiety of the advowson of the church of Brauncwell-with-Dunsby-and-Anwick, in the declaration mentioned, was derived in no other way than by that indenture:—Held: (1) by the act of union, a new presentation benefice was created, wholly separate & distinct from the former benefices & the patronage of this new presentative benefice was in the owners of the former advowsons in turn—the advowsons remaining for this purpose unchanged in all their qualities, & transmissible as before; (2) the right which R. had was well described in the declaration as a "moiety of the advowson of the church of Brauncwell-with-Dunsby-and-Anwick, as in gross by itself, as of fee & right," & such right was duly conveyed to A. by the deed of Dec. 1760.—ROBINSON v. 1924. Church—Built before Church Building Acts—Rights of patron.—(1) Building & endowing of a church, did originally entitle the patron to the patronage. (2) The impropiator of a parish has no right to nominate a preacher to every chapel within the parish; it might be a hardship if he should be bound so to do; neither ought it to be at his election. (3) One may build a private chapel for himself & family, or for himself & neighbours, or for himself & twenty neighbours, & this will not give the parson a right to nominate a preacher there.—*HERBERT v. 1925. — Under Church Building Acts—Patronage in trustees—Death of trustees.—(1) By the Church Building Act, 1824 (c. 103), persons subscribing, under that Act, more than £50 towards building a church might elect three life trustees who for forty years might nominate a clerk to serve same.

(2) By sect. 7 of the Act when any of the trustees died, the majority of the subscribers, at a meeting to be called for that purpose, might elect a life trustee in his place, & by sect. 8 of the same Act if the subscribers should not exceed three, they were to be the life trustees.

(3) By sect. 12 if all the trustees should die so that no election could take place, the incumbent of the parish was to present.

A church was built by subscriptions raised in accordance with the Act, trustees were appointed, & all died but one. There was also a surviving subscriber who had not been a trustee. He did not then know that there was a surviving trustee, & called in due form a meeting of subscribers. The surviving trustee did not attend it; the subscriber did, & elected himself. He pursued the same course after becoming aware of the death of the last trustee. After each election of himself as trustee he nominated a clerk:—Held: he had not under the statute any title to make such nomination, which, therefore, conferred no title to admission.—*ALLEN v. 1930. — Nomination given elsewhere by archbishop.—(1) Vicar of the mother church has the right of nominating to a chapel of ease, though the chapel was erected & endowed by a grant of lands from the lord & freeholders of a manor, & though the right of nomination was given by the archbishop, in his deed of consecration, to the inhabitants & the vicar of the mother church at the time declared he had no right to nominate, & though the inhabitants have repaired & nominated for ninety years.

(2) Rector or vicar cannot lose the right but by agreement between patron, parson, & ordinary, & on a compensation made to such rector or vicar.

(3) Prescription presupposes agreement by deed, not by parol.—DIXON v. KERSHAW (1766), Amb. 528; 27 E. R. 341; sub nom. DIXON v. METCALFE, 2 Eden, 360.

(2) In 1631, A. founded a chapel of ease, & endowed it with lands for the maintenance of a minister, & by his will directed that his son should during his life have the nomination & election of the minister, & might by will or deed set down the order or course for the nomination & election of the minister after his death, & if he should not set down any course or order, then the minister should be nominated & elected by all the householders & heads of families in the township, & the heirs male of A.'s body, & such other of his kindred or blood as should have any land in the township, or the greater number of them. By the instrument of consecration all tithes, fees, & emoluments whatsoever on burials, marriages, etc., were reserved to the vicar of the parish. The son not having set down any order or course:—Held: the householders & heads of families in Astley had no right to present a curate to this chapel without the consent of the vicar.

(3) It is undoubtedly law, that wherever a chapel of ease is erected, the incumbent of the mother church is entitled to nominate the minister, unless

(2) It is not competent for any clergyman of the Church of England to enter a parish without leave of the incumbent & to officiate in performing the duties of his vocation (DR. LUSHINGTON).

The sole ground upon which the ordinary grants a licence is, that the right of nomination has vested in the person who has nominated the individual who comes so to be licensed. Where a party has obtained the authority of the ordinary, that authority is not conclusive. It is not competent for the ordinary himself without consent of the incumbent, to licence any person to officiate within the limits of the parish of that incumbent (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(3) It is a sufficient fulfilment of the Act to set apart a space which shall include the accommodation for children; for under this Act, the whole of the accommodation as free seats is not for adult persons only. 1957. Tenants in common—Distinguished from coparceny—Turns decided by lot.—Testator devised & bequeathed all his real & personal estates to trustees, upon trust to sell the same as soon as conveniently might be after his decease, except his advowson of the rectory of C. & certain hereditaments in the same parish, the sale of which he directed should be postponed until after the death of his eldest son W. who was then incumbent. The proceeds of the sale were to be held in trust for his children therein named, as tenants in common:—Held: (1) the right of presentation previous to the sale passed by the will & did not descend to the heir of testator; (2) if the children could not agree whom to nominate for presentation by the trustees, the question was to be decided by lot, & being tenants in common, they were not entitled to present successively according to seniority, as in the case of coparceners.—JOHNSTONE v. Usurpation—By one coparcener.—See No. 1945, ante, No. 2175, post.

1961. — By one patron.—In quare impedit deft. pleaded that one M., under whom he claimed, being seised in fee of one moiety of the advowson to present to one turn in every two turns, presented one J. in her proper turn; that the church being afterwards vacant, one W. under whom plff. claimed presented in his proper turn; that the church being again vacant, plff. presented; & that the church being a fourth time vacant, it belonged to deft. to present. On demurrer to this plea:—Held: deft. had not shown a title to present, since he had not shown whether the third presentation was by usurpation or by agreement, & it could not be presumed that deft. was entitled to present in the first & fourth turn, & plff. in the second & third, since the plea averred that M. had presented to the first turn in her proper turn, & W. in his proper turn. Semble: if it had appeared by the plea that plff. had presented to the third turn by usurpation, he would still have been entitled to the fourth turn by right.

Unless some express agreement, showing a different mode of presentation, be brought before the ct., are we not to presume that course to have been pursued which the law points out, viz. that where one party presents to the first turn, he presents to the third turn also? 1963. — By stranger.—As between patrons with alternate turns of presentation to a benefice, a presentation on an exchange of livings must be reckoned as a turn. If one patron wrongfully usurp the turn of another, the order of turns of presentation is not thereby altered, but the ousted patron after six months loses his turn, & cannot requite by usurping against the wrongdoer by way of retaliation.

On this point there is no distinction between usurpation by a stranger & by a person party or privy to the title.—KEEN v. DENNY, [1894] 3 Ch. 169; 64 L. J. Ch. 55; 71 L. T. 566; 43 W. R. 39; 10 T. L. R. 677; 38 Sol. Jo. 716; 8 R. 629.

1965. — By bishop—Wrongful collation by bishop.]—(1) Presentation by turn to a church is a chose in action; if therefore the bishop deprive a clerk, & without notice wrongfully collates, & the patron afterwards grants over the advowson, the grantee cannot present as in his turn, upon the death of the incumbent.

(2) On deprivation, a collation by the bishop without notice is good against all, except the patron.

The nomination of the curate had been by decree declared to be in the parishioners & inhabitants, 'paying to church & poor.' The Lord Chancellor expressed an opinion that assessment gave the right, though actual payment had not been made, but an election, on that principle, was not disturbed on the ground of common consent, no objection having been made at a general meeting, & the parish having no representative meeting in vestry for this purpose.—A.-G. v. the parishioners & inhabitants. The nomination of the curate had been by decree declared to be in the parishioners & inhabitants, paying to church & poor. Whether that qualification is satisfied by assessment only, not followed by actual payment, or not, an election on that principle was established upon common consent to that among other regulations; a case of strong & high probability being required for an issue or inquiry; & the ct. declining to give prospective directions as to the future, the information & bill was dismissed; & with costs; except as to keeping up the number of trustees, with reference to the only proper subject of the information, the stipend of the curate: all the rest, as to the nomination, etc., being the subject of a private suit. An informality in the bill, not stating plffs. as suing on behalf of all the other parishioners, might have been cured by amendment.—A.-G. v. NEWCOMBE (1807), 14 Ves. 1; 33 E. R. 422.

1971. — — — — — Evidence of usage.]—

(1) Where the advowson of a parish is vested in trustees for the benefit of the parishioners, an election of a vicar by ballot is not valid, & the election must be by voting openly. In such a case, the right of voting at the election of a vicar may be limited by long usage to parishioners who pay church rates & poor rates.

At the trial it appeared that at a meeting of the parishioners duly convened for the purpose of such an election, it was decided before the election began that parishioners who had not paid church rates should not be allowed to vote. In consequence of this resolution, several persons who had the legal right of voting did not tender their votes, & the votes of others who did tender their votes, were rejected, on the ground that they had not paid the church rate:—Held: a party elected by the majority of the persons whose votes were received at this meeting was not duly elected by the parishioners according to the custom.

p. Patronage vested in diocesan church society—Bishop subsequently vested with power to appoint.]—By 31 Geo. III. c. 31, H. M. & his successors were empowered to authorise the governor of the province of Quebec to erect parsonages or rectories therein according to the establishment of the Church of England; & in pursuance thereof, in 1836, the then lieutenant-governor, erected & endowed the rectory of K. By a subsequent provincial statute the church society of the diocese of T. was incorporated, & by a later statute the right of presentation was vested in it. Subsequently the legislature erected the diocese of O. out of the diocese of T., & the bishop, clergy, & laity of the diocese were incorporated under the name of the "Incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Ontario," who, by a bye-law in 1862, invested the then bishop with the right to appoint to all rectories during his incumbency. The bishop afterwards, on the death of the incumbent, presented to the rectory of K.; whereupon an information was filed by the attorney-general, on the relation of parishioners, against the bishop & the rector, praying to have such bye-law of the synod declared void & set aside. A demurrer by the bishop & rector for want of equity was allowed, the et. considerando that under the several Acts & proceedings which had been passed & taken the right of presentation was vested in the bishop during his incumbency.—A.-G. v. Patronage vested in landowners in parish—Whether trustees bound to present landowners' nominee.]—The advowson of a vicarage was vested in trustees upon right to present such person as should be elected by a majority of landowners in the parish:—Held: (1) a person elected by the landowners had no such legal right to the vicarage that he could by mandamus compel the trustees to present him; (2) the landowners themselves could not by mandamus compel the trustees to present, for that, if they had any legal right, their remedy was by quare impedit, & if their right was merely equitable, then their remedy would be in equity.—R. v. 2008. —.]—Queen Elizabeth, for the advancement & better maintenance of the Free Grammar School of Shrewsbury, granted to the bailiffs & burgesses of Shrewsbury, & their successors, amongst other hereditaments, the advowson of the vicarage of C. By an Act of Parliament, afterwards passed, all the hereditaments & real & personal estates belonging to the school were vested in a corporate body, called "The Governors & Trustees of the School," who were to hold same in trust for the benefit & maintenance of the school, except the right of presentation, nomination, & appointment to those ecclesiastical benefices which were thereafter declared to be in the mayor, aldermen, & assistants of the town of Shrewsbury. By a subsequent sect. of the Act, the mayor, aldermen, & assistants were directed to fill up vacancies in the vicarage of C, by nominating, appointing, or presenting a fit person; provided that such person should be preferred, ceteris paribus who should have been brought up in the school, & a graduate of one or other of the Universities, & born within the parish of C.; except that it should be lawful to give such benefice to either of the masters of the school after he should have vacated his office of master, notwithstanding any such claim or preference as last aforesaid :—Held : the right of presentation to the vicarage of C. was vested in the mayor, aldermen, & assistants, as charitable trustees, within the meaning of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, for the regulation of municipal corps.—RE SHREWSBURY SCHOOL (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 632; 40 E. 2017. ———.]—Where a testator, after directing by his will that the repairs of his mansion-house & the costs of carrying out the trusts of his will should be paid out of the rents & profits of his real estate, devised all his manors, lands, tenements, & hereditaments whatsoever & wheresoever to his trustees, upon certain trusts for his wife & daughter; bequeathed an annuity of £2,000 a year out of the rents & profits to his daughter, & the surplus of the rents & profits also for the benefit of his wife & daughter, as in his will mentioned; the testator died seized of four advowsons, which were not referred to in the will; & the estate was insufficient, without a sale of some portion of it, to meet all the expenses provided for by the testator. On the questions to what amount, & from what funds, a supply was to be obtained for making the repairs, whether the advowsons passed by the general words of the will, & ought or not to be sold to meet the expenses of the trusts, & whether the deficiency (if any) in the daughter's annuity for any one year ought not to be made good out of the surplus (if any) of any succeeding year:—Held: there could be no declaration but only a reference to chambers as to the amount for the repairs; & the advowsons passed under the general devise in the will & ought to be sold; & the purchase-money was profits of real estate within the meaning of the testator. But no declaration could now be made as to the deficiency in the daughter's annuity, as the question might possibly never arise.—COOKE v. CHOLMONDELEY (1854), 3 Drow. 1; 24 L. T. O. S. 68; 3 W. 2018. ———.]—(1) The words "freehold hereditaments situate in the parish of D." are not apt & proper words in a conveyance to pass an advowson, though they may be sufficient to do so when there are in the parish no corporeal hereditaments to satisfy the words.

(2) By his will, made in 1827, a testator appointed, under a statutory power, the advowson of a church in the parish of D., to certain persons for life, with remainder to the son of G. J. H. in tail. Real estate, consisting of land, etc., was by the will devised to similar uses. On Apr. 16, G. J., the son of G. J. H., attained the age of 21 years, the tenants for life having previously died. By a deed dated Apr. 17, 1875, G. J. disentailed "all & singular the manors, farms, hereditaments, & premises comprised in & devised by "the will (which was recited so far as the devise, but not the appointment was concerned), " & all other the lands, hereditaments, & premises whatsoever which G. J. was seized of or entitled to as tenant in tail in possession or in anywise howsoever." By a deed dated Apr. 18, 1857, reciting that G. J. was seized of or entitled to the several manors described in the schedule thereto for an estate in fee simple in possession, subject to certain charges, & that he was desirous of settling the same in manner thereafter mentioned, G. J. conveyed "all & singular the manors, messuages, farms, lands, hereditaments, & premises comprised & described in the schedule, etc., & all other freehold hereditaments of G. J., situate in the several parishes of D., W., & C., in the county of York," to certain trustees. The advowson was not mentioned in the schedule, & it was not subject to the charges which affected the property therein specifically mentioned:—Held: the advowson passed by the disentailing deed, but not by the resettlement.—*CROMPTON v. The son having exercised the option, the question was now raised whether these advowsons, which were in gross, passed under the will:—Held: upon the general tenor of the will construed with reference to the surrounding circumstances, the advowsons passed under these words.—Re HODGSON, TAYLOR v. HODGSON, [1898] 2 Ch. 545; 67 L. J. Ch. 591; 79 L. T. 345; 47 W. R. 44.

2038. Exception of "churches & vicarages"—Whether perpetual curacy within exception.—

Where the grant of a rectory by the Crown contained an exception of all churches & vicarages thereto belonging, a perpetual curacy belonging to the rectory passed by the grant, not being included in the exception.—ARTHINGTON v. CHESTER (Bp.) (1790), 1 Hy. Bl. 418; 126 E. R. 243.

(b) Where Advowson Appendant to Manor.

2039. Crown grant—"With appurtenances."—Right vested in Crown.—On exception from previous grant.—Queen Elizabeth being seised in fee jure coronæ of the manor of W. to which an advowson was appendant, demised the manor, with the appurtenances for 21 years excepting the advowson, & afterwards reciting the demise & exception, made another demise in reversion to the same grantee for another term of years with the like exception. James I. in consideration of services, ex certa scientia, etc., granted the manor, cum suis juribus, etc. to G., exceptis quæ in eisdem litteris patentibus excipiuntur, & mentioned the lease in reversion & the like exception therein; then followed this clause: Et ulterius de uberiori gratia nostra & ex certa scientia, etc., damus omnia tenementa prædicta manerio quoque modo spectantia, etc. et uberiori damus, etc., to G. & his heirs the manor ac cuncta omnia et singula præmissa cum earum pertinentiis adeo plene, etc., as the same came to him & they were in his hands:—Held: the advowson passed by the grant of James I. When the King's charter in general terms refers to a certainty, it contains an express mention as if the certainty had been expressed in the same charter, although the certainty to which the reference is, be not of record, but lies in averment by matter in pais or in fact. If the words adeo plene et integre had been omitted, then the advowson would not have passed by the first clause; but by the addition of the last clause, all the parts of the patent taking effect at one & the same time, the advowson passed as appendant. The exception "exceptis quæ in eisdem litteris patentibus excipiuntur" extended only to leases recited, & not to any exception out of the letters patent of the fee simple.—WHISTLER v. OXFORD (Bp.) (1613), 10 Co. Rep. 63 a; 77 E. R. 1021.

2040. — Advowson formerly appendant.—Described in grant as still appendant.—If a manor formerly in the possession of an abbot, & to which manor an advowson was appendant, be granted to an archbishop, with an exception of the advowson, the appendancy is thereby destroyed; but if the archbishop re-convey the manor to the king, describing the advowson as appendant, a subsequent grant of the manor & advowson to the archbishop formerly belonging, & which was re-granted to the king by the archbishop, & lately in the possession of the abbot "adeo plene, as the archbishop or abbot had it, or as it was in our hands by any ways & means whatsoever," will pass the advowson, although it never did belong to the archbishop.—R. v. A., seised in fee of an advowson, except the next presentation, which B. had under the same title, in consideration of natural love & affection, conveyed the advowson in fee to his son upon a vacancy happening, C. claiming title to the advowson contested the next presentation against B. in a quare impedit. A., B. & C. entered into a compromise, upon the terms that C. should release his claims to A. & B. according to their respective interests, & that A. should convey to C. the then next following presentation, which he did:—Held: the grant of that presentation was a conveyance for a valuable consideration, & was paramount to the grant made to the son of A.—HILL v. EXETER (Bp.) Afterwards, the patron of C. sold the advowson to L.; & L. presented a clerk, who was instituted & inducted, & subscribed the Articles:—Held: the living, as against the patron, was void by plff.'s acceptance of O., & disannexed from the advowson; consequently, it did not pass by the sale; L.'s presentee was not incumbent; plff., not having been ousted de facto, might sue for the tithes. A. contracts with B. for the purchase of an advowson at a certain price, & a conveyance is accordingly executed. There being afterwards some suspicion of fraud on the part of A., B. files his bill to set aside the conveyance on that ground. Pending the suit, the church becomes vacant, & both parties present, but neither of their clerks is instituted. Afterwards a compromise takes place, & B., in consideration of a further sum, executes a deed of confirmation, & also an instrument revoking his presentation. Upon a question between B.'s clerk & A.:—Held: the deed & instrument were not in law a good revocation, but the clerk of B. was entitled to the benefit of his presentation.—*ROGERS v. Testator died in Sept. 1874, the church then being full, & he left a widow & five infant daughters, his co-heiresses-at-law, him surviving. The exors. did not sell the advowson, & on the death of the incumbent in Feb. 1875, the question arose who was entitled to nominate to the vacant benefice:—Held: the right to nominate was in the widow.—BURGS v. 2089. — To pay income to widow of patron incumbent.]—A vicarage consisted of two mediety, the advowson of one of which was vested in the Lord Chancellor & of the other in W.

In Aug. 1878, the Lord Chancellor, under Lord Chancellor's Augmentation Act, 1863 (c. 120), sold the advowson of the first mediety to W., sect. 21 of that Act providing that it should not be lawful for the purchaser to sell or contract for the sale of the advowson or next presentation till the expiration of five years from the date of the sale to such purchaser. By Ord. in Council of May, 1879, ratifying a scheme prepared under Eccles. Comrs. Act, 1840 (c. 113), (a) the two mediety became one undivided benefice; (b) W. became incumbent thereof; (c) the advowson was vested in W., his heirs & assigns. In Aug. 1879, W. mortgaged the advowson of the consolidated benefice to H., to whom, prior to his purchase from the Lord Chancellor of the first mediety, he had mortgaged the second. All the mtges. contained the usual powers of sale. In Mar. 1882, H. died, & in Mar. 1883, his exors. contracted to sell the whole advowson to his widow under the power of sale in the mtge., & in Apr. 1883, the widow of H. contracted to sell it to E. In June, 1883, W. died insolvent (the mtge. debt being still unpaid), having by his will devised all his real estate to trustees in trust to receive the income thereof, & pay it over to his wife for her life. In Dec. 1883, the exors., on the nomination of H.'s widow, presented a person designated by E. to the bishop for induction:—Held: (1) the right of nomination & presentation was in W.'s widow under his will & not in the exors. of H.; (2) the Ord. in Council of May, 1879, did not avert the operation of the prohibition on sale for five years contained in sect. 21 of the 1863 Act; (3) the presentation of the person designated by E. by the exors. could not operate as a new contract of sale, though after the expiration of five years from Aug. 1878, as the living being vacant at the time of such presentation, the contract would be invalid.—WELCH v. PETERBOROUGH (Bp.) (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 432; 1 T. L. R. 471; 1 Cab. & El. 534.

2090. Contingent devise—To son of A. who should become clergyman.]—A. devised an advowson to the first or other son of B., that should be bred a clergyman, & be in holy orders, in fee, but in case B. should have no such son, then to C. in fee. Both devises are void, as depending on too remote a contingency; therefore though B. dies without having had a son, the heir at law of the devisor & not C. is entitled.—PROCTOR v. BATH & WELLS (Bp.) (1794), 2 Hy. Bl. 358; 120 E. R. 594.

2092. Construction—Whether devise absolute—Or limited to devisee presenting himself.—Devise to A. of "the next turn or presentation of the church of B., after the death of the present possessor, & after the death of A., the living to revert to the testator's heir," is a devise of the next turn of presenting absolutely, & not merely of getting himself presented. LAW v. LINCOLN (Bp.) (1778), 2 Wm. Bl. 1240; 96 E. R. 731.

2093. — Extension of clear gift by doubtful words.]—After a clear gift to a college of three presentations to a living their interest cannot be extended by doubtful words. EMANUEL COLLEGE v. NORWICH (Bp.) (1793), 4 Bro. C. C. 481; 20 E. R. 999.

2094. — Next presentation in another.]

(1) A., by will, directed trustees, "upon the death of the present incumbent," to present X. to the living of S., in case he should take orders; & if he should not, or, taking orders, should die in the lifetime of B., then to present B., in case he should take orders; & after their several deceases, or of such of them as should take orders & be presented, or in the event of neither taking orders, she devised the advowson to C. in fee:—Held: the gifts in favour of A. & B. were in succession & not alternative, & on the death of X., B. was entitled to be presented.

(2) A testator having the power of disposing of an advowson (subject to the existing incumbency of A., & a contingent right of B. to be afterwards presented), devised "the next avoidance thereof" in favour of C.:—Held: "the next" meant the next the testator had power to dispose of, viz. that following the incumbency by A. & of B. HATCH v. HATCH (1855), 20 Beav. 105; 3 W. R. 354; 52 E. R. 542.

2096. — "Rents, issues & profits."]—A testator who was entitled to various rectories in S., devised his manors, advowsons, messuages & hereditaments in S. to trustees upon trust to make certain payments out of the rents, issues & profits, & subject thereto to accumulate the "residuary or surplus rents, issues & profits" of the same property for 21 years on specified trusts. A claim by the heir-at-law to the proceeds of sale of a next presentation to one of the testator's rectories, on the ground that the next presentations were not disposed of under the trust of "rents, issues & profits," was disallowed, on the construction of the whole will. Semble: the words "rents, issues & profits" were of themselves sufficient to include the proceeds of sale of the next presentation.—CUST v. MIDDLETON (1864), 34 L. J. Ch. 185; 11 L. T. 552; 10 Jur. N. S. 1227; 13 W. R. 249, L. J.J.

2099. Devise for life—Validity.]—A devise, introduced by the words "I do give & dispose of all my worldly goods" & preceded by a devise immediately following those words of a manor & lands, of "the perpetual advowson of H. B. in L., & my manor of S. & all my lands in N.":—Held: not sufficient to carry a fee in the lands in N. to a devisee who was one of three residuary legatees, for want of words of inheritance or perpetuity; he only took an estate for life in the lands so devised, the ct. giving no opinion as to what estate he took in the advowson, holding that, even if he had taken a fee therein it would not have altered or extended the effect of the subsequent devise of the lands: but the rule of law must prevail against the apparent hypothetical intention of the testator.—DOE d. CRUTCHFIELD v. PEARCE (1815), 1 Price, 353; 145 E. R. 1427.

2100. —What words create—Devise to incumbent son Without words of inheritance.]—"I do give to my son R. the perpetual advowson of H. B. in Leicestershire, & my manor of S., & all my lands in Northamptonshire":—Held: this devise gave only an estate for life in the advowson to R., though he, at the time of making the will, was incumbent of the living.—Pocock v. LINCOLN (Bp.) (1821), 3 Brod. & Bing. 27; 6 Moore, C. P. 159; 129 E. R. 1193.

2101. Devise on trust for sale—On death of incumbent—Whether court can order sale before death of incumbent.]—A testator devised his advowson to trustees, to sell on the death of A. & divide the produce amongst certain persons. A. was the incumbent, so that on his death no sale could be made until the vacancy was filled up:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to authorise a sale in the lifetime of A. on the ground that it would be beneficial to the parties.—JOHNSTONE v. BAKER (1845), 8 Beav. 233; 4 L. T. O. S. 392; 50 E. R. 91.

2102. When simoniacal—Who entitled to present after presentation by Crown.]—A., the incumbent of a living & owner of the advowson, agreed with B. for the sale of the advowson, & for the immediate resignation of the living, & accordingly, tendered his resignation to the bishop, who refused to accept it. Another agreement was then entered into between the same parties for the sale of the advowson only, without any contract for the resignation, & at the same time, by a separate agreement, A. granted a lease of the tithes & profits to B. for 99 years, if A. should so long live, under which lease B. received the profits till A.'s death. On A.'s death, the Crown presented for that turn only by reason of simony. The incumbent presented by the Crown died, whereupon B. claimed the right to present. It was objected by A.'s heir, that the second contract for the sale of the advowson, & the lease of the tithes of the same date, being for the purpose of carrying the former simoniacal contract into effect, was also simoniacal & void:—Held: whether the second agreement were simoniacal or not, the illegality, if any, extended to the next presentation only, & therefore, the Crown having presented for one turn, B. had a good title to the advowson, & had a right to present on the present vacancy.—*GREENWOOD v. 2103. Vacancy before conveyance—Purchaser's delay in completing—Purchaser's equity to present—Whether enforceable against vendor's devisee.]—

A party had contracted with a person, since deceased, for the purchase of an advowson, but had taken no steps during the lifetime of the vendor to enforce the contract, or for a considerable time after her death (objecting to the title on the ground of outstanding judgments & a creditor's bill pending):—Held: not entitled as against a devisee to present, if a vacancy occur in the meantime, though he has not renounced his contract but insists on having it completed. If in consequence of his insisting on such right a bill become necessary to ascertain in the true claim to the next presentation, which is thereby put in danger of lapse, a decree in favour of plff. will carry costs as far as his claim came in question, although it be part of the decree that, subject to the next presentation, he be permitted to complete his contract.—*WYVILL v. B. Effect of.

2107. At common law.]—(1) At the common law, before Stat. Westminster 2, 1285, if one had presented to a church which did belong to another, & his clerk had been admitted & instituted, presently thereby the rightful patron was out of possession, & the usurper had gained the inheritance of the advowson by wrong, & the lawful patron had lost the presentment hac vice for ever, without regard to infancy, coverture, or any such like disability in the patron. But at the common law if one had usurped on the King & his presentee had been admitted, instituted & inducted, yet the King might have a quare impedit, & thereby remove the incumbent. But if a bishop collates without title to a church presentable, & his clerk is inducted, yet it does not put the rightful patron out of possession, but his presentee ought to be received without any process of law. But plenarily at common law did put him who had right to collate to his writ of right.

(2) If tenant for years, or guardian, brings a quare impedit, & deft. has a writ to the bishop against the tennor or guardian, & his presentee is admitted, instituted, & inducted, yet the tenant of the freehold is not put out of possession.

(3) By above stat. these three points are inquirable: if the church be full or void, if full of whose presentment, & lastly the inquiry of the value of the church; but in a quare impedit or assize of darrein presentment, these points were not inquirable ex officio at common law. And at common law before the stat. the patron did not recover damages in a quare impedit.

(4) All the counts of the King in quare impedit are to his damage, yet he shall recover no damages either by above stat. or by the common law.

(5) By the common law if a disturber being deft. presents pending the writ, & his clerk is admitted, instituted, & inducted, & afterwards judgment is given against deft., such clerk shall be removed.

So in all cases where any clerk comes in pending the writ, by the presentment of one against whom plff. hath good title, his clerk shall be removed: otherwise where the stranger hath good right.

(6) No incumbent shall be removed by above stat. by quare impedit of assize of darrein presentment purchased within six months, unless the incumbent be named in the writ.

(7) The Metropolitan shall never present by lapse, but when the inferior ordinary might have collated by lapse & surceases his time.

(8) Upon recovery in quare impedit where it is found that the church is full of the presentment of a stranger pending the writ, & it does not appear whether the incumbent came in by better title than plff. had, plff. is entitled to a writ to the bishop generally, & the bishop must execute it, & cannot return that the church is full of another.

(9) In a quare impedit against the bishop & incumbent, if the bishop imparle, & after plead, "he claims nothing but as ordinary," on a verdict for plff., he shall be amerced.

(10) In a quare impedit against the bishop & incumbent, if the jury find a presentation by the Queen pendente lite, & her presentee be removed without a scire facias, the judgment is erroneous; for, the bishop being named, no lapse can accrue until the right be determined.—BOSWELL'S CASE (1605), 6 Co. 2145. — (1) It is never necessary that the patron should be made a party for his own sake, but merely for the sake of the clerk, whose right depends upon the patron's title (PARKER, C.J.).

(2) A quare impedit differs from a writ of right of advowson in this, that the last lies against the patron as patron, but the first against a deferrer only (PARKER, C.J.).

(3) He that brings a quare impedit can by his writ suppose nobody to be patron but himself, for that would be repugnant, & though the count names another patron, yet it is not necessary to suppose him dead, in the case of lapse (PARKER, C.J.).

(1) When the incumbent pleads if he does not show himself to be rightful patron of the advowson, but only his patron, & that he is in by him, ought not to be sued without him (PARKER, C.J.).

At common law, nobody was admitted to plead to the title of the patronage, but one that made title to it himself, & if the patron was made party, & would not come in or colluded, the incumbent is without remedy; but this was helped by 25 Edw., stat. 6 & 7, which enabled the ordinary or possessor to counterplead the title in such case.

The import of this plea at common law, as it was pleaded ore tenus at the Bar, was, I claim nothing in the advowson, all my concern is, that I am presented by J. who is still alive; whether you or he have a right, I know not, but he does; & therefore he ought to be brought in to answer for that which he was to do, & which can properly lie in nobody's conscience but his own. This plea is proper where (a) the incumbent's title depends upon the right of patronage; (b) the acts of the incumbent are joined to the patron's & depend upon them, the patron makes himself a disturber by the presentation, & the incumbent's advantage of the patron's not being brought in, is only because he would not plead to the title at common law, & therefore where his right depended on the title of patronage, he should have that privilege in order to supply his defect (PARKER, C.J.).

(5) Whoever pleads in abatement of a writ must show how plff. may have a better writ, & in order to make writ maintainable against the patron, he must be a disturber, so that in whatever want the incumbent may be of the patron's aid, & though his right appear to be in question, yet deft. cannot take exception to the writ, that he is not named, without showing him a disturber, for otherwise plff. can have no cause of action against him (PARKER, C.J.).—R. v. In all the entries in the same book, where a party was admitted to a vicarage, the word "institutus" was used after the word "admissus" & in all but one instance the word "inductus" also. Upon a trial at bar, the judges directed the jury that this, in legal construction, was to be taken to mean in the present case that Henry Compton, in the entry named, was admitted & instituted by the then Bishop of Elphin, to the vicarage of Kilglass, on a presentation by some other person to the bishop; & that the only question for the consideration of the jury respecting the entry was, by whom the presentation was made; & that if upon the whole of the evidence the jury should believe that such presentation of H. C. was made by P. B., & that the advowson of the vicarage had been originally appendant to the rectory, & had not been disappended therefrom, they should find a verdict for plffs. Defts. having excepted to this direction of the judge:—Held: it was a misdirection, & a verdict de novo [was] awarded.—COOKE v. ELPHIN (Bp.) (1831), 5 Bli. N. S. 103; 2 Dow. & Cl. 247; 5 E. 2178. ——— Ancient case for counsel—Coming from proper custody.]—MEATH (Bp.) v. WINCHESTER (MARQUIS), No. 2168, ante.

(2) Two letters from the Crown to two successive Bishops of Derry, directing them to perform the covenants & directions contained in the grant, were tendered in evidence as recognitions by the Crown of its previous grant:—Held: they were admissible for this purpose.

(3) Entries in the books kept at the First Fruits' Office are admissible to show the fact of a collation to a living made by the bishop at a particular time. Returns made by the bishop, in obedience to writs from the Exchequer, requiring him to state the vacancies of & presentations & collations to the livings in his diocese, are admissible in evidence as statements made by a public officer in the discharge of a public duty. Though such returns may contain statements of a kind unusual in such documents, which statements were in favour of the right of the bishop who made them, they are nevertheless admissible, provided that the statements are within the scope of the inquiry in the writ. An original collation from the registry of the bishopric, & appearing on the face of it to be pleno jure, is admissible to show that the right claimed has in fact been exercised.

(4) An objection was taken that certain documents tendered in evidence were not admissible for a particular purpose. The ct. decided that they were admissible. An exception was taken to this decision:—Held: if the documents were admissible on any ground, the exception could not be sustained.—IRISH SOCIETY v. DERRY (Bp.) (1840), 12 Cl. & Fin. 641; 8 E. 2183. Liability for costs—Defendant—Exemption from costs.]—Quare impedit is within Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (c. 42), s. 34; but that clause is over-ridden by the proviso in Prisons Act, 1835 (c. 38), which enables the ct., or the judge who tries the cause, to certify to exempt defts. from costs.

Tenants in common of an advowson, one being a Protestant the other a Roman Catholic, the church being vacant, the former presented alone; the ordinary refused to admit the clerk so presented, on the ground that the sole right of presentation was not in the Protestant co-patron, & after a lapse, collated:—Held: this was a proper case for a certificate under 1835 Act, to exempt defts. from costs.

Seemle: the ordinary was, under the circumstances, an "ecclesiastical patron," within the meaning of the proviso in the last-mentioned statute.—EDWARDS v. EXETER (Bp.) (1839), 6 Bing. N. C. 140; 7 Scott, 679; 9 L. J. C. P. 87; 4 J. P. 60; 3 Jur. 1000; 133 E. R. 57.

(b) Suit of duplex querela.

2184. When remedy available—Refusal of bishop to institute.]—(1) In a proceeding by duplex querela by a clerk, presented to a benefice, against his diocesan for refusing him institution, it was alleged, in return to a monition with intimation, by the bishop, called upon to show a reasonable & lawful cause why the clerk should not be instituted, that the presentee was of unsound doctrine respecting the efficacy of the sacrament of baptism, inasmuch as he held in his examination that spiritual regeneration is not conferred in that sacrament—that infants are not made therein members of Christ & children of God, contrary to the teaching of the Church of England in her arts. & liturgy:—Held: baptismal regeneration is the doctrine of the Church of England, & infants immediately at baptism receive spiritual regeneration, & the bishop had shown sufficient cause why he should not institute the presentee.

(2) The space of 28 days, specified in Canon 95 for a bishop to inquire into "the sufficiency & qualities of every minister after he hath been presented unto him to be instituted into any benefice," is not an absolute limitation rendering an examination after that period void. A bishop is entitled to a reasonable time for such examination. The canon is directory; there are no prohibitory words to confine a bishop to the space of 28 days.

(3) The form of proceeding by duplex querela is the only one which can afford a remedy to a clerk aggrieved by a refusal of institution to a living to which he has been duly presented (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(4) It is a duty incumbent on the bishop to take care that he is satisfied of the sufficiency & qualities of the candidate for the benefice. It is not a mere right & privilege which the bishop possesses, it is a trust which he is bound to execute for the public benefit, & if he have any doubt on the matter, it is his duty, according to the Canon 39, to ascertain, "upon due examination," that the party is worthy of the office. The bishop is not precluded from commencing or continuing the examination in question after the 28 days has elapsed (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(5) There are no words which say the bishop shall not after the 28 days examine. The meaning of the 28 days in Canon 95 is that, until that number of days has expired after a tender of a presentation, a clerk cannot obtain a duplex querela, but after that interval if a bishop refuse or delay the institution he may be called upon to assign the reason. As far as the bishop is concerned in the matter of the examination, the canon is directory, there are no prohibitory words to confine him to the particular space of 28 days, & it is contrary to reason that such an examination should be so restricted (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(6) Proceeding by Act on Petition is neither convenient nor consistent with practice. The formal proceeding, by plea & proof, is not only the most proper mode, but it is the best calculated to bring the real question immediately before the ct. Pleading in an Act on Petition, is vague & loose (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(7) Where the clerk has alleged that his presentation was offered to the bishop, that the bishop delayed to institute him, though he was qualified by age, by ordination, by presentation, by an offer to do all that he was required by law to do before he was instituted to that living, the onus probandi lies on the bishop to justify his refusal to institute him (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(8) Primâ facie the 39 Articles are the standard of doctrine (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(9) The word regeneration does not mean & imply such a total change of character as to preclude persons baptised from ever or finally falling, but the word means such a change of station, character, & relation as places them in a new situation—from children of wrath to children of grace—whereby they become members of Christ & inheritors of the kingdom of Heaven (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).

(10) To the private views of individuals, however eminent, I am not at liberty to attend. Their opinions can have no binding effect upon my judgment. So long as the Articles & the Services of the Church are reconcilable, & not only reconcilable, but necessarily consistent, I must construe them together. If a doctrine is laid down in the baptismal & other services, & in the rubrics, all of which were confirmed by Act of Parliament & adopted by convocation, I must look to that source for my guide, if the Articles are silent on the point—& not indulge in fancy, explaining it by the opinions expressed by private individuals (SIR HERBERT JENNER FUST).—*GORHAM v. 2185. Whether suit tried by act on petition & answer—Or by plea & proof.]—In the affidavit to lead the motion in a suit of duplex querela it was alleged that the promovent had been refused institution to a benefice by the bishop of the diocese on the ground of insufficiency of learning. On application on behalf of the bishop the ct. ordered that the suit should be tried not by act on petition & answer, but by plea & proof, & that the promovent should bring in his libel. The libel of the promovent having been subsequently brought in, a responsive plea was filed on behalf of the bishop, alleging in fact that the promovent on applying to be instituted had been examined by direction of the bishop, & that the result of the examination had conscientiously satisfied the bishop that the promovent was non idoneus & minus sufficiens in literaturâ. Thereupon the promovent applied to the Court to reject the responsive plea: Held: the ct. would direct that the responsive plea be amended, & there should be on the face of the amended responsive plea such a statement of the grounds on which institution was refused as would enable the ct., assuming the facts to be true, to decide upon the validity of the objection taken to the promovent, & would enable the promovent to take issue on the truth of such facts.

Where in a suit of duplex querela the bishop justifies his refusal to institute on the ground that the promovent is minus sufficiens in literaturâ, it is for the ct. to determine whether the standard up to which the bishop considers the ability of the promovent ought to come is such a standard as is required by law.—*WILLIS v. D. Resignation Bonds.

Resignation of benefices generally, see Sect. 11, sub-sect. 1, B., post.

(2) Simony, though it relates to a living he holds in commendam or forgery is contrary to a man's duty as bishop.

(3) It is the duty of a bishop to tender the oaths upon an ordination.

(4) A contract to resign a benefice is simoniacal.

2270. Exchange of benefices—Bonâ fide agreement for non-payment of dilapidations.]—To a declaration by A., an incoming, against B., an outgoing incumbent, for dilapidations to the rectory house & premises, B. pleaded, that A., being rector of C., & B. incumbent of D., it was agreed between them, with the consent of their respective patrons & diocesans, that they should exchange their respective livings in their then state & condition, " & that pltf. should not call upon deft. to pay for the repairs in the declaration mentioned, or for any or either of them ":—Held: (1) the plea did not necessarily disclose a simoniacal contract; (2) a plea, whether coming before the ct. on motion for judgment non obstante veredicto or on demurrer, ought to receive a fair & reasonable construction, & if ambiguous, should be construed most strongly against the party pleading.—GOLDHAM v. EDWARDS (1856), 18 C. B. 389; 25 L. J. C. P. 223; 20 J. P. 613; 2 Jur. N. S. 493; 4 W. R. 550; 139 E. R. 1420, Ex. Ch.

Annotation:—As to (1) Consd. Wright v. Davies (1876), 1 C. P. D. 638.

(2) Pltf. having sued deft. for dilapidations, deft. pleaded the above agreement, pltf. replied, on equitable grounds, that deft. at the time of the agreement represented to pltf. that the repairs of B. would be merely nominal, or only equal to those of A., though he "knew or ought to have known" that the former would be greatly in excess of the latter, & that on the faith that such representation was true pltf. made the agreement. On demurrer:—Held: the replication was bad, there being no suggestion of fraud or that deft. knew of the inequality at the time of making the agreement.—WRIGHT v. DAVIES (1876), 1 C. P. D. 638; 46 L. J. Q. B. 41; 35 L. T. 188; 40 J. P. 772; 21 W. R. 841, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. In Monk, Wayman v. Monk (1887), 35 Ch. D. 583.

2272. Purchase of advowson by clerk—For life of another—Subsequent presentation of purchaser on vacancy.]—(1) The purchase of an "estate for life in an advowson" is not the purchase of a "next presentation" or "next avoidance," within the meaning of 13 Anne, c. 11, s. 2, though there be only one avoidance during the lifetime of the cestui que vie, the statute applying only to chattel interests. In quare impedit the declaration stated that S., being seised for life of an advowson, conveyed it to pltf. by deed for his life, for £3,000; that, during the life of S., the incumbent died, whereby it belonged to pltf. to present a fit clerk, but deft., the bishop, hindered him. Plea, that, the church being so vacant, & pltf. being so seised, pltf. presented himself for admission; that the vacancy caused by the death of the former incumbent was the next & only avoidance of the church which accrued to pltf. after his purchase of the advowson for the term aforesaid; & that such presentation of himself by pltf. was void by above sect.:—Held: the plea was bad, the purchase of the life estate of S. being a purchase of an "advowson," & not of a "next presentation," & therefore not a simoniacal contract within above Act.

(2) Plea, that, the church being vacant, plff. offered himself to deft. as ordinary for admission, & prayed deft. as such ordinary to admit & institute him thereto, which deft. refused, as he lawfully might, but was ready to admit & institute a fit clerk, other than plff. himself, upon the presentation of plff.:—Held: the plea was bad, inasmuch as, by the common law, a clerk who is seised of a freehold estate in an advowson may, upon a vacancy, offer himself to the bishop & pray to be admitted, & the bishop has no absolute discretion to admit or to reject him. (3) Seemle: the plea should have shown the grounds of the bishop's refusal to present plff.—WALSH v. LINCOLN (BP.) (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 518; 44 L. J. C. P. 244; 32 L. T. 471; 39 J. P. 424; 23 W. R. 829.

SUB-SECT. 3.—EFFECT OF SIMONY.

2273. General rule.—(1) In a criminal suit instituted against a clerk in holy orders by the secretary to the Bishop of Worcester, it was proved that deft. had been guilty of simony, by reason of his having corruptly & simoniacally obtained presentation & institution to his vicarage, & also of conduct unbecoming a clergyman in unlawfully threatening a certain person to publish a libel upon him with the intent of extorting money. The ct. founding its sentence, in respect of the offence of simony, upon the general ecclesiastical as well as statute law, pronounced that deft. was a disabled person in law to have the vicarage, & that his presentation thereto, & his admission & institution thereupon, were void & frustrate, & of no effect in law, & having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the offence of misconduct as well as that of simony, it further pronounced upon him a sentence of deprivation from the ministry & from the performance of all clerical functions whatsoever in the province of Canterbury, & condemned him in the costs of the suit.

(2) Deft., in a criminal suit, appeared, by his proctor, to the citation & prayed arts. On the admission of the arts., the proctor intimated that he was not in a position to give in either an affirmative or negative issue, & praying justice, submitted himself to the judgment of the ct. The ct. fixed a day for the hearing, & proceeded with the cause as if a negative issue had been pleaded.

(3) In a criminal suit instituted for simony the patron was called as a witness & required to produce the deed of conveyance to him of the advowson of the vicarage in respect of the presentation to which the alleged simony had been committed. It was admitted that the deed was in ct., but the witness declined to produce it on the ground that it was a title deed:—Held: the ct., notwithstanding, ordered its production.—LEE v. MEREST (1869), 39 L. J. Eccl. 53; 22 L. T. 420; 34 J. P. 422.

2274. Avoidance of living.—If the patron for money present to a benefice with cure, every such presentation, & the admission, institution, & induction thereon, are void, although the presentee be not party nor privy to it.—SIMONY CASE (1611), 12 Co. Rep. 71; 77 E. R. 1352.

2275.—J.—Simony, on the part of a presentee to a living, being in law a very odious offence, & the consequences of conviction thereof highly penal, the law, even if a simoniacal agreement is established, requires the strictest proof of the presentee's privity thereto before induction, or of his confirmation thereof after; so, in proof that a clerk is simoniace promotus, a corrupt agreement must be no less conclusively shown.

In a criminal suit against a clerk for simony, & for being simoniacally promoted:—Held: (1) neither his privity to, nor confirmation of, any simoniacal contract was proved; (2) no criminal contract was established, & he would be dismissed from the suit, & the promoters would be condemned in costs.

(3) Seemle: when a clerk is simoniace promotus without his privity or subsequent confirmation, the Ecclesiastical Ct. cannot proceed to a sentence of deprivation in a criminal suit.—WHISH v. HESSE (1831), 3 Hag. Eccl. 659.

WATSON v. FLETCHER* (1828), 8 B. & C. 25; 2 Man. & Ry. K. B. 206; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 282; 108 E. R. 952.

2283. Simoniacal presentation by trustee--Whether breach of trust.—It is a universal proposition, & of great moment to the safety & property of mankind, that a trustee ought strictly to pursue the tenor of his trust, without perverting it directly or indirectly to his own personal advantage, & therefore, where an executor intrusted with the disposition of some church preferments, made a presentation to A. under a secret condition for his own benefit, the presentation was set aside, & he was decreed to present a more proper person.

SECT. 6.—MODE OF FILLING BENEFICES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—PRESENTATION.

See, now, Benefices Act, 1898 (c. 48), (Amendment) Measure, 1923, No. 1.

A. In General.

2300. Definition.—[On the division of an old parish into three new parishes by Act of Parliament, it was provided, "That the right of patronage & presentation to the three churches, should belong to the Dean & Chapter of D. & their successors, for ever, in such manner as the presentation to the rectory of the old parish did belong to them, & not otherwise." One of these new parishes becoming vacant, the Dean & Chapter nominated J. to the cure, but did not present him to the ordinary for institution:—Held: (1) this rectory was presentative & not a donative; (2) the word presentation was a known term of the law, & when spoken of a benefice with cure of souls, as in this case, imported the patron's presenting his clerk to the Ordinary, to be admitted & instituted; (3) the subsequent relative words, viz. "In such manner as the presentation to the rectory of the old parish did belong to them, & not otherwise," referred only to the right which the Dean & Chapter had of putting in an incumbent, but not the manner in which it was to be done. SHIRT v. CARR (1717), 2 Bro. Parl. Cas. 173; 1 E. R. 868.

2303. —————[On a commission of charitable uses it was agreed between the lord of the manor of A. & the inhabitants of W. within the manor, that certain copyhold lands should be let for the maintenance of a stipendiary curate of the chapel of W. to be nominated by a majority of the inhabitants & to be allowed by the lord, & by him presented to the Ordinary for a licence to preach; the usage of nominating, etc., had been pursuant to the agreement; the lord having refused to allow & present the nominee of a majority of the inhabitants, the latter prayed a mandamus, which the ct. refused; for their right is either a mere trust, & then their remedy is in equity, or it is a legal right, & then a quare impedit will lie. If the right of nomination be in one, & of presentation in another, & either impede the other in his right, a quare impedit lies. Where the right of nominating is in A., & of presenting in B., B. is to judge of the qualification of the person nominated, in the same manner as a bishop does; but if the person presenting object to the nominee on the ground of immorality, that must be tried by a jury. — *R. v. 2309. — If the King present one to a benefice, & afterwards present another, who is admitted, instituted, & inducted, same is a good repeal of the first presentation, & if the King will present a Frenchman, or a Spaniard, they shall not hold the benefice within this realm, for that same is contrary to a special Act of Parliament (COKE, C.J.). — WALLER'S CASE (1610), Godb. 179; 78 E. 2312. Nominee of inhabitants.—Necessity for approval of lord of manor. — Under a commission of charitable uses it was agreed, that copyhold lands formerly surrendered for maintenance of a minister in W. chapel should be let, & the rents employed towards maintenance of the minister, to be chosen & appointed by the inhabitants, & presented & allowed by the lord of the manor; who upon complaint might give the minister half a year's warning, & if he had not reformed by that time, might remove him; the information prayed, that the lord might be decreed to allow & approve the candidate who had the majority of votes, which was refused on the ground of misconduct; & the evidence clearly disproving it, a new election was directed; upon which the same candidate being returned, & producing strong affidavits of good conduct for the last six years, the decree, stating the affidavits, declared that, in consequence of them, the relator deserved the approbation of the trustees. — A-G. v. STAFFORD (MARQUIS) (1796), 3 Ves. 77; 30 E. R. 903, L. C.

2316. — (1) Lord Fairfax, by a codicil to his will, in the year 1671, gave all his tithes of Bilborough in fee, subject to an estate therein for the life of R., to H. & his heirs & assigns, to the use of a preaching minister there, to be nominated by H. & his heirs. The heir of H. conveyed the tithes with other property to trustees for sale for payment of his debts, & they were accordingly sold & conveyed by these trustees in 1716 to R. & J. & their heirs, on trust as to the tithes to the use of a preaching minister to be nominated by R. & his heirs. J., who was only trustee for R., surviving R., became seized of the legal estate, & his descendants continued so seized in succession until 1820, when his heir-at-law conveyed the tithes upon the original trusts to T., the heir of R. T. had in 1721 nominated B. the preaching minister of Bilborough. In a suit by T. & B. for an account of tithes in Bilborough:—Held: this was a valid nomination of B.

(2) It appeared from the evidence, that the tithes of Bilborough had been appropriated to an alien priory, dissolved by 27 Hen. 8, c. 28; that Henry 8th afterwards demised them for 21 years by the description of omnes decimas garbarum et fœni; that Edward 6th, by letters patent, granted them to H. & W. & their heirs, by the description of omnes illas decimas garbarum, granorum, bladorum, fœni, lunae et agnollorum ac alias decimas nostras quascunque, etc., & that the title to them under that grant was vested in T. & his nominee. There was no mention of rectory or advowson in the grant. There was no trace of any endowment for a vicar or curate at any time in Bilborough:—Held: the grant included the rectory & comprised all tithes of every description arising in Bilborough, & the decree ordering an account of them to T. & B. was affirmed.—HOLDSWORTH v. FAIRFAX (1834), 3 Cl. & Fin. 115; 8 Bl. N. S. 882; 6 E. R. 1381, 11. 1.

— Of class.]—See No. 1980, ante.

2317. — Whether duty to present one of favoured class—Construction of trust deed.—The presentation to certain livings was given by an Act of Parliament vested in the Corp. of Shrewsbury, for whom a body of trustees was afterwards substituted, with a direction that they should nominate a fit & proper person duly qualified according to law, with a proviso that "cæteris paribus" preference should be given to a favoured class:—Held: (1) the cætera were the qualifications mentioned before, & not the whole of the qualifications of a clergyman; (2) the words "fit & proper person duly qualified" etc., were not thus rendered surplusage; (3) every person whom a bishop would be bound to accept if presented to him by a patron, would not necessarily be fit & proper within the meaning of the statute.

(1) At a meeting of the trustees to elect a clergyman for presentation to the living, there were several candidates, A. & others being of the favoured class, & C. not being so. A. was proposed, but a majority voted against him. C. was then proposed, & obtained a majority of votes, & he was declared duly elected. Upon the election of C. being set aside, on account of his not being of the favoured class:—Held: the trustees must proceed to a new election. A.'s merits not having been considered with reference to those of the other candidates, excepting C.—A.-G. v. POWIS (EARL) (1853), Kay, 180; 2 Eq. Rep. 566; 21 L. J. Ch. 218; 2 W. R. 140; 69 E. R. 79.

2319. — Trust to present from class—Whether refusal of whole class "failure" of trust.—An advowson was conveyed in strict settlement with a declaration of trust that only the Fellows of a certain college should be presented to the benefice. On "failure" of the donees of the power of appointment to make such presentation the advowson was to be for the benefit of the Master & Senior Fellows of the college for ever. Plt. who was a donee of the power, offered the benefice, which was vacant at the time, to each of the Fellows, but they all refused it, & he appointed himself:—Held: there had been no "failure" within the meaning of the settlement, & therefore, the advowson was still vested in pltf., subject to a trust on future occasions to appoint a Fellow in accordance with the deed.—HOPPER v. ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE (1914), 31 T. L. R. 139.

C. Mode of Presentation.

(a) In General.

2320. By Crown—Whether by parol.—(1) The King may present by parol, for nothing is granted or given by the presentation, for it is but a commendation or declaration of the King's will (COKE, C.J.).

(2) If a man presents ad rectoriam, it is as good as if he had presented ad ecclesiam (COKE, C.J.).—R. v. — (1611), Cro. Jac. 247; 79 E. R. 212.

2321. ——(1) A common person by his letter or his word may make a presentation to a benefice to the bishop; the King may present by word if the ordinary be present; for a presentment is but a commandment; if the King under any seal present, it is good. It is best to plead the King presented generally, & not to plead it by letters patent, for it is the worst way (per Cur.)

(2) A presentment under the Great Seal to a church, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaster, is good, & need not be under the Duchy Seal (per Cur.).—R. v. EMERSON (1612), 1 Brownl. 162; 123 E. R. 720.

2332. Corporation—Presentation by deed under seal—Variance in name immaterial.—Edward III. granted licence to R. to found a collegiate hall of scholars, etc., sub nomine Aulae Scholar' Reginae de Oxon, quae per unum praepositum de dictis scholaribus gubernabitur, & to give & assign a certain house, etc., praefatis praepositis et scholaribus aulae illius for their habitation for ever. James I. had exemplified under the great seal the said charter in the records of the Chancery; & the clause sub nomine was Aula Reginae de Oxonia. R., who founded the college, in his charter of foundation, ordered that it should for ever be called Aula Reginae; & in several parts of his charter, scholares were called socii. The provost & scholars of the hall, by deed under their common seal & per nomina H., praepositi Collegii in universitate Oxoniae, et sociorum, et scholarium ejusdem collegii, presented A. to a church, who was admitted, instituted, & inducted, & who afterwards, being provost of the said hall or college, demised the said rectory for years; afterwards the provost of the hall or college aforesaid, & the scholars of the same, per nomina "praepositi, sociorum, et scholarium, Aulae vel Collegii Reginae in universitate Oxoniae," patrons of the said church, by their deed sealed with their common seal, confirmed the said demise; & the ordinary likewise confirmed it in the lifetime of A.: Held: the true name of the corp. was "Praepositus et Scholares Aulae Reginae de Oxon." & the presentation & confirmation were good.—AYRAY'S CASE (1611), 11 Co. ii. Where Patrons Trustees.

2334. What notice of meeting required.

(1) Presentation to a living. Twenty-five trustees were to meet, & to present & elect a clergyman; one dies; the rest are equally divided, half being in favour of A. the rest voting for B. Upon the death of the supporters of the latter, the friends of A. meet & sign a presentation for him. This is void at law, & cannot be supported in equity.

(2) There should have been a distinct notice for the meeting of all.

(3) A direction that the trustees should meet for such purpose "within four months" from the death of an incumbent, does not prevent their meeting after that time.

(4) Trustees cannot make proxies to vote in such a personal trust as the above; though if a choice were regularly made at a proper meeting, they might for the mere purpose of signing the presentation.—*A.-G. v. 2336. ——— Where by neglect the number of trustees in a trust to present to a living was not filled up at the time of an avoidance.—Held: (1) the ct. would not by injunction prevent the effect of a presentation under the legal title of the heir of the surviving trustee, without a special ground; (2) the ct. would take care as to the future, that the trust should be properly filled up.—A.-G. v. LITCHFIELD (BP.) (1801), 5 Ves. 825; 31 E. R. 878.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. Re Church Patronage Trust, Laurie v. A.-G., [1904] 1 Ch. 41.

2337. ——— Whether terms of trust deed complied with.—By deed, the advowson of the vicarage of C. was vested in eight trustees, upon trust, from time to time as a vacancy should occur, that they or the major part of them & the survivors of them & their succeeding trustees, & the survivors of them or the major part of them for the time being, within the space of four calendar months next after such vacancy, should publish notice in the parish church upon two several Sundays immediately after divine service, of a certain time for the meeting of the parishioners within such four calendar months for electing a vicar; & the same parties were within six calendar months to present him when elected to the ordinary to be instituted & inducted. By the same indenture it was declared that when any of the trustees or the successors should be dead, the survivors should, as they in their discretion should think fit, before their number should be reduced to five, or within three months next after it should be reduced to four, appoint new trustees, so that the number of nine might be completed. In 1810, the number of the trustees was reduced to four, but no new appointment took place until Nov. 1822, when there were only two trustees surviving, who conveyed the advowson to themselves & seven new trustees. In May, 1838, the number of the trustees being reduced to six & appointment of new trustees was made, & the number restored to nine. In Sept. 1840, the late vicar died, & on Jan. 10 & 17, 1841, notice signed by five of the trustees was published of a meeting of the parishioners to elect a vicar. The name of N., one of the trustees who signed the notice, was subsequently erased. On Jan. 21 & 22 the election took place in the presence of the five trustees who had signed the notice. The deed of May, 1838, was not executed by P., one of the continuing trustees, until Jan. 22, 1841. At the time of the election two of the trustees were abroad, & one was dead. After the election, four of the trustees who were present signed at the foot of the poll-book a declaration, that A. was duly elected; but B., one of the trustees, refused to sign such declaration. Within six months from the election five of the trustees, one of whom had not been present at the election, presented A. to the ordinary: Held: (1) the appointment of 1822 was under the circumstances valid; (2) the election of A. was good; (3) the presentation of him signed by the five trustees was sufficient.

(4) Although trustees are not appointed in the manner directed by the trust deed, yet if there be no fraud or concealment in the appointment, & all parties interested acquiesce in & allow it to remain for many years unquestioned, the ct. will not interfere to remove them.—A.-G. v. CUMING (1843), 2 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 139; 7 Jur. 187; 63 E. R. 61.

2384. Effect.]—An annuity granted by a prebendary after admission & institution, & before induction is not good to charge the prebend.

The grant was not good to bind the successor, because it was made before induction, at which time it was not a good grant, for the successor shall not be bound but in respect that the grant was good to charge the prebend, & the prebendary could not charge it before he was inducted, because the induction makes him to have the actual possession of the prebend, & to have the freehold in deed of the possessions thereof, for before induction he has not the freehold either in deed or in law. But the collation & induction makes him, as well as it makes a parson or vicar, to have the cure of souls, & it enables them to administer the sacraments to the parishioners, & to perform all divine service. So that he is a prebendary or parson to such purpose, but yet a prebendary cannot lawfully have seisin of the house, glebe, or tithes, in our law before his installation, nor the parson before his induction, & the installation is to be done to the prebendary by the dean & chapter, & the induction to the parson or vicar by the archdeacon (per CUR.).

Whereby it appears, that without induction, which is a corporal possession, he who is admitted & instituted is not parson; so that from hence it is to be observed, that no possession can be had before induction, & without possession confirmation is worth nothing (per CUR.).—HARE v. 2436 --- Evidence of—Long usage. | -In 1593 the parish church of K., a rectory, having become the parish church of K., a rectory, & living, & the ruinous, the parishioners of the adjoining parish of W., a perpetual curacy, entered into an agreement under which the parishioners of K. were admitted to the use of their church & to the benefit of all usual ecclesiastical offices, which were thenceforward performed by the incumbents for the time being of W. for the parishioners of both parishes. From 1605 onwards there was no separate presentation to the benefice of K. but no formal union of the livings of W. & K. was made, although the holders for the time being of the living of W. were cited, & made official returns, & paid charges, as rectors of K. In 1811 the Tithe Comrs. awarded a tithe rentcharge in respect of lands at K., which then were, & had since remained, the property of defts. & their predecessors in title. The holder of the benefice of W. claimed the tithe rentcharge upon the ground that there had been a union of his benefice with that of K., & that the profits of the latter benefice belonged to the holder of the united benefices: - Held: (1) there had been no legal or effectual union upon which the claim could be founded; (2) no receipt of the tithe rentcharge by plffs. or their predecessors in title could be shown, & defts. were, therefore, not liable to account.

Semble : Title Act, 1832 (c. 100), limiting the time for recovery of tithes, would not have operated to bar the claim. — A.-G. v. DURHAM (EARL) (1882), 46 L. T. 16.

2437. ----- [Appl't. was the owner of the tithe rentcharge in two civil parishes by virtue of his being the incumbent of a church in each parish. He claimed that he was the incumbent of two separate benefices, so that, if that was the case, he was entitled to exemption from the poor rate on the tithe rentcharge, inasmuch as his total income from each parish was below the limit fixed by Ecclesiastical Tithe Rentcharge Rates Act, 1920 (c. 22), s. 1. On complaints for the rates the evidence showed that from very early times the two livings had never been separately occupied. The justices held that the two civil parishes were part of one benefice, & they ordered distress warrants to be issued: Held: there was evidence on which the justices could find that appl't. was the occupant of one benefice & not two benefices, & their decision must be affirmed. *CARPENTER v. A. In General.

2447. Duty to reside on benefice—In parsonage.]

2448. —.]—An incumbent must reside in the parsonage house, where there is one, & not in another house though within the same parish.—LAW v. IBBETSON (1771), 5 Burr. 2722; 98 E. R. 428.

Annotations:—Expld. Wilkinson v. Allott (1776), 2 Cowp. 429. It is said, that in Law v. Ibbotson, I did say, "that if there was no parsonage house, the parson might reside where he pleased"; but it is clear that must mean somewhere in the parish; any other construction would be a shameful evasion of the statute (LORD MANSFIELD, C.J.). Consd. Wynn v. Smithies (1815), 5 Taunt. 198.

2449. — Incumbent holding two benefices—Residence in benefice not having parsonage.]

—The incumbent of two livings, one of which has a house of residence upon it, & the other not, may reside in that in which there is no parsonage house, without a licence from the bishop, & such residence will excuse him from residing in the other living.—*WYNN v. B. Dispensation from.

(a) Licence of Bishop or Archbishop.

2452. Necessity for—Private Act annexing benefice to deanery.]—A private Act annexed the rectory of H. to the deanery of Windsor, & recited that the necessary residence on the deanery, & the dean's attendance on her Majesty, as registrar of the order of the garter, would oblige him to be often absent from H., & the Act compelled him to appoint a stipendiary curate constantly resident at H.:—Semle: this, without more, conferred an excuse for non-residence at H., although in the subsequent Act, 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, imposing residence on all benefices not therein excepted, this is not enumerated, as a ground of exemption or of licence.

Where a private Act "united" & "annexed" a rectory in the diocese of O. to a deanery in the diocese of S. & dispensed with any presentation to the dean, but left institution & induction still necessary:—Held: a licence from the bishop of O. for non-residence on the rectory was necessary, as well as a licence for non-residence on the deanery from the bishop of S.

PART V. SECT. 8, SUB-SECT. 2.

t. Vicar-choral.]—The office of vicar-choral is not attended with a cure of souls.—SHAW v. WOODS (1855), 5 L. C. L. R. 158; 7 Ir. Jur. 365.—IR.

Where deft. had first ruled pltt. to discontinue an action for non-residence on a notification of exemption, which pltt. had agreed to admit, & traverse the title:—Held: deft. might afterwards have another rule to discontinue as to the same benefice, if he could show a sufficient ground.—WRIGHT v. LEGGE (1815), 6 Taunt. 48; 128 E. R. 950.

2453. Grounds for granting—Incumbent holding benefices in different dioceses—Licence in respect of one benefice.—It is no ground within 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, s. 19, for a licence of non-residence upon a benefice in one diocese, that a bishop of another diocese has licensed the incumbent's non-residence on a benefice within that diocese, because he had no house on that benefice, & lived within two miles thereof, & did the duty & a licence granted on that ground, would not be valid without the allowance of the Archbishop, under sect. 20.

(2) The non-residence on one benefice under a licence from the diocesan thereof, is not equivalent to actual residence thereon, so as to excuse the incumbent's non-residence on another benefice.

(3) Therefore, a bishop's retrospective certificate that he would have granted a licence of non-residence because the incumbent was performing the duties of another benefice within two miles of which he lived by licence from another diocesan, not being allowed by the archbishop, is void, but is good with the archbishop's certificate, though the latter be granted after July 1, 1814.—WRIGHT v. FLAMANK (1815), 6 Taunt. 52; 1 Marsh. 308; 128 E. R. 952.

2454. Registration—Benefice in archbishop's peculiar—Situate in another diocese—Place of registration.—A licence of non-residence on a benefice within an archbishop's peculiar, locally situate in another diocese, needs not to be registered in the registry of the diocese, but ought to be registered in the registry of the archbishop.—WYNNE v. MOORE (1814), 5 Taunt. 757; 128 E. R. 889.

2455. Effect—Non-residence under licence not equivalent to actual residence.—WRIGHT v. FLAMANK, No. 2453, ante.

2456. Retrospective licence—Effect.—(1) Under 54 Geo. 3, c. 51, the retrospective certificate of a bishop to excuse a non-residence incurred before the passing of that Act, need not be obtained before July 1, 1814.

(2) A bishop's certificate that he would have granted a licence, cannot be pleaded in bar, or used as a defence upon the trial, of an action for non-residence.

(3) If the certificate covers so much of the time of the non-residence, that not enough non-residence to constitute an offence remains uncovered, the ct. will discontinue the action.—WYNNE v. KAY (1814), 5 Taunt. 843; 1 Marsh. 387; 128 E. R. 924.

2460. ———.—(1) By 21 Hen. 8, c. 13, it was resolved that the parson ought to reside in the parsonage-house & not in another house, although within the same parish.

(2) Lawful imprisonment without covin, or the non-existence of a parsonage-house in the parish, or sickness without fraud, are good excuses for non-residence.—BUTLER & GOODALE'S CASE (1598), 6 Co. 2465. ———.—It is no ground for issuing a writ of prohibition to prevent a bishop from declaring a living void under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 100), s. 58, which has been under sequestration for a year, in consequence of the non-residence of the incumbent, that the non-residence is occasioned by his imprisonment, under a sentence pronounced by this ct. upon a criminal information for libel.

We certainly did not contemplate this consequence of our judgment; but though this gentleman is rendered physically unable to obey the order requiring him to reside in his living, as his inability results from his own extreme misconduct, he cannot avail himself of it as any excuse for non-compliance with that order. If any superior authority should think proper to release him from that imprisonment in order that he may return to his congregation, that is for them, & not for us (LORD DENMAN, C.J.).—*Ex p. a. Proof of exemption.—Action for penalties, under 5 Geo. IV., c. 91, against a clergyman, for non-residence on his benefice. It is no ground of nonsuit that plff. in his declaration, negatives certain grounds of exemption, but does not prove the negative, the onus of proof resting on deft.—ARRUTHNOT v. LESLIE (1833), 1 Ir. L. Rec. N. S. 83.—IR.

2479. — Whether allegation of length of absence sufficiently certain.—(1) 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, which prohibits under a penalty a spiritual person from absents himself from his benefice for more than a certain time in any one year, means year from the time when the action is brought for the penalty.

(2) In such action it is not necessary to allege in the declaration that the benefice has the cure of souls; & its being alleged that he absented himself for a period exceeding eight months together, on Oct. 10, 1810, for the space of nine months, then next following is sufficiently certain of the time of absence, for it shall be intended to be for more than eight months immediately consecutive to Oct. 10, the jury having found a verdict for a penalty corresponding with that period of absence.

(3) The annual value means average annual value.

SUB-SECT. 4.—ECCLESIASTICAL DUTIES.

2485. Conduct of—Whether matter of public interest—Management of charity in parish.—The conduct & management, by the clergyman of a parish, of a charitable society in the parish, from the benefits of which dissenters are by his sanction excluded, is not the lawful subject of public comment, so as to excuse, under the plea of not guilty, the publication of untrue & injurious matter respecting the clergyman in relation to the charity.

Qu.: whether sermons preached in a church, but not published, are the lawful subject of such public comment.—GATHERCOLE v. MIAL (1846), 15 M. & W. 319; 15 L. J. Ex. 179; 7 L. T. O. S. 89; 10 J. P. 582; 10 Jur. 337.

2486. — Dispute between incumbent & churchwarden—As to use of church & vestry.—A churchwarden having written to plff. the incumbent, accusing him of having desecrated the church, by allowing books to be sold in it during service & by turning the vestry into a cooking apartment.

the correspondence was published without pltf.'s permission in the deft.'s newspaper, with comments on pltf.'s conduct:—Held: (1) this was a matter of public interest which might be made the subject of public discussion; (2) the publication was, therefore, not libellous, unless the language used was stronger than, in the opinion of the jury, the occasion justified.—KELLY v. TINLING (1865), L. R. 1 Q. B. 699; 35 L. J. Q. B. 231; 13 L. T. 255; 30 J. P. 791; 12 Jur. N. S. 940; 14 W. R. 51.

SECT. 9.—CHARGES ON BENEFICES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

2487. Whether claimable by prescription—Charge by way of annuity.—An annuity lies by prescription against the parson of a church; & it is no plea to say that the church is destroyed; for it is due in respect of the profits which arise from the tithe & glebe.

The church is the cure of souls & the right of tithes. If the material fabric of the parish church be down, another may be built, & ought to be (per CUR.).—ANON. (1675), 1 Mod. Rep. 200; 86 E. R. 827.

Charges authorised for purpose of improving property of benefice.—See Part VII., Sect. 7, sub-sect. 3, post.

SUB-SECT. 2.—MADE WHILE CHARGES

AUTHORISED BY STATUTE.

NOTE.—Charges on benefices were made unlawful by 13 Eliz., c. 20. This Act was repealed by 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, s. 10, but, so far as it related to charges, was revived by 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, & in considering the cases in this sub-section regard must be had to these Acts.

2488. Validity—Demise of benefice to secure annuity.—(1) A rector in Dec. 1816, granted, bargained, sold, & demised the rectory & all the glebe lands, tithes, etc. to a trustee for securing an annuity for a term of years, if he the rector should so long live. This conveyance having been made after the passing of 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, & before the passing of 57 Geo. 3, c. 99:—Held: a valid conveyance passing the legal estate to the trustee.

(2) The rector succeeded to the rectory, upon the death of the former incumbent, in Apr. 1816. A. & B. were then in possession of the glebe lands, having been tenants of the former incumbent, & they continued in possession until Dec. 1816, when the rector conveyed them to the trustee for securing the annuity:—Held: the latter could not maintain an ejectment against A. & B. without giving them a notice to quit.—DOE d. CATES v. SOMERVILLE (1826), 6 B. & C. 126; 9 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 100; 5 L. J. O. S. K. B. 28; 108 E. R. 399.

2489. ——— Assignment of term when charges prohibited by statute.—A rector, in 1811, & after 13 Eliz. c. 20, had been repealed, in consideration of £600 granted, bargained, & sold the rectory & glebe lands, & all tithes, etc., for a hundred years, to the grantee of an annuity for securing the same. After the passing of 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, by deed, reciting the grant of the annuity, & that B. had agreed to lend the rector £600 to enable him to redeem the annuity, the grantee of the same, in consideration of £600, by direction of the rector, assigned to B. the £600 by him paid for the purchase of the annuity, & the term, & the rector confirmed to B. the rectory for that term, for the purpose of securing the repayment of the sum advanced by him to redeem the annuity, as well as other sums:—Held: inasmuch as the term was created after the passing of the 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, which repealed 13 Eliz. c. 20, against charging benefices, the assignment of it for the purpose of securing the money paid as the consideration for the annuity, was valid, & vested the legal estate in B., although made after 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, which, perhaps, revived 13 Eliz. c. 20, so far as related to charges upon benefices.—DOE d. BROUGHTON v. GULLY (1829), 9 B. & C. 341; 4 Man. & Ry. K. B. 249; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 201; 100 E. R. 128.

2490. ———]—A rector, after 13 Eliz. c. 20, had been repealed, & before its revival by 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, demised his rectory to a trustee for 99 years, to secure an annuity. After the passing of 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, by deed reciting the grant of the former annuity, & that A. had agreed to purchase of the grantor an annuity of £574 a year for £4,400, & out of that sum to pay off the former annuity, & that that annuity & the term created to secure the same, should be assigned to a trustee for A.'s benefit, the rector granted the said annuity of £574, chargeable on his rectory; & the trustee of the term created to secure the annuity of 1813, assigned it to a trustee for the benefit of A.:—Held: inasmuch as the term was created after the passing of 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, which repealed 13 Eliz. c. 20, the assignment of it, though for the purpose of securing the payment of an annuity charged on the benefice after the passing of 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, was valid.—*DOE d. 2491. ——— Covenant to charge benefice to which grantor might be presented subsequently—No charge executed until after passing of Act prohibiting charges.—43 Geo. 3, c. 84, repealed 13 Eliz. c. 20, which prohibited the charging of benefices. 43 Geo. 3, c. 84, was repealed in 1817, & the effect of such repeal was to revive 13 Eliz. c. 20. In 1811 an incumbent duly charged his then present benefice with an annuity, & covenanted that, if he should afterwards be preferred to any other benefice, he would fully charge the same with the annuity; & that in the meantime the same should be charged & chargeable with the annuity. In 1814 the incumbent was preferred to another benefice but no legal charge upon it was executed until 1818:—Held: the deed of 1811 constituted a good equitable charge, which attached upon the new benefice as soon as it was acquired.—*METCALFE v. 2493. ————]—A warrant of attorney was given to confess judgment at the suit of A. It recited a grant of an annuity to A., & that the same was secured by the demise of a rectory, glebe lands, tithes, etc. by the grantor, to B. It then declared that the warrant of attorney was executed for the purpose of securing the annuity, & to the end & intent that a sequestration might be obtained by A. & continued during the continuance of the annuity, for the better securing the same :—Held : the warrant of attorney was a fraud on 13 Eliz. c. 20, as creating a charge on an ecclesiastical benefice.—*FLIGHT v. 2494. ————]—A beneficed clergyman granted annuities by three several deeds, & by the same deeds, made them chargeable on his living, which he thereby conveyed in trust for the grantee, for the more effectually raising & enforcing payment of the annuities out of the living; & he also gave as a security for payment of the annuities, three warrants of attorney, with defeasances in the common form, to confess judgment at the suit of the grantee. On motion to set aside the warrants of attorney, as being a charge upon the living in evasion of 13 Eliz. c. 20 :—Held : this did not appear; the covenants in the annuity deed for payment of the annuity might

2498. ————]—Deft., a beneficed clergyman, gave to pltf. a warrant of attorney to secure a previously contracted debt authorising pltf. to enter up judgment thereon, & immediately thereupon to sue out one or more writ or writs of fieri or levari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis, or sequestrari facias, & to procure one or more sequestrations thereon "against deft.'s livings. Pltf. having accordingly entered up judgment & sequestered the livings, the ct., at the instance of an annuity creditor, having a subsequent judgment, & without the concurrence of deft., granted a rule to restrain pltf. from further enforcing his writ of sequestration on the ground that the warrant of attorney, being a "charging of a benefice with a pension or profit," was void by 13 Eliz. c. 20.—*NEWLAND v. benefice, & the payment secured by a bond & warrant of attorney with a judgment to be entered up thereon, for the purpose of charging the benefice. By the deed of grant the annuity was made payable on certain days & chargeable on the benefice, with a power of distress, etc.; it also contained a demise of the benefice to a trustee, with a power in default of payment, to receive the tithes, rents & profits, etc. It was thereby also declared, that the bond & warrant of attorney, referred to in the deed as having been already prepared, & meant to bear even date with & to be executed & given at the same time as the deed, & the judgment to be entered up thereon, should be further securities for the annuity; & that immediately after such judgment the creditors might sue out execution & do such other acts as might be necessary for obtaining a sequestration: & that as often as the annuity should be in arrear, they might put in force such writ of sequestration. The condition of the bond, after reciting the agreement for purchase of the annuity & for securing the same by such bond warrant of attorney, & judgment reciting also the deed of grant, was declared to be for the due payment of the annuity on certain days. The warrant of attorney gave authority to receive a declaration at the suit of plffs., in an action of debt on a bond describing it as a bond of even date with the warrant of attorney, executed by the grantor of the annuity & given to the grantees, & to suffer judgment. The defeasance recited, that it was given to secure the payment of an annuity of the amount mentioned in the bond payable on the same days as in the condition of the bond was expressed. On a motion to set aside the judgment on this warrant of attorney on the ground that it was a charge on the benefice:—Held: this did not sufficiently appear, the reference in the warrant of attorney to the bond amounting to no more than a description of the bond, its date, the parties to it, & the time at which the annuity was to be paid & not incorporating the terms of the deed of grant, recited in the bond, with the warrant of attorney, as to make the latter operate as charge of the benefice.—COLEBROOK v. LAYTON (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 578; 1 Nev. & M. K. B. 374; 2 L. J. K. B. 95; 110 E. R. 573.

2500. ————]—The deed by which an annuity was granted contained a charge on a rectory, but a warrant of attorney which accompanied the deed, though it recited the deed, gave no authority to sequester the rectory: Held: the deed was only void pro tanto & the warrant of attorney was unimpeachable.—*FAIRCLOTH v. The ct. will set aside a warrant of attorney, judgment & execution, where the defeasance of the warrant of attorney recites the grant of an annuity by A. to B., rector of R., cum cura animarum, intended to be secured by an indenture, "whereby A. had charged the annuity upon the rectory of R.;" & that it had been agreed that such annuity should also be secured by that warrant of attorney; & that no execution should issue until 21 days' default in payment of the annuity, in which case B. might, toties quoties, sue out such execution as he should think fit, & also sequester the rectory, to the intent that B. might recover the arrears.—*SALTMARSH v. 2502. ————]—On a proceeding at the instance of a sequestrator to settle the rights of several sequestration creditors of a beneficed clergyman a creditor claimed under a warrant of attorney which appeared by memorandum indorsed, to be given by the clergyman for the purpose of securing an annuity granted by deed:—Held: the creditor need not show the deed, in order to prove that it was free from objection under 13 Eliz. c. 20, the warrant of attorney being on the face of it, regular.—JOHNSON v. BRAZIER (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 624; 110 E. R. 1345.

2503. ————]—R. granted an annuity, charging it, by deed, on two ecclesiastical benefices held by him, which he thereby demised on trusts to secure the annuity. He at the same time executed a warrant of attorney to the grantee, reciting the annuity deed, & stating that, for further securing the regular payment of the said annuity, he thereby desired & authorised certain attorneys, etc., the rest of the instrument being in the common form of a warrant of attorney to suffer judgment in an action of debt. The amount for which judgment was to be entered was twice the purchase-money of the annuity. There was no defeasance:—Held: the warrant of attorney was not void as charging the benefices contrary to 13 Eliz. c. 20.—MOORE v. RAMSDEN (1838), 7 Ad. & El. 898; 3 Nev. & M. K. B. 180; 7 L. J. 2504. ————]—Deft., a beneficed clergyman, demised two livings to plff. for a term of 99 years upon trust to pay £3,700 previously borrowed by deft. of plff., the indenture not in any way referring to a warrant of attorney. On the same day deft. executed a warrant of attorney to plff., in the defeasance of which it was stated to be given as a collateral security for £3,700 & interest "further secured by a grant & demise bearing even date herewith of the vicarages" in question. The money in question not being paid, plff. signed judgment, & issued a sequestration. On application to set aside the warrant & subsequent proceedings:—Held: it was not void as a charging of a benefice within 13 Eliz. c. 20, s. 1, but it was an independent security for a loan.—*BENDRY v. 2507. Whether charge on living.]—Glebe land is bound by the delivery of writ of fieri facias de bonis ecclesiasticis to the bishop, but is not affected by the judgment. Therefore a judgment confessed by an incumbent in the North Riding of Yorkshire, is not an incumbrance upon the living, so as to require registration, under 8 Geo. 2, c. 6.—*COTTELL v. 2509.]—A judgment entered up against a beneficed clergyman does not create a charge under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 13, upon his living.

A receiver was appointed by the ct. in a suit by a judgment creditor of a beneficed clergyman to enforce his judgment as a charge upon the living, the Vice Chancellor who appointed the receiver considering that the judgment was a charge. Another judgment creditor then issued a sequestration against the same living, & a motion being made in the cause for his committal for contempt, another Vice Chancellor refused to make any order, but directed him to pay the costs, & he undertook to deal with the sequestration as the ct. should direct. At the hearing, the same Vice Chancellor felt bound by the opinion expressed on the occasion of the appointment of the receiver, & decided accordingly. On appeal:—Held: (1) the first judgment was not a charge on the benefice, & a receiver ought not to have been appointed; (2) sequestration was the only proper mode of enforcing a judgment against the profits of a benefice; (3) the judgment creditor who had issued a sequestration had a priority of charge, notwithstanding any contempt he might have committed by interfering when a receiver was appointed.—HAWKINS v. GATHERCOLE (1855), 6 De G. M. & G. 1; 3 Eq. Rep. 348; 24 L. J. Ch.

The plea alleged that the lease was executed as part of the same transaction, & that the rector knew at the time of the deeds being executed that deft. was attorney & agent for V., & that the second deed was made to enable him to apply the rent reserved by the first deed in the manner above mentioned; that there was due from the rector to V. & M. more than was claimed in the action, & that he, deft., had applied the tithes, etc., received by him, as directed by the second deed. Deft. pleaded, further, that before the execution of the lease the rector of S. was indebted to V. & M. & others, & that in consideration thereof & of a further advance by V., the rector agreed to charge the living of S. by executing the lease declared on, & by appointing deft. agent & receiver by the deed set out in the first plea; & that the lease was part of the same transaction to charge the living:—Held: the first plea did not show any defeasance of the covenant to pay the rent contained in the lease: but there was an equitable assignment of the rent so far as necessary to pay V. & M., & the lease was void as being part of a transaction by which the living was charged, contrary to 13 Eliz. c. 20.—*WALTHAM v. 2515. — Personal covenant to pay—Contained in void charge.—A declaration in covenant stated that deft. had granted an annuity to plff., & for the better securing the annuity demised a rectory & prebendal stall to certain trustees, & covenanted for payment of the annuity: & alleged as a breach the non-payment thereof. To this declaration deft., being under terms of pleading issuably, pleaded that the indenture was made with the view of charging, & was a charge upon, the rectory, the same being a benefice with a cure of souls, contrary to 13 Eliz. c. 20, & that the indenture & security were made to evade the statute:—Held: the statute avoided the charge upon the benefice only, but not the covenant in the deed containing it.—*SLOANE v. In a penal action against the incumbent for acting as a justice without being qualified, the writ of sequestrari facias is admissible in evidence against him, although the judgment roll contains no entry of an award of the writ.—*PACK v. 2522. Is continuing execution.—Deft. was rector of the parish of A. in the archdeaconry of D., which was formerly in the diocese of B., but was dissevered from that diocese under Ecclesiastical Commissioners Act, 1836 (c. 77), & permanently annexed to & included in the diocese of S. The registrar of such portion of the diocese of B. as lay within the archdeaconry had an office at C., at which, after the annexation, he continued to transact the business of sequestrations as he had done before. A writ of sequestrari facias was issued by plff., directed to the Bishop of S., & delivered to the registrar & accepted by him, & sequestrators were appointed under the seal of the Bishop of S., & the writ remained in the registrar's hands at his office at C.:—Held: (1) the writ of sequestration is a continuing execution & continues in force until the debt & costs are realised, without reference to the time at which the writ is nominally returned, or until the bishop is ruled to return it, which has the effect of putting an end to the writ; (2) a bishop is a corporation sole, & on the death of a bishop there is no need of a fresh writ of sequestration, but the succeeding bishop may be called upon to make a return of that which has been levied since he came into office & to return the writ; (3) under the circumstances above stated this writ was rightly directed to the Bishop of S., & the present bishop must make a return to it.—PHILIPS v. ST. JOHN (1855), 10 Exch. 895; 3 C. L. R. 478; 24 L. J. Ex. 171; 24 L. T. O. S. 311; 156 E. R. 704.

B. Position, Powers and Duties of Bishop.

2536. Position—In situation of sheriff.]—Where a bishop grants sequestration against the effects of a clergyman, within his diocese, he stands in the same situation as sheriff, & the ct. has the same power over him as over that officer. Therefore, where four writs of sequestration had issued against the effects of a clergyman, at the same time by the same attorney, at the suit of different persons, & they had been placed so as to defeat the execution of pltf., who was entitled to priority, the ct., ordered the bishop to return what he had levied, & give precedence to the writ issued at the suit of pltf.—R. v. LONDON (Bp.) (1822), 1 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 486.

2537. — — — —.]—When the profits of benefice, which had been sequestrated at the instance of the provisional assignee, & not paid into ct., upon the ground that a judgment creditor, since the insolvent's discharge, was taking steps to set it aside, no notice having been given to the provisional assignee that it was intended to dispute his title, the Insolvent Ct. granted a rule upon the bishop to show cause why he should not make a return of the proceeds of the sequestration. The bishop having made a return:—Held: the bishop, whose office in this matter was analogous to that of sheriff was accountable to the ct.

The bishop is the officer of this ct.; he sequesters the profits of a benefice in pursuance of an order made by the Insolvent Ct., which order Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), emphatically pronounces to be his sufficient warrant. There appears no reason that the fruits of his levy should travel to the hands of the provisional assignee through the Ct. of Q. B.; & the natural construction of the statute is that it is the business of this ct. to enforce the rights of the creditors in such a matter. The bishop has made his return of £713 13s. 7½d. levied under the provisional assignee's sequestration; & has given us the dates of seven subsequent sequestrations issued on judgments of particular creditors. The order now made is, that he shall pay the money into ct. (per CUR.).—Re WETHERELL (1848), 11 L. T. O. S. 249, 373.

2538. — — — —.]—A return having been made by a bishop to a writ of fi. fa. de bonis ecclesiasticis, annexing accounts of moneys levied under that & a prior writ issued by another sequestator, the ct. referred the account to the master to examine the deduction made from the sum levied, & say whether they were proper to be allowed, notwithstanding the same accounts had been filed in the Ecclesiastical Ct.—MORRIS v. PHELPS (1850), 4

*d. When granted.—Return of nulla bona to writ of another creditor.]—The ct. granted a writ of sequestration to the bishop, without a writ of fi. fa. having been first issued by pltf., & a return thereto obtained, when it* *appeared by the records of the ct. that the sheriff to whom such writ, if issued, must have gone, had recently returned nulla bona to a fi. fa. sued out of the ct., by another creditor, against deft.—SMITH v. ARMSTRONG (1847), 10 L. R. 447.—IN.*

LONDON (Bp.)*, [1913] 1 Ch. 127; 82 L. J. Ch. 61; 107 L. T. 730; 29 T. L. R. 50; 57 Sol. Jo. 96, C. A.

C. Sequestrators.

(a) In General.

2541. Appointment—Whether bishop bound to appoint cheapest sequestrator.—(1) A sequestrator has no right to charge the estate with the expense of audit dinners if the incumbent expressly forbids it; but by lying by & not objecting at the time, the incumbent cannot afterwards object to such charge if it is the practice to give such dinners to the payers of tithe.

(2) The bishop is not bound to appoint the person who will act as sequestrator on the cheapest terms.—Re SANDERS v. PENLEASE (1850), 1 L. T. 51; 23 J. P. 774.

2542. Position—Mere bailiff or agent of bishop.—On the general principle, I am inclined to hold, that the sequestrator will be liable for dilapidations. The King's writ issues to the bishop to levy a sum for the discharge of the debt. This writ has been truly described as mandatory to the bishop, who is, in a general sense, only ministerial. The sequestrator is a kind of bailiff to the bishop. There is no mention of any purpose, but the payment of the particular debt; it is, however, a thing incident to, & inseparable from, the subject-matter itself, that there are certain duties & expenses for which the sequestrator is bound to provide. The instrument issued under the authority of the bishop, & contains a clause of allowance for all necessary charges; & I do not know on what principle it can be maintained, that the repairs of the chancel, & of the parsonage, are not necessary charges. The clergyman is, by law, equally required to provide such repairs, as well as the performance of Divine Service, & he cannot exonerate himself from one of those duties, more than from the other (SIR W. SCOTT).—HUBBARD v. BECKFORD (1798), 1 Hag. Con. 307; 2 Phillim. 5, n.

Annotation.—Refd. Harding v. Hall (1842), 10 M. & W. 42.

2543. ——]—The sequestrator of a benefice, appointed by the bishop under a writ of sequestrari facias, is the mere bailiff or agent of the bishop, & has no such interest in the profits as will enable him to maintain an action at law against a party who wrongfully receives them.—HARDING v. HALL (1842), 10 M. & W. 42; 11 L. J. Ex. 354; 6 J. P. 633; 6 Jur. 649.

2544. — On bankruptcy.—Where a sequestrator has become bkpt., the ct. will restrain him from exercising his power, & permit the assignee to use his name, until a new sequestrator has been appointed.—Re IVESON, Ex p. HALL (1835), 1 Deac. 87; 2 Mont. & A. 392; 4 L. J. Bcy. 83, Ct. of It.

2545. Remuneration.—A sequestrator is not entitled to a stated fee of 6s. 8d. a day for his fee.

I do not remember that 6s. 8d. is an absolute stated fee, to all sequestrators, whether the effects seized under the sequestration are large or small; & as the sequestrator, in this case, has not got in £40 in almost two years, I think the gross sum the master has allowed him, is sufficient for his trouble.—WOOD v. FREEMAN (1743), 2 Atk. 542; 20 E. R. 725.

2547. Repairs—Only to repair as necessity arises—Right to retain money to meet future repairs.—A sequestrator's duty is to do repairs as they become requisite out of the moneys coming to his hands, & not to retain money to meet the probable expenses of future repairs.—DEAN v. LEMPRIERE (1857), 29 L. T. O. S. 125; 5 W. R. 500.

2563. Effect of—Termination of bishop's authority.]—Though a levari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis is a continuing execution, & a levy may be made under it from time to time after it is returnable till the sum indorsed be satisfied, yet if it be actually returned, the authority of the bishop is at an end. Therefore where such a writ remained in the hands of the bishop long after it was returnable, who sequestered the profits of a vicarage accruing as well before the return day as after, & being ruled to return the writ, returned only the amount of the sum levied up to the return day, the ct. would not order the writ & return to be taken off the file, but would only permit the return to be amended by inserting the sum levied, up to the time when the writ was actually returned.—*MARSH v. The lessee having also received notice of a further claim from grantees of annuities, previously charged on the tithes by the rector, who had, as such grantees, subsequently to the title of the rector's assignee, sued out a fi. fa. de bonis ecclesiasticis, against the rector, on a judgment obtained by them on their securities, filed a bill of interpleader against all the parties, & obtained injunctions on paying the rent due from him into ct. On the answers of defts. coming in, the priority of the several titles of claimants being thereby clearly set out, & the rector disclaiming, the ct. dissolved the injunctions, holding, that in such a case they could not restrain the party who was shown to have a preferable title, from proceeding to enforce it; or to decree that the parties should interplead in a case where the priority of right was so distinctly set forth by the answers. If the case be not such as will support a bill of interpleader, defts. should demur. Such a lease & assignment of part of the rector's ecclesiastical property were held to be good, & not to be affected by an execution sued out against the rector, after the rent had been assigned.—BOWYER v. J. became Bishop of L.; &, afterwards, under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 55, a writ in the nature of a levari facias issued, directed to J., reciting that the incumbent of H. had petitioned the Insolvent Debtors' Ct., & commanding J. to sequester the vicarage of H. for the debts of the incumbent, which J. accordingly did, appointing a sequestrator:—Held: (1) the incumbent could not sue a tenant for use & occupation of the glebe, had during the period of the sequestration, & this defence arose on munquam indebitatus; (2) under Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction Act, 1847 (c. 98), s. 8, which passed after the sequestration was published, the sequestration, being an act done under the authority of J., the bishop of the diocese from which H. had been transferred, was made good, & it continued in force till the debt was levied, though after Nov. 1, 1847, & though sect. 8 is confined to acts done before. The vicar appointed no curate, & did not appeal to the archbishop. The bishop, after three months, licenced the Rev. B., clerk, as curate of W., with a stipend. The vicar refused to allow B. to officiate; upon which the bishop issued a mandate or summons to show cause why the vicar should not pay the stipend due, & ultimately proceeded to sequestration:—Held: (1) the requisition upon which the whole of the proceedings were founded was in the nature of a judgment, & void, as the party had had no opportunity of being heard; (2) such a requisition ought to state particular instances of negligence, or show how the incumbent was negligent.—*CAPELL v. The interest not being paid, a decree of sequestration issued against the profits of the benefice, at the promotion of the treasurer of the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, after proceedings in the ct. below. On appeal:—Held: (1) the treasurer had no authority to sue for the payment, & the sequestration was null & void.

The rector having refused to allow the bishop to enter upon the portion of glebe lands which the comrs. had reported might be appropriated to the above purpose:—Held: (2) the treasurer of Queen Anne's Bounty was not competent to maintain a suit for the instalments of & interest on the loan.—*BLACK v. & that the sum now distrained for was demanded of pltf. by the sequestrator, & paid by pltf. to prevent his distraining. On demurrer to the plea:—Held: the above proceedings to sequestration, under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), s. 83, were not authorised by the statute, because the power to appoint a stipendiary curate is given, by sect. 75, only when an incumbent, under the circumstances there described, is absent, for a period exceeding three months altogether, or to be accounted at several times, in the course of any one year: & by sect. 120, the year is to be reckoned from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31; therefore, for want of jurisdiction in the bishop to sequester, the payment under such sequestration did not discharge pltf.—*SHARPE v. 2600. Effect of sequestration—For one year—Avoidance of benefice—Notice to patron.]—Under sect. 58, if the benefice continues one whole year under sequestration issued under the provisions of the Act for disobedience of the order requiring residence, the benefice becomes void; the subsequent provision in that sect., as to giving notice, is only for the purpose of giving the bishop a right to present by lapse, and not for the purpose of creating an avoidance.—Re BARTLETT (1848), 3 Exch. 28; Cripps' Church (1851), 18 L. 2601. ——— Computation of time.]—In proceedings, under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), for the sequestration of a benefice for non-residence, it is not necessary that the bishop's monition, under sect. 54, should be preceded by a citation or other warning to the incumbent. Where the incumbent, in answer to such monition, sends a return assigning an excuse for non-residence which the bishop considers insufficient, that is a sufficient hearing of the incumbent to authorise the bishop to make an order upon the incumbent to return into residence within thirty days. Where the incumbent, being served with such order, sends to the bishop, upon affidavit, an excuse for not obeying the order, which the bishop considers insufficient, that is a sufficient hearing of the incumbent to authorise the bishop to sequester the benefice after the lapse of the thirty days. Under sect. 58 a benefice becomes void if it remain, for the space of a year, under sequestration for non-residence; the year commencing from the date of the decree of sequestration; the case not falling within sect. 120, which provides that for all purposes of the Act, except as therein otherwise provided, the year shall commence on Jan. 1 & be reckoned to Dec. 31, both inclusive.—*BARTLETT v. 2604. Relaxation of sequestration—Effect—On sentence of suspension.]—Pltf., a clergyman, whilst holding a benefice in the diocese of Manchester, was found guilty in the Divorce Ct., upon his wife's petition, of adultery at a place out of the diocese. The Bishop of Manchester, after a report duly made in another diocese by a commission of inquiry under Church Discipline Act, 1840 (c. 46), investigated the charges made against pltf. in his absence after notice, & sentenced him to suspension ab officio et a beneficio for three years, & further, "that the said sentence shall remain in force until he, pltf., shall produce a certificate to our satisfaction signed by three neighbouring beneficed clergymen of the diocese of Manchester of his good conduct during the said period of suspension, & that such suspension be not taken off until he shall produce such certificate." Pltf. being ignorant of the terms of the sentence, resided out of the diocese during the first part of the three years of suspension, but when the period of the sentence expired he sent to the bishop certificates of good conduct covering the whole time, but as to the first part from clergymen of the diocese in which he had then lived; & at the end of three years from his coming into the Manchester diocese he sent a further certificate signed by three neighbouring beneficed clergymen of the diocese of Manchester of his good conduct during the last three years. Before the receipt of this further certificate the bishop had licensed deft. to the benefice which pltf. had held, & relaxed two sequestrations which had been decreed upon the benefice, one before & the other after the passing of the said sentence. It was declared in the sentence that pltf. had been shown to be guilty of "adultery or fornication" & there was no mention in the recitals of some of the matters required to be performed by the Act. Upon a special case stated in an action to recover possession of the church & the income received by deft.:—Held: (1) pltf. had not sufficiently complied with the sentence; & the relaxation of the sequestration did not alter the effect of the suspension; & the suspension per se incapacitated pltf. from instituting any action or suit for the profits of the benefice until the sentence was altered or satisfied; (2) the decree was not invalid for uncertainty, it being immaterial whether the charge were of fornication or adultery for the purpose of the proceedings against pltf.; (3) the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Manchester sufficiently appeared; & it was not necessary to show on the face of the sentence that the seven days' notice required by sect. 4 had been given to accused, nor that the inquiry was public, nor that the preliminary proceedings, with which the bishop was not concerned, had been strictly observed.—MORRIS v. OGDEN (1869), L. R. 4 C. P. 687; 38 L. J. C. P. 329; 20 L. T. 978; 17 W. R. 1103.

2607. — Necessity for notice to incumbent to show cause.—Under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), a writ of sequestration issued from the Consistory Ct. of the diocese of W., reciting that the bishop had issued a monition, ordering the vicar of the vicarage of C., within the diocese, to reside on his benefice, that the monition was served on the vicar, & he returned that he had since commenced residence in consequence of this monition: that it had been officially reported to the bishop that the vicar had so commenced residence, but had not continued to reside, & had not been present at his vicarage house four months on the whole in the year following the monition; that the bishop thereupon, by a subsequent order, ordered him to proceed to & reside on the benefice within thirty days; which order had not been complied with; & the bishop had therefore directed the ct. to sequester the profits until the order should have been complied with, or satisfactory reason for non-compliance shown to the bishop; whereupon the ct. sequestered the profits, until, etc., directing the sequestrator to collect them & out of the same to cause the cure to be duly served, & to account for the residue, etc. The sequestrator having taken the profits accordingly, an action of debt for money had & received was brought against him by the vicar. It appeared at the trial that the sequestration had issued without notice to the vicar to show cause why it should not issue:—Held: (1) such notice was essential to the right of the sequestrator, although, after a proper preliminary proceeding, the judgment of the bishop is final; & a notice warning the vicar, after he had made return to the monition, that, unless he resided, the sequestration would issue, was not such a notice as was requisite; (2) the sequestration could not be considered as issuing under sect. 56, which authorises the bishop to sequester quousque without further monition or order, when the clerk, after being ordered to reside, begins to reside, but, before the expiration of twelve months thereafter, wilfully absents himself for one month; (3) the action of debt was well brought.

(4) It is advisable that the sequestration in such a case should recite the delinquency & the bishops adjudication thereon & that the previous monition be preceded by a summons to show cause why it should not issue.—*BONAKER v. A. Death.

2615. General rule.—ANON. (1507), Keil. 88; 72 E. R. 250.

B. Resignation.

(a) In General.

2616. Jurisdiction of court of equity To enforce resignation. A bill to compel a rector to resign in favour of another, in pursuance of covenant for that purpose, entered into when the rector was presented, will not lie. NEWDIGATE v. HELPS (1821), 6 Madd. 133; 56 E. R. 1043.

(b) Mode of Resignation.

2617. Execution in presence of notary public—Whether necessary. (1) It is not essential to the validity of a deed of resignation of an ecclesiastical benefice that it should be executed by the clerk in the presence of a notary public.

(2) When a clerk has executed an absolute deed of resignation of a benefice, upon an understanding that the formal declaration of acceptance by the ordinary is to be postponed for a time, he cannot afterwards revoke his resignation.

(3) The rule that the resignation of a benefice, except in the case of an exchange, must be absolute does not prevent a bishop accepting a resignation, but fixing a future time at which it shall come into operation.

(4) The fact that a resignation has been made at the request of the bishop in order to avoid the scandal of a commission to inquire into the moral conduct of the clerk does not render the resignation void.—REICHEL v. OXFORD (Bp.) (1889), 14 App. Cas. 259; 59 L. J. Ch. 66; 54 J. P. 101; sub nom. REICHEL v. OXFORD (Bp.), REICHEL v. MAGRATH, 61 L. T. 131; 5 T. L. R. 552, H. L.

2618. Acceptance of resignation by bishop—Necessity for.—On an issue whether a rector had resigned his benefice, the confession, in an answer in Chancery, that he had resigned, is not sufficient to prove the fact without showing that the bishop accepted the resignation.—*RILEY v. (2) An allegation of a custom in parishioners to elect a curate is not supported by proof of such a custom in parishioners paying church rates. (3) Seemle: an ecclesiastical custom, which is not immemorial, will not, though acted on for a long time, deprive a rector of his common law right to appoint his curate.—*ARNOLD v. with it, an election having been made by such inhabitants, at which the votes of non-rated inhabitants were tendered & refused:—Held: a mandamus would not be granted for a new election, as the parties applying for it had made out no case to show that the term "inhabitants," used in the charter, had a wider signification.—*R. v. (2) Whether the curate is formally licenced by the bishop under seal or is a mere probationer working under the bishop's temporary permission, he is still in both cases the holder of an ecclesiastical office, & not a person whose duties & rights are defined by contract.

(3) Neither the relationship between incumbent & curate nor the relationship between bishop & curate create such a relationship between employer & employed as could be construed into anything in the nature of a contract of service, & accordingly neither curates nor assistant curates are compulsorily insurable people under the Act.

2651. — Without consent of incumbent.]—A curate cannot have the benefit of a proceeding by monition for the recovery of a salary assigned by a bishop without the consent of the incumbent, the incumbent being resident on his benefice, & discharging the duties generally, but desirous of the assistance of a curate.—*R. v. 2653. — Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), s. 83.]—Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), s. 83, provides that differences between the incumbent of a benefice & his curate touching the curate's stipend shall be decided summarily by the bishop of the diocese on complaint to him made. Deft. agreed to employ plff. as his curate at an annual stipend of £110, besides board & lodging in the vicarage house. These terms were set out in the nomination of the curate to the bishop. Differences having arisen relative to the board & lodging, plff. brought an action in the High Ct. against deft. to recover damages in lieu of board & lodging. Upon deft.'s motion to stay:—Held: (1) the action would lie; (2) the High Ct. had jurisdiction to try it, since it was neither within the language nor spirit of the above enact-

q. Recovery of—No evidence of contract.]—Plff. sued defts., as churchwardens, for his stipend as the incumbent or minister of a church. It appeared that several resolutions were adopted in vestry as to the salary of the clergyman, but only one subsequent to defts.' acceptance of office, which related to an old balance:—Held: as plff.'s claim rested on a voluntary undertaking of the vestry, not founded upon a consideration moving from plff. or upon any executed consideration of services rendered, & the evidence showed no contract between plff. & defts. founded upon a consideration between them, defts. were entitled to judgment.—CARRY v. WALLACE (1862), 12 C. P. 372.—CAN.

C. During Incumbent's Non-Residence or Neglect of Duty.

2654. Position—As regards incumbent—Liability for rates, taxes & dilapidations.—Where a curate is licenced to a benefice during the absence of the incumbent, whose licence for non-residence enjoins that he shall "keep the premises in good repair," & it does not appear that the curate's stipend has been fixed at not less than the full value of the benefice under Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 106), s. 94, the curate cannot set off the amount paid by him for rates & taxes of the vicarage premises, for he would be liable for them as occupier; but as to the repairs, he would be entitled to set them off at common law, in an action by the vicar for the use & occupation of other premises held under him.

The Archbishop may regulate the mode in which the proceedings at such hearing are to be conducted; but he cannot, if so requested to hear, confirm or annul the revocation merely upon the statements made by the curate in his petition of appeal, & the written documents referred to in such petition. SUB-SECT. 6.—MINISTERS OF PROPRIETARY CHAPELS.

2677. The lease was afterwards assigned to defts. G. & F., who allowed D. to preach & perform divine service in the chapel. D. was a clergyman of the Church of England, who had been inhibited by the Bishop from performing divine service within the diocese in which the chapel was situated. The vicar of the parish had not consented to the performance of D. of service within the chapel:—Held: "regular clergyman" meant a person who could officiate in the chapel without being guilty of irregularity, & as it was irregular of D. to pray & preach in defiance of the inhibition & without the vicar's consent, D. was not a regular clergyman, & must be restrained by injunction from continuing his performance.—FOUNDLING HOSPITAL (GOVERNORS) v. 2682. Contradicting articles of religion.]—Proceedings under 13 Eliz. c. 12, against a clergyman, for preaching doctrines contrary to the articles of religion.

That any clergyman should assume the liberty of inculcating his own private opinions, in direct opposition to the doctrines of the Established Church, in a place set apart for its own public worship is not more contrary to the nature of a National Church than to all honest & rational conduct. Nor is this restraint inconsistent with Christian liberty. It is therefore a restraint essential to the security of the Church, & it would be a gross contradiction to its fundamental purpose to say that it is liable to the reproach of persecution if it does not pay its ministers for maintaining doctrines contrary to its own (LORD STOWELL).—

(3) Arts. of charge against a clerk in holy orders & incumbent of a vicarage & parish church, for an offence against the laws ecclesiastical of the realm, in having printed, published, & set forth certain volumes of sermons, in which he advisedly maintained & affirmed doctrines directly contrary or repugnant to, & inconsistent with, divers of the Thirty-Nine Articles of Religion & Formularies of the Church of England, the alleged errors being—first, concerning the reconciliation of God to man by the sacrifice or propitiation of Our Lord Jesus Christ, & as to the necessity of such reconciliation; secondly, as to the Incarnate Godhead of Our Lord & the doctrine of the Holy Trinity; thirdly, as to the authority of the Scriptures or Holy Writ—admitted & sustained:—Held: such several errors & doctrines so charged to have been maintained & affirmed, were sufficiently proved by the incriminated passages extracted from the sermons, & set forth in the arts. of charge, as being respectively repugnant to, & inconsistent with, the several Articles of Religion to which they were pleaded as contrary to & opposed, without reference to the Formularies of the Church to which they were also pleaded to be repugnant & inconsistent. (4) Sentence of deprivation of all ecclesiastical promotion, especially from the vicarage of which he was incumbent, was pronounced against such clerk, unless within a week from the delivery of the judgment he should expressly & unreservedly retract the several errors in which he had so offended, & which he refused to do.

B. Ornaments and Decorations of the Church.

(a) In General.

2762. Ornaments—Defined—Distinguished from decorations.]—(1) Crosses, as distinguished from crucifixes which are images, have been in use as ornaments of churches from the earliest periods of Christianity, & when used as mere emblems of the Christian faith, & not as objects of superstitious reverence, may still lawfully be erected as architectural decorations of churches. Hence a wooden cross erected on a chancel screen, being an architectural ornament, will not be ordered to be removed ; but a cross attached to a Communion Table will be removed for it is inconsistent with the idea of a table.

(2) The Communion Table, now sometimes called an altar, differs essentially in its uses & purposes from the altar used in Roman Catholic churches. It must be movable & wood seems to be the proper material of which it is to be made. Hence an immovable stone altar was ordered to be removed though one which was of highly carved wood, in form resembling a tomb & massive in weight, was not ordered to be removed.

The Communion Table intended by the Canon was a table in the ordinary sense of the word, flat & movable, capable of being covered with a cloth (per Cur.).

(3) A credence-table, which is simply a small side table on which the bread & wine are placed so that they may be conveniently reached by the officiating minister & be transferred at the proper time to the Communion Table, is unobjectionable.

(4) The canon, which orders the Communion Table to be covered during divine service with a carpet of silk or other decent stuff, does not imply that it should always be covered with the same cloth or a cloth of the same colour or texture. The object of the canon seems to be to secure a cloth of a sufficiently handsome description, not to guard against too much splendor.

Sect. 1.—Divine service generally: Sub-sect. 4, B.
(a) & (b) i.]

It is said that the canon orders a covering of silk, or of some other proper material, but that it does not mention, & therefore by implication excludes, more than one covering. Their Lordships are unable to adopt this construction. An order that a table shall always be covered with a cloth surely does not imply that it shall always be covered with the same cloth, or with a cloth of the same colour or texture (per cur.).

(5) Any embroidery & lace in or about the fair white linen cloth used on the table at the ministration of the Communion, are inconsistent with the rubric & canon.

Large massive candlesticks & candles placed on the Communion Table are contrary to law, except where they are lighted for the purpose of giving necessary light; accordingly they should not be of a form & size merely ornamental. But the et. will be slow to interfere to order their removal.

(7) Brazen gates & a rood screen separating the nave from the chancel are, perhaps, not contrary to law, & the et. will not order their removal; yet no bishop should consecrate a church so fitted up.

(8) The canon imperatively requires that the Ten Commandments should be set up at the east end, not merely of the chancel, but of the nave.

(9) All articles used in the performance of the services & rites of the Church are "ornaments" within the meaning of the rubric at the beginning of the Prayer Book. This rubric is confined to those arts., the use of which in the services & ministrations of the Church is prescribed by the first Prayer Book of Edward VI. & does not apply to arts. set up in churches as decorations.

(10) It was urged at the bar that the present rubric, which refers to the second year of Edward VI., cannot mean ornaments mentioned in the first Prayer Book, because, as it is said, that Act was probably not passed, & the Prayer Book was certainly not in use till after the expiration of the second year of Edward VI., & that therefore the words "by authority of Parliament" must mean by virtue of canons or royal injunctions having the authority of Parliament made at an earlier period. There seems no reason to doubt that the Act in question received the royal assent in the second year of Edward VI. It is very true that the new Prayer Book could not come into use until after the expiration of that year, because time must be allowed for printing & distributing the books; but its use & the injunctions contained in it were established by authority of Parliament in the second year of Edward VI.; & this is the plain meaning of the rubric (per cur.).

(11) The distinction between an altar & a Communion Table is in itself essential, & deeply founded in the most important difference in matters of faith between Protestants & Romanists, namely, in the different notions of the nature of the Lord's Supper which prevailed in the Roman Catholic Church at the time of the Reformation, & those which were introduced by the reformers. By the former it was considered as a sacrifice of the body & blood of the Saviour. The altar was the place on which the sacrifice was to be made; the elements were to be consecrated, & being so consecrated were treated as the actual body & blood of the victim. The reformers on the other hand considered the Holy Communion not as a sacrifice, but as a feast to be celebrated at the Lord's table; though, as to the consecration of the elements, & the effect of this consecration, & several other points, they differed greatly among themselves (per cur.).—LIDDELL v. WESTERTON (1857), Brod. & F. 117; 29 L. T. O. S. 54; 21 J. P. 499; 5 W. (2) A bishop cannot by a sentence of consecration legalise the retention in a parish church of an ornament which is forbidden by law to be there.

The following ornaments & things in the church at the time of its consecration were ordered by the Ordinary to be removed from a parish church as illegal:—

(3) The fourteen Stations of the Cross; (4) three confessional boxes; (5) a large crucifix fixed near the pulpit; (6) a tabernacle on the Communion Table in the chancel before which a lamp was kept burning.

The following ornaments & things introduced into the church since its consecration were ordered by the ordinary to be removed as illegal:—

(7) A piece of furniture applicable for receiving confessions; (8) two water stoups for holding Holy Water; (9) a tabernacle on the Communion Table in the side chapel of the church used for the reservation of the Sacrament; (10) an image representing the Good Shepherd, on a pedestal at the west end of the church, with candles on each side & a lighted lamp in front; (11) an image representing the Virgin Mary, on a pedestal standing against the chancel screen with candles on each side, vases of flowers, & a lighted blue lamp before it with canopy, crown, & star over it; (12) an image representing the Sacred Heart & St. Joseph, on either side of the Communion Table in the side chapel of the church; (13) several Crucifixes, one over the Communion Table in the chancel, another on the chancel screen, & another with a crown over it over the Holy Table in the side chapel of the church.

(14) The patent appointing the Chancellor of the Diocese of Chichester confers on him jurisdiction to proceed in the absence of the Bishop of the diocese from the Consistory Ct. of Chichester in all ecclesiastical suits, the decision of which is known by law or custom of the realm to belong to the ecclesiastical etc., & finally to decide & determine them without breach of the laws & statutes of the kingdom, “nevertheless first consulting us” [the Bishop of the diocese] “& our successors, & having our consent, in case either party earnestly craves our judgment.”

(15) The opponents in a cause of faculty instituted in the Consistory Ct. of Chichester for the removal of certain ornaments out of a parish church alleged in their answer that before any decision or final determination of the cause, the Bishop of the diocese should be first consulted & his consent had, & earnestly craved his judgment in the premises, & complained & supplicated that the Bishop should examine & determine the cause in his own proper person in the Consistory Ct. of the diocese. Petitioner in his reply submitted that the consent of the Bishop prayed for in the answer was not necessary to the hearing & determination of the cause, & supplicated that the cause might be examined & determined by the Chancellor of the diocese. Subsequently the hearing of the cause took place in the Consistory Ct. of Chichester. The Chancellor of the diocese heard the cause sitting alone, the Bishop not being present, & determined it, delivering judgment without consulting the Bishop, & decreeing a faculty to issue for the removal of the illegal ornaments referred to in the petition, holding that the validity of the reservation in his patent in favour of the Bishop was a matter for the determination of the temporal etc.; it being within the province of these etc. alone to decide whether a custom for the Bishop to exercise the right reserved to him by the patent was valid in law:—Semle: the custom in question, i.e. a custom for the Bishop to veto a judgment come to after the hearing of a suit by the Chancellor, would be unreasonable & bad in law & not a legal custom, as no trace of its exercise could be found in recent times or since the Reformation.

The rector & one of the churchwardens of a parish church, who had petitioned the chancellor of the diocese for a faculty for the introduction into the chancel of the church of a movable Communion Table of marble, by leave of the ct. brought in a supplementary petition whereby they prayed that, instead of a faculty being granted for the Communion Table proposed by their original petition, they might be authorised to place in the chancel of the church a movable Communion Table of wood standing on castors, with licence to suspend by wooden screws on the front & sides of the table thin slabs of slate decorated with marble mosaics. The prayer of this supplementary petition was not opposed; & at the hearing of the suit it appeared that the proposed decorated slabs of slate would be detachable at will without damage to the table & be in keeping with the decorations of the rest of the chancel, & that the whole of the surface of the proposed table would be of wood, & no marble mosaic of any kind would rest thereon:—Held: a faculty could be granted authorising the proposed wooden Communion Table to be placed in the church with the slate slabs decorated with marble mosaics suspended on the front & sides of the table in the manner proposed in the supplementary petition.—*ST. 2797. ———.]—(1) A faculty may, at the discretion of the ordinary, be lawfully granted for the erection of a second Communion Table in a parish church or chapel of ease.

(2) It is not essential to the legal existence of a second Communion Table authorised by such a faculty that the portion of the church or chapel of ease where the second Communion Table is placed should be partitioned off from the rest of the church or chapel, but the circumstances which warrant the grant of the faculty & the structural & other arrangements which should be made in any particular church or chapel when a second Communion Table is sanctioned are matters to be decided by the ct. granting the faculty in each case.

(3) The vicar & churchwardens & certain parishioners of a parish church in the diocese of S. applied in the consistory ct. of S. for a faculty authorising & empowering the vicar & churchwardens to place an altar with a cross & two candlesticks thereon, or on a ledge in rear, & a credence table adjoining, at the north end of the south transept of the church of St. James the Baptist, a chapel of ease within the same parish, the costs to be defrayed privately. At the hearing of the application it was proved that the use of the nave of St. James' Church for early celebrations of the Holy Communion was inconvenient, & that by the use of the south transept for such celebrations great expense in lighting the church in the winter would be saved; that a resolution in favour of the application had been passed by the parish vestry without opposition; & that the south transept would hold about fifty people, & had for some time been in use for daily morning service. The ct. came to the conclusion that the case before it was one in which, if the faculty prayed for could be legally granted, a decree for its issue should as a matter of discretion be made, but refused to decree the grant, on the ground that it had legally no power to grant a faculty for the erection of a second Holy Table in a parish church or chapel of ease. The appcts. for the faculty appealed. The Dean of the Arches allowed the appeal, & directed that the faculty applied for should issue.—*Re ST. JAMES THE GREAT, BUXTON, ST. Two days afterwards the cross was removed by applt., as churchwarden, without the authority of a faculty, from the retable, & taken by him out of the church, & retained by him. In a criminal suit promoted by the vicar in the Ct. of Arches against applt. for having removed the same:—Held: the cross, in the position which it occupied while in the church, is forbidden by law; but as both parties were in the wrong in having acted without a faculty, the suit was dismissed without costs.—*DURST v. —Motion to enforce obedience to a monition to carry into effect an Ord. in Council which, among other things, prohibited resp. from elevating the cup & paten during the administration of the Holy Communion, & from kneeling or prostrating himself before the consecrated elements, & from using lighted candles on the Communion Table during the celebration of the Holy Communion, when such lighted candles were not wanted for the purpose of giving light. It appeared that the elevation of the cup & paten for which resp. had been article & complained of in the ct. below, was an elevation above his head, which was the only mode of elevation pleaded in the article, after it had been reformed, to have been practised by him, & was, therefore, that prohibited by the sentence of the ct. below, which sentence had been affirmed on appeal, but that resp. had substituted for such an elevation only to the level of his head:—Held: (1) though disapproving & discountenancing any elevation of the elements whatever, in the state of the pleadings, the illegality of the elevation since practised by resp. not being raised, he had technically complied with the terms of the original sentence & order, & could not be held to have disobeyed the monition in that respect; (2) with regard to the kneeling, it was proved by the evidence, as well as the admission of resp., that he did prostrate & bow his knee at the times alleged, in such a manner as to be unable himself to say, whether he touched the ground with his knee, or to make it possible for any one to see, whether he was kneeling or not; & such prostration was, literally kneeling, & alike contrary to the rubric & to the letter & spirit of the monition; (3) respecting the lighted candles, it appeared that the candles on the Communion Table, though lighted & burning during the whole service before the celebration of the Holy Communion, & until the commencement thereof, were then extinguished; therefore, there had been a literal compliance with the strict terms of the monition; though the charge made by the motion & established by the evidence was, as in part contained in the original order, for using candles on the Communion Table at times when they were not wanted for the purpose of giving light.

Under the circumstances, the ct. expressed its opinion, that the monition had been disobeyed with reference to the kneeling during the prayer of consecration, & monished resp. to abstain therefrom for the future; & to mark its disapprobation of his course of proceeding, ordered him to pay the costs of the motion.

(4) A literal compliance with the terms of a monition is all that is required; but a mere literal compliance in an evasive manner will not suffice. In considering whether a monition has been disobeyed, the monition in the first instance will be looked to; but the monition cannot go beyond the matters charged against deft., nor beyond the judgment pronounced thereon; & the judgment may be referred to to interpret the terms of the monition.—*MARTIN v. (3) Though it is illegal for the minister to cross himself in the air to the congregation, it is not illegal for him to cross himself as a matter of private devotion.

The rector applied for a faculty, confirmatory of its erection. The application was unopposed:—Held: (1) the ct., before granting the faculty, should be satisfied that it was sanctioning a fitting & necessary church decoration for the place where it is erected, & one not likely with reason to be unacceptable to parishioners present or future; (2) the present structure (though not an unlawful church decoration taken in detail, being of a description not heretofore erected in churches in this country but frequently to be seen at the back of altars in Roman Catholic churches abroad & having been disapproved of after inspection by the Bishop of London, it would not be a wise exercise of the discretion of the ct. to sanction its retention by a faculty. refused to consecrate the church unless the central compartment of the reredos was removed, & it was accordingly removed, & the church was consecrated. Subsequently the churchwardens of the parish petitioned the ordinary for the grant of a faculty authorising the replacement of such central compartment in the church, & the ordinary sent the case by Letters of Request to this ct. The Letters of Request having been accepted, an appearance was entered for a parishioner, who opposed the grant of the faculty on the ground that the central compartment of the reredos proposed to be replaced would, if so replaced, be either illegal or likely to receive superstitious reverence & be abused, or be inexpedient & likely to cause scandal & offence.—The ct. ordered a faculty to issue for the restoration of the central compartment of the reredos.—*HUGHES v. In the centre of the three compartments into which the reredos was divided, a figure intended to represent Our Lord seated as King. In the right hand compartment figures representing St. Lawrence & the Blessed Virgin. In the left hand compartment figures representing St. Stephen & St. John; the four last-mentioned figures being represented with their faces turned towards the centre compartment of the reredos. The grant of the faculty was not opposed:—Held: there would be danger of the representation contained in the centre compartment of the reredos being abused by receiving "superstitious reverence," in the sense explained in Clifton v. Ridsdale, No. 2900, post; & therefore, the ct. ought, in its discretion, to refuse to sanction its introduction into the church.—Re ST. LAWRENCE, PITTINGTON (1880), 5 P. D. 131.

2845. ——— On what terms allowed—Triptych.]

—(1) The Chancellor of the diocese of Manchester decreed a faculty to issue for the erection in a parish church of that diocese of an oaken reredos about eight feet in height, in the form of a triptych with painted panels, of which panels the two side ones or wings, being hung to the centre panel by hinges, could be closed over it when divine service was not being performed; the centre panel to have painted thereon a representation of The Last Supper, & on the one wing to be represented in painting "The Agony in the Garden" & on the other "The Risen Christ with the Marys at the Tomb"; the reverse sides of the wings to be plain; the whole to be surmounted by a figure of Our Lord carved in plain oak eighteen inches high between figures of Moses & Elias of the same height beneath pillared canopies connected by an arch of tracery work over the central figure, & flanked by angels. The faculty so decreed to be issued was required to contain a proviso that the triptych was always to remain open during the performance of divine service.

(2) It appears that the sole test which now governs the legality or otherwise of figures in churches is whether or not they are free from the imputation or the risk of being abused by becoming the objects of adoration or superstitious reverence. Whether they are represented in stained glass, wood, or stone; whether they are painted, or in bas-relief, or completely formed; whether they are in groups, historical, or otherwise, or stand as independent statues—whatever be their position in the sacred edifice, & whatever may have been the intention or object in erecting them, they will all be tried by this one test, & by no other (per Cur.).—*ST. (c) Baldachino.

2851. Whether permissible—As church ornament—Or architectural decoration.]—The vicar & churchwardens of St. Barnabas, Pimlico, petitioned for a faculty to authorise the erection, in the chancel of St. Barnabas, of a baldachino, being a handsome marble structure or canopy standing apart from the east wall of the chancel, with a pointed roof & three gables pointing different ways, supported by four columns extending two or more feet beyond the Holy Table, & described as a small house in which the altar was to stand:—Held: (1) the ciborium, or altar canopy, known & used in England prior to the Reformation, was an ornament or article of church furniture within the meaning of that term as used in the First Prayer Book of Edw. VI., having all the characteristics of a church ornament as regards its form, the materials of which it was constructed (silk), its symbolical significations, & the uses to which it was applied; the proposed erection was not an architectural adornment for the east end of the church, as if the Holy Table were moved from underneath it, it would be there without meaning. It must, therefore, be an erection in connection with the Holy Table, & if so, must be either a structure so attached to it as to form part of it, or a structure separate from but in connection with it. If the former, it was the Table with the baldachino added to it, instead of the decent Communion Table required by the Canon 82. If the latter, it was a church ornament; (2) there was no distinction between the Pre-Reformation altar canopies & the baldachino proposed to be erected to take it out of the category of church ornaments; as a church ornament, it being neither sanctioned by the First Prayer Book of Edw. VI., nor by the Rubrics, & not being subsidiary to the performance of the services of the church, the duty of the ct. was to decline to authorise its erection by faculty.

2853. Screen without gates—Whether permissible.]—BRADFORD v. FRY, No. 1784, ante.

Held: (1) a faculty would not be granted for the retention in the church of the loft over the chancel screen or of the figures placed on the beam above the same:—in the opinion of the ct. & rood loft & rood, or for the erection of the additional figures proposed to be placed thereon, such loft & such figures so placed being unlawful within the ruling of LORD PENZANCE in Clifton v. Ridsdale, No. 2900, post, & matters as to which in the discretion of the ct. a faculty ought not to be granted, there being danger of "superstitious reverence" being paid to the rood; (2) a faculty would issue for the chancel screen without the loft surmounting it; for the addition of gates to such screen, for the screens across the aisles with gates attached & for the choir stalls & screens; there being evidence before him that the expense of the works yet to be done would be met by voluntary subscriptions, & that the organ & other property in the chancel & aisles required protection.—*ST. 2862. ————] —So much of an application for a faculty for a chancel screen & other works in a parish church as asked that the ct. would sanction by faculty the placing above the centre of the chancel screen a sculptured group of life-size figures in oak, representing our Saviour upon the Cross & the Virgin Mary & St. John, was refused where it appeared that, if the faculty was granted as prayed, the ct. would be thereby authorising the restoration of the pre-Reformation screen & rood formerly in the church.

The vicar & churchwardens of a parish church, in which the ancient rood stairs & rood door were still existing, petitioned the ordinary for a faculty authorising the placing in the church of a second Communion Table & a chancel screen with gates, having on its top a platform, gallery or loft on which the ancient rood door would directly open, & above its centre, upon a carved pedestal somewhat higher than the level of the loft door, a sculptured group of life-size figures in oak representing our Saviour upon the Cross & the Virgin Mary & St. John; the loft to be about six feet in width, & the cornice of the screen to stand on each side about a foot or 8 inches higher than the loft floor. The suit was undefended, & it was proved in evidence that the services in the church were conducted strictly in accordance with the Book of Common Prayer, with extra services as allowed by the bishop of the diocese, subject to the reservation of the sacrament in certain cases. It was also proved that the church was left open in the daytime without a caretaker, & that the organ, the service books, & other articles of church furniture in the chancel required protection:—Held: the erection in the church of the pre-Reformation screen & rood as proposed in the identical positions occupied by them before the Reformation would, so far as related to the group of sculptured figures proposed to be placed on the screen, be unlawful, or if not unlawful be inexpedient, & consequently a faculty must only be decreed for the chancel screen without the group of figures surmounting it. A faculty was also granted for a second Communion Table; & the ct. authorised the chancel screen being provided with gates, on the ground that sufficient necessity for a chancel screen with gates had been shown in evidence.—*PAIGNTON (VICAR) v. 2871. ———— No evidence of probability of superstitious reverence.—A figure of Our Lord upon the Cross was in 1880 placed in a parish church above, & on the centre of the screen separating the chancel from the nave; & in 1893 there were placed on one side thereof a figure of the Virgin Mary, & on the other side thereof a figure of St. John. All the figures were carved in wood, were about two feet nine inches in height, the central figure being rather higher than the two others, & all had been placed in the church without the sanction of a faculty. There was not in the church anything of the nature of a rood-loft or rood-stairs, & no candles were round or in front of the figures. In 1896 the rector & churchwardens of the parish instituted a cause of faculty praying the ordinary to authorise by faculty the retention of the three figures on the screen, & filed affidavits stating that the services of the church had been conducted in accordance with the directions of the Book of Common Prayer, & that there was not & had not been anything in the services or in the attitude of those attending the services to indicate or suggest any probability of worship, adoration, or any superstitious reverence being paid to the figures on the screen. No person appeared to oppose the grant of the faculty. The Chancellor of the Diocese of Norwich ordered the faculty to issue as prayed.—BARSHAM, SUFFOLK (RECTOR, ETC.) v. 2874. Screen with crucifix attached to upper part—Figures of Virgin & St. John—Whether permissible.]

—A crucifix with the accompanying figures of the Virgin Mary & St. John is not forbidden by law to be erected on a chancel screen, but may be placed in that position in a parish church under a faculty where the ordinary is satisfied that it is not likely to be abused by superstitious reverence being paid to it. A faculty authorising the restoration in a parish church of a stone chancel screen or interior chancel arch of pre-Reformation date by placing on three existing pedestals springing from ornamental tracery in the upper parts of such screen or interior arch three stone figures without gilding or painting, each two feet three inches high—one, the central figure, representing Our Lord upon the Cross, & the other two representing respectively the Virgin Mary & St. John—was granted by the Consistory Ct. of St. Albans on the ordinary being satisfied that the figures would be for the purpose of architectural decoration only, & that there was no ground for reasonable apprehension that they would be abused or made the subject of superstitious reverence.—GREAT BARDFIELD (VICAR) v. 2875. — — — — —.]—A chancel screen, to the upper portion of the tracery of which is attached over the entrance archway the figure of Our Lord upon the Cross, & on one side of the archway the figure of the Virgin Mary, & on the other side the figure of St. John, is not, either from its character, nature, or position, in itself unlawful in churches or chapels of the Church of England, & may be authorised by faculty, provided the ordinary is of opinion in his discretion that it is not probable that it will be abused for superstitious purposes.

The mere suggestion that the figures on the screen may cause offence is not a sufficient reason for the ordinary refusing in his discretion to grant the faculty.

The vicar & churchwardens of a parish church in the diocese of London & the chapelwardens of a chapel of ease in the parish petitioned for a faculty to authorise the erection in the chapel of a chancel screen of oak with the figure of Our Lord on the Cross upon the centre of it, & the figure of the Virgin Mary on one side, & of St. John on the other: the figures not to surmount the screen, but to be attached to the upper portion of the tracery, the central figure immediately over the entrance archway, & the other two figures, one on the right & one on the left, at a somewhat less elevation, upon pedestals affixed to the woodwork. The grant of the faculty was unopposed, & no evidence was given as to whether the figures on the screen would or would not be likely to be abused by superstitious reverence. The Chancellor of the Diocese of London refused to grant a faculty for the figures on the proposed screen, being of opinion that the erection of a chancel screen with the figures as proposed was illegal in itself under the ruling of the Arches Ct. & the Privy Council in Clifton v. Ridsdale, No. 2000, post. The petitioners appealed to the Arches Ct.

The Dean of Arches at the hearing of the appeal admitted fresh evidence as to the mode in which the services in the chapel were conducted, & finding that there was nothing in them to lead the ct. to suppose that the proposed screen & figures were likely to be treated otherwise than as architectural decoration, allowed the appeal, retained the cause, & ordered the faculty as prayed to issue from the registry of the Arches Ct. —Re St. Anselm, Pinner, [1901] P. 202 ; 17 T. 2883. ————.]—The vicar & churchwardens of a parish church in the diocese of Bath & Wells petitioned the ordinary for a faculty for, amongst other alterations in the church, the erection of a carved oaken beam across the chancel arch to be surmounted by a crucifix & the figures of St. John & the Virgin Mary, & also for certain structural alterations so that one of the church bells might be rung from the interior of the church. It appeared in evidence that no exceptional services were held in the church, but that ornaments of the minister other than surplices were worn by the officiating clergy in the Communion Service; that the sacrament was reserved to take to the sick; that there was a crucifix in the vestry & also one in the church; & that one of the church bells was rung from the belfry or tower of the church at certain moments in the Communion Service as a sanctus bell. It further appeared that the vicar of the parish intended that the proposed crucifix upon the rood beam with its attendant figures should be an aid to devotion & a defence against erroneous teaching, & that the main object of the proposed alteration in respect of one of the church bells was that the bell might be rung from the interior of the church during the celebration of the Holy Communion.

The Chancellor of the diocese of Bath & Wells refused in his discretion to grant a faculty for the erection of a crucifix & its attendant figures upon the rood beam, being of opinion that the erection was not contemplated simply & purely as a matter of decoration. He also refused to sanction by faculty the alterations proposed to enable one of the church bells to be used from the interior of the church as a sanctus bell. The tolling or ringing of one of the church bells of a parish church during the consecration prayer in the Communion Service at the moment of the elevation of each of the sacred elements as a sanctus bell is illegal.—*ST. 2888. ————.]—An isolated crucifix, without incidents or adjuncts, is of itself unlawful as an architectural decoration in or upon a church. The petitioners applied for a faculty authorising the erection, as a decoration, on the outside south wall of a parish church, of a war shrine containing a figure of Christ on the Cross, with an inscription in memory of the men from the parish who lost their lives in the Great War:—Held: the faculty must be refused, because an isolated crucifix, not associated with other figures so as to embody the scene of the crucifixion & form a group capable of artistic treatment, was an unlawful decoration, & because it was an image to which it was probable that superstitious regard or reverence might be paid.—Re TENBURY PARISH CHURCH (1919), 36 T. 2892. ————.]—(1) A crucifix is neither a lawful church ornament nor an architectural decoration the retention of which in a church can be authorised by faculty, & where a crucifix has been introduced into a parish church the ordinary has jurisdiction to direct its removal by the churchwardens without proof that it is likely to have superstitious reverence paid to it.

(2) A parishioner of a parish in the City of London whose name is on the rate-book as occupier of a room in the parish taken solely to enable him to bring a civil suit in the ct., has a sufficient interest to promote a cause of faculty to obtain the removal of unlawful church ornaments out of the parish church of the parish of which he is a parishioner.

(3) The curate in charge of a parish in which the incumbent was non-resident introduced into the parish without lawful authority two crucifixes, one a movable crucifix of brass about eighteen inches high placed on a Tabernacle for the Reserved Sacrament standing on the Retable in the chancel of the church, & the other a crucifix three feet in height affixed to the north wall of the church by the side of & slightly above the level of the pulpit; & during his tenure of office, from about 1880 to 1894, there were in the church, besides these crucifixes & Tabernacle, a censer & the Stations of the Cross; incense was used in the church, & during the Communion Service the wine was mixed with water. Between 1894 & 1898 a succeeding curate, the crucifixes & Tabernacle still remaining in the church, introduced there a picture of the Virgin Mary, & the next year a shrine to the Virgin Mary called an "Altar of Repose," & a statue of the Madonna & Child; & services were conducted in the church in which the crucifixes were used by the minister & members of the congregation for superstitious purposes. Afterwards an application was made by three parishioners for a faculty to authorise the removal of the crucifixes out of the church, & the incumbent & churchwardens appeared as opponents, & prayed for a confirmatory faculty for the retention of the crucifixes.

It appeared that several past churchwardens & many of the parishioners had disapproved of & protested against the introduction & retention of the crucifixes, & that in 1898 another curate in charge had been appointed, whilst there was no evidence that during the time he had been the officiating minister the crucifixes had been used superstitiously.

It further appeared that before the hearing of the suit the Tabernacle for the Reserved Sacrament had been removed out of the church:—Held: the ct. must refuse the prayer for a confirmatory faculty, & issue a faculty directing & authorising the churchwardens as officers of the ordinary to remove the crucifixes out of the church, because—first, they were either in themselves illegal church ornaments or illegal architectural decorations; & secondly, if not in themselves illegal as church ornaments or architectural decorations, they were—having regard to the facts that they were introduced into the church for superstitious purposes, & were so used for nearly twenty years, & might be so used again, & had been a cause of offence to several churchwardens & parishioners, some of whom, though supporting a resolution of vestry against the petitioners, did not thereby express any opinion for their retention—articles & things the retention of which in the church it would be an unwise exercise of the discretion of the ct. to authorise.

(4) Semble: a Tabernacle for the reception of the Reserved Sacrament is not a lawful church ornament.—KENSIT v. ST. ETHELBURGA, BISHOPSGATE WITHIN (RECTOR), [1900] P. 80; 15 T. L. R. 549.

(h) Stations of the Cross.

2900. Whether permissible.—On the top & in the centre of a screen, stretching across a church at the entrance to the chancel, was placed a figure of Our Saviour on the Cross, in full relief, & about eighteen inches long, facing the congregation. A row of candles at distances of about a foot apart ran along the top of the screen, & were continued up the central portion, which was raised, the last candles coming close up to the crucifix on either side:—Held: in a proceeding under Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85) (1), as it was not proved that the candles were used for other than lighting purposes, their position & the manner in which they were used, did not constitute a ceremonial observance, & were not, therefore, illegal; (2) the figure, being in danger of becoming the object of superstitious reverence, must be removed from the cross. (3) Semble: the set of delineations used in Roman Catholic churches, & commonly called "Stations of the Cross & Passion," are decorations forbidden by law in churches of the Church of England. (4) In cases under the Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (c. 85), where questions of law & fact are involved, the ct. will hear two counsel on each side, & one counsel in reply.

2903. —.—.]—The opponents in a cause of faculty instituted in the Consistory Ct. of Chichester for the purpose of obtaining a faculty for the removal from a parish church in the diocese of Chichester of certain ornaments & articles of church furniture objected to as illegal, after denying in their answer that the promoter was a parishioner or resident inhabitant of the parish, & submitting that he had therefore no interest cognisable by the ct., alleged therein that before any decision or final determination of the suit the Bishop of Chichester should be first consulted & his consent had, & earnestly craved his judgment in the premises, & complained & supplicated that the bishop should examine & determine the cause in his own proper person. The Chancellor of the diocese heard the cause sitting alone, the bishop not being present, & petitioner having objected to the bishop being consulted, determined it, delivering judgment without consulting the bishop, holding that petitioner had a sufficient interest to promote the suit, & dealing with the merits of the case. Subsequently, a writ of prohibition having issued prohibiting the Chancellor from proceeding with the cause until he had consulted the Bishop & obtained his consent to hear, decide & determine the suit, the bishop authorised the Chancellor to hear, decide & determine the suit. Thereupon a second hearing of the suit took place before the Chancellor; the pleadings filed & the evidence taken on the former proceedings being treated as filed & taken anew, & additional oral evidence being given both on the question of interest & on the merits; the substance of the evidence on the question of interest being that the parish church was a new parish church within a separate ecclesiastical parish formed under New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 101); that petitioner at the date of his petition, & thenceforth during the proceedings in the suit, was a weekly tenant of a six-roomed house in this ecclesiastical parish, five rooms in which he underlet, keeping in his own occupation one room into which he occasionally went, but where he had never slept; that the house had been taken by him for the sole purpose of giving him a locus standi to bring the suit; & that he was entered in the rate-book of the civil parish out of which the ecclesiastical parish had been formed from before the commencement of the suit up to the time of the hearing, & had paid all rates due & payable by him during that period:—Held: (1) petitioner had a sufficient interest to entitle him to promote the suit.

Held, also, a faculty must issue authorising the promoter to remove from the parish church the following ornaments & articles of church furniture objected to as illegal: (2) fourteen Stations of the Cross hanging on the walls of the church; (3) three confessional boxes; (4) all the crucifixes in the church with any canopy or crown over any of them; (5) the tabernacle on or over the communion table in the chancel & the lamp burning before it; (6) the tabernacle on or over the communion table in the side chapel used for the reservation of the sacrament & the light burning before it; (7) two movable holy water stoups; (8) the image of the Good Shepherd on a pedestal at the west end of the church, & the candles on each side of it & the lighted lamp in front of it; (9) the image of the Virgin Mary on a pedestal against the chancel screen, & the candles on each side of it & the vases of flowers, & the lighted blue lamp in front of it & the curtain & canopy or crown or star over it; (10) the images of the Sacred Heart & St. Joseph on either side of the communion table in the side chapel.—*DAVEY v. surrounded by a frame in which were to be representations of angels, & the whole to be supported on a single stone pedestal springing from the floor of the church.

The application was not opposed, & a faculty was granted as prayed, the ordinary being of opinion that the alteration of the position of the organ would be an improvement for the parish, that the rest of the alterations were desirable & advantageous, & that the proposed figure might be lawfully erected as a representation of an historical event set up for the purpose of decoration only.—Re CHRIST CHURCH, EALING, [1906] P. 289.

(6) the doctrine that adoration is due to the consecrated elements is contrary to law, & has been condemned (Martin v. Machonochie, No. 2948, ante); the Church of England has forbidden all acts of adoration to the sacrament, understanding by that the consecrated elements: she has been careful to exclude any act of adoration on the part of the minister, at or after the consecration of the elements, & to explain the posture of kneeling prescribed by the Rubric: Article 28 lays down that "the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped." In Article 25 it is affirmed that "the Sacraments were not ordained by Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about, but that we should duly use them."

(7) In the absence of a charge of any outward act of adoration, a general charge:—Held: in the circumstances, not sufficient to support a penal proceeding.

(8) The successive alterations & omissions in the Book of Common Prayer, by which words or passages, inculcating particular doctrines, or assuming a belief in them, have been struck out, are evidence that the Church has ceased to affirm those doctrines; but the effect of such changes, when they stand alone, is that it ceases to be unlawful to contradict such doctrines, & not that it becomes unlawful to maintain them.

(9) Though it has been the practice of the Arches Ct., on the remission of arts. directed on appeal to be reformed as to a particular charge, for the judge himself to reform the arts. by striking out such parts of the arts. as he conceives to be within the original decree appealed from & confirmed, notwithstanding objections made by the promoter of the cause, such practices, as tending to create delay, if not a miscarriage of justice, if the judge should erroneously strike out parts not affected by the Order in Council, ought to be discontinued, & before an appeal from any decree directing the reformation of arts. is perfected, the actual reformation which appears to the judge to be required should be made by him & appear on the face of the decree that the very passages directed to be omitted may be brought under the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal.

(10) It is not the part of the Ct. of Arches nor of the Judicial Committee to usurp the functions of a synod or council. Their duty is to ascertain whether statements are so far repugnant to or contradictory of the language of the arts. & formularies, construed in their plain meaning, that they should require judicial condemnation.—*SHEPPARD v. Prayer Book; & the term "ornaments" is confined to those articles; (9) though there may be articles not expressly mentioned in the rubric the use of which would not be restrained, they must be articles which are consistent with, & subsidiary to, the services; as an organ for singing, a credence table from which to take the sacramental bread & wine, cushions, hassocks, etc.

According to this rubric, the following practices are unlawful: (10) the elevation during or after the prayer of consecration of the paten & cup; (11) the using of incense in the celebration of the Holy Communion; (12) the mixing of water with the wine used in the administration of the Holy Communion.

(13) Semble: the words "all meekly kneeling" in the rubric following the prayer of consecration, refer to the celebrant, as well as to the people.

(14) The terms "rite" & "ceremony," as used in the Prayer Book are terms of ecclesiastical & ritual art, & are to be construed with reference to their use in the works of writers on ritual, unless they receive a different meaning from a comparison of other passages or parts in the Prayer Book or statute in which they are found. There is a legal distinction between a rite & a ceremony; a rite consists in services expressed in words; a ceremony in gestures or acts preceding, accompanying or following the utterance of those words.—*MARTIN v. The fund being in ct. in an action to administer the estate of the testatrix:—Held: the condition was a continuing condition, so as to entitle the incumbent of the church to the income of the fund from time to time so long as he performed the condition. It was not illegal for a clergyman of the Church of England to wear a black gown in the pulpit when preaching, the legality of the black gown in preaching being sanctioned by the continuous usage of centuries, uncontrolled by positive law or judicial decision.—*Re ROBINSON, WRIGHT v. Sect. 3.—Holy Communion: Sub-sects. 1, 2 & 3.]

(6) the doctrine that adoration is due to the consecrated elements is contrary to law, & has been condemned (Martin v. Machonochie, No. 2948, ante); the Church of England has forbidden all acts of adoration to the sacrament, understanding by that the consecrated elements: she has been careful to exclude any act of adoration on the part of the minister, at or after the consecration of the elements, & to explain the posture of kneeling prescribed by the Rubric: Article 28 lays down that "the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped." In Article 25 it is affirmed that "the Sacraments were not ordained by Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about, but that we should duly use them."

(7) In the absence of a charge of any outward act of adoration, a general charge:—Held: in the circumstances, not sufficient to support a penal proceeding.

(8) The successive alterations & omissions in the Book of Common Prayer, by which words or passages, inculcating particular doctrines, or assuming a belief in them, have been struck out, are evidence that the Church has ceased to affirm those doctrines; but the effect of such changes, when they stand alone, is that it ceases to be unlawful to contradict such doctrines, & not that it becomes unlawful to maintain them.

(9) Though it has been the practice of the Archbishops, on the remission of arts. directed on appeal to be reformed as to a particular charge, for the judge himself to reform the arts. by striking out such parts of the arts. as he conceives to be within the original decree appealed from & confirmed, notwithstanding objections made by the promoter of the cause, such practices, as tending to create delay, if not a miscarriage of justice, if the judge should erroneously strike out parts not affected by the Order in Council, ought to be discontinued, & before an appeal from any decree directing the reformation of arts. is perfected, the actual reformation which appears to the judge to be required should be made by him & appear on the face of the decree that the very passages directed to be omitted may be brought under the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal.

(10) It is not the part of the Ct. of Archbishops nor of the Judicial Committee to usurp the functions of a synod or council. Their duty is to ascertain whether statements are so far repugnant to or contradictory of the language of the arts. & formularies, construed in their plain meaning, that they should require judicial condemnation.—*SHEPARD v. 3017. ———— Elevation of wafer without paten.]—Motion against resp., the perpetual curate of the parish of A., Illoborn, for disobedience to a monition founded upon an Ord. in Council, which ordered him, amongst other things, to abstain for the future "from the elevation of the cup & paten, during the administration of the Holy Communion, & from kneeling & prostrating himself before the consecrated elements during the prayer of consecration;" in that he knowingly & habitually sanctioned the elevation of the cup & paten above the head of the officiating clergyman in the prayer of consecration, & knowingly & habitually sanctioned kneeling & prostration during the prayer of consecration. It appeared that the ordinary course pursued in the administration of the Holy Communion in resp.'s church was for the officiating clergyman, on reaching the words of institution in the prayer of consecration, to drop his voice so as to be nearly inaudible; that he then elevated, not the paten, but a large wafer bread, & replacing it upon the Communion Table, bowed his head down towards the table, & remained some seconds in that position; that he then elevated the cup so that the rim was some inches above his head, & replacing it on the table bowed as before, after which the administration of the elements commenced:—Held: (1) such elevation of the wafer was equivalent to an elevation of the paten, the elevation which is unlawful being that of the consecrated bread itself, & not the paten in which it is placed; (2) the bowing of the head in the manner described as the prayer of consecration, though without bending the knee, was a prostration before the consecrated elements, whereof the sanctioning was a disobedience of the monition, & the Ord. in Council for such disobedience to the monition.

Resp. was ordered to be suspended from the discharge of all clerical duties & offices & the execution thereof, for the space of three calendar months.

Semble: as art. 28 of the Articles of Religion prohibits all elevation of the elements, by declaring, that "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's Ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped;" it is not necessary to article & describe a particular elevation during the prayer of consecration, but sufficient to state & prove that such elevation occurred during the administration of the Holy Communion.—MARTIN v. A domiciled Englishman who had gone through the form of marriage with his deceased wife's sister, a domiciled Englishwoman, in a Presbyterian church in Canada, after the passing of the Colonial Marriages (Deceased Wife's Sister) Act, 1906, but before the above Act had come into force, & after the marriage had returned to reside in England applied, after the coming into force of the last-mentioned Act, to the incumbent of the parish in which he was residing together with his wife, that, they being both members of the Church of England, & having been baptised & confirmed, should be admitted to the sacrament of the Holy Communion. The incumbent repelled the applicant & his wife from the Holy Communion, & on their promotion a criminal suit by letters of request was thereupon instituted against the incumbent:—Held: the promoters had been illegally repelled from the Holy Communion, & the incumbent must be admonished for having so repelled them & must refrain from similar acts in the future.—BANISTER v. Sect. 3.—Holy Communion: Sub-sects. 1, 2 & 3.]

(6) the doctrine that adoration is due to the consecrated elements is contrary to law, & has been condemned (Martin v. Machonochie, No. 2948, ante); the Church of England has forbidden all acts of adoration to the sacrament, understanding by that the consecrated elements: she has been careful to exclude any act of adoration on the part of the minister, at or after the consecration of the elements, & to explain the posture of kneeling prescribed by the Rubric: Article 28 lays down that "the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped." In Article 25 it is affirmed that "the Sacraments were not ordained by Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about, but that we should duly use them."

(7) In the absence of a charge of any outward act of adoration, a general charge:—Held: in the circumstances, not sufficient to support a penal proceeding.

(8) The successive alterations & omissions in the Book of Common Prayer, by which words or passages, inculcating particular doctrines, or assuming a belief in them, have been struck out, are evidence that the Church has ceased to affirm those doctrines; but the effect of such changes, when they stand alone, is that it ceases to be unlawful to contradict such doctrines, & not that it becomes unlawful to maintain them.

(9) Though it has been the practice of the Archb. Ct., on the remission of arts. directed on appeal to be reformed as to a particular charge, for the judge himself to reform the arts. by striking out such parts of the arts. as he conceives to be within the original decree appealed from & confirmed, notwithstanding objections made by the promoter of the cause, such practices, as tending to create delay, if not a miscarriage of justice, if the judge should erroneously strike out parts not affected by the Order in Council, ought to be discontinued, & before an appeal from any decree directing the reformation of arts. is perfected, the actual reformation which appears to the judge to be required should be made by him & appear on the face of the decree that the very passages directed to be omitted may be brought under the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal.

(10) It is not the part of the Ct. of Arches nor of the Judicial Committee to usurp the functions of a synod or council. Their duty is to ascertain whether statements are so far repugnant to or contradictory of the language of the arts. & formularies, construed in their plain meaning, that they should require judicial condemnation.—*SHEPPARD v. 3017. ——— Elevation of wafer without paten.]—Motion against resp., the perpetual curate of the parish of A., Holborn, for disobedience to a monition founded upon an Ord. in Council, which ordered him, amongst other things, to abstain for the future "from the elevation of the cup & paten, during the administration of the Holy Communion, & from kneeling & prostrating himself before the consecrated elements during the prayer of consecration:" in that he knowingly & habitually sanctioned the elevation of the cup & paten above the head of the officiating clergyman in the prayer of consecration, & knowingly & habitually sanctioned kneeling & prostration during the prayer of consecration. It appeared that the ordinary course pursued in the administration of the Holy Communion in resp.'s church was for the officiating clergyman, on reaching the words of institution in the prayer of consecration, to drop his voice so as to be nearly inaudible; that he then elevated, not the paten, but a large wafer bread, & replacing it upon the Communion Table, bowed his head down towards the table, & remained some seconds in that position; that he then elevated the cup so that the rim was some inches above his head, & replacing it on the table bowed as before, after which the administration of the elements commenced:—Held: (1) such elevation of the wafer was equivalent to an elevation of the paten, the elevation which is unlawful being that of the consecrated bread itself, & not the paten in which it is placed; (2) the bowing of the head in the manner described as the prayer of consecration, though without bending the knee, was a prostration before the consecrated elements, whereof the sanctioning was a disobedience of the monition, & the Ord. in Council for such disobedience to the monition.

Resp. was ordered to be suspended from the discharge of all clerical duties & offices & the execution thereof, for the space of three calendar months.

Semble: as art. 28 of the Articles of Religion prohibits all elevation of the elements, by declaring, that "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's Ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped;" it is not necessary to article & describe a particular elevation during the prayer of consecration, but sufficient to state & prove that such elevation occurred during the administration of the Holy Communion.—MARTIN v. "their exors. or administrators or the person or persons for the time being entitled to apply the fund under the Act," plff. agreed with C. & A. " & with such person or persons as aforesaid " & C. & A. "to the intent (so far as they lawfully could or might) to bind such person or persons as aforesaid, but not so as to bind either of themselves or his heirs exors. or administrators, after he or they should have ceased to be entitled to apply the same fund did & each of them did agree with plff.; " then followed provisions under which plff. was to build the church & parsonage in accordance with plans & specifications & a clause stipulating that the consideration moneys should be paid in manner provided by the specifications. The specifications provided for monthly payments on account of the contracts; also that the architect might order additional works; & that payments for additional works were to be made on the completion of the entire works. In June, 1869, C., having obtained preferment, ceased to be vicar of St. P. by which time the whole of the building fund had been exhausted. The buildings were completed in June, 1870. In Feb. 1875, C. died, whereupon plff. brought an action against his exors. to recover a sum alleged to be due for "extras" under the contracts:—Held: (1) the liability of C. & A. respectively under the contracts was restricted to the period during which they were respectively vicar & incumbent & therefore C.'s liability terminated on his ceasing to be vicar; (2) in any case the liability of C. & A. extended only to the amount of the building fund & no further.—*WILLIAMS v. 3053. — On old lines of foundation.]—L., the tenant & occupier of the Manor House in the parish of W., instituted a suit in the Chancery Ct. of York against P., the incumbent & perpetual curate, for perturbation of a pew, held by L. as appurtenant to the Manor House, & occupied by him therewith for nearly forty years. P., the incumbent, admitted the destruction of the pew by his orders & direction, but pleaded to the jurisdiction of the ct., on the grounds that the church was not in law a church, never having been reconsecrated since its general repair in 1825, & that the permissive occupation of the pew was not sufficient to entitle L. to sue:—Held: (1) it appearing from the evidence that the church of W. having been repaired & rebuilt under a faculty, upon its old foundation, the tower & eastern wall & windows never having been removed, & some of the offices of the church performed during the repairs, it had never ceased to be a parish church so as to require reconsecration, but remained subject to the authority of the diocesan, & the judgment of the ct. below, overruling the protest to the jurisdiction, was right; (2) as a pew being in the chancel may legally belong to a party in respect of the ownership of a house, the title by occupation of such a pew was rightly pleaded, & if proved, would entitle L. to maintain his suit.

(3) Semble: If a church be rebuilt on the old lines of foundation, including within it the same originally consecrated ground & no more, the ecclesiastical law does not require that such church should be reconsecrated.

(4) There is no authority for the doctrine that where the communion table of a parish church has been taken down & replaced by a new one, it requires reconsecration, for the communion table of a Protestant church is not analogous to the altar in a Roman Catholic church:—PARKER v. 3057. — New church built in substitution for former parish church—Transfer of endowments after consecration.]—In 1891 a church was built in a parish to take the place of the existing parish church which had become inadequate for the performance of Divine worship. By a sentence & decree of the bishop of the diocese, dated Nov. 12,

1891, the new church was declared to be duly consecrated; & by an instrument dated Dec. 10, 1891, & made under Church Building Act, 1845 (c. 70), s. 1, the ecclesiastical comrs. declared that the new church should thenceforth be the parish church in the place of the old parish church & transferred the endowments of the old parish church to the new parish church. In 1905 pltf. became the rector of the parish & was “read in” in the new church. Pltf. applied in the county ct. under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), for an order for the payment of tithe rentcharge by deft., the owner & occupier of land in the parish. Deft. contended that the new church had not been validly consecrated in that the requirements of Council of London 1102, Canon 10, as to the provision of endowment before consecration had not been complied with, & that pltf. was, therefore, not the lawful incumbent of the parish & was not entitled to the tithe rentcharge:—Held: (1) assuming the requirements of Canon 10 had not been complied with, the decree of consecration had been issued by the bishop acting within his jurisdiction & its validity could not be questioned in these proceedings, & pltf. was entitled to the order for payment of tithe rentcharge by deft.; (2) the church had been validly consecrated.—SEDGWICK v. The application was opposed by defts. with the support of a considerable majority of the vestry:—Held: (1) for the determination of the questions raised, the ct. should consider not only the wishes of the majority of the vestry, but also the comfort & convenience of the parishioners attending the church, as well as the interests of future parishioners; (2) as the raising of the walls & roof of the church & the claristery windows was opposed by the majority of the vestry & parishioners, & according to the architectural evidence, would be detrimental to the picturesque appearance & architectural beauty of the church tower, this part of the application should be rejected; (3) as to so much of the plan as related to taking down the galleries, to making a chancel & vestries, re-arranging & re-pewing the church, as it was supported by the majority of churchmen in the parish, & as its adoption would conduce to the convenience of the congregation, a faculty should be granted; subject to a proviso that it should not issue until an order had been obtained from the Ecclesiastical Comrs. & two justices of the peace under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 39, sanctioning the diversion of the ancient footpaths necessary for the extension of the chancel.

(4) On the Ecclesiastical Comrs. declining to make an order under sect. 9 of the above Act, the ct., by a subsequent order, directed the diversion of the ancient footpaths, substituting for them other convenient paths.—TOTTENHAM (VICAR) v. VENN (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 221; Trist. 20.

B. Rights in.

(a) In General.

3123. In parishioners.—(1) Faculties appropriating pews in parish churches, to particular families, in different forms, & under different limitations, too lavishly granted by ordinaries in former times—the numerous exclusive rights to particular pews, vested, or supposed to be vested, in particular families, to which this has given rise, nuisances to parishes at large—it is the duty of ordinaries to prevent, so far as may be, their continuance or increase, by treating all applications for such faculties with great reserve; & by suffering none to issue, but under very peculiar circumstances.

(2) By the general law, & of common right, all the pews in a parish church are the common property of the parish; they are for the use, in common, of the parishioners, who are all entitled to be seated, orderly, & conveniently, so as best to provide for the accommodation of all. The distribution of seats rests with the churchwardens as the officers, & subject to the control of the ordinary (per Cur.).

(3) Some instances there are of faculties at large: that is, appropriating pews to persons & their families without any condition annexed of residence in the parish. But such faculties are, so far at least, merely void, that no faculty is deemed, either here, or at common law, good to the extent of entitling any person who is a non-parishioner to a seat even in the body of the church (per Cur.).

(4) Whenever the occupant of a pew in the body of the church ceases to be a parishioner, his right to the pew, howsoever founded, & how valid soever during his continuance in the parish, at once ceases & determines (per Cur.).

(5) So, again, of pews annexed by prescription to certain messuages, it is often erroneously conceived that the right to the pew may be severed from the occupancy of the messuage; it is no such thing; it cannot be severed: it passes with the messuage; the tenant of which, for the time being, has also de jure, for the time being, the prescriptive right to the pew (per Cur.).

(6) The faculty prayed is, if once issued, good & valid, even against the ordinary himself (per Cur.).—FULLER v. LANE (1825), 2 Add. 419; 102 E. R. 348.

3124. In non-parishioners—By prescription only.]

—A non-parishioner can have no right to a pew in the body of a parish church, except by prescription; & prohibition will lie to restrain proceedings in the ecclesiastical ct., if they seek to enforce a claim by any title except that of prescription; or if it be sought by that title, & the prescription be denied by deft. Where prohibition is applied for, it is not necessary that the proceedings in the ecclesiastical ct. should be actually at issue: it is sufficient, if they are clearly in progress towards the trial of a question which can be properly tried only in a ct. of law.—BYERLEY v. WINDUS (1826), 5 B. & C. 1; 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 504; 4 L. J. O. S. K. B. 102; 108 E. R. 1.

3125. —.—A possessory right in a pew is sufficient to maintain a suit against a mere disturber.

By the general law, & of common right, all pews belong to the parishioners at large for their use & accommodation; but the distribution of seats among them rests with the ordinary; the churchwardens are the officers of the ordinary; they are to place the parishioners according to their rank & station; but they are subject to the control of the ordinary if any complaint should be made against them (per Cur.).

The vestry, as such, has no authority whatever on the subject (per Cur.).

A prescriptive right must be clearly proved—the facts must not be left equivocal—and they must be such as are not inconsistent with the general right. In the first place, it is necessary to show that use & occupation of the seat has been from time immemorial appurtenant to a certain messuage—not to lands—the ordinary itself cannot grant a seat appurtenant to lands. Secondly, it must be shown, that if any acts have been done by the inhabitants of such messuage, they maintained & upheld the right. At all events, if any repairs have been required within memory, it must be proved that they have been made at the expense of the party setting up the prescriptive right. The onus & beneficium are supposed to go together; mere occupancy does not prove the right (per Cur.).—PETTMAN v. BRIDGER (1811), 1 Phillim. 316; 101 E. R. 990.

a. General rule.—Every parishioner such permission by the churchwardens being illegal, as confirming the sale of the pew.

(2) By the general law the use of all pews belongs to the parishioners, who are to be in the first instance seated by the churchwardens, subject to the control of the ordinary.

3134. — By reservation—On conveyance of site for church Whether presumed. — In 1845, a meeting of the inhabitants of B. A. appointed a committee to raise funds by subscription to build a chapel, in pursuance of an arrangement with the governors of a school, by which, in consideration of a new site & school being provided for them, they gave up the site of an old school for the purposes of a chapel. The deed of conveyance of the new school was delivered to the governors on Sept. 5, 1846, but there was no record of any conveyance of the site of the chapel. On Feb. 12, 1848, on completion of the chapel, a pew therein was assigned by the committee to H., there being nothing to attach the pew to any particular house. On Feb. 22, 1848, the chapel was consecrated. H. devised the house & also the pew by will. In 1867 a faculty was obtained for the re-pewing of the chapel, with the consent of the persons who then held the pews. The faculty empowered the incumbent & churchwardens to re-allot the pews, & H.'s pew was so re-allotted to her representatives. In 1873 H.'s house & the pew, described as usually held by H. with her mansion house, were sold to plff., who thereafter continuously remained in exclusive enjoyment of the pew. No repairs were done to the pew by H. or her successors in title:—Held: (1) a reservation of a pew in the body of a church upon the conveyance of the land on which the church is built is unknown in law, & therefore could not be presumed; (2) the assent of H.'s successors in title in 1867 to the allotment of a pew by the ordinary was inconsistent with an existing right by virtue of a faculty; (3) where the question relates, not to the presumption of an ancient grant or faculty relied upon as the foundation of prescription, but to the existence of a modern grant or faculty actually made but lost, it is always one of fact; (4) the absence of evidence of repair was fatal to the presumption of a faculty since 1867; (5) Prescription Act, 1832 (c. 71), s. 1, does not apply to a claim to a pew; (6) even if it does, the evidence proved occupancy only, which in the case of a pew is not sufficient evidence of prescription.—PROUD v. PRICE (1893), 63 L. J. Q. B. 61; 60 L. T. 604; 57 J. P. 533; 42 W. R. 102; 10 T. L. R. 21; 37 Sol. Jo. 441; 9 R. 40, C. A.

3135. Possessory right—Existence of right—Jurisdiction of church to try. — A. brought a suit against the churchwardens of the parish of C. for disturbing him in the occupation of a certain pew. In the letters of request from the Diocesan Ct. & in the citation this pew was stated to be occupied & enjoyed as appurtenant to a house in which A. resided. In the libel & responsive allegation the sole & exclusive title set up & disputed was that by prescription, which, by the evidence, was not proved:—Held: in such a state of the pleadings the ct. could not inquire whether A. had any title against the churchwardens on the ground of mere possession. The churchwardens are not justified in dispossessing any one of a sitting, which he has enjoyed for a time, without giving notice of their intention, & offering an opportunity for objection & explanation.—*HORSFALL v. t. Rights of Crown. — The Crown is as fully entitled to those parts of the church which have been successively occupied by H. M.'s servants as any individual is to the pew he occupies. If, therefore, any public officer to whom the king has given the use of one of the pews belonging to the Crown be deprived of this easement or obstructed in the enjoyment of it, by the churchwardens, such officer may bring an action on the case against them; but the Governor, as the King's representative, may dispose of the

a. Conveyance of pews To trustee for corporation. — Conveyance of pews in a church belonging to the Church of England to plff., a member of that church, even if clothed with an unexpressed trust in favour of a corp., incapacitated under Church Temporalities Act from being pew-holders by reason of their not belonging to the church, was nevertheless in a ct. of law binding between the parties to it.—*RIDOUT v. b. After the new church was built, one of such pew-holders refused to pay the sum of £25, agreed to be subscribed by him towards rebuilding the church, & for which he had given his note; whereupon the churchwardens, in case must be made in general terms so as to entitle the allottees to occupy the seats allotted to them at all the ordinary services held in the church; the churchwardens not being entitled to attach to the allotment a condition excluding any allottee from the right to attend in the seats allotted any of the ordinary services of the Church prescribed by the rubrics. Thus persons to whom the churchwardens have allotted seats in the body of the church are entitled by law to occupy the seats so allotted to them not only during the Sunday morning service, but also during the Sunday evening service & at the early Sunday morning service held for the administration of Holy Communion, as well as at the ordinary services held on Christmas Day, Ash Wednesday, & Good Friday, & at any other ordinary service held in the church whether on Sundays or on weekdays.

Moreover, up to the commencement of service the seats allotted by the churchwardens to parishioners cannot legally be occupied by other persons against the will of the persons to whom they have been allotted.

Should a stranger be put into a seat prior to the commencement of the service & decline to leave it to enable the allottees from the churchwardens to occupy it, he would be liable to an action at common law for disturbance of seat & to a suit in the Ecclesiastical Ct. for perturbation of seat (*DR. I think that the churchwardens have a right to exercise a reasonable discretion in directing where the congregation shall sit; & if deft. used no unnecessary force, he had a right to remove pltf. from the pew in question to another seat. If, in the exercise of a fair discretion, the churchwardens thought it more convenient that the pew should be occupied by G.'s family, & not by pltf., & if the removal could be effected without public scandal, or the disturbance of Divine service, deft. was justified. The jury are to say whether any unnecessary violence was used (ROLFE, B.).—REYNOLDS v. MONKTON (1841), 2 Mood. & R. 384. Annotations:—Apprvd. Asher v. Calcrafft (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 607. Reid. Taylor v. Timson (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 671.

D. Appropriation.

(a) By Faculty.

i. Necessity for.

3182. On exchange of galleries.]—In 1822 D. conveyed a piece of freehold land with a chapel thereon adjoining E., his park & mansion, excepting from the conveyance a gallery extending along the west side of the chapel, reserved for the use of himself & his heirs for ever, to trustees in fee, upon trust to allow the chapel to be used for services according to the rites of the Church of England, etc. The chapel was, shortly after the date of the conveyance, consecrated, & a chaplain was appointed to officiate in it. In 1840 the chapel was pulled down, & the present church was erected partly on its site & partly on land belonging to B., who had succeeded to the E. estate, in fee, without any conveyance of the land having been made by B. for the use of the church. Upon the completion of the church, a portion of the north gallery, sufficient to seat 72 persons, was by the trustees appropriated to E. in lieu of the west gallery, which had been demolished in carrying out the plans for the extension of the church. In 1851 resp. was appointed incumbent of F., & in 1854, by an Order in Council, the district of S., including the church, was formed into a consolidated chapelry. In 1866 B. as the surviving trustee under the deed of 1822, conveyed the site of the old chapel, & in his own right the remainder of the site of the church, to the incumbent of S. & his successors in fee; subject to a proviso that the E. north gallery, with the private entrance thereto, should belong to him & his heirs for ever. The exchange of galleries had not been

(2) There are only three ways in which a claim can be asserted to seats in a church which prevents the churchwardens & the ordinary, whom for this purpose the churchwardens represent, from interfering with them. The first is by claiming prescription. . . . The second is by production of a faculty. . . . The third is by application for the grant of a faculty where none is proved to have existed hitherto (per CUR.).

Therefore, where by a faculty, reciting, “that A. had applied to have a pew appropriated to him in the parish church in respect of his dwelling-house” a pew was granted to him & his family for ever, & the owners & occupiers of the dwelling-house, & the dwelling-house was afterwards divided into two:—Held: the occupier of one of the two, constituting a very small part of the original messuage, had some right to the pew, & in virtue thereof might maintain an action against a wrongdoer.—*HARRIS v. 3215. - Exclusive possession & repair for long period - Original possession acquired without legal title.] The owner of a freehold dwelling-house brought an action in respect of the disturbance of his possession of a pew in the parish church. There was evidence that for more than seventy years he & his predecessors in title had occupied the pew, kept it locked, & repaired it : -- Held : upon the principle that a legal origin ought to be presumed if a legal origin be possible, the grant of a faculty ought to be presumed, & the action was maintainable ; & this was so though it appeared that 200 years ago the then lessee of the house, before he became the freeholder, first acquired possession of the pew in a manner which gave no legal title, the subsequent enjoyment not being more consistent with the illegal origin than with the presumption of a latter faculty. — PHILLIPS v. (2) If a pew be held by a faculty or prescription, the ct. cannot disturb the possessor; it cannot interfere so as to defeat that right (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(3) A claim by prescription can be set up in an act. Where there is a choice given to parties by the ordinary practice of the ct., it cannot interfere, except on application (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(4) An exclusive right to a pew must be maintained either by a faculty which may be seen, or by prescription which implies a faculty. Though it is not competent to the Ecclesiastical Cts. to try a prescription; still they may proceed until prohibited, for the defect is not in jurisdiction, but in modo tritionis (DR. LUSHINGTON).

(5) A man holds a pew by prescription when he & those before him, in the occupation of a house, have had constant use & possession, from time immemorial. Whenever a pew has been repaired, evidence should be adduced to show that the repair was made by the individual claiming a prescriptive right; for, if done at the expense of the parish, that circumstance would tend strongly against a claim by prescription (DR. LUSHINGTON). —KNAPP v. ST. MARY'S, WILLESDEN (PARISHIONERS) (1851), 2 Rob. Eccl. 358; 17 L. T. O. S. 191; 15 Jur. 473; 163 E. R. 1344.

iv. By Evidence of Other Acts of Ownership.

3290. Removal of woodwork—Substitution of chairs for seats.]—(1) Claimant of a right by prescription to a pew in the chancel of a parish church in respect of his ownership & occupancy of an ancient house in the parish must, as against the ordinary, prove, not merely exclusive possession of the pew by himself & his predecessors, but also some act of user or assertion of proprietary right inconsistent with mere possession by permission of the churchwardens. The right to such a pew is subject to the burden of repair, but it is unnecessary to prove actual repair where evidence is given of other such acts of user or assertion of proprietary right, repair being only one of many possible acts of user. Upon such proof being given, a lost faculty should be presumed.

(2) The removal of the woodwork of a pew in the chancel & the substitution of chairs for the former seats is an act of ownership or assertion of proprietary right inconsistent with any right in the ordinary, & together with exclusive possession, is sufficient to prove claimant's right; such removal will not amount to an abandonment of the right, unless it be coupled with circumstances indicating an intention to abandon.

(3) Re-lining a pew is not an act of repair.

Semble: (4) the right of the lay rector to the chief seat in the chancel of the parish church is not confined to a single seat for his personal occupation.—STILEMAN-GIBBARD v. WILKINSON, SUB-SECT. 10.—PRIVATE AISLES AND CHAPELS.

3314. When claimable—General rule.—FRANCIS v. LEY, No. 3282, ante.

3315. ————]—A person may prescribe for a chancel, or for an aisle, or for a pew in an aisle or in the nave of a parish church if he prescribe that he & all, etc. . . . had always repaired, even though the estate or house in respect of which the prescription is claimed be out of the parish.

Upon bill filed to establish a right to a chancel as part of the parish church, against the lord of the manor, who claimed it as appendant to the manor or manor-house, it appearing that the chancel was an ancient chapel, coeval with the church; that it was a private chapel erected by the lord of the manor:—Held: immemorial use & occupation, coupled with reparation, entitled the lord of the manor by prescription to the perpetual & exclusive use of the chancel; & this right might exist, notwithstanding that the freehold might not be in the person prescribing, & although the estate or house to which the chancel was appendant might not be situate in the parish.—CHURTON v. FREWEN (1800), L. R. 2 Eq. 634; 35 L. J. Ch. 692; 14 L. T. 846; 30 J. P. 803; 12 Jur. N. S. 870.

3316. ————]—The parish church of A., regarded as one building, is a cruciform church with a central tower; the portion east of this tower is called the F. chapel, & occupies the place commonly filled by the chancel. P'tf. claimed this portion of the building as his private property, & built a wall across the west end of it, so as to separate it structurally from the rest of the church. Def't. pulled down part of this wall, alleging that the F. chapel was the chancel of the parish church, & even if it were not, still that the parishioners were entitled either by prescription at common law, or by virtue of a lost grant, or under Prescription Act; 1832 (c. 71), to light from this chapel. Evidence was given of numerous acts of exclusive ownership by p'tf. & his ancestors for more than 300 years; documentary evidence of title to the same effect was produced, & at the trial, without a jury, judgment was given for p'tf. On appeal:—Held: (1) the evidence showed that the disputed building was not the chancel of the parish church, but had always been the property of p'tf. & his predecessors in title; (2) the claim to light could not be maintained on any of the grounds set up by def't.—NORFOLK (DUKE) v. ARBUTHNOT (1880), 5 C. P. D. 390; 49 L. J. Q. B. 782; 43 L. T. 302; 44 J. P. 790, C. A.

3319. ————]—(1) The freehold of a chapel or lesser chancel may be vested in a private person, though such chapel or chancel forms an integral portion of, & is under the same roof with, a parish church. (2) The enjoyment of such chapel or chancel, & the right to its exclusive use, is not necessarily annexed to a dwelling-house. 3342. — Vicarage under sequestration—Payment to sequestrator—Right to account.]—A vicarage being under sequestration for debt, the occupiers paid their tithes & certain alleged moduses to the sequestrator:—Held: the vicar might, notwithstanding, file his bill against the occupiers for an account & satisfaction of their tithes, without making the sequestrator a co-pltf., though no fraud or collusion between the occupiers & the sequestrator was alleged.—WARRINGTON v. SADLER (1831), 1 You. 283; 159 E. R. 909.

3343. — Whether apportionable—On death of incumbent.]—Composition for tithes, received after the death of the incumbent by the successor, apportioned with reference to the respective periods of enjoyment.—LYNSLEY v. WORDSWORTH (1813), 2 Ves. & B. 331; 35 E. R. 345.

3344. — — — — —.]—A rector, who took a composition for his tithes every Michaelmas, died in Jan. 1811. The new rector was collated in the following Apr., & before harvest time he employed a surveyor to value the tithes. The surveyor furnished him with a report, stating what he considered ought yearly to be paid by each of the occupiers, as a composition in lieu of tithes. In Aug. the new rector required the respective occupiers to pay him as a compensation for their tithes the amount mentioned by the surveyor. The occupiers accordingly in Nov. 1811, made their payments according to the surveyor's report, for the whole year from Michaelmas, 1810, to Michaelmas, 1811:—Held: the representative of the late rector was entitled to be paid by the new rector a proportion, according to the time which elapsed from Michaelmas, 1810, to the late rector's death, of the composition which existed in the late rector's lifetime.

B. Meaning of Tithe.

3350. In ancient documents—Whether payment in lieu of tithe included.]—The word tithes is continually found in ancient instruments used to denote tithes qua tithes, or a commutation for them, and may mean either one or the other, as the subsequent usage explains.—NORTON v. HAMMOND (1826), 1 Y. & J. 94; 148 E. R. 600.

3351. — — — — —.]—The word "tithes," in ancient documents, does not necessarily import, that tithes were then payable in kind, but may mean a money payment in lieu of tithes.—BECK v. BREE (1830), 1 Cr. & J. 246; 1 Tyr. 132; 9 L. J. O. S. Ex. 26; 148 E. R. 1410; sub nom. BREE v. BECK, 1 You. 211.

Annotation:—Mentd. Baine v. Cairns (1841), 4 Haro. 327.

3352. "White tithes"—Explained by usage of parish.]—The words "white tithes" have no general meaning, but are applicable to distinct things in distinct parishes. The meaning, therefore, of those words, as applicable to a particular parish, is to be ascertained only from the usage in that parish.—BECHER v. CLAYE (1835), 1 Y. & C. Ex. 448; 160 E. R. 183.

3353. "Privy tithes"—"Small tithes."]—"Privy tithes" synonymous with "small tithes," though the Ecclesiastical Survey makes a distinction between "privy tithes" & "lesser tithes," that distinction being explained by a subsequent terrier, distinguishing between tithes in general & privy tithes payable to the vicar; & there being evidence that in the district wherein the vicarage is situate privy tithes mean small tithes.—CLERE v. HALL (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 744; West, 148; 9 E. R. 453, H. L.; affd. 8. O. sub nom. HALL v. GODSON (1836), 2 Y. & C. Ex. 153.

3354. Small tithes—Not dependent on quantity.]—Potatoes being sown in great quantities in a common field, the rector brought his bill for them as a great tithe:—Held: potatoes being in their nature a small tithe, the sowing them in greater quantities makes no alteration.—SMITH v. WYAT (1742), 2 Atk. 364; 9 Mod. Rep. 330; 26 E. R. 620, L. C.

A letting by auction of tithes of corn, then standing & growing on the ground to be transferred by way of lease for one year, to commence from before the day of the auction, is a letting by auction of the tenement, & not a sale of the tithes; & that, although no pay the tithes demanded, & did not raise any question of modus, but afterwards appealed to the sessions, & there, for the first time, set up a modus, & tendered evidence to prove it:—Held: the justices at sessions might, in the exercise of their discretion, reject the evidence. Semble: the power of justices to try questions of tithe under 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 6, is taken away by sect. 8 of that Act, where a question of modus is raised.—R. v. JEFFREYS (1823), 1 B. & C. 604; 2 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 860; 1 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 455; 107 E. R. 222.

3395. Court of summary jurisdiction—Where title in issue.]—Deft., a householder, was summoned before justices under 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 6, for non-payment to the rector of the parish of dominicals, a tax in lieu of tithes in respect of dwellings erected on land formerly subject to tithes. Evidence of custom in the parish to pay these dominicals was adduced before the justices, & the attorney who appeared for deft. objected in writing to the jurisdiction of the magistrates, on the ground that deft. had a bonâ fide objection to the validity of the payment, which being due by custom they could not try. The justices stated that they thought the custom was established, & made an order on deft. for payment of the claim with costs. Upon certiorari to quash this order:—Held: although a claim of right might oust the jurisdiction of justices under this statute, the mere assertion by the attorney did not sufficiently establish a bonâ fide objection on deft.'s part.—R. v. SANDFORD (1874), 30 L. T. 601; 39 J. P. 118.

(b) Actions for Recovery.

(2) Upon a bill filed by such a lay-impropriator against an occupier, who had taken a lease from the rector, of the tithes of corn & grain, but expressly without prejudice to any question as to the title of hay, & who, by his answer, set up, but did not prove, a modus as to the small tithes:—Held: proof of the perception of some tithes by a lay-impropriator, without evidence of a grant from the Crown, gave a title to other tithes, of the perception of which there was no actual proof.—CHERRY v. If the title of the claimant, or liability of the party sought to be charged is undisputed two years' arrears may be there recovered; whereas, if such title or liability is denied ried roce before the justices, or at any time in writing, the claimant may proceed in suit in equity, & recover six years' arrears.—ROBINSON v. PURDAY (1816), 16 M. & W. 11; 8 L. T. O. S. 123; 11 J. P. 712; 153 E. R. 1077.

(c) Proof of Right.

3403. Presumption from long enjoyment Due performance of conditions.]—In favour of a long-continued enjoyment of tithes, in conformity with successive recitals in old leases, the ct. will presume performance of conditions to endow, etc., & adopt every other presumption necessary to give effect to such a title, so supported. WOOLEY v. BIRKENSHAW (1823), 12 Price, 702; 147 E. R. 851, Ex. Ch.

3405. Claim by lay impropriator—Whether different from claim by spiritual person—Evidence.]—BURWELL v. COATES (1723), Bunb. 129; 145 E. R. 621.

3406. — Whether long non-payment a defence.]—(1) The mere non-payment of tithes is not a sufficient answer to a claim of tithes made by a lay impropriator.

(2) From evidence of right to tithes of all kinds in a lay impropriator up to a given time, & of perception of the corn tithe since that time by another party, a jury may, if it think fit, infer a grant of all the tithes by the first-mentioned impropriator to such latter party, who is therefore at liberty, in support of his right to the hay tithe, to give in evidence leases of that & all other tithes from the presumed grantor.—ANDREWS v. DREVER (1835), 3 Cl. & Fin. 314; 2 Bing. N. C. 1; 9 Bli. N. S. 471; 2 Scott, 1; 6 E. R. 1454, H. L.; affg. S.C. sub nom. BAYLEY v. DREVER (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 449, Ex. Ch.

3407. — Evidence justifying presumption of grant.]—ANDREWS v. DREVER, No. 3106, ante.

3408. — Against rector—Evidence justifying presumption of grant.]—Though mere nonpayment of tithes, for however long a period, would not be evidence of a grant, yet a layman's adverse enjoyment of pernaney, for a long series of years, of the tithes of certain lands, or of a money-payment in lieu of tithes, coupled with a succession of deeds by which the tithes or money-payments in lieu of tithes have been conveyed from one person to another, corresponding with the enjoyment, affords evidence sufficient to justify a jury in presuming a legal grant of the tithes.—BACON v. WILLIAMS (1827), 3 Russ. 525; 38 E. R. 672, L. C.; previous proceedings, sub nom. WILLIAMS v. BACON (1823), 1 Sim. & St. 415.

3409. Claim by vicar—Effect of rector's disclaimer.]—(1) Title Act, 1832 (c. 100), brings down the period of legal memory from the time of Richard I. to the time of the commencement of two incumbencies, not being together less than sixty years, & three years of a third incumbency; but does not create a new ground of exemption, or destroy the right to tithes upon mere proof of non-payment or non-render during two such incumbencies, & three years of a third, in cases where proof of non-payment or non-render from the time of Richard I. would, before Tithe Act, 1802 (c. 100), have established no exemption.

(2) The proof of the title of the vicar to some small tithes, & that the other small tithes had never been paid to the rector, is not necessarily sufficient to establish the right of the vicar to such other small tithes, especially where some of the evidence is opposed to the vicar's claim.

(3) Where, in a suit for small tithes by the vicar against occupiers, the rector is a deft. & disclaims, the ct. may use the disclaimer for the purpose of founding upon it a decree for the particular tithes demanded by plff. in the suit, but not for the purpose of proving the right of the vicar to such tithes. 3412. Under Tithe Act, 1832 (c. 100)—Intention of Act.]—(1) The object of the above Act, to be inferred from its preamble as explained by the enacting part, was, to prevent the expense & inconvenience of suits for tithes, by establishing certain limitations of time after which claims of modus & discharges should not be questioned.

(2) The effect of the Act as applicable to claims of exemption is not only to facilitate the proof of exemption de facto for the time past, but to dispense with the proof which was before required from laymen of any legal origin of such exemption.

(3) The Act applies also to the case of a claim of partial exemption on the ground of non-payment of tithes in respect only of some titheable matters; although the same lands have paid tithes of other matters.

(4) Seemle: under the same Act, a modus liable to the objection of rankness, but which has been acted upon for the period prescribed by the Act, will constitute a good exemption.

3416. — Application of Act.]—At the trial of an action of debt for not setting out tithes accruing from lands forming part of M. fen, in the parish of M., the general title of plff. as impropriate rector was admitted; but it appeared that by a local inclosure act passed in the 47 Geo. 3, comrs. were directed to set out & allot in lieu of all tithes in the parish of M., such parts of the land intended to be inclosed as should be equal in value to certain proportions of lands in the parish of three different descriptions therein specified, amongst others, to one-seventh part of all the old inclosed lands, except such lands as were formerly part of M. common, & inclosed under an act of King Charles II. By a subsequent sect. provision was made for the case of (inter alia) old inclosures or inclosed lands subject to tithes, the respective owners whereof should be desirous of commuting for the tithes due thereout, & empowering the comrs. to direct such compensation to be made out of other lands or by money payments. The comrs. accordingly made their award, following the words of the Act, & professing to make an allotment to plff. in lieu of all the tithes accruing within M.; & the award was accompanied by a map of the inclosed lands & a schedule of lands not discharged from tithes was annexed to it; but the land in question was not included either in the map or the schedule; neither did it appear that any land was allotted in respect of the tithes of it, nor was any money payment directed to be made. It did not appear whether M. fen formed part of the land inclosed under the act of Charles II. The question of the liability of deft.'s lands having subsequently been brought under the attention of M., assistant tithe comr., he decided that they were not exempted by the inclosure act & award, & that plff. was entitled to the tithes:—Held: (1) reading both sects. of the inclosure Act together, it was not obligatory upon the comrs. to award compensation with respect to all the lands in the parish subject to tithes; (2) the assistant tithe comr. had, therefore, jurisdiction to inquire into the fact whether or not compensation had been awarded by the comrs.; (3) if his decision of that fact in the negative was erroneous, his decision that the tithes were payable was without adverse claimants of estates in tithe rentcharge, & not as between the owner of the tithe rentcharge & the occupier & owner of the land.—SHEIL v. INCORPORATED SOCIETY (1847), 10 L. Eq. R. 411.—IR.

o. ——Sect. 2 of the above Act does not apply to claims for tithe composition, as between the

q. — Discontinuance of receipt—Subsequent receipt from person not jurisdiction & did not preclude deft. from showing that they had been extinguished.

(4) The neglect to appeal from the decision of the comrs. finding that tithes are payable, under Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 46, does not preclude the party against whom they decide afterwards setting up a previous commutation or extinguishment of the tithes under a prior Act of Parliament; the jurisdiction of the comrs. in such case being taken away by sect. 90.

(5) Sects. 2 & 34 of above Act do not apply to an action for not setting out tithes. The act applies to tithes only where the dispute is between adverse claimants, & not where the liability to pay tithes is questioned.—BUNBURY v. FULLER (1853), 9 Exch. 111; 1 C. L. R. 893; 23 L. J. 3419. Whether by unity of church & lands.]---

(1) The perpetual unity of a church & lands is not of itself a discharge from tithes; for the tithes being collateral to the land are not extinguished, but only suspended, by the union, & when the union ceases they are payable. Lands, therefore, belonging to the lesser abbeys, though annexed to a greater abbey, yet not being exempted by 31 Hen. 8, c. 13, become liable upon the dissolution made by that statute.

3423. Whether binding on successor—Patron not a party.—An agreement was made between the rector & inhabitants of a parish, allotting lands in lieu of the ancient glebe, with some addition on account of the rector's losing certain rights of common by an inclosure; & also providing an annual stipend or pecuniary compensation in lieu of tithes. The successor declining to abide by the agreement, unless on an increase of the stipend, an amicable suit was instituted in Chancery, to which the ordinary, but not the Patron, who was the King, was made a party, & the parishioners agreeing to increase the stipend, a decree was made by consent to ratify the articles of agreement. This agreement was acquiesced under for eighty years, forty of which the rector against whom the decree was made remained incumbent:—Held: this agreement as to the pecuniary composition was not binding, the patron not being ever a party thereto; & the composition being made only as respecting the value of the past tithes, without any regard to the future increasing value.—*CHOLMLEY v. The deed was duly enrolled. An objection, that the deed was invalid as a purchase from the vicar was overruled.

annual amount of the rentcharge to be paid to the rector in lieu of tithes. A subsequent section enacted, that in case the arbitrator should neglect or refuse to act, the Bishop of Oxford should have power to nominate another arbitrator in his place with the like powers. The inclosure comrs. did not complete the inclosure within the six months, & the arbitrator did not make his award until after that time. The award made by him being bad on its face, the Bishop of Oxford appointed another arbitrator, who made an award on which pltf. declared, alleging that the arbitrator appointed by the Act had omitted to make his award within six months, & the other facts. Def't. pleaded that the arbitrator appointed under the Act made his award, which was submitted to & acted on by pltf. absque hoc, that the arbitrator "neglected" to make his award for the space of six calendar months, etc.:—Held: the arbitrator, by permitting six months to expire without making an award, had neglected to make one within the meaning of the Act.—WILLOUGHBY v. WILLOUGHBY (1847), 9 Q. B. 923; 16 L. J. Q. B. 251; 8 L. T. O. S. 470; 11 J. P. 581; 11 Jur. 902; 115 E. R. 1529.

3427. Procedure on award—Time for appeal.]—

—An Inclosure Act directed, that the comr. thereby appointed should by his award, or by some previous writing to be annexed thereto, ascertain the quantity of wheat equal to the annual value of the tithes in the parish of W., & should afterwards determine the value of such wheat in money, & charge & apportion the amount on the lands & tenements in W., which sum was to be paid to the rector quarterly, the first payment to be on Mar. 25 next after the execution of the award, or such earlier day as the comr. by his award or by such previous writing should appoint; & the tithes were to cease from the apportionment of such rent, or at such other time as the comr. by any writing should appoint. The Act also directed, that if any person should think himself aggrieved by any thing done in pursuance thereof, he might appeal to the sessions within four calendar months next after the cause of complaint should have arisen. The comr., by writing dated Oct. 3, 1832, fixed the corn rent in the proportions stated in a sched. annexed, & appointed the payments to begin from Dec. 25 next, & the tithes to cease from Sept. 29 then last. His award was not made till Jan. 1833. The rector appealed at the Easter Sessions, Apr. 9, 1833, on the ground that his equivalent for the tithes was assessed too low:—Held: (1) the previous writing of the comr. was operative before the making of the award; (2) the cause of complaint arose on the execution of such writing, & the appeal was too late.

(3) The Act directed, that all notices necessary to be given by the comr. should be given by advertisement in a certain paper, & by affixing such notice on the church door eight days before the time for doing the business to be notified. The comr. on executing the above writing, sent the applt. a copy of the sched., with notice of the tithes having been extinguished & the corn rents assessed, but the sched. in no way referred to the writing. He also published notices in the newspaper & on the church door, declaring that he had assessed the corn rents by writing of Oct. 3, which was deposited with the clerk, whose address was given, in London; & these last-mentioned notices further stated the days when the tithes were to cease, & on which the rents were to be payable. It also appeared by a correspondence, that the matter which formed the ground of the appeal was in fact known to the applt. before Dec. 13, 1832:—Held: supposing any notice to applt. to have been necessary, & semble: it was not, he had, by the communications above stated, sufficient notice of the cause of complaint to have appeared within four months.—R. v. NOCKOLDS (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 245; 3 Nev. & M. K. B. 334; 2 Nev. & M. M. C. 241; 3 L. J. M. C. 87; 110 E. R. 1199.

3429. Validity of award—Rentcharge charged in one entire sum on lands of one proprietor—Construction of Act.]—(1) An Act for dividing & allotting lands in a parish in Oxfordshire, & creating a rentcharge upon certain lands in lieu of tithes, enacted, that the rentcharge should be charged on the lands & grounds of W., in exoneration of the lands & grounds of all other proprietors of lands & hereditaments in the parish; & further, that it should be lawful for a barrister or comr., by his award, to divide & apportion the rentcharge into so many parts or portions as he should think fit, & to charge each such part or portion on a separate & distinct part of the lands & grounds of W., in order that each separate & distinct part might be subject only to that part of the rentcharge which was charged thereon. The comr. awarded that the yearly rentcharge of £236 0s. 9d. should be charged in one entire sum on all the lands & grounds of W. situate in the parish:—Held: sufficient; as although the comr. had the power to specify particular lands, & the amount of charge upon them, it was not compulsory upon him to do so.

(2) An Allotment Act, creating a rentcharge upon certain lands in lieu of tithes, provided that the rentcharge should be payable at stated times, & that when & so often as any part thereof should be behind & unpaid, for three calendar months next after it should become due & payable, the rector should have such & the like powers & remedies for recovering the same, together with all expenses, etc. as by the common or statute law are given to landlords, for the recovery of rent when in arrear. W. was not shown to be in the occupation of the lands charged, & no person was mentioned in the Act by whom the rentcharge should be paid:—Held: debt would not lie against W. for arrears of the rentcharge. Semble: if the Act intended to give a remedy by action of debt at all, it would only lie against the occupier of the lands charged. WILLOUGHBY v. WILLOUGHBY (1843), 4 Q. B. 687; 12 L. J. Q. B. 281; 1 L. T. O. S. 169; 7 J. P. 543; 7 Jur. 798; 114 E. R. 1057; subsequent proceedings (1845), 6 Q. B. 722.

3433. — Ancient charge for benefit of poor.]—(1) In 1881 deft. purchased from the Ecclesiastical Comrs. certain lands which, in 1834, had been allotted to their predecessors in title under a private inclosure Act, in lieu of the great tithes of the parish of H. There was evidence that from time immemorial an annual payment of a certain quantity of corn had been made out of the tithes for the benefit of the poor of the parish, & from 1831 to 1881 the same payment had been made by the owners or occupiers of the lands in question. The conveyance to deft. was expressed to be made free from incumbrances, but was also expressly subject to the unredeemed land tax, title commutation rentcharge, both rectorial & vicarial, & to all other payments & outgoing, ecclesiastical or civil, charged upon or payable out of the lands conveyed:—Held: the payment of corn constituted a valid charge to which the lands allotted in lieu of the tithes became subject by virtue of s. 60 of the inclosure Act, & deft. by the terms of his conveyance took the lands subject to the charge.

(2) Deft. had mortgaged the lands by a deed which expressly stated in terms similar to those used in the conveyance that the mtg. was subject to all payments & outgoing, ecclesiastical or civil, charged upon or payable out of the mortgaged property. The mtgee. had made no inquiry as to the existence of any charges upon the property:—Held: having regard to Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 39), s. 3 (1) (ii), the mtgee. must be taken to have had notice of the charge in question, & mortgaged property was subject thereto.

(3) By the parsonage is meant the endowments of the benefice. It is thus defined in Degge's Parson's Counsellor (ed. 1703), 190: "A parsonage, or rectory, is a certain portion of land, tithes & offerings, established by the laws of this kingdom, for the maintenance of the minister that hath the cure of souls within the parish where he is rector, or patron, & properly comprehends" — follows a citation from Spelman's Glossary:—"integra ecclesia parochialis, cum omnibus suis juribus, prædictis, decimis, aliisque proventuum speciebus; alias vulgo dictum beneficium." (STIRLING, J.).—Re ALMS CORN CHARITY, CHARITY COMRS. v. BODE, [1901] 2 Ch. 750; 71 L. J. Ch. 76; 85 L. T. 533; 17 T. L. R. 102; 45 Sol. Jo. 163, 723.

titheable places thereof, in lieu of tithes arising within the same lands; after the enrolment of the award of the comrs. all tithes, arising within the lands inclosed, were to cease; but there was a saving to all persons, other than the persons to whom any compensation should be made by virtue of the Act, in respect of the interest for which such compensation should be made, of all such interest as they had in respect of the lands before the passing of that Act. An award, by which the comrs. allotted to the rector, in lieu of the tithes of S. & A., lands more in quantity than two-fifteenth parts of the lands inclosed in S. & A., but less than two-fifteenth parts of the lands inclosed in S., A. & W., without any allotment expressed to be in lieu of the tithes of W.:—Held: the award was not a bar to the rector's claim of the tithes in W.—COOPER v. THORPE (1820), 2 Russ. 78; 38 E. R. 265, L. C.; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. THORPE v. COOPER (1828), 5 Bing. 110, Ex. Ch.

3435. — Commutation for corn-rent—For what period due.]—An inclosure Act directed that, in lieu of tithes, a corn-rent should be payable to the impropricator & vicar by the person having the possession & occupation of the lands. Part of the lands inclosed were uncultivated & untenanted for some years, during which time the owner lived on another estate. He afterwards demised them to a tenant who entered & occupied:—Held: (1) the corn-rents were due for the time during which the land was unproductive; (2) during that time the landlord was legally in the possession of the lands so as to be liable to the burdens imposed by the statute, & the tenant coming in under him was liable to be distrained upon for the arrear of rent.—NEWLING v. 3438. — Lands of single owner with different occupiers.]—By a private inclosure Act all tithes in respect of old inclosed lands were extinguished, & in lieu thereof yearly rents were charged, which were to be paid to the rector for the time being at the rectory-house. The rector, in addition to all present powers for the recovering of tithes, was to have the same powers for recovering the yearly rents, when in arrear, as by common law or statute are given to landlords for the recovering of rack-rent when in arrear. To prevent difficulties to the rector, in case of division of the lands so charged, it was provided that a comr. should make a schedule of the several lands, & apportion the rent to be charged on each part, & upon any division, except by demise at rack-rent, the lands so divided were thenceforth to be exclusively liable to the payment of so much of the yearly rent as should be specified in the schedule, & such apportioned part might be recovered from the lands charged therewith, or from the owners thereof, in the same manner as the whole of the yearly rents were thereby made recoverable:—Held: (1) this Act did not empower the rector to maintain an action against the owners of inclosed lands in his parish, to recover the amount of the rentcharge thereby created; (2) a distress by the rector for a joint sum, being the amount of rent-

A resident owner built in one of his fields, then subject to the modus, a house, attached to it a garden, & planted fruit trees on the rest of the field:—Held: by the planting of the fruit trees there had not been a conversion into tillage so as to destroy the modus & render the land subject to the increased tithe.

The conversion into tillage of any part of the land, if such conversion had actually taken place, would not under this award make the whole field, but only that part of it which was so converted, liable to the increased tithe (LORD SELBORNE, C.).—*DUDMAN v. 3442. Application for revision — Time for making.]—By a local inclosure Act, a corn-rent, of a stated amount, was given to the rector of a parish in place of certain dues; such rent to be paid on Jan. 5 & July 5, the first payment to be on such of those days as should be directed by the award of inclosure comrs. The comrs. were, by such award, to apportion such rent among the landholders; & the rent was to be subject to future variation as follows: the quantity of wheat equivalent to the amount stated in the award being ascertained it was enacted that the rector of the landowners might apply to the justices at the first quarter sessions to be held for the division in the week after the Feast of Easter next after the expiration of 21 years to be computed from the making of the award, to cause the amount of rent to be re-ascertained & increased or diminished according to the average price of wheat for the 21 years then last past; notice of such application to be given in Jan. next preceding. The rent was to be re-ascertained by comrs. the amount reported by them at the next July sessions & an order there made accordingly; & such rent was to continue payable from the half yearly day of payment next after that order, until the same should at the end of 21 years then next ensuing be again varied by such application, & in such manner as before mentioned; & so from time to time, at the end of every 21 years, for ever:—Held: (1) the application for re-ascertainment could take place only at the expiration of one of the periods fixed by the Act & if then omitted could not be made till the next 21 years had expired; (2) the application, at the end of any such period (other than the first) must be made to the Easter sessions next after the close of the twenty-first year, notice being given in the January preceding; & the justices were right in refusing to hear an application made on notice in January of the twenty-second year to the ensuing Easter sessions.—*R. v. 3443. Expenses of award—Whether incumbent liable—Construction of Act.]—A local inclosure Act empowered comrs., amongst other things, to allot lands to the vicar or other the persons entitled to tithes, & to the vicar in respect of glebe lands, as an equivalent & compensation for their claims, & to divide the remainder among persons interested in the lands. It directed the comrs., before making any allotments, to mark out for sale a portion of the lands, & sell the same for the purpose of paying the expenses of carrying out the Act, & in case the amount raised by the sale should be insufficient, to make up the deficiency by a rate to be made upon the several persons interested in the lands to be inclosed, except the vicar & persons entitled to tithes. It directed also that the allotments, except the allotments to the vicar & other persons in lieu of tithes, should be fenced by the persons to whom they were allotted, & that the allotments to the vicar & other persons in lieu of tithes should be fenced at the expense of the inclosure expenses fund:—Held: as the word "other" was omitted in the clause excepting the vicar & persons entitled to tithes from being rated to the additional rate, & as the framework of the Act seem to show that the omission was intentional, the vicar was exempt absolutely from ratability in respect of the land allotted to him for glebe as well as for the land allotted to him for tithes, & the exemption was not intended to be in respect of lands granted in lieu of tithes only.—*EDDISON v. Commuted rentcharge—District chapelry constituted separate ecclesiastical parish—Annexation of portion of rentcharge—St. Giles, Cripplegate.]—A church, called St. Bartholomew, Moor Lane, was built in the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, under Church Building Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 16, & a district was assigned to it, & authority given to solemnise marriages, baptisms, etc., therein. By an indenture, reciting a local Act, which extinguished the tithes of St. Giles & made an annuity of £1,800 payable in lieu thereof, the vicar of St. Giles, under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 45, s. 21, annexed to the church of St. Bartholomew, one-sixth part of this annual sum for the benefit of the incumbent of St. B. & his successors. The churchwardens having raised objections to the validity of this deed, & refused payment of the annuity so annexed:—Held: (1) the annexation of a portion of the annuity due to the vicar of St. Giles, was competent under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 45; (2) though under New Parishes Act, 1856 (c. 104), St. Bartholomew had become a separate parish, yet it was still a district chapelry for all other purposes, & capable of receiving such annexation from the vicar of St. Giles.—*HUGHES v. 3445. — Remedy for non-payment—Against owner of part for whole.]—Deft. was the owner & occupier of a portion of certain lands in the parish of P., which by a private Act were charged with the payment to the vicar of an annual sum of £270 in lieu of all tithes. The Act provided that if the annual rents were in arrear, the vicar was to have such & the same powers & remedies for recovering the same as by the laws & statutes of the realm are provided for the recovery of rent in arrear; & also that, if no sufficient distress was found on the premises, the vicar might enter & take possession of the same until the arrears were satisfied. Four years' arrears of the annual rent accrued in respect of the whole of the lands charged, during the whole of which period deft. was the owner & occupier of a portion only of such lands:—Held: (1) the vicar might maintain an action of debt against deft. for the whole amount in arrear, the remedy by real action, which was a higher remedy than the action of debt, having been abolished by Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 30; (2) deft. had his remedy in an action against the co-owners for contribution.—*CHRISTIE v. The inhabitants resolved that no persons should be appointed who did not pledge themselves to comply with certain conditions, & particularly not to charge more than 15 per cent. for expenses of collection. No one could be found to accept these conditions:—Held: the conduct of the inhabitants amounted to a refusal to fulfil their statutory duty of nominating collectors, & since no other remedy was provided by the Act a mandamus should issue to compel them to perform it.—R. v. LANCASTER (INHABITANTS) (1900), 64 J. P. 280.

3448. Tithes partially extinguished—Interpretation of Act—Jurisdiction of commissioners under 1836 Act.]—By a private Act of Parliament, passed in 1762, for carrying into effect an agreement between the landowner & rector for the commutation of tithes on certain lands in the parish of W., it was declared that certain rents therein specified should be vested in the rector, in lieu of & as full compensation for all tithes of corn, grain, hay, wool, lamb, & all other tithes whatsoever, except as after mentioned, arising from all or any of the lands in the parish, save & except marriage, churching, & burial fees, provided that nothing in the Act should prejudice the right of the rector, or his successors, to any marriage, churching, or burial fees, nor the right of tithes & customary stocking, in certain specified lands, the modus in the Groves & Ancient Closes adjoining to the town,

& all other petty & personal tithes not herein mentioned & relinquished, all which the rector reserved, & they were thereby reserved to him & his successors in full right & in as ample manner as they had always been enjoyed. The assistant tithe comr. having decided that the lands, called the Ancient Closes, were not exempt from tithes:—Held: the tithes of the Ancient Closes were not commuted or extinguished by the private Act of 1762, & therefore the jurisdiction of the comrs. was not taken away by Tithe Act, 1833 (c. 71), s. 90.

Semble: even if the tithes of wool & lamb were not included in the modus reserved to the rector, & were therefore extinguished by the Act of 1762, such partial extinguishment of tithes arising out of the lands would not satisfy s. 90 so as to deprive the comrs. of jurisdiction.—*Re WINTINGHAM TITHES, Ex p. 3450. Under 37 Hen. 8, c. 12—Incorporeal hereditaments.]—By a charter in the reign of James I., a grant was made of certain tithes issuing out of the rectory of St. Botolph Without Aldgate, in the city of London, to persons named in the grant, their heirs & assigns.

In 1801, by a marriage settlement, it was provided that an annuity or clear yearly rentcharge of £610 should issue & be payable out of the tithes in question for the term of 1,000 years. The tithes afterwards became vested in the trustees of a will, subject to the annuity created by the settlement. The trustees sold part of the tithes to certain railway cos. for the sum of £30,670. The tenant for life under the will contended that the trustees of the will might, under Settled Land Act, 1882 (c. 38), s. 38, invest or apply the £30,670 as capital money arising under that Act. By sect. 21 of the same statute it is provided that capital money shall be applied (inter alia) in discharge, purchase, or redemption of incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land, or other the whole estate the subject of the settlement. The tenant for life asked that the trustees might be at liberty to apply the £30,670 in the purchase of the annuity created by the settlement with a view to its discharge:—Held: (1) the tithes were unquestionably an incorporeal hereditament; & as sect. 2, sub-sect. 10, of the Settled Land Act, 1882, includes incorporeal hereditament, such tithes as the tithes in question were included; (2) the annuity created by the settlement was not a rent, because it did not issue out of a corporeal hereditament; but it was an incumbrance on the tithes, & an incumbrance affecting the inheritance within the meaning of the Settled Land Act, 1882; (3) the trustees might be at liberty to purchase the annuity with a view to its discharge.—*Re ESDAILE, ESDAILE v. A lay impropriator of the tithes in a parish within the City having brought an action to recover from the inhabitants of certain houses within the parish tithes payable under this statute, it appeared that so far as was known no tithes or payments in lieu of tithes had ever been paid in respect of those houses.—Held: (1) upon the authority of Andrews v. Drever, No. 3400, ante, that apart from statute mere non-payment afforded no defence even against a lay impropriator; (2) the payments imposed by 37 Hen. 8, c. 12, were not a tender of tithes in kind within the meaning of above section, & that Act afforded no defence; (3) the payments imposed by 30 Hen. 8, c. 12, were "annuities or periodical sums of money charged upon land" within Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 1, & that statute, as amended by Real Property Limitations Act, 1871 (c. 57), afforded a defence to the action.—*PAYNE v. In this & several subsequent statutes these payments were described as tithes. A special Act passed in 1881 provided that all tithes & sums of money in lieu of tithes arising or growing due in a parish in London should cease & be extinguished & the tithe owner should receive in lieu & satisfaction thereof a fixed annual sum to be levied & collected in the same manner as the poor rates. Neither the above-mentioned tithes nor the fixed annual sum in lieu thereof, had ever been assessed for the relief of the poor.—Held: the owner was not ratable to the poor rate in respect of this fixed annual sum, as such sum was a personal payment & was not a payment in lieu of tithes ratable under Poor Relief Act, 1601 (c. 2).—*ESDAILE v. or as a rate-tithe. Pltf. did not by his bill specifically state whether he claimed in respect of a modus proper, or of a special custom affecting all houses in the parish, or in respect of prescriptive rights affecting the particular houses, but at the Bar contended that there was a custom. With reference to the claim on the ground of modus proper, the evidence showed that pltf. claimed a distinct annual sum as payable by the occupier of each house in the parish; & he claimed also an additional annual payment in respect of every additional building which might be erected on the site of any building already liable. With reference to the ground of prescription, the evidence showed that, as to three of the defts. their houses had been erected within memory; as to the fourth, the date of the erection of his house was not known, & a payment for 120 years was proved; but it appeared that the amount paid had varied; down to 1811 it was 8s. per year, & then it was increased to 14s. With reference to the ground of custom affecting all the houses in the parish whenever built, the custom alleged was that, as to new houses, the annual amount payable was such as should be agreed upon, & if no agreement could be come to, then to be ascertained by reference to the amounts paid for other buildings of a like nature. There was no personal evidence of the custom; & the account books referred to, though they showed payments, did not show on what certain principle the custom was founded:—Held: the claim could not be supported as a prescriptive right; & as grounded on a custom, & the custom, if well alleged, was too uncertain, & it was not alleged with sufficient distinctness.—*CHAMPNEYS v. 3461. — Presumption of legal origin.—On a bill filed to enforce the payment of certain specified sums in lieu of tithes, it was proved that the respective occupiers of certain houses, either ancient or built upon ancient sites, & situate in that part of the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn, which is without the city of London, had for the last hundred years uniformly paid certain specified & invariable sums in respect of each house; but such payments were never made by the owners or occupiers of houses built upon new sites. The payments varied in amount on different houses, & were not in any distinct rate or proportion to the value of the houses inter se, & were general through this part of the parish:—Held: the ct. were warranted in inferring from these facts that the payments had been made from time immemorial, & they could assign a legal origin for such payments which could legally be enforced by the rector of the parish.—*BERESFORD v. 3471. Cost of apportionment—Certificate of commissioners—Certiorari.]—Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 90, takes away the writ of certiorari. A certificate of the Tithe Comrs. recited that differences had arisen as to the expenses of apportionment in a particular parish, under the above Act, & ordered A. to pay to B. & C. a certain sum for those expenses:—Held: (1) a rule would be refused for a certiorari to remove that certificate upon affidavits, stating that no such differences had arisen, that those costs had been paid to the knowledge of the comrs. two years before, & that the real object of the certificate was to compel the payment of other costs, viz. the costs of a reference of certain objections to the apportionment; (2) no declaration made by the comrs. themselves subsequently to their signing the certificate would be received, which could affect the rights of third parties under that certificate; (3) if any charge of corruption was intended to be made against the comrs., complainant should proceed by criminal information.—*Ex p. C. Effect of Award.

3473. How far conclusive—As between tithe owner & tithe payer.]—(1) A confirmed award under Tithe Act, 1842 (c. 54), is final as between the tithe owners & tithe payers, but does not exclude from further investigation a case between the tithe owners themselves, in which there was before the award, a just title to tithes, which by accident & mistake was not brought forward till after the award was made. Thus, by an award, made with the concurrence of A., the patron, the whole rentcharge was made payable to B., the rector, A. being at the time entitled to one-half of the corn tithes, but ignorant of his rights:—Held: A. might have relief in that ct. as against B.

(2) X. & Y. were entitled to tithes in equal moieties. Y. under mistake received the whole:—Held: a bill by X. against Y. for his moiety should be dismissed with costs.—CLARKE v. YONGE, YOUNG v. YONGE (1842), 5 Beav. 523; 49 E. R. 680.

3475. — Jurisdiction of commissioners.]

—(1) The comr. under Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), has by his award to fix the amount of rentcharge payable in lieu of tithe, & for that purpose to decide upon the tithe ability of lands, but he has no jurisdiction to decide thereby who is the party entitled to receive the rentcharge.

(2) A dispute, therefore, between rival claimants to the tithe is not a "difference" within sect. 45 of that Act which enables the comr. to determine any question of modus or composition, "or any difference whereby the making of his award shall be hindered."

(3) Nor, consequently, under sect. 46 of that Act can the title of claimant to tithe be made the subject of a feigned issue by way of appeal against the comr's. award, although the award, after deciding on the liability of the landowner to tithe, has improperly gone on to say who is the party entitled to tithe.—EDWARDS v. BUNBURY (1842), 3 Q. B. 885; 3 Gal. & Dav. 229; 12 L. J. Q. B. 45; 6 J. P. 816; 6 Jur. 1014; 114 E. R. 748.

Annotation.—Generally. Reid. University College, Oxford v. Garton (1847), 11 Jur. 907.

3476. —]—The award to be made by Tithe Comrs. under Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), is for the purpose only of settling disputes between tithe owner & landowner, & not of deciding questions of title between rival claimants of tithe. Therefore, where tithes of agistment were claimed by both rector & vicar, & the vicar called upon the comrs. to determine such claims before making their award, on return to a mandamus:—Held: the comrs. were not bound so to determine, the difference not being one, within sect. 45 of the above Act, by which the making of the award was hindered, but they would do rightly in awarding rentcharges for the tithes, including that of agistment, to the parties respectively in possession, leaving them to litigate the title subsequently, as they might do, under sect. 71 of the same Act, notwithstanding the award.

No statement appearing as to the receipt of agistment tithe by any party:—Held: the comrs. might properly consider the rector as the person in actual possession, within sect. 12 of the Act.—R. v. TITHE COMRS. (1850), 15 Q. B. 620; 4 New Mag. Cas. 116; 19 L. J. Q. B. 505; 15 L. T. O. S. 300; 14 J. P. 433; 14 Jur. 954; 117 E. R. 504.

3477. —]—The Tithe Comrs. have no power, under Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), ss. 45, 50, to determine a suit pending between two rival claimants of tithes; inasmuch as the words "touching the right to any tithes," in sect. 45, refer only to suits which raise questions as to the titheability of particular lands, not to those which bring into question the right of particular 3478. As to liability of land to tithe.—(1) The enactment of the Tithe Act, 1846 (c. 73), s. 19, that every instrument purporting to merge any tithes, & made with the consent of the Tithe Comrs., shall be absolutely confirmed & made valid, both at law & in equity, in all respects, is not limited to cases in which the person executing the instrument has a title to the tithe, but operates as well where such person has no estate in the tithe, as where his estate is insufficient to effect the merger.

(2) The intention of the Tithe Acts is that the lands on which the apportionment of the tithe in each parish is cast, & these lands only, shall be liable in respect of the tithe payable for any lands in the parish, & that lands on which no apportionment is cast shall not be liable to tithe.

(3) Lands which on the agreement & apportionment under the Tithe Acts, confirmed by the Tithe Comrs., are treated as free from tithe cannot be afterwards made subject to tithe.

(4) The intention of the Legislature was to preclude all questions of merger of tithe in all cases where declarations of merger had been made with the consent of the Tithe Comrs., leaving the parties affected by an erroneous declaration to their remedy against the party making it; & such being the intention, the merger is effected, although the sanction of the Comrs. has been erroneously given.

(5) The words "every instrument," in Tithe Act, 1846 (c. 73), s. 19, cannot be read as "every such instrument."—WALKER v. BENTLEY (1852), 9 Hare, 620; 68 E. R. 665; on appeal, 20 L. T. O. S. 120, C. A.

3480. Jurisdiction of county council—Under Local Government Act, 1894 (c. 73), s. 17 (8) (9)—Order as to custody of map apart from instrument of apportionment.—A county council made an order under sect. 17 of the above Act, that the tithe apportionment map of a parish should be deposited in the parish school. The map was in the possession of the incumbent of the parish, & the order not having been complied with, an application was made to justices in petty sessions, under Tithe Act, 1800 (c. 93), s. 28, for an order that the map should be removed from the custody of the incumbent & deposited in accordance with the directions contained in the order of the county council. On the hearing of the application the incumbent tendered evidence to prove that the order of the county council did not provide for the security & due preservation of the map, nor for the convenience of the persons interested therein. The justices ruled that the order of the county council was final & that the evidence tendered, therefore, could not be received, & they made the order for the removal of the map as asked for:—Held: Tithe Act, 1800 (c. 93), s. 28, had not been impliedly repealed by Local Government Act, 1894 (c. 73), s. 17 (8), & the justices had jurisdiction to hear & consider the evidence, & while giving due weight to the directions contained in the order of the county council, to make such order as, having regard to the evidence, they thought proper in the circumstances.

The order of the county council was invalid in that it purported to deal with the custody of the map separately from the sealed copy of the instrument of apportionment (DARLING, J.).—Fox v. PETT, [1918] 2 K. B. 196; 87 L. J. K. B. 920; 119 L. T. 187; 82 J. P. 252; 16 L. G. R. 674, D. C.

Thereupon debts. sent down as assistant comr. who made an award by which he awarded the sum of 6s. per acre as an extraordinary charge on lands newly cultivated as market gardens in the parish, & declared the whole parish a district within which such extraordinary charge should be payable. Pltfs., who were landowners in the parish of P. then sued in prohibition, praying the ct. to prohibit debts. from confirming this award, or from taking any further steps for declaring the parish of P. a district within which such extraordinary charge should be payable in respect of lands newly cultivated as market gardens:—Held: (1) the last-mentioned award was good; (2) the words "beyond the limits of every district in which any extraordinary charge for hop grounds or market gardens shall have been distinguished as aforesaid at the time of the commutation" in Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 42, were applicable to lands in any parish, no matter whether, at the original commutation, a district was or was not assigned in such parish under sect. 40 of that Act, within which an extraordinary charge was payable, under sect. 42 of that Act, in respect of the lands cultivated as hop grounds or market gardens.—*RUSSELL v. 3487. Charge under—Whether attaches to whole farm—Or hop ground only.—By the Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886 (c. 54), after reciting in the preamble that by the Acts relating to the commutation of tithes power was given to impose an "extraordinary charge" on hop grounds, orchards, fruit plantations, & market gardens, it was provided by sect. 2 that the Land Comrs. for England shall "ascertain in each parish in England & Wales & certify the capital value of the extraordinary charge on each farm, or, where not a farm, on each parcel of land, in respect of which the charge is payable at the date of the passing of this Act," & by sect. 4 (1), that "land in respect of which at the date of the passing of this Act extraordinary charge is payable shall, so soon as the capital value of the charge shall have been certified under the provisions of this Act, be charged with the payment of an annual rentcharge equal to 4 per cent. on such capital value, in lieu of the extraordinary charge . . . such rentcharge to be a charge upon the particular farm or parcel of land in respect of which same has been assessed":—Held: the rentcharge under the Act was only chargeable on land in respect of which at the date of the passing of the Act extraordinary charge was payable, & therefore, where part only of a farm was cultivated, & chargeable with extraordinary charge, as hop ground at the date of the passing of the Act, the whole farm could not be made chargeable with such rentcharge under the Act.—*SIMMONDS v. The Dean & Chapter applied by summons for investment of the redemption money. The Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886 (c. 54), provided that the money might be dealt with as if it were money paid in under the Tithe Commutation Acts. None of these Acts contained any direction as to costs:—Held: the ct. had jurisdiction to deal with the costs, & they would have to be paid by W. 3493. Loss of right to claim—Tithe owner lay corporation.—The right to the tithe rentcharge in Ireland was vested in a spiritual corpn. sole until 1871, when it was transferred by statute to a lay corpn. In 1877 the lay corpn. brought an action against the persons liable to pay tithe rentcharge to recover six years' arrears. For more than twenty years next before action there had been no payment & no acknowledgment in writing:—Held: (1) tithe rentcharge was "rent" within Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 1, & not a "composition" within the exception to sect. 1, compositions in Ireland having been abolished by Tithe Rentcharge Act, 1838 (c. 109); (2) Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 2, applied as between the owner & the persons liable to tithe rentcharge; (3) the lay corpn. could not avail themselves of the provisions of sect. 29 in favour of spiritual corps. sole; (4) the action was barred by the lapse of twenty years.—IRISH LAND COMMISSION v. A., at the time of the lease, was owner of the tithe commutation rentcharge, which he assigned to plffs. as well as his reversion:—Held: the tithe commutation rentcharge was not a tax or assessment which deft. was bound to pay by the covenant.—JEFFREY v. NEALE (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 240; 40 L. J. C. P. 191; 24 L. T. 362; 30 J. P. 39; 19 W. R. 700.

3505. — Agreement to pay all taxes assessment & charges whatsoever.—By a lease, the tenant agreed to pay the rent, "without any deduction in respect of any taxes, rates, assessments, or charges whatsoever, the landlord's property tax only excepted":—Held: the tenant was bound to pay the tithe rentcharge imposed upon the demised hereditaments.—LOCKWOOD v. WILSON (1874), 43 L. J. C. P. 179; 30 L. T. 761; 22 W. R. 919.

3506. — Contract for reimbursement subsequent to act.—Whether valid.—Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 1 (1), which provides that "any contract made between an occupier & owner of lands after the passing of this Act for the payment of the tithe rentcharge by the occupier shall be void," prohibits not only a contract by the occupier to pay the tithe rentcharge directly to the tithe owner, but also a contract to reimburse the landlord such sums as shall be paid by him for tithe rentcharge.—LUDLOW (LORD) v. PIKE, [1904] 1 K. B. 531; 73 L. J. K. B. 274; 90 L. T. 458; 68 J. P. 243; 52 W. R. 475; 20 T. L. R. 276; 48 Sol. Jo. 277. Annotation:—Folld. Tuff v. Guild of Drapers of City of London, [1913] 1 K. 3508. Nature of remedy.—Whether by action.—Where an owner of land has paid tithe rentcharge, which by lease executed before the passing of Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), his tenant covenanted to pay, his remedy to recover the sum so paid by him from his tenant is by distress alone, sect. 1 (3) of the Act being an absolute bar to the maintenance of an action for its recovery.—CHURCH v. MAXSTED (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 823.

— By distress.—See Nos. 3490–3492, ante.

3511. Under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 8—Application of provision.—Lands assessed under schedule D.]—An owner-occupier of agricultural land had exercised the option given by Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1887 (c. 15), s. 18, to be assessed for property & income tax purposes under sched. D., in lieu of sched. B. He subsequently applied under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 8 (5), for a certificate from the district comrs. for taxes of the annual value of his land. The comrs. declined to give the certificate unless appct. first consented to have his land assessed for the purposes of sched. B. under sect. 8 (4) of the last-mentioned Act:—Held: the comrs. were right, inasmuch as the certificate to be granted under sect. 8 (5), of last-mentioned Act, only applied to the annual value of land under that sect. & that sect. referred only to assessments ascertained & entered under sched. B., or, if not already so entered, to be ascertained for the purposes of sched. B., under sect. 8 (4) & no assessment under sched. D. was made applicable for the purposes of remission of the tithe rentcharge under that sect. — R. v. PETERSFIELD DIVISION OF HANTS TAX COMRS., Ex p. Woods (1893), 63 L. J. Q. B. 357.

3512. — Application for reduction of assessment to income tax—Who may appeal.]—Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 8 (3), which gives the owner of tithe rentcharge the same right of appeal as the owner of lands, gives a right of appeal to the owner of tithe rentcharge where the assessment on land made by the surveyor for Income Tax Act, 1853 (c. 34), sched. B., has been reduced by the Comrs., on appeal by the occupier of land, to such an extent that the tithe rentcharge exceeds two-thirds of the annual value of the land, as ascertained by the assessment, in consequence of which so much of the tithe rentcharge as is equal to the excess is liable to be remitted under sect. 8 (1) of the former Act.—*R. v. 3540. — Ancient endowment—Presumption from long usage.]—Where there is an old endowment of a vicarage, but the modern usage varies from it, there is ground to presume that the variance hath arisen from the act of persons competent to make it. The endowment is not therefore conclusive evidence in favour of the vicar, but his right is properly triable at law.—CARR v. HENTON (1788), 7 Bro. Parl. Cas. 100; 1 Anst. 313, n.; 3 E. R. 65, H. L.

3541. — — — — —.]—The ct. will presume a subsequent enlarged endowment in support of an appropriation by a rector, which has been acted on for a very great length of time, although an insufficient endowment has been actually produced in evidence, appearing on the face of it to be inadequate to that required to be made by the terms of the condition of the original licence, where it is not shown by proof of some deficiency in any particular respect, that the vicarage is in fact, incompetently endowed.

Where a rectory was granted by the Crown in 1517 with licence to appropriate on condition of endowing a vicar, & the vicarage had continued endowed through all time subsequent; but the instrument of endowment produced did not pursue the terms of the grant, & the specific benefits actually enjoyed by the vicar did not appear: the ct. presumed a second deed in conformity with the conditions of the original licence, & that it had been lost by time, or accident.—WOLLEY v. 3543. Agreement to pay rates & taxes on parsonage & glebe—Effect of exchange of parsonage & glebe—Construction of local Act.]—In 1749, by an agreement between plff.'s predecessor,

P. B., as rector of B., & the lord of the manor of B., which was embodied in a private Act of Parliament it was agreed that an annual sum or yearly rentcharge of £77 issuing & going out of all that the manor or lordship of B. shall be payable & paid to the P. B. & his successors for ever, free from all deductions for or in respect of any taxes, charges, or assessments, taxed or imposed or to be charged or assessed upon the said premises or any part thereof out of which the annuity or yearly rentcharge is to issue by any present or subsequent Act of Parliament. It was further agreed that the lands, tenements, & hereditaments charged with the above perpetual annuity should after the passing of the Act be also charged with the payment of all Parliamentary & parochial taxes, rates, & assessments imposed on the parsonage house, outhouses, yard, garden, orchard, & glebe lands belonging to P. B., except the window tax. In consideration of these two agreements the lands of the lord of the manor were discharged from the payment of tithes. In 1785 a deed of exchange, approved by the Lord Bishop of Lincoln, was executed, by which the rector agreed with the then lady of the manor to exchange for ever the existing parsonage house for another residence. In 1805 the glebe land held by plff.'s immediate predecessor in title was exchanged for other land within the parish, & the new glebe took the place of the old glebe for the purposes of 1749 Act. In 1905 deft. purchased 300 acres of land from the lord of the manor with notice of the provisions of 1749 Act. One of the conditions of sale provided that the liability in regard to taxes on the parsonage & glebe, if any, should be deemed charged exclusively on lot 2, which was the lot purchased by deft. Plff. became rector of the parish in 1910. Plff. claimed a declaration (a) that deft.'s lands were charged with a sum in respect of rates & assessments paid by plff. since 1910, (b) that plff. was entitled to enforce such charge by distress or otherwise, & (c) that the annual payment of £77 payable by deft. was payable free of income tax. Deft. contended that 1749 Act referred to the specific parsonage; that the specific parsonage was demolished long ago, & that 1749 Act had ceased to apply, & that the exchange of 1785 was contrary to law & void, & that the substitution of a new parsonage house for the old one was not binding on deft.:—Held: on the construction of 1749 Act the provision with regard to the payment of the rates & taxes was limited to a specific house & to specific glebe land, namely, the then existing parsonage house & the then existing glebe land. The benefit of the charge did not apply to the new parsonage house exchanged for the old one in 1785 nor to the glebe land received in exchange in 1895, & plff.'s claim therefore failed.—HAURIST v. SECT. 7.—DISPOSITION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

3545. Whether Settled Land Acts apply.]—Some houses in a cathedral city had from time immemorial been granted by the bishop of the diocese for the time being to one of the ecclesiastical dignitaries, for his life. The deed of grant was called a "collation," & the grantee was "inducted" by the registrar of the diocese into possession of the property. By the last deed of collation the bishop granted the houses to the then archdeacon of the city for his life, but so long only as he should continue to be archdeacon. On the deed was indorsed a certificate signed by the registrar that five days after the date of the deed the grantee was duly inducted by him into the actual corporal possession of the property. Upon a summons by the archdeacon, with the approval of the bishop, asking that trustees might be appointed for the purposes of Settled Land Act, 1882 (c. 38), of the settlement created by the deed, the object being that the archdeacon, as tenant for life, or having the powers of a tenant for life under the Act might sell the houses, & that the proceeds of sale might be invested in the names of trustees, & the income thereof paid to the persons who would have been from time to time entitled to the rents of the houses if unsold:—Held: this being ecclesiastical property, the Act did not apply to it, & the application was accordingly refused.—Re BATH & WELLS (Bp.), [1899] 2 Ch. 138; 68 L. B., & his successors, vicars of X.," of lands in respect of glebe is not an instrument limiting an estate or interest in land "to or in trust for any persons by way of succession," so as to constitute "a settlement" within Settled Land Act, 1882 (c. 38), s. 2 (1). But where the purchase-moneys of glebe lands comprised in such an award & afterwards taken by a railway co. are paid into ct., then by the combined operation of 1882 Act, s. 32, & Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (c. 18), s. 69, & upon the authorities, such moneys may be dealt with as capital moneys arising under Settled Land Acts, & the ct. has discretionary jurisdiction under Settled Land Act, 1887 (c. 30), to authorise the application of them in the redemption of terminable rentcharges on the glebe created under Land Improvement Act, 1864 (c. 114).—*Ex p. 3553. — Stock vested in Incumbent & successors by private Act.]—By a private statute, South Sea Annuities were vested in a rector & his successors as endowment, subject to a provision for sale & reinvestment in land with the consent of the bishop. Under 16 & 17 Vict. c. 23, the annuities were redeemed & the redemption money paid to the then rector on his sole receipt. A successor having received the redemption money, acting without the consent of the bishop, invested part in land which was conveyed to himself, his heirs & assigns. He resigned & conveyed the land to the next successor, his heirs & assigns. That successor, with his concurrence, sold & conveyed part of the land to deft.; he subsequently misappropriated the proceeds. The solr. acting for both parties believed that the land was "church property." In an action by the present rector against the purchaser:—Held: (1) the South Sea Stock being, by the private Act, exceptionally vested in the rector for the time being as a corp. sole, he could, on its conversion receive & give a good discharge for the money representing it; (2) the purchase of the land did not purport to be & was not under the Act, & did not create any trust for the rector as a corp. sole; (3) the land was not subject to 13 Eliz. c. 10, & the conveyance to deft.'s vendor was not void under that Act, & was not a breach of trust, there being no beneficiary who could elect to take the land in specie.—*POWER v. An infant was tenant in tail male under a settlement which gave trustees the right of presentation during the minority of the tenant in tail:—Held: the trustees were not patrons within the Act, & the guardian of the infant was the proper person to give the consent of the patron to a sale of glebe land.—LEIGH v. LEIGH, [1902] 1 Ch. 100; 71 L. J. Ch. 195; 86 L. T. 219; 50 W. R. 380.

3556. — Under Church Building Act, 1839 (c. 49), s. 15.—Agricultural Land Sales (Restriction of Notices to Quit) Act, 1919 (c. 63), provides that on the making, after the passing of the Act, of a contract for the sale of a holding, or part of a holding, held by a tenant from year to year, any current & unexpired notice to determine the tenancy shall be null & void, unless the tenant agrees in writing, after the Act, & before such contract, that such notice shall be valid. The above sect. of 1839 Act makes the consent of certain persons necessary for the validity of the sale of church lands to which the Act relates, these consents to be testified by such persons by their execution of the conveyance to the purchaser. A contract to sell to pltf. land under this Act was entered into before the passing of 1919 Act, by several, but not all, of the persons whose consent was necessary to the sale. At the time of the contract deft. was in occupation of the land as yearly tenant, but was under a notice to quit which had been served upon him by the vendors. All the persons whose consents were necessary for the sale subsequently joined in the conveyance to pltf., which was executed after the passing of 1919 Act:—Held: the contract of sale was entered into with pltf. before the passing of the last-mentioned Act, & the notice to quit, therefore, was valid, & pltf. was entitled to possession.—BROOKS v. BLOOR (1920), 90 L. J. K. B. 577; 124 L. T. 316; 36 T. L. R. 826; 64 Sol. Jo. 685, D. C.

In an action by the owners of a rentcharge in arrear, charged on glebe lands, for a declaration that they were entitled under the order made by the Inclosure Comrs. to a charge on the lands for the sums due & to become due of the rentcharge, & asking for a sale of the lands, the Ecclesiastical Comrs. were made defts. On demurrer:—Held: they were not necessary parties.—SCOTTISH WIDOWS' FUND v. CRAIG (1882), 20 Ch. D. 208; 51 L. J. Ch. 303; 30 W. R. 463.

Contract for sale under Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts, 1842 (c. 108), & 1858 (c. 57)—Powers of Ecclesiastical Commissioners.—In 1873 a vicar, with the approval of the above Comrs. & with the consent of the patron of his living, agreed to sell the glebe lands of the vicarage under the powers of the above Acts, to the trustee of a settled estate who had power to invest trust funds in the purchase of land. The contract was entered into with the consent of the then tenant for life of the settled estate, & the Comrs. were parties to & executed it. The title was accepted, & the then tenant for life entered into possession, & paid the vicar interest on the purchase-money. The vicar died, the estate devolved, & payment of the interest which was more than an investment of the purchase-money would have produced, was continued by the tenant for life for the time being to the vicar for the time being until 1890, when, the purchase-money being still unpaid, the Comrs. brought an action against the present vicar, the tenant for life, & the legal personal representatives of the trustee, for specific performance of the contract & damages, or an account & a declaration that they were entitled to a lien on the lands & to enforcement thereof:—Held: it was the duty of pltf. to see that the powers given by the above Acts were properly applied, & they had good ground of action.—ECCLESIASTICAL COMRS. v. 3559. Church plate—When sale authorised.—

(1) The ordinary has, in the exercise of his discretion, jurisdiction in a cause of faculty promoted by the incumbent & churchwardens of a parish within his diocese to grant a faculty authorising the sale of church plate belonging to the parish, but this jurisdiction should not be exercised without the greatest hesitation & caution & not so as to authorise any unrestricted sale or, in any case, unless the ordinary is satisfied that the financial position of the parish renders a sale necessary & that the uses of the plate for secular purposes are guarded against. Where a faculty was granted for the sale of church plate in a case where, in the opinion of the Chancellor of the Diocese of London, the straitened circumstances of a parish within the diocese justified a sale, the faculty was decreed on the condition that the destination of the plate should be specified & approved by the ordinary before the plate was actually sold.

3621. Effect of non-compliance—Land Tax Redemption Act, 1802 (c. 116), s. 88—Voidable lease granted on surrender of former lease—Whether former lease revives.]—(1) In a lease of lands belonging to a bishop in right of his see, granted after the passing of Land Tax Redemption Act, 1802 (c. 116), the land tax having been redeemed by such bishop with money raised pursuant to the Act, such redeemed land tax must, in addition to the ancient & accustomed rent, be expressly reserved & made payable during the term granted by the lease; & therefore, a lease of such lands granted by a bishop, in which the redeemed land tax was not so reserved & made payable, was voidable by the successor; & although such land tax had been regularly paid to the bishop who granted the lease.

(2) Such lease being granted in consideration of the surrender of a former lease, which was in fact surrendered by deed under seal:—Held: the first lease did not become revived by the circumstance of the second not being binding on the successor.—DOE d. 3622. — Covenant to build required by local Act omitted—Whether void or voidable.]—A dean & chapter were empowered by a local Act to grant building leases of certain lands for ninety-nine years, provided that in every such lease there was a covenant by the lessee to build. They granted a lease for ninety-nine years, omitting the covenant. During the supposed term, after the death of the dean under whom the lease had been granted, the lessee remained in possession, & continued to pay the reserved rent to the succeeding deans & chapter, who distributed it among themselves:—Held: (1) if the lease was voidable only, it was made good, as against each successive dean & chapter, for their own times respectively, by their receipt & distribution of the rent; (2) if the lease was absolutely void, such receipt & distribution were evidence from which, without proof of any instrument under seal, a demise from year to year might be presumed against them; the presumption in such case being the same against a corpn. aggregate as against an ordinary person.—DOE d. 3623. ———j—A dean & chapter were empowered by a local Act to grant building leases of certain lands for ninety-nine years, provided that in every such lease there was a covenant by the lessee to build, etc. They granted in June, 1786, to deft.'s predecessor a lease for ninety-nine years, but which lease was not in accordance with the powers granted. During the supposed term, after the death of the dean, under whom the lease had been granted, the lessee remained in possession & continued to pay the reserved rent to the succeeding deans & chapters who distributed it among themselves.

Subsequently in Sept. 1849, the then dean & chapter granted a lease for twenty-one years to p^lts., in renewal of former leases & surrenders, made by them, or those under whom they claimed, reserving, nevertheless, unto the dean & chapter & their successors, all rents, rights, interests, benefits, etc., which had been, were or should be reserved to them by any building leases of any part of the premises thereby demised, etc. In an ejectment suit brought by p^lts. against de^{ft}s.:—Held: the original lease in June, 1786, was not void, but voidable only, as the effect of the disabling & restraining statute is to render leases granted not in conformity with them voidable, but not void, & de^{ft}s. were entitled to judgment.—PENNINGTON v. CARDALE (1858), 3 H. & N. 656; 27 L. J. Ex. 438; 31 L. T. O. S. 301; 6 W. R. 837; 157 E. R. 631.

3624. — Pluralities Act, 1838 (c. 116), s. 59 — Whether void or voidable.—A rector who had obtained the bishop's permission to leave his parish to which a curate in charge had been appointed & provided with a suitable residence, granted a lease of the rectory house for the term of his incumbency to a layman. The lease did not contain a condition rendering it void on service on the occupier of a copy of the bishop's order requiring the incumbent to reside therein, as is prescribed by above sect. The bishop had not made any such order:—Held: that the lease was not void, but was voidable upon service on the occupier of an order from the bishop requiring the incumbent to reside at the rectory house.—RICKARD v. GRAHAM, [1910] 1 Ch. 722; 79 L. J. Ch. 378; 102 L. T. 482; 26 T. L. R. 384; 51 Sol. Jo. 420.

3657. ——An action for dilapidations of a prebendal house may be maintained by a succeeding prebendary against his predecessor. The statutes of the church of Ely provide, that the receiver shall require the prebendaries to repair their houses when necessary, & upon their default, repair them at their costs, but the materials are to be supplied out of the funds belonging to the church, & the charges of the workmanship only are to be borne by the prebendaries. On a question, whether a succeeding prebendary should recover against his predecessor the full estimate of repairs wanting, or the amount of the workmanship only:—Held: it was reasonable that he should recover the amount of the workmanship only, & the church was still bound to supply the materials.—*RADCLIFFE v. The report estimated the cost of the necessary repairs to the buildings at £140, & no objections were taken to such report under sect. 16 of the Act. The sequestrator, being subsequently of opinion that the repairs provided for by the surveyor's report were inadequate, expended on the repairs of the buildings a much larger sum than £140. No inspection or report, except as before mentioned, was ordered by the bishop or made by the surveyor:—Held: the sequestrator had no authority to expend on repairs out of the proceeds of the benefice a larger sum than that estimated as necessary by the surveyor's report under the above Act, & such expenditure must be disallowed.—KIMBER v.

See, now, Ecclesiastical Dilapidations Measure, 1923 (No. 6).

3669. Appointment of valuer—Duty of valuer.—

(1) Declaration that pltf., being rector of F. agreed with the extrix. of the late incumbent to have the dilapidations valued as between them, by valuers to be appointed by each side; & in case the valuers disagreed then by an umpire, to be appointed by the valuers; such valuation to be final & conclusive on both parties; that pltf., at the request of defts., being valuers & surveyors, & knowing the premises, retained them as such valuers, for reward, to value the dilapidations on his behalf, & to use their best endeavours to procure the same to be settled at a reasonable amount, as between pltf. & extrix.; & defts. accepted the employment, & entered upon it with a valuer appointed on behalf of extrix.; that through defts.' negligence & unskilfulness the amount was settled by them & the other valuer at a less sum than the same ought to have been had they used due care & skill, by reason of which pltf. was obliged to receive a much smaller sum from extrix. than he otherwise would & ought to have received:—Held: the cause of action disclosed was not against defts. as quasi-arbitrators, but that defts., by holding themselves out as valuers & surveyors had represented themselves as competent as such, & had thereby induced pltf. to employ them, & they had been guilty of a breach of their implied undertaking that they were competent.

(2) The evidence was, that defts., having been employed by pltf. as alleged in the declaration had agreed with the valuer of extrix. in valuing the dilapidations at a smaller sum, having valued as between outgoing & incoming tenant merely, & not as between late & present incumbent, being ignorant of any distinction:—Held: this was a want of such ordinary skill & knowledge as might reasonably be expected of the defts. as country surveyors & valuers, they were not to be expected to supply accurate knowledge of the law, but they might properly be required under the circumstances of their employment, to know the general rules applicable to the valuation of ecclesiastical property & the broad distinction between the cases of outgoing & incoming tenant, & of late & present incumbent; & defts. had therefore, been guilty of a breach of their engagement; & a verdict for defts. under the above circumstances was against the evidence.—JENKINS v. BETHAM (1855), 15 C. B. 168; 24 L. J. C. P. 94; 24 L. T. O. S. 272; 1 Jur. N. S. 237; 3 W. R. 283; 139 E. R. 384.

3670. Direction to surveyor to inspect—Time

[for.].—Within three calendar months after the avoidance of a benefice by resignation the bishop of the diocese directed the surveyor to inspect the buildings which were out of repair. After the expiration of the three months the surveyor inspected & reported to the bishop, who, thereupon, under Ecclesiastical Dilapidations Act, 1871 (c. 43), made an order for the cost of the repairs. The new incumbent having brought an action upon the order against the late incumbent, the latter pleaded that the surveyor neither inspected nor reported within the three months limited by sect. 29:—Held: this was no defence to the action, for the three months mentioned in the sect. referred not to the surveyor's inspection & report, but to the bishop's direction to the surveyor.—GLEAVES v. MARRINER (1876), 1 Ex. D. 107; 34 L. T. 496; 40 J. P. 168; 21 W. R. 539.

3673. Objection to report—Sufficiency.—[The exor. of a deceased incumbent of a benefice, upon being sent a report of the surveyor appointed by the bishop as to the dilapidations in the buildings of the benefice, wrote to the bishop that he had received a communication purporting to be a copy of a report from the diocesan surveyor relative to dilapidations, & that he objected that the communication did not comply with the requirements of Ecclesiastical Dilapidations Act, 1871 (c. 43), ss. 29 & 31, on the ground, inter alia, that the communication ordered works to be done for which the exors. were not liable, & the letter went on to say: "I must object to pay any additional costs by reason of an alleged report having been sent to me, & though it will probably be to the advantage of all parties that this matter shall be settled by your Lordship, I write this letter without prejudice & without in any way waiving any right I may have of applying to have the surveyor's present report amended or quashed elsewhere by injunctions or otherwise." The registrar of the diocese wrote to the exor. that if he wished to object to the report he must proceed under sect. 32 of the Act. The exor. made no further objection, & the Bishop, treating the case as uncontested, made an order under sects. 34 & 35 for payment of the sum found due:—Held: the letter was an objection to the report of the surveyor within the meaning of sect. 32 of the Act, which the bishop would have to take into consideration.—*DE BEAUVAIS v. (3) The patron's right is only to restrain future waste, & does not extend to an account of past profits before the filing of the bill.

(4) Upon a bill by patron to have an agreement between himself & the incumbent, for opening & working mines, declared void & cancelled, & to restrain future workings:—Held: the workings were not lawful, & the proceeds ought to be laid out for the permanent benefit of the living, & as if duly authorised, the workings would be beneficial to the living, an inquiry would be directed as to what steps should be taken to obtain the concurrence of all necessary parties, & liberty would be given to continue the workings in the meantime, subject to account.—HOLDEN v. Act, 1819 (c. 134), s. 10, authorising the assignment of a district to a chapel of ease or parochial chapel, the Ecclesiastical Comrs. were authorised to divide the chapelry into districts & to assign a particular district to the ancient chapel.

(2) The incumbent of a "district parish" in which banns & marriages have been allowed by the Ecclesiastical Comrs. or the incumbent of a "new parish," has an exclusive right to publish the banns & celebrate the marriage of two persons resident in such "district, parish," or "new parish," & retain the fees for the same. Every communicant 2d. every cow 2d. every plough 2d. every foal 1s. every hive of bees 1d. every house 3½d."—Held: (1) the terriers were admissible in proof of a customary right to the oblations therein mentioned; (2) they were evidence of a custom such as excluded the common law claim, supposing it to exist, because they embraced items to which the common law right did not extend; (3) each item was an independent charge, & therefore those following the first were payable by every parishioner, whether a communicant or not; (4) the custom was not confined to houses which were ancient & in existence when the terriers were made, but attached as soon as the house was built & occupied; (5) the term "communicant" might mean every person whom the Church in ancient times regarded as under an obligation to communicate, but, in the absence of evidence to show that it was used in that sense, it was confined to those who actually communicated.

SECT. 11.—PEW RENTS.

3769. Applicable to incumbent's stipend.—Rights of incumbent.]—Under the Church Building Acts, 1818 (c. 45), & 1819 (c. 131), & the order of the Church Building Comrs., assigning the pew rents to the district, & expressly directing them to be received by the churchwardens, & that out of such rents the latter were to pay the stipend of the minister of the district church, the pew rents (which were payable half-yearly in advance) were, in the first instance, expressly made applicable to the payment of such stipend, subject only to the payment, after certain deduction, of the salary of the clerk. The stipend was to commence at Christmas, & to be paid quarterly on each of the four usual quarterly days of payment; & it was provided that the parish should not, in any case, be answerable to the minister for any greater sum in each year than the amount of the rent of the pews which should have been actually let during the year:—Held: (1) whenever the churchwardens should have received pew rents applicable to the payment of the minister's stipend, & the same had become due, a special action upon the above Acts, or an action for money had & received, was maintainable by the minister against the churchwardens to recover the amount. But he was entitled only to recover such pew rents as had been received in respect of quarters expired, & for which the stipend had become due, & not those rents which had been paid in advance, & for periods yet to come, & in respect of which no stipend had yet become payable; (2) sect. 73 of the 1818 Act, & sect. 20 of the 1819 Act, imposed upon the churchwardens the legal duty of paying over to the minister the pew rents applicable to the stipend as soon as they were received; but the minister was not entitled to recover from the present churchwardens the balance of pew rents received by, & in the hands of, the late churchwardens, & not paid over by them to the present churchwardens, but retained to meet certain sums alleged to be payable for expenses incurred in respect of the church. The ct. expressly guarded themselves at the same time from being supposed to sanction the retention or application of the pew rents by the late churchwardens to any of those expenses which appeared to be otherwise provided for by the above Acts.—LLOYD v. BURRUP (1808), L. R. 4 Exch. 63; 38 L. J. Ex. 25; 19 L. T. 690.

3770. Incumbent's interest in—Whether occupation of land.]—Resp. was placed on the register of voters for a county in respect of "Freehold Land & Pew Rents, St. Mary's Church," which was situate in a borough. He was minister of that church, & as such occupied the parsonage house & was entitled in respect of the house, to a vote for the borough. His stipend as minister was "the residue of pew rents," after certain payments made thereout by the churchwardens:—Held: upon a case which reserved only the question whether the pew rents could notwithstanding the Representation of the People Act, 1832 (c. 45), s. 24, be severed from the occupation of the house (which was part of the benefice) so as to give a separate qualification for the county, there was nothing in the above sect. to prevent them being so severed, & consequently, resp. was entitled to have his name retained upon the county register.—BESWICK v. (2) Where a vicar brings his bill for the arrears of certain annual payments, issuing out of an inappropriate rectory, he shall recover against the impropiator, though a considerable time has elapsed between the commencement of the arrears, & the impropiator's possession. But if, pending such a suit, a man purchases the rectory, with notice of the vicar's claim, he shall only be liable for the arrears which accrue after he comes into possession.—COOKE v. The question is whether this appears to be intended to be reserved for the benefit of the vicar or curate, though not reserved to him, the Act intending to take in not only cases of express reservation, but also of intent; & here that constant regular payment for so long a time is the strongest evidence possible that it was so intended (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—*BENSON v. 3778. Construction of trust—Payment subject to consent of trustees—Whether consent discretionary.—The tithes of an impropriate rectory were conveyed by the impropriator, on trust to pay the income to such orthodox minister as should from time to time be placed & settled in the perpetual curacy of the church, with the approbation & consent of the major part of the trustees; & if any such should be appointed without such approbation & consent, other trusts were declared of the income during his incumbency:—Held: the consent was wholly discretionary, & might be withheld for an insufficient reason, or none; & therefore, in a case where the trustees declined giving their consent unless the patron of the cure & the proposed curate would concur in arrangements for building a parsonage, the ct. declined to interfere.—A. G. v. MOSELY (1848), 2 De G. & Sm. 308; Cripps' Church (Cas. 127; 17 L. J. Ch. 446; 12 L. T. O. S. 4; 12 Jur. 889; 64 E. R. 178).

3779. — Gift for benefit of parish church—Whether applicable to repair of chancel.—A trust had been created in 1705 for the benefit of the parish church of A. The parish church of A., by an Ord. in Council, in 1852, had been divided into two ecclesiastical districts. It was alleged that the chancel had been repaired by the rector, & not out of the trust-funds. Semble: the trust-funds ought not to contribute to the repair of the chancel.—Re NORTH WINGFIELD CHARITY (1860), 3 L. T. 237.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

NOTE.—By Compulsory Church Rates Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), compulsory church rates were abolished except in the case of (1) church rates applicable to secular purposes; (2) rates for the repayment of money due on July 31, 1868, on the security of church rates; (3) church rates levied for certain purposes under private or local Acts of Parliament.

3795. Incidence of rate—As between districts—Customary apportionment—Whether valid.—In prohibition, plff. stated that M. was an ancient parish, having an old parish church & consisted of one vill called A. & three other vills, & set forth a custom to make a general rate to reimburse the churchwardens their expenses; & for the inhabitants of A. by a particular levy to raise two-thirds of such rates, & the inhabitants of the three other vills, by a particular levy, the other one-third. That a rate was made by the parishioners for reimbursing the sum of £19 laid out by defts. (the churchwardens) in repairing the church; & the three vills were rated at the above one-third:—Held: the custom was well alleged & a reasonable one, for the word "inhabitant" was to be construed according to the subject matter, & included all such persons, & those only, as by law were liable to the payment of church rates. The custom might be or might have been a reasonable one, & though the reason assigned by plff., viz. that A. had more inhabitants, was not sufficient, it should not therefore be overturned.—BURTON v. WILEDAY (1737), Andr. 32; 95 E. R. 284.

3797. — Comparisons of church rate with poor rate.—RANSON & KNOTT v. CAMPKIN, No. 443, ante.

3798. Basis of assessment Whether poor rate.—(1) Though a church rate is often made according to the assessment for the poor rate it acquires no validity from that circumstance, & the poor rate may be void & yet the church rate good. A church rate does not require to be upon the full rateable value, it merely requires to be just & equal. Yet the acquiescence of a parish in the poor rate is presumptive evidence that a church rate made upon the same basis is just & equal. The substantial inequality which will render a church rate invalid may be either the omission of property that ought to be rated or the under-rating some & the over-rating others.

(2) A church rate differs from the poor rate in three things: it need not be upon the net annual value if just & equal; it cannot be compounded for; & the landlords of small tenements cannot be rated for part thereof in lieu of the occupiers.

(3) The churchwardens in making a church rate need not follow the poor rate, & should not do so unless satisfied it is just & equal; & to make it a mere copy of the poor rate, may make the rates bad. ATTENBOROUGH v. KEMP (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 351; 5 L. T. 67; 25 J. P. 627; 7 Jur. N. S. 665; 9 W. R. 771; 15 E. R. 338, P. C.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. Richards v. Birley (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 96.

3799. — In making a church rate, the parishioners are not bound to adopt the valuation made by an assessment committee, under the Union Assessment Committee Act, 1862 (c. 103). Where a church rate was made upon the basis of an old valuation originally made for the purposes of poor rate & in accordance with Parochial Assessments Act, 1836 (c. 96), & which had been since from time to time corrected, & acted upon, & acquiesced in for a great number of years, the ct. refused to disturb the rate, merely on the ground that a new valuation made under the 1862 Act differed from the old one.—BARNES v. GRANT (1866), 1 L. R. 1 A. & E. 37; 35 L. J. Eccl. 9; 13 L. T. 686; 30 J. P. 277; 12 Jur. N. S. 168.

Sect. 14.—Church rates: Sub-sects. 1 & 2, A.]

3801. — Objections to.]—A chapel rate was laid on the landholders of the chapelry only, exclusively of the holders & occupiers of mills & houses:—Held: an occupier of land within the chapelry, who did not object to the rate before the justices when summoned for non-payment, could not question its validity in an action of replevin, after distress on his goods under the justices' warrant. A chapel rate, duly made, but objected to from extrinsic circumstances, can only be questioned in the ecclesiastical ct. An order of justices for payment of chapel rate need not state that the proceedings were taken "on oath."

I will only add one observation, with regard to the words "duly made." A rate is duly made if made in such a manner that the magistrates are bound to act (ROFFE, B.).—RAMSBOTTOM v. DUCKWORTH (1847), 1 Exch. 506; 19 L. J. M. C. 74; 10 L. T. O. S. 166.

3807. — — — — —.] A prohibition will go to the ecclesiastical ct. in a suit to enforce the payment of a sum under £10, due upon a church rate, where neither the validity thereof nor the liability of the party to pay it is disputed.

A declaration in prohibition sufficiently discloses that they are not disputed, which alleges that deft. appeared in the ecclesiastical ct. under protest against the jurisdiction, & afterwards protested against it, on the ground that the amount to be recovered was under £10, & that the validity had not been disputed by plff., as after such a proceeding in the ecclesiastical ct. he would be unable to contest the jurisdiction of the justices, by denying the validity of the rate or his liability to pay it.—RICHARDS v. DYKE (1842), 3 Q. B. 256; 2 Gal. & Dav. 493; 11 L. J. Q. B. 275; 6 Jur. 1035; 114 E. R. 505.

3808. — Jurisdiction of magistrates—Bonâ fide objection to validity of rate.]—If upon an application to justices for a warrant to levy the amount of a church rate, deft. makes it appear that he bonâ fide disputes the validity of the rate, though he does not in express terms object to their jurisdiction, the justices ought to forbear to give judgment.—*R. v. 3809. — — — — — By Quaker.]—It is a general rule that the summary jurisdiction of justices of the peace gives way when a matter of title comes bonâ fide into question before them. Hence when under 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 34, s. 4, a Quaker is summoned before justices for non-payment of church rates if he bonâ fide disputes the title to enforce the rates, their jurisdiction ceases & the ecclesiastical ct. is the proper tribunal to decide the matter. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 74, seems to intend to confine the summary jurisdiction of justices over church rates to cases where title is not in question.—BACKHOUSE v. BISHOPSWEAR-MOUTH (CHURCHWARDENS) (1860), 9 C. B. N. S. 315; 30 L. J. M. C. 118; 3 L. T. 626; 25 J. P. 70; 7 Jur. N. S. 338; 9 W. R. 162; 142 E. R. 123.

The articles were rejected in the Consistory Ct., but on appeal to the Arches Ct., they were admitted. F. then appealed to the Privy Council & his appeal was referred to the Judicial Committee. While the appeal was depending but before any proceedings had been taken in that ct., F. moved for a prohibition on the ground that the rate was bad, & appeared to be so from facts stated on the pleadings:—Held: a prohibition could not be granted on this ground, the cause being before a ct. the jurisdiction of which was not denied, no erroneous proceedings having been taken there, & this ct. refusing to presume that the Judicial Committee would act incorrectly.—*CHESTERTON v. SUB-SECT. 2.—FOR REPAYMENT OF CHARGES SECURED ON RATES.

A. In General.

3821. Security by way of annuity charged on rates—Whether valid—Construction of statutes.—An Act of Parliament was passed in 1816 for the purpose of raising £5,000 for the repair of one of the parish churches in London. The Act appointed certain persons to be trustees, & gave them the power of levying rates & authorised them to raise the money required by the granting of life annuities, by way of simple annuity, or for the lives of two persons or the survivor, with this restriction, that no annuity should be granted for any single life at a higher rate than £8 3s. per cent., when the life of the annuitant should be under 35 years. In 1817, in consideration of £2,500 paid by A. the trustees granted an annuity of £225 to A. & B. & the survivor. B. was then 33 years of age. Another Act was passed in 1819, which recited that the trustees had raised £5,000 & granted annuities to the extent of £297, which included the above-mentioned sum of £2,500 & the annuity of £225, & enacted that the annuities already granted should be paid in the first place out of the rates. The annuity was paid up to 1848, when the trustees resisted further payment, on the ground that the grant had been void under the Act of 1816:—Held: if the grant had been void under the Act of 1816, the defect was cured by the Act of 1819. Semble: the restriction contained in the Act of 1816 was directory & not prohibitory.—DELARUE v. CHURCH (1851), 20 L. J. Ch. 183; 17 L. T. O. S. 102; 15 Jur. 455.

3822. Validity of rate—Whole sum borrowed exceeding borrowing powers.—Trustees, under a local Act of Parliament, were authorised to borrow by annuity, or at common interest, a sum not exceeding £30,000, for the purpose of building a chapel, & for other purposes in the Act mentioned, & the moneys so borrowed & the interest thereof were to be made payable out of the burial fees, & out of the rates & assessments to be made in pursuance of the Act. The trustees in fact borrowed a sum of £32,636, & made a rate to pay the interest of that sum:—Held: on demurrer, in an action of replevin by an inhabitant, upon whom an aliquot proportion of the rate was levied, the trustees had exceeded their power, & the rate was bad in toto, although the defect did not appear on the face of it.—RICHTER v. HUGHES (1824), 2 B. & C. 499; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 788; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 61, 119; 107 E. R. 469.

Annotation.—Mentd. A.-G. v. De Winton, [1906] 2 Ch. 106.

3823. — Signature by trustees.—Under a local Act of Parliament, seven or more trustees were empowered to raise a sum of £7,000 & to make church rates for paying the principal & interest. No act of the trustees was to be deemed valid, unless done at some meeting of the trustees, to be held under the Act. A mandamus to levy & collect rates made by the trustees, was granted against the churchwardens. Issues of fact were raised upon their return, & it appeared, that none of the rates were signed at any meeting by all the seven trustees, but all of them signed subsequently by some trustees, & also, that all the seven trustees signing the rates, were in no case parties present at the meeting when the rates were made:—Held: the rates were bad.—R. v. RODMALL (1838), 2 J. P. 182.

3824. Rate levied insufficient—Power to make further rate—By leave of court.—By 14 Geo. 3, c. 12, & 53 Geo. 3, c. 80, trustees were empowered to borrow two sums of £6,000, & £4,000, to be applied respectively in rebuilding the parish church of C. & in erecting a chapel of ease in the same parish. They were also empowered by the latter Act to raise £2,000 for the repairs of the chapel. Power was given to levy rates in the said parish for the payment of the principal & interest. The trustees had continued to levy rates since the passing of the above Acts. £2,000 had been applied in repairing the chapel of ease, but such sum had not been raised under the special powers for the purpose in the Act contained. An information was filed against the trustees charging that they had already levied sufficient to pay off the moneys borrowed, & interest thereon; that the application of the £2,000 part thereof in the repairs of the chapel of ease was a breach of trust, & that such payment ought not to be allowed & that the power to raise such sum was at end. The information prayed an account accordingly, & that the trustees might be restrained from levying additional rates. It was decreed that the power to raise the £2,000 was at end, & ought not to be exercised. It appearing by affidavit that a portion of the sums borrowed, with interest, was still due, it was further decreed that the rates already levied but not collected be got in, & that if such rates should not be sufficient, either party to be at liberty to apply in chambers to levy such further rates as occasion might require.—A.-G. v. 3838. Assessment—“Full annual rent or value.”—By a local Act, the churchwardens of a parish were required to make a rate “on the full annual rent or value” of all houses rateable to the relief of the poor:—Held: “full annual rent or value” meant full net annual value, & the rate could not be made on the gross estimated rental.—ROSE v. WATSON, [1894] 2 Q. B. 90; 63 L. J. M. C. 108; 70 L. T. 906; 58 J. P. 589; 42 W. R. 523; 10 T. L. R. 404; 38 Sol. Jo. 386; 10 R. 255, D. C.

B. Whether Enforceable under Compulsory Church Rates Abolition Act, 1868, s. 5.

3839. Church rate—Whether confined to rate for ecclesiastical purposes.—By a local Act, it was provided that the churchwardens of the parish should pay to the rector for the time being a fixed annual sum in lieu of all tithes, or payments in lieu of tithes, to which the rector was entitled within the parish. Sect. 7 abolished such tithes & payments in lieu of tithes; & sect. 14 required the churchwardens & inhabitants in each year to make & sign a sufficient assessment, to be called “the church rate,” upon all occupiers of lands & tenements within the parish for raising the said annual sum & such further sum as should be necessary for repairing & keeping in repair the parish church & churchyard, & for the payment of all necessary & proper salaries & disbursements relative to the parish church & churchyard, & the costs of collecting the rate.

By Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), s. 1, no proceedings shall be taken to enforce payment of any church rate made in any parish or place. By sect. 2, where under a general or local Act a rate may be made & levied partly for ecclesiastical & partly for other purposes, such rate shall be made, levied, & applied for such last mentioned purposes only. By sect. 5, “This Act shall not affect any enactment in any private or local Act of Parliament under the authority of which church rates may be made or levied in lieu of, or in consideration of the extinguishment or of the appropriation to any other purpose of, any tithes customary payments, or other property or charge upon property, which tithes, payments, property or charge, previously to the passing of such Act, had been appropriated by law to ecclesiastical purposes as defined by this Act, or in consideration of the abolition of tithes in any place, or upon any contract made, or for good or valuable consideration given, & every such enactment shall continue in force in the same manner as if this Act had not passed.” By sect. 10, “In this Act ‘ecclesiastical purposes’ shall mean the building, rebuilding, enlargement, & repair of any church or chapel, & any purpose to which by common or ecclesiastical law a church rate is applicable, or any of such purposes, & ‘church rate’ shall mean any rate for ecclesiastical purposes as hereinbefore defined”:—Held: (1) the “church rate” specified in sect. 5 of the Act of 1868 was not limited to a church rate for ecclesiastical purposes as defined in sect. 10, but meant the church rate as made or levied under the local Act; (2) the church rate under the local Act, which was a church rate not only for ecclesiastical purposes but also for other purposes, namely, the rector’s stipend, was authorised to be made & levied “in consideration of the abolition of tithes”; (3) the whole rate was preserved from abolition by sect. 5, & not merely that part of it which was applicable to payment of the rector’s stipend.—LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. ST. BOTOLPH, BISHOPSGATE (CHURCHWARDENS), [1914] 2 K. B. 680; 83 L. J. K. B. 953; 110 L. T. 737; 78 J. P. 161; 12 L. G. R. 168, C. A.

3840. In lieu or in consideration of the extinguishment or abolition of tithes—Exemption from tithes—Authority to raise rate—Divided parish.—By a local Act, the hamlet of P. was taken from the parish of S. & formed into a separate parish, with a separate church & incumbent, & by sect. 12 the inhabitants of the parish of P. were discharged & exempt from the payment of small tithes, & the rector ceased to have the cure of souls over the new parish. By sect. 61 of the local Act it was provided that for the purposes of the Act it should be lawful for the vestry to make a rate upon the occupiers of all lands, houses . . . tenements, & hereditaments within the parish. There was also a clause in the Act by which the rate was to be applicable to other purposes besides the payment of the incumbent, namely, purposes connected with the repair of the church & the celebration of divine service.

By sect. 2 of Compulsory Church Rates Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), “Where in pursuance of any general or local Act any rate may be made & levied which is applicable partly to ecclesiastical & partly to other purposes, such rate shall be levied & applied to such last mentioned purposes, & so far as is applicable shall be deemed a separate & not a church rate & shall not be affected by the Act,” & by sect. 5, “This Act shall not affect any enactment in any private or local Act of Parliament under the authority of which church rates may be made or levied in lieu of, or in consideration of the extinguishment, or the appropriation to any other purposes of any tithes . . . which previously to the passing of the Act had been appropriated to ecclesiastical purposes . . . or in consideration of the abolition of tithes in any place or upon any contract made or for good or valuable consideration given.”

The vestry of P. made a rate which they applied to eighteen different purposes, of which four were non-ecclesiastical, & fourteen were ecclesiastical purposes within the meaning of Compulsory Church Rates Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), s. 10:—Held: (1) the rate was not made in lieu or in consideration of the extinguishment or abolition of tithes within the meaning of sect. 5 of the Compulsory Church Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), & therefore it came within sect. 2; (2) the rate might be treated as a valid rate, only as a separate rate & not a church rate, & it was consequently good for non-ecclesiastical purposes, but bad for ecclesiastical purposes, & could not be enforced in respect of the latter.—WATSON v. ALL SAINTS, POPLAR VESTRY (1882), 46 L. T. 201; 46 J. P. 454, D. C.

3841. ——— In lieu of small tithes.—By a local Act in M. certain small tithes had been abolished, & in lieu thereof the churchwardens were directed to make a composition rate on property in the parish to pay the rector’s stipend, & any deficiency in the church rates:—Held: this was a rate levied in lieu of the extinguishment of small tithes & other payments, & as such was saved by Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), s. 5, from abolition, though partly appropriated to

3842. Contract for good consideration—Endowment raised by mutual agreement of parishioners.]

—By a private Act, reciting that the Earl of B. had erected the church & rectory house of St. P., & charged his property with the perpetual payment of £100 a year to the rector, it was enacted that St. P. be a parish, & that the yearly sum of £250 be charged upon the houses of the inhabitants of the parish, except B. House, for the support & benefit of the rector, curate, clerk, & sextons of the parish, & that the said sum be collected by a rate made by the churchwardens. By a local Act, reciting that it was expedient that the said sum of £250 should be increased, it was enacted that the yearly sum of £520, in lieu of £250, be charged upon all the houses in the parish, not excepting B. House, & the rentcharge upon the Duke of B.'s property be increased to £180 a year. On action brought to recover the amount of a rate made under the above statutes against an inhabitant of the parish:—Held: although, being made partly for ecclesiastical purposes, it was a church rate within Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), s. 1, yet it was enforceable by virtue of sect. 5 of the same Act as being on a contract made for good consideration between the Duke of B. & the parishioners of St. P.—Bell v. Bassett (1882), 52 L. J. Q. B. 22; 47 L. T. 10.

3843. — How ascertained.]—The “contract made” or good consideration given mentioned in sect. 5 of Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868 (c. 109), must be found in or gathered from the local Act.—R. v. St. Marylebone Vestry, [1895] 1 Q. B. 771; 61 L. J. Q. B. 622; 72 L. T. 11; 11 T. L. R. 120; 14 R. 172, C. A.

3844. Effect of non-residence of rector.] A rate was made under a local Act for the purpose of making better provision for the maintenance of the rector of the parish of St. O., Southwark, & which relieved the inhabitants of the parish from the obligation of paying tithe. The appts. objected to pay on the ground that the rector did not reside in the parish, & was not capable by reason of his employment as diocesan missionary of duly discharging his parochial duties, & they appealed to quarter sessions against an order for the payment of the rate: Held: it was no objection to the rate that the rector was not living at the rectory, & it was not open to appts. to raise by way of appeal the contention that the rector was not performing his parochial duties.—HAY'S WHARF, LTD. (PROPRIETORS) v. ST. OLAVE'S, SOUTHWARK TRUSTEES (1909), 73 J. P. 375; 25 T. L. R. 648; 9 L. G. R. 1022, D. C.

C. Incidence.

3845. Whether house occupied by day only.]—The Treasurer of the London Missionary Society was rated to the relief of the poor, in respect of a house taken by the society, under a lease, for religious & charitable purposes. The treasurer attended at the house one day in the week to superintend the society's affairs, but no person ever slept there. The treasurer received no remuneration for his services, & neither did he nor any other person connected with the society derive any profit from the occupation of the premises:—Held: he was properly assessed to a church rate, under an Act extinguishing tithes in the parish, & authorising a yearly church rate to be made, in order to raise money for the payment of compensation to the parson in lieu of tithes, & for the repairs of the church, upon all inhabitants & occupiers, because beneficial occupation was not material.—R. v. Willson (1840), 12 Ad. & El. 94; 4 Per. & Dav. 130; 9 L. J. M. C. 100, 102; 4 Jur. 1128; 113 E. R. 746.

3846. “House”.—Parish of St. Paul, Covent Garden.—Whether Covent Garden Theatre included.]—By a local Act, 51 Geo 3, c. cl., after reciting a former Act, whereby a yearly sum of £250 was charged upon the houses of the inhabitants of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, except B. house, for the support & benefit of the rector, curate, clerk, & sextons for the time being of that parish, that charge of £250 was repealed, & in lieu thereof a yearly sum of £520 was charged upon all houses within the parish, to be assessed by the churchwardens, & paid by the occupiers of such houses respectively, & recoverable, in case of refusal to pay the sums assessed on the house or houses in their occupation, by distress:—Held: the word “houses” in this Act meant houses intended for human habitation, & Covent Garden Theatre was not ratable under the Act.—SURMAN v. DARLEY (1845), 14 M. & W. 181; 14 L. J. M. C. 145; 5 L. T. O. S. 178; 9 J. P. 702; 153 E. R. 440.

3847. — Whether offices, etc., included

—Resident caretaker.]—Held: houses consisting of the offices, ware-houses, store-rooms, & counting-houses of publishers, some rooms in which were occupied by caretakers & their families, such caretakers having internal access to the whole of the premises, were chargeable under 51 Geo. 3, c. cl.—*LEWIN v. 3848. — Whether houses converted into offices, etc., included—No resident caretaker.]

Houses in the parish of St. Paul, Covent Garden, were used as warehouses, counting-houses & offices. They had formerly been used for residence, but no longer contained bedrooms, kitchens, or fireplaces, & no person slept there. They could readily be fitted for use as dwelling-houses:—Held: they were liable to the rector's rate as “houses” within 51 Geo. 3, c. cl.—LEWIN v. END, [1906] A. C. 299; 75 L. J. K. B. 473; 94 L. 3859. — Evidence of—Contribution to repairs of parish church.]—There is nothing illegal in the supposition that, in ancient times, a chapel & chapelry existed, to the curate or chaplain of which the rector of the parish, with the consent of all proper parties, may have assigned a portion of the tithes by way of endowment, reserving to the rector the right of patronage of the curacy.

Where parishioners, dwelling within a chapelry, contribute to the repairs of the parish church, it is strong, but not conclusive, evidence that the chapel is a chapel of ease to the inhabitants of the parish, & not a separate & distinct chapelry.

It does not of necessity follow that there cannot be a parochial chapel because there has not been a union of parishes in ancient times, nor any vicarage or mother church with which the chapel can be supposed to have been anciently united. The circumstance that there is no vicarage may be accounted for by the fact of the rectory having been conveyed to a monastery prior to the statutes 15 Rich. 2, & 4 Hen. 4.—*DENT v. It had a public cemetery belonging to it, a Communion Table, pews in right of houses, & there were Christenings there, circumstances which, in addition to the rector's objection to repairing the chapel, on account of a diminution of his Easter dues, strongly show it was a parochial chapel. In the absence of other evidence this must be taken to be a parochial chapel (PLUMER, V.-C.).—Ex p. GREENHOUSE (1815), 1 Madd. 92; 50 E. R. 36; affd. (1821), 1 Bli. N. S. at p. 41, L. declaration that he & his successors was & were entitled to the possession & control of the chapel & to perform Divine Service & celebrate the Sacraments in the chapel according to the rights of the Church of England:—Held: that the chapel was not a consecrated public building, & had never been more than a domestic oratory.—*NEVILL v. The inmates of the college attended, & sometimes their friends, but strangers were not allowed to be present at the services:—Held: (1) such chapel was not a private house; (2) officiating there was a public officiating; & (3) the warden had committed an ecclesiastical offence, for which he was liable to ecclesiastical censure.—*FREELAND v. 3867. — Rectory Improprate to almshouse Chapel used as parish church—Whether almshouse & parish united.—(1) By a deed of 1446 a rectory was granted as part of an endowment for an almshouse within the precinct of a hospital, already endowed & having a chapel attached to it, reserving to the grantor a right, which was never exercised, of instituting a perpetual vicar of the rectory. By a private Act of 18 Elizabeth it was enacted, that the master of the hospital should not alien the hospital nor the tithes of the rectory, which was described as adjoining the hospital, but that the church, house & hereditaments belonging to the hospital should be held by the master & brethren thereof for charitable uses. The parish church of the rectory had been pulled down at a time which could not be ascertained, & the parishioners had used the chapel of the hospital, in which the baptisms, marriages & burials of the parishioners had been for a long series of years performed. In a suit to carry into effect the trusts of the hospital a receiver had been appointed. Upon a motion of the churchwarden of the parish, that he might, notwithstanding the appointment of a receiver, be at liberty to perform the duties of churchwarden in the chapel as the church of the parish, or might be examined pro interesse suo:—Held: a union of the parish with the hospital could not be presumed, & the churchwarden had no right to interfere with the chapel.

3872. Whether recognised in ecclesiastical law.—MOYSEY v. HILLCOAT, No. 438, ante.

3873. Rights in—Chapel built by lessee on land of lessor—Lessor not object[ing].—A person's building a chapel on lands of which he had a lease, & the owner standing by & seeing it built, without obstructing it, does not give the former a right to the chapel, or to nominate.—A.-G. v. FOLEY (LORD) (1753), 1 Dick. 363; 21 E. R. 310.

3874. — Licensed chapel—Proprietor—Right to restrain admission of public.—BOSANQUET v. HEATH, No. 3875, post.

3875. — Churchwardens of parish.—The owner of a private chapel, which is licensed by the bishop for the celebration of divine service according to the rites of the Church of England, may admit only those persons whom he pleases, & when admitted may order them to depart or expel them at discretion in a legal way. The churchwarden of the parish, in which the chapel is situated, has no more right to enter than any other person. BOSANQUET v. HEATH, HEATH v. BOSANQUET (1860), 3 L. T. 290; 25 J. P. 20; 9 W. R. 35. Annotation:—Foll. Hancock v. Stephens (1915), 31 T. L. R. 431.

3876. Whether "private house" within Canon LXXI Strangers admitted to services.—(1) Articles against an ordained minister of the Church of England for officiating in an unconsecrated chapel after the revocation of his licence by the bishop sustained.

(2) An allegation responsive to the articles pleading he had prior to the service of the citation seceded from the Established Church, & had taken certain oaths, etc. prescribed by the Toleration Acts, rejected, on the ground that those Acts do not apply to a minister of the Established Church, & that one in Holy Orders cannot divest himself of such Orders.

(3) An unconsecrated proprietary chapel, into which strangers are admitted, is not a "private house" or "chapel," within the meaning of Canon LXXI; consequently to read the Service of the Church in such a building is publicly to read, etc.

(4) To found a sentence under the general Ecclesiastical law, it is not necessary that all the offences charged be proved.—BARNES v. SHORKE (1846), 1 Rob. Eccl. 382; Brod. & F. 44; 4 Notes of Cases, 593; 10 Jur. 887; affd. sub nom. SHORKE v. BARNES (1818), Brod. & F. 49, P. C.

3877. Disused school—Disposal of.]—A building held on trust to carry on a Church of England school was closed in 1882, there being no need for such a school in the parish:—Held: on action brought for administration of the trusts, that an inquiry whether the building could be used for the purpose of a Church of England school should be directed & that, if upon inquiry it was found that it was not practicable to so use the building, then a scheme should be settled to carry out the trusts cy-près. Such a scheme might properly provide for the letting of the building for a limited period to the local education authority for use for educational purposes.—A.-G. v. EDALJI (1907), 97 L. PART VII. SECT. 16, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

1. What property vests—Estate of suspended canonry.]—The parish of K. was appropriated to the deanery & chapter of the cathedral, which consisted of a dean, precentor, chancellor, treasurer, & four canons. The cathedral church was the parish church of K., & divine service had been from time immemorial regularly performed in the cathedral, & the observance & offices of religion had been performed by the members of the corp., or by a stipendiary curate, or one of the canons, without the licence of the bishop, & paid out of the corporate funds. There never had been a vicar of the parish. The dean & chapter were seized of lands in & of the tithes of the parish, which formed the funds whereby the fabric of the cathedral church was upheld, & all matters requisite for the performance of divine service had been supplied, & the stipendiary curate & servants of the corp. had been paid. The earlier records of the corp. had been lost, but

A. Vesting of Property.

3882. What property vests—Whether rectory annexed to deanery—Lichfield.]—By a private Act it was enacted that the rectory & church of Tatenhill should be united & annexed to the Deanery of Lichfield for ever, & the Dean of Lichfield then in being, upon application made to the Bishop of Lichfield, should receive institution to the same without presentation, & continue possessed thereof in right of his deanery, so long as he should remain Dean of Lichfield, & no longer; it being the intent of that Act that the Dean of Lichfield & his successors for ever should always be rectors & incumbents of that church, on making such allowance to a curate or curates as the bishop should appoint, etc. By Eccles. Comrs. Act, 1840 (c. 113), s. 50, it was enacted that, "subject to the provisions herein contained, all the estate & interest which the holder of any deanery or canonry not suspended by or under the provisions of this Act, & his successors have & would have in any lands, tithes, & other hereditaments or endowments whatsoever annexed or belonging to or usually held or enjoyed with such deanery or canonry, except any right of patronage, or whereof the rents & profits have been usually taken & enjoyed by the holder of such deanery or canonry as such holder separately & in addition to his share of the corporate revenues of such chapter, shall, without any conveyance or assurance in the law other than the provisions of this Act, accrue to & be vested absolutely in the Ecclesiastical Comrs. for England, & their successors, for the purposes of this Act":—Held: the general provisions in the above sect. did not repeal the particular provision in the private Act, for annexing the rectory of Tatenhill to the Deanery of Lichfield, so as to re-vest the patronage of the rectory in the Crown, & vest the emoluments thereof in the Ecclesiastical Comrs. for the purposes of the Act.—*R. v. 3897. Allotment of pews—Insufficient allotment—Time for interference by court.]—Where the Church Building Comrs. have built a chapel under an Act of Parliament which directs them to allot certain convenient pews to certain parties, if the allotments made by them are insufficient, this etc. can only interfere at the time, & not after a lapse of years.—R. v. BUILDING CHURCHES COMRS. (1844), 3 L. T. O. S. 101; 8 J. P. Jo. 310.

3898. Whether ordinary can disturb.]—The seats in a new parish church were in 1885 allotted by the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as follows: two pews for the vicar of the parish & his family, 315 sittings to be let to pew renters, 222 sittings as free seats, & 72 sittings as seats for children, in the expectation that the population of the parish would in the main be composed of working men. This expectation was not realised, & in 1898 the vicar & churchwardens of the parish applied to the ordinary to authorise by faculty the substitution of pews for adults in the place of the 72 sittings allotted as children's seats, & the letting of the substituted pews at pew-rents to be expended in church improvements & expenses:—Held: the ordinary had no jurisdiction to grant a faculty appropriating to other purposes seats allotted by the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as free seats or authorising the letting of any seats to pew renters, but a faculty might be decreed in his discretion for the substitution of pews for adults in which the churchwardens might seat parishioners in the place of the 72 sittings for children, the allotment of such sittings having been made by the Ecclesiastical Comrs. without statutory authority.—ST. SAVIOUR, WESTGATE-ON-SEA (VICAR) v. ST. SAVIOUR, WESTGATE-ON-SEA (PARISHIONERS), [1898] P. 217.

3899. On compulsory sale of property—Application of proceeds.]—A piece of land having been in 1846, under the authority of Church Building Acts then in force, voluntarily granted in fee to the Church Building Comrs. for ecclesiastical purposes, a church was built thereon. The whole of the land was inclosed, & in 1849 the church was consecrated. So much of the land as was not actually occupied by the church was not consecrated. In 1891 the London County Council, under their statutory powers, purchased part of the unconsecrated inclosure, & the purchase-money was paid into ct. under Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (c. 18). The purchased land was afterwards conveyed by the vicar to the county council. Upon a summons by the vicar for payment out:—Held: (1) notwithstanding the consecration, the Ecclesiastical Comrs., as the successors of the Church Building Comrs. had power, under Church Building Act, 1840 (c. 134), s. 19, with the consent of the original donor of the land, to direct that the purchase-money should be applied to any of the purposes mentioned in that section; (2) the payment of part of the principal money remaining due upon a mtge. to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty of the glebe, profits, & emoluments of the vicarage, made by a former vicar to secure the repayment of a loan made to him by the governors for the purchase of a vicarage house, was an ecclesiastical purpose within the meaning of sect. 19.—*Ex p. 3907. — Whether infant can be—Forfeiture of legacy for being of particular religion.—Testatrix bequeathed a sum of money to the trustees of her will upon trust to pay the income after her nephew should have attained the age of 21 years to him during his life, provided that he should not be a Roman Catholic at her death or being a Roman Catholic at her death should cease to be a Roman Catholic before the expiration of a year after her death. The nephew was an infant at the date of the will, & a year & a half afterwards, when the testatrix died, was nine years of age. He had been baptised in the Roman Catholic Church, & brought up by his father as a Roman Catholic. The testatrix died on July 3, 1915: Held: the nephew had not forfeited the legacy by being baptised in the Roman Catholic Church, as the intention of the testatrix was that there was to be a choice on the part of the legatee, & he could not exercise that choice & determine what his religion should be until he reached years of discretion. Seemle: an infant is not capable of being a Roman Catholic or not a Roman Catholic in the eye of the ct.—Re MAY, EGGAR v. MAY, [1917] 2 Ch. 126; 86 L. J. Ch. 698; 117 L. T. 101; 33 T. L. R. 419; 61 Sol. Jo. 577.

3908. Formation of synod—Subsequent secession—Right to property of seceding body.—Certain persons in Sydney, New South Wales, built a church & formed themselves into a congregation under the pastoral care of L., a Presbyterian clergyman ordained in Scotland. They drew up rules whereby they followed the doctrines & mode of worship of the Established Church of Scotland. When several similar congregations arose, the various ministers formed themselves into a synod after the manner of the church in Scotland. L., having disagreed with the other ministers, renounced all connection with them, & afterwards the synod professed to cite him before them & deposed him, & then applied to a ct. of equity to order possession to be delivered up of the church, & to restrain L. & his congregation from using it. The synod sued on their own behalf & on behalf of the congregation, but the congregation declined to join in the suit:—Held: plffs. had no title to sue, & even if they had they were barred by acquiescence for thirteen years from following out their sentence.—LANG v. PURVES (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 389; 5 L. T. 809; 8 Jur. N. S. 523; 10 W. R. 408; 15 E. R. 511, P. C.

3909. Proper parochial church, chapel or other place of religious worship—Whether proper place of worship lying in another parish included.—Where a Turnpike Act exempted persons from toll in going to & returning from their proper parochial church, chapel, or other place of religious worship on Sundays:—Held: the word "parochial" extended over the whole clause; & a dissenter was not within the exemption in going to & returning from his proper place of religious worship, situate out of the parish in which he resided.—LEWIS v. HAMMOND (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 206; 106 E. R. 342.

3910. Usual place of worship—Whether chapel in minister's circuit included.—Where a nonconformist minister, in obedience to the rules of his connection, travelled to various parishes during a certain season, to preach on certain days in each, & passed through toll gates:—Held: he was entitled to exemption from toll under Turnpike Roads Act, 1832 (c. 126), s. 32, as going to his usual place of worship.—SMITH v. BARNETT (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 31; 40 L. J. M. C. 15; 23 L. T. 716; 31 J. P. Jo. 803.

3911. Universities Tests Act, 1871 (c. 26) — Application—College founded after Act.—By the Hertford College Act, 1874, Magdalen Hall in the University of Oxford was dissolved, Hertford College created, & the property of Magdalen Hall transferred to Hertford College. An endowment for a lay fellowship restricted to members of certain specified churches was afterwards accepted by Hertford College. T., who was not a member of any of the specified churches, tendered himself for examination as a candidate, & was informed that he might be examined if he desired it, but he must understand that he would not be elected even if he stood at the head of the list. T. did not present himself for examination, & M., a duly qualified candidate, was elected after examination to the fellowship. After the election T. applied to the Q. B. Div. for a mandamus:—Held: (1) there was no refusal to examine T.; (2) assuming that T. was refused examination, the office being full of a candidate properly qualified, a mandamus would not lie commanding the college to examine T. & to proceed to an election, & T.'s remedy, if any, was by way of appeal to the visitor.

(3) The operation of the Universities Tests Act, 1871 (c. 26), is confined to colleges subsisting before it was passed, & the Act does not prevent the creation in the universities of fresh colleges, the endowments of which are confined to the members of a particular religious community.

(4) The Universities Tests Act, 1871, is not incorporated with the Hertford College Act, 1874, & sect. 13 of the latter Act, which provides that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to repeal any of the provisions of the Universities Tests Act, 1871, does not render Hertford College a "subsisting college" within the meaning of the former statute.—R. v. HERTFORD COLLEGE (1878),

Before conviction, but after indictment, A. granted the next avoidance of the church of D. appendant to the manor of D. of which A. was seised in fee: the church being void, the grantee presented & the presentee was admitted & instituted, etc. Upon quare impedit by the chancellor, masters & scholars of the University of Oxford, in which the Act was pleaded as if the Act had given the presentation to the chancellor, master & scholars, & upon plea by the grantee of

d. Committee of headmen to assist vicar.—Authority of.]—The appointment of a committee of headmen or dhanakartas in a Roman Catholic Church by the Bishop to assist the vicar in the secular affairs of the church gives the members of such committee no right to close the church or oust the vicar, & still less to appoint a priest not under the discipline of laud obedience to the Church of Rome. e. Right to pccr.]—Bare possession, without title, of a pew in a Roman Catholic church, justifies the occupier

A. & demurrer to it:—Held: (1) The Act had a retrospective operation, & disabled the recusant to make the grant from the beginning of the session of Parliament, during the time of his recusancy; (2) fraud shall not be presumed, but must be expressly averred; (3) misnomer of a corpn., in an Act of Parliament, when the express intention appears, shall not avoid the Act; (4) if pltf. in the quare impedit had omitted to aver that A. at the time of the avoidance was a recusant convict, the declaration would have been bad; but pltf. need not aver that he yet continues & remains a recusant, for the presentation being vested in the university, subsequent conformity shall not divest it.—OXFORD UNIVERSITY (CHANCELLOR, MASTERS & SCHOLARS) CASE (1613), 10 Co. SECT. 3.—PROTESTANT DISSENTERS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

3930. Object & effect of Toleration Act.]—

(1) The object of the above Act was only to repeal certain penal laws therein mentioned, leaving the common law as it stood with respect to all common law offences against religion.

(2) Where a trust is created for religious worship & it cannot be discovered from the deed creating the trust what was the nature of the

PART VIII. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.

1. Baptist church.—Right of public to enter.]—The question whether a member of the public has a right to enter a Baptist church for worship depends on the rules of the church & its trust deed.—LONG v. RAWLINS (1874), 4 Q. S. C. R. 86.—AUS.

g. Dutch Reformed Church.—Jurisreligious worship intended by it, it must be implied from the usage of the congregation. But, if it appears to have been the founder's intention, although not expressed, that a particular doctrine should be preached, it is not in the power of the designed objects of the institution.

(3) The principle of public policy does not extend to the case of dissenters, so as to prevent the ct. from sanctioning the appointment of a minister to a congregation for a limited period, & not for life, provided such be the usage of the members or the provisions of the original trust.

(4) The question of religious belief is irrelevant, except so far as the ct. is called upon to execute the trust; but if defts. make out that no particular mode of belief was intended, still they must show that the meeting-house was for such purposes as the law can sanction.

(5) A clause enabling the trustees to make orders, etc. upon matters relating to the meeting-house is not to be construed as enabling them to convert the objects of the charity as by introducing a new form of worship & new doctrines, etc.

(6) A clause, in case of the desertion or removal of trustees, directing the remaining trustees within a limited time to elect new trustees in place of the trustees so deserting, etc., does not extend to disabla a trustee, so having deserted, etc. from acting again where no successor had, in the meantime, been appointed, nor to the case of a trustee who had left the object of his trust (a congregation of Protestant dissenters), on account of its having been converted, against his approbation, to purposes distinct from the intention of the founder.

(7) The Act 53 Geo. 3, c. 100, extends only to the repeal of the clause in Toleration Act, 1688 (c. 18), & the other statutes therein referred to, but leaves the common law where it was. It was not intended by the legislature, in passing 53 Geo. 3 c. 150, to make any alteration of the common law respecting the objects of that statute.

(8) The ct. is bound to administer trusts for the benefit of Protestant dissenting congregation.

(9) If land or money be properly given for maintaining "the worship of God" without more, the ct. will execute the trust in favour of the established religion. But, if it be clearly expressed that the purpose is that of maintaining dissenting doctrines, so long as they are not contrary to law, the ct. will execute the trust according to the express intention. Where, as in this case, the intention clearly appears aliunde, though not expressed in the instrument creating the trust, the ct. will also carry the manifest design of the founder into execution, so far as it is consistent with law.

It is incumbent on persons meaning to create a trust for charitable purposes, to make their intention clear by the deed creating the trust, & if it is not so, the ct. has no other means of carrying it into execution than by collecting the intention from inference & fair presumption. — *A.-G. v. 3931. Whom term includes. — (1) Distinction between a trust created for the use of Protestant dissenters generally, & for the use of an existing congregation of Protestant dissenters belonging to a particular minister; in the former case Presbyterians, Baptists & Independents are included; in the latter the terms of the trust open an inquiry into the particular character of the congregation which is the object of the trust.

(2) It is not necessary, in order that the ct. may be enabled to enforce a trust for a certain congregation of dissenters, that the trust should be declared by any deed or writing; the ct. may ascertain, from evidence of usage or otherwise, the particular trusts to which the property is dedicated.

(3) Where trusts of a meeting-house in England are created for the use of a congregation, to be in as strict connection as is practicable with the Established Church of Scotland, no person is entitled to be a minister of the meeting-house whose opinions or acts constitutes a disqualification for the ministry of that Church; & the fact that the meeting-house is locally situated beyond the jurisdiction of that Church is immaterial. In determining the question whether a particular minister was disqualified as a minister of the Established Church of Scotland the ct. considered whether the acts of such minister had brought him within the predicament which, according to the terms of a declaration of the General Assembly of that Church, constituted a dissolution of his connection with it, without determining whether the sentence of a particular presbytery, depriving him of his licence, was or was not conclusive as a disqualification. — A.-G. v. Murdoch (1852), 1 De G. M. & G. 86; 21 L. J. Ch. 691; 19 L. T. O. S. 173; 42 E. R. 481, L. J.

Upon being dispossessed by the trustees after the year, he applied for a mandamus, to be restored, alleging that he was elected by the congregation for life. The ct. refused to grant it, on the ground that, supposing there was a competent body to elect, there was not sufficient notice given of the election; &, therefore, they left the party to try his right in an action. To found such an application there must be a probable colour of an election laid before the court. — R. v. DAGGER LANE CHAPEL TRUSTEES (1801), 2 Smith, K. B. 20.

3952. ——— Trustees & class leaders of Wesleyan Methodist Chapel—Under provision in trust deed—Though contrary to rules of Methodist conference.—Several persons subscribed for, & purchased, a house & land, at a town which was one of the places within a particular circuit of the Wesleyan Methodist connection. A chapel was erected, & trusts were declared of the property, vesting the appointment, of preachers in the founder of Methodism, John Wesley, for his life, & afterwards in two other persons in succession for their lives; John Wesley appointed preachers during his life, & before his death, on the event of a further purchase of land, at the same place, a deed was executed appointing new trustees, & vesting in the trustees & class-leaders the power of appointing preachers. By the rules of the Methodist body, that power was in the Conference. Upon an information filed by some of the members of the Wesleyans :—Held: the trustees & class-leaders had the power of appointing the preachers in question; & parol evidence was inadmissible to show that, according to the paramount intention of the founders, the right of appointment was vested in the Wesleyan Conference, & not in the trustees of the deed for the time being.—*A.-G. v. The minister (claimant) was appointed by means of a call or invitation in writing, signed by three deacons of the congregation, which he obeyed. This, & his own statement that he considered his appointment to be for life, & the evidence of one of the deacons, for 35 years a member of the congregation, to the effect, that the appointment was made in the usual mode, & in his opinion was for life, was all that was brought forward to show what was the duration of his holding. The revising barrister did not infer from the above that there was an office or holding for life, & disallowed the claim :—

A meeting was called, the notice expressing that it was called for the purpose of bringing charges against, & considering the dismissal of, the minister. The minister did not attend the meeting & it did not appear that evidence was produced in support of any charges, but the meeting passed a resolution that, in consequence of the minister having done certain specified things, he was not a fit & proper person for the office, & that his office should cease. A second meeting was called, the notice expressing that it was to be for the purpose of confirming & ratifying the resolution passed at the former meeting:—Held: (1) to summon a meeting for the purpose of bringing charges generally, was improper; if no reason had been given for the dismissal, it might have held good; but, under the circumstances, it was clear that the meeting had not had the opportunity of exercising a sound discretion in the matter, & the dismissal was invalid; (2) as the notice for the second meeting did not specify the resolution which was to be confirmed, that meeting was unable effectually to confirm the resolution passed at the first meeting.

Trust vested in member of denomination—Membership relinquished—Necessity for conveyance to new trustee.]—In a deed conveying land to trustees for a dwelling house for the use of the Methodist minister for the time being, there was provision made for a new appointment in the case of a trustee ceasing to belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church:—Held: upon the happening of that event in the case of the last surviving trustee, the estate did not ipso facto become divested, but the intention of the grantor plainly being that it should go over to new trustees, this could only be effected by the surviving grantee conveying to them.—*HAMBLY v. b. Trust temporarily withheld from original purpose.]—Part of a congregation connected with the United Original Secession Church separated from that church with their minister & formed a new congregation. In 1871 the congregation bought a place of worship, & a minister's house, taking the title dissenting chapel: the regulation of such an establishment, with no fixed revenue, but supported only by voluntary contribution, is the proper subject of a bill, not an information.

(2) The appointment of a minister is in the congregation generally, not in the heir of the surviving trustee.

(3) The number of trustees is to be kept up, but the mode of appointing them & the minister, whether by the majority simply or in any more limited way, being uncertain, an inquiry was directed, who according to the nature of the establishment are entitled to propose trustees, & elect & approve a minister.

In consequence of the minister falling into bad health the church was closed in 1878 & the trustees were authorised to sell the church. The church was not sold, but the premises were let & the rents applied in reduction of debt. In 1886 a petition was presented by the Synod of the United Original Seceders, with the concurrence & consent of four persons describing themselves as members of the congregation "at the time of its dissolution," against the two surviving trustees, praying the ct. to ordain the trustees to pay over the trust funds & to convey the trust property to the petitioners for behoof of certain funds of the Synod, or to pay & convey the same for such purposes as the ct. should deem most in accordance with the purposes of the trust, on the ground that the purposes of the trust had failed:—Held: it had not been proved that the purposes of the trust had failed & petition dismissed.—*THOMSON v. 1. Informal appointment of trustees—Subsequent confirmation by congregation. In 1909 land was conveyed to six persons named & described as the trustees of a certain church. They took as joint tenants, but the conveyance did not define the trust or make provision for new trustees. There was no formal appointment of trustees, two of whom resigned. In 1915, the congregation at a meeting, passed a resolution, confirming the appointment of the six original trustees & providing for a mode of appointment of successors:—Held: having regard to Religious Institutions Act, R. S. O. 1911, ss. 7, 8, 10 & 18, that all technical requirements of the Act as to notices of meeting, etc. having been complied with the congregation had ample power to appoint trustees & to determine the manner in which their successors should be appointed & that upon this being done the land without conveyance vested in the trustees so appointed, & they had power to mortgage the land for the purposes mentioned in sect. 6.—Re HAMILTON LUTHERAN CHURCH (1915)

Expulsion of trustee from church.]—Land was conveyed to five persons as trustees of the Coloured Wesleyan Methodist Church in Canada, to hold to them & their successors according to the rules & discipline of the said church. The deed provided that when any of the trustees should die or cease to be a member of said church, a successor should be nominated by the Coloured Wesleyan minister or preacher having charge of the station in which the land was, & thereupon appointed by the surviving trustee or trustees, if they should think proper to appoint the person so nominated; & that if it should happen at any time that there should be no surviving trustee, then it should be lawful for the coloured minister in charge of the station to nominate, & for the quarterly meeting of the station, if they should approve of the nomination, to appoint, the requisite number of trustees; & the persons so appointed should be the legal successors of those named in the deed. The Wesleyan Methodist Church assumed control over this church, alleging that the deed was intended for the coloured members of their church, there being no such body as the Coloured Wesleyan Methodist Church. Four of the original trustees were living, but two were absent, having left this congregation, by which, according to the rules of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, they ceased to be trustees; one had joined another body; & the fourth, one of defts., had been expelled from that church. Plffs. were then nominated as trustees by W., a minister appointed by the Wesleyan Church to take charge of this chapel, but not a coloured man, & their appointment was confirmed at a quarterly meeting. They thereupon brought ejectment against A., one of the original trustees named in the deed, & a person who had taken possession under him:—Held: they could not recover, for the expulsion of A. from the Wesleyan Methodist Church could not deprive him of his character of trustee under the deed; & plffs. were not properly appointed, not having been nominated by the coloured minister in charge of the church, as required by the deed. 4045. Whether within term of charitable trust—For godly preachers of Christ's Holy Gospel—Only Trinitarian doctrines tolerated when trust created.]

In 1704, Lady H., a Protestant Nonconformist, conveyed estates to trustees for the benefit of Christ's Holy Gospel, & for such poor & godly widows for the time being, of poor & godly preachers of Christ's Holy Gospel, as the trustees for the time being should think fit; for promoting the preaching of Christ's Holy Gospel, in such manner "in such poor places as the trustees for the time being should think fit; for educating such young men designed for the ministry of Christ's Holy Gospel as the trustees for the time being should approve & think fit; & for relieving such godly persons in distress, being fit objects of her own & the trustees' charity, as the trustees for the time being should think fit." At the date of the deed, all religious sects tolerated by law believed in the Trinity, but, in the course of time, the estates became vested in trustees, of whom the majority, though called Presbyterians, were Unitarians, & one was a member of the Church of England; & they applied the rents for the benefit of Unitarians. At the hearing of an information filed against the trustees:—Held: (1) neither Unitarians nor members of the Church of England were entitled to administer or participate in the benefits of the charity; (2) the trustees were ordered to be removed; (3) members of three different sects of Trinitarian dissenters should be appointed in their place, some of whom were Independents, others Presbyterians in connection with the Established Church of Scotland, & the rest, Presbyterians in connection with the Secession Church of that country.

"English Presbyterians do not cease to be English Presbyterians merely because they are in amity with the Established Church of Scotland, or with the Secession or Relief Church. Presbyterians in amity with the Secession Church & with the Established Church of Scotland have participated in Lady H.'s charities. Of the orthodoxy of both there is no doubt. It appears from the affidavits that they hold the Westminster Confession, which substantially agrees with the Articles of the Church of England" (SHADWELL, V.C.).—A.-G. v. s. Secession of minister & trustees—Right of presbytery to replace.—A chapel was disposed to trustees with reference to certain rules: & in order to participate in the advantages offered to chapels in connection with the Establishment by Act of the General Assembly, they obtained an Act of Parliament authorising them to revise the rules & to make such alterations thereon as should enable them by making the rules in conformity with the Rules of the Established Church, to keep the chapel at all times in full communion with the Established Church; & provided "that all persons nominated to be ministers of the chapel" shall be duly qualified according to Scottish law & the form of government established. The trustees drew up a new set of rules in conformity with the Act. The minister appointed by the trustees & they themselves having seceded from the Established Church & become members of the Free Church, after which the Chapel Act was repealed:—Held: the presbytery had a sufficient title to sue & the Ct. of Session a jurisdiction to try the question: the minister had ceased to be qualified to officiate & was not entitled to possession of the chapel & that the trustees were bound to present, within a reasonable time, another minister qualified according to the laws of the Established Church.—EDINBURGH PRESBYTERY v. LADY GLENORCHY'S CHURCH TRUSTEES (1846), 18 Sc. Jur. 305.—SCOT.

t. Parliamentary church—Minister's control over structure.—Under 5 Geo. IV., c. 90, the minister of a parliamentary church has no control over repairs on the church buildings carried out by the bentors at their own expense.—BROOK v. KELLY (1893), 20 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 104; 30 Sc. L. R. 472.—SCOT.

u. Dismissal of minister—Powers of Synod of Australia.—A church, in connection with the Church of Scotland, under the denomination of "The Scots Church," was formed in N. S. Wales & its constitution defined by Articles. In 1826 a grant of land at Sydney was made by the Colonial Govt., under the seal of the colony, to appt., an ordained minister of the Church of Scotland, & others, for the erection of a church. The appt. was appointed minister of the church. In 1842 an ecclesiastical body, called the "Synod of Australia" in connection with the Church of Scotland, of which appt. was a member, formed of Presbyterian congregations in Australia, & recognised by N. S. W. Act, 4 Vict., No. 18, in consequence of charges brought against appt., dismissed him from his office of minister & declared his church vacant. Appt. refused to recognise the jurisdiction & authority of the Synod, & with the concurrence of the other trustees of the church, continued to officiate as minister. In 1855, the members of the Synod filed a bill in the supreme ct. at N. S. W., praying that appt. & other trustees might be removed from the trust connected with the grant of land & the church erected there, & that appt. might be restrained from exercising the duties of minister of that church, & be decreed to deliver up possession on the ground that he had been deposed therefrom by the Synod of Australia:—Held: dismissing the bill, that the suit was improperly framed, by reason: (1) that the members of the Synod of Australia were strangers to the trust, & had no interest to maintain such a suit: (2) that as the sentence of the Synod deposing appt. having been pronounced in 1842, & the suit in question not brought till 1855, & no satisfactory explanation given for the delay, the Synod were by their acquiescence precluded by lapse of time from sustaining such suit.—LANG v. PURVES (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 389; 15 E. R. 541.—AUS.

b. Marriage—Proclamation of banns—Parish quoad sacra.—Regular marriages in facie ecclesie must be preceded by banns; the proclamation thereof being inter sacra, & forming part of the Church discipline; the civil power in this matter supporting the ecclesiastical authority. Where a severed district has been constituted a parish quoad sacra, the proclamation of banns for those who reside in it must be pronounced in the church of the parish quoad sacra.—HUTTON v. HARPER (1876), 1 App. Cas. 464.—SCOT.

c. "Heritors"—Repair of manse.—A conduit of the Glasgow Waterworks Comrs. was carried underground through lands in a parish in virtue of grants of way-leave in perpetuity, obtained from the proprietors of the land:—Held: the Comrs. were liable under Scottish Act, 1663 (c. 21 or 31) to assessment in respect of their conduit as "heritors" of the parish for the repair of the manse.—GLASGOW COMRS. v. M'EWAN, [1900] A. C. 91.—SCOT.

d. Identity of church—What constitutes—Power to modify fundamental doctrines.—The identity of a religious community described as a Church consists in the identity of its doctrines, creeds, confessions, formularies, & tests.

The bond of union of a Christian assoc. may contain a power in some recognised body to control, alter, or modify the tenets or principles, at one time professed by the assoc.; but the existence of such a power must be proved.—FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND (GENERAL ASSEMBLY) v. OVERTON (LORD), MACALISTER v. YOUNG, [1904] A. C. 515.—SCOT.

SECT. 8.—ATHEISTS, RATIONALISTS, ETC.

4053. Denial of Christianity—Bequest for essay on "Natural Theology" as a science—Whether valid.]—Testator gave a legacy for the best essay on the subject of "Natural Theology," treating it as a science, & demonstrating the truth of the evidence upon which it was founded, & the perfect accordance of such evidence with reason, also demonstrating the adequacy & sufficiency of natural theology when so treated as a science to constitute a true, perfect, & philosophical system of universal religion:—Held: bequest was void, as being inconsistent with Christianity.—BRIGGS v. HARTLEY (1850), 19 L. J. Ch. 416; 15 L. T. O. S. 273; 14 Jur. 683.

4054. Atheist—Whether within statutes relieving nonconformists—From taking oaths.]—Deft. was sued under the Parliamentary Oaths Act, 1866 (c. 19), for a penalty for sitting & voting in the House of Commons without having made & subscribed the oath appointed by that Act, as amended by the Promissory Oaths Act, 1868 (c. 72), to be taken by members. Sect. 4 of the Act of 1866 provides that "Quakers & every other person for the time being by law permitted to make a solemn affirmation or declaration instead of taking an oath" may, instead of taking & subscribing the oath, make an affirmation in the form given by the Act. Deft. pleaded that he was a person who by reason of the Evidence Further Amendment Act, 1869 (c. 68), & the Evidence Amendment Act, 1870 (c. 49), was by law permitted to make a solemn affirmation, instead of taking an oath, because an oath would have no binding effect on his conscience, & that he came within the exemption of the Parliamentary Oaths Act, 1866 (c. 19), & that he had duly made an affirmation in conformity with that Act before sitting & voting. On demurrer:—Held: (1) Parliamentary Oaths Act, 1866 (c. 19), s. 4, exempted only persons having a general right to affirm on all occasions on which otherwise they would take an oath; (2) the defence was therefore bad, as the Evidence Further Amendment Act, 1869 (c. 68), & the Evidence Amendment Act, 1870 (c. 49), applied only to persons called to give evidence as witnesses.

(3) Pltf. replied that deft. was a person who, by want of religious belief, was not entitled by the Parliamentary Oaths Act, 1866 (c. 19), or the Promissory Oaths Act, 1868 (c. 72), to make & subscribe a solemn affirmation. On demurrer:—Held: the reply was bad, as the statute contains no proviso that none but persons of religious belief were or could be entitled to the benefit of the exemption in sect. 4 from taking the oath.—CLARKE v. BRADLAUGH (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 38; 50 L. J. Q. B. 342; 44 L. T. 607; 45 J. P. 484; 29 W. R. 516, C. A.; reversd. on other grounds, sub nom. BRADLAUGH v. CLARKE (1883), 8 App. Cas. 351, H. L.

4055. —Evidence of opinions.]—The fact that a man of full age holds certain views on religious subjects at one time is evidence that he holds the same views four years later.

A young man at school or college in the heat of argument maintains atheism, therefore is it to be supposed that the same man at the age of eighty, nothing being shown in the meanwhile, maintains the same opinions? Why, obviously, it is absurd. But, on the other hand, if a man maintains an opinion to-day, & goes into the witness box, or does not go into the witness box to-morrow to show that he has changed his opinions, the fact that he has expressed an opinion one way at one o'clock the day before, would be very cogent evidence to show that he entertained the same opinion upon the following day (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.):—*A.-G. v. SECT. 3.—CHAPLAINS OF ASYLUMS.

4060. Dismissal—Power of justices to dismiss—Refusal of bishop to revoke first licence or licence new appointee.]—

Under 9 Geo. 4, c. 40, s. 30, the visiting justices of county lunatic asylums have the power of appointing & dismissing the chaplain at their discretion, though, by sect. 32, the chaplain appointed must be licensed by the bishop of the diocese, & though the bishop has power to revoke such licence. Therefore, where a chaplain, appointed by the visiting justices, & afterwards licensed by the bishop, was dismissed by the justices, & another appointed in his stead, but the bishop refused to revoke his first licence, or to license the new appointee, this ct. refused to issue a mandamus commanding them to admit the first appointee to perform the duties of chaplain in the asylum.—R. v. MIDDLESEX PAUPER LUNATIC ASYLUM (VISITING J.J.) (1842), 2 Q. B. 433; 2 Gal. & Dav. 300; 11 L. J. M. C. 30; 6 J. P. 71; 6 Jur. 682; 114 E. R. 171.

4061. Superannuation allowance—When entitled to—Chaplain not resident in asylum—Duties not occupying whole time.]—A chaplain of a lunatic asylum, who did not reside in the asylum, & who held a benefice two miles off, applied for a superannuation allowance, being of the age & service required. The visiting justices agreed to grant the allowance, but the county council, thinking he was not an officer in the asylum & was not sick, but merely desirous to give his whole time to his benefice, refused to pay the allowance:—Held: though not resident, the chaplain was an officer of or in the asylum within 16 & 17 Vict. c. 97, s. 57, & a mandamus should be granted to enforce payment accordingly.—R. v. HEREFORD COUNTY COUNCIL (1890), 63 L. T. 245; 55 J. P. 72; 38 W. R. 775, D. C.

SECT. 4.—CHAPLAINS OF PRISONS.

4062. Appointment—Who may appoint—Whether town council or justices.]—By charter of Queen Elizabeth the corp. of Bath elected annually from its own body two persons to be bailiffs for one whole year. The charter also gave to the corp. the franchise of a gaol, & directed that the bailiffs should be keepers of it.

Since Municipal Corporation Act, 1835 (c. 75), the town council had only appointed one bailiff; a separate ct. of quarter sessions had been granted by the Crown, & a separate commission of the peace had issued for the borough. A new gaol had been built under 1 Vict. c. 78, s. 40. Prisons Act, 1839 (c. 50), s. 15 enacts, "that in every borough gaol & house of correction a clergyman of the Church of England shall be appointed to be chaplain thereof, by the same authority by which the keeper is appointed." On application for a mandamus to the bishop to license the appointee of the town council:—Held: a single bailiff was well appointed by the town council; such bailiff was the keeper of the gaol within the last-mentioned Act; & the appointment of the chaplain vested in the town council.—R. v. BATH & WELLS (BP.) (1843), 5 Q. B. 147; 1 Dav. & Mer. 173; 12 L. J. Q. B. 321; 1 L. T. O. S. 337; 7 J. P. 178; 7 Jur. 766; 114 E. R. 1204.

SECT. 5.—CHAPLAINS OF WORKHOUSES.

4063. Appointment—Power of poor law commissioners to compel guardians to appoint.]—The poor law comrs. may order the guardians of a union to appoint a chaplain for the union workhouse, with a salary; such chaplain being an officer within Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834 (c. 76), s. 46, interpreted by sect. 109. It is no objection to such order that, by a previous order, not expressly altered or rescinded, the comrs. have authorised the guardians to appoint such chaplain if they shall deem it necessary, & have specified his duties in case it shall have been deemed necessary to appoint him.—R. v. BRAINTREE UNION GUARDIANS (1841), 1 Q. B. 130; Arn. & H. 314; 4 Per. & Dav. 593; 10 L. J. M. C. 76; 5 J. P. 431; 5 Jur. 265; 113 E. R. 1079.

4064. Powers & duties—Right to officiate in workhouse chapel—Without consent of incumbent.]

A workhouse chaplain, appointed under Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834 (c. 76), s. 46, does not trench upon the rights of the incumbent of the parish in which the workhouse is situated, by reading Divine Service to the inmates in the workhouse chapel.—MOLYNEUX v. BAGSHAWE (1863), 2 New Rep. 196; 8 L. T. 331; 27 J. P. 420; 9 Jur. N. S. 553; 11 W. R. 687.

Annotation:—Refd. Richards v. Fincher (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 107.

4065. Tenure of office—Under local Act.]

Under the provisions of a local Act, the chaplain of the workhouse of a parish was elected annually. By an order of the Poor-law Board, addressed to the governors of the poor of that parish, they were required to appoint certain officers, one being the chaplain; & it was provided that the officers so appointed should perform the duties required of them by the regulations of the Poor-law Board, & that any regulation applying to officers appointed under that order should apply to any other officer of the like denomination appointed by the governors before that order came into force. By a subsequent art. it was directed that every officer appointed or holding office under that order should continue to hold the same until he should die or resign, or be removed by the Poor-law Board:—

a. Appointment—Necessity for bishop's licence & incumbent's consent.]

A chaplain to a lunatic asylum is not included under the word "officers" in the statutes authorising the Lord Lieutenant to appoint such; & a chaplain so appointed has no right to officiate in such asylum without the incumbent's consent, & the bishop's licence.—NELLIGAN v. JONES (1861), 14 Ir. Jur. 39.—IR.

PART IX. SECT. 4.

f. Appointment—Who may be appointed—Vicar-choral.]—A vicar-choral is not, in right of that office, a clergyman ordinarily official within the parish, & the Board of Superintendence are not warranted, in appointing a vicar-choral to be chaplain of the county jail, to the exclusion of the incumbent of the parish & his curates, having actual cure of souls.—WADE v. STRANGWAYS (1863), 16 Ir. Jur. 179.—IR.

Held: by the operation of that order the chaplain who had been previously elected for a year was not entitled to retain his office for life or until he should be removed by the Poor-law Board.—R. v. ST. JAMES', WESTMINSTER (GOVERNORS) (1852), 21 L. J. M. C. 97; 18 L. T. O. S. 253; 16 J. P. 70; 16 Jur. 406.

4066. — Dismissal—Power of poor-law commissioners to order.—The poor-law comrs. may order the dismissal of the chaplain of a union workhouse, he being an officer under Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834 (c. 76), ss. 46, 48, as interpreted by sect. 109 of that Act.—Re SUDBURY UNION (CHAPLAIN) (1863), 1 New Rep. 235; *sub nom. 4067. Salary—Liability of churchwardens—Under local Act.—The Ct. of Q. B., under the power given it by a local Act, granted a mandamus to compel the churchwardens of the parish of Lambeth to pay M., who had been appointed chaplain to the workhouse by the rector of the parish, a reasonable & proportionate salary for discharging the duties attached to that office.—R. v. LAMBETH (CHURCHWARDENS) (1840), 4 J. P. 253.

4068. — Right to charge. A chaplain to a workhouse appointed by the guardians & paid out of the rates, but liable to dismissal only by the Local Govt. Board, is not a public officer so as to render a charge by him on his salary invalid against his trustee in bkpy. To make an office a public office, the pay must come out of national & not local funds, & the office must be public in the strict sense of the term: it is not enough that the due discharge of the duties of the office should be for the public benefit in a secondary & remote sense. Re MIRAMS, [1891] 1 Q. 4072. — Right of additional chaplain to hold pluralities.—If a countess retains two chaplains, & the two being alive, afterwards retains a third, such third chaplain is not capable of having dispensation to hold two benefices with cure.—DRURY'S CASE (1601), 4 Co. (2) If any officer allowed by the statute to have one, two, or more chaplains retains a chaplain, & afterwards is removed from his office, in that case the retainer by the common law remains; but the retainer upon the statute is determined.

(3) So if an earl or baron retains a chaplain, & before his advancement is attainted of treason, the retainer, according to the statute, is determined.

(4) If a baroness widow retains two chaplains, according to the statute, & afterwards marries one of the nobility, & afterwards the husband dies, the retainer remains.—ACTON'S CASE (1603), 4 Co. Rep. 117 a; 76 E. R. 1107.

Part I.—In General.

1. Duty of parent—Liability for expenses.]—If a husband treats his wife cruelly & A. takes her into his house & provides her with necessaries, he may maintain an action against the husband, but cannot maintain any action for the education of the children.

A father is bound by every social tie to give his children an education suitable to their rank, but it is a duty of imperfect obligation & cannot be enforced in a court of law (LORD KENYON, C.J.). — HODGES v. HODGES (1796), Peake, Add. Cas. 79; 1 Esp. 441, N. P.

Annotations:—Consd. Woolston v. Smith (1825), 3 L. J. O. S. C. P. 200. N.F. Collins v. Cory (1901), 17 T. L. R. 242. At the present day education of the children was a necessary, & plff. was entitled to recover (PHILLIMORE, J.). Reid, Houllston v. Smyth (1825), 2 C. & P. 22.

2. ———.]—A wife who by her husband's conduct is forced to live separate from him has implied authority to pledge his credit for the education of the children, who are in her custody, as a "necessary." — COLLINS v. CORY (1901), 17 T. L. R. 242.

3. Rights of parent.]—The father has the control over the person, education, & conduct of his children until they are 21 years of age (BIHETT, M.R.). — Re AGAR-ELLIS, AGAR-ELLIS v. LASCELLES (1883), 24 Ch. D. 317; 53 L. J. Ch. 10; 50 L. T. 161; 32 W. R. 1, C. A.

4. Jurisdiction of court.]—Upon what ground is the ct. required to maintain these children out of their own property & not at the expense of the father. It is because that father is an improper person to have the care of these children; & as it is proposed that their maintenance & education should be put out of his control, it is, therefore, as he may refuse to afford them more than will supply them with their bare maintenance, which the law of the country would require from every person who had the means to maintain his children; it is for that reason that the ct. is to take upon itself, out of the property that those children have, instead of accumulating the income of their property for their benefit, till they should be capable of taking possession of it themselves, to apply a part of it for their maintenance & education (LORD REDESDALE). — *WELLESLEY v. Jurisdiction of Divorce Court.]—The ct. has power to make orders respecting the custody, maintenance, & education of children during the whole period of their infancy—that is, till they attain the age of 21 years. — *THOMASSET v. 6. Jurisdiction.—To decide questions of law.]—BOARD OF EDUCATION v. RICE, No. 290, post.

7. ——— To determine legal rights.—Between parent & local education authority.]—The duties imposed on a local education authority are defined by the Education Acts, 1870 to 1903, & the Code, which has parliamentary sanction. One of them is to provide & maintain efficient public elementary schools in their district. They must also fulfil the conditions of the Code in order to obtain the parliamentary free grant. By art. 53 (a) of the Code no child may be refused admission to a public elementary school on other than reasonable grounds; & art. 26 (b) provides that if any question arises as to the interpretation of the Code, or as to the fulfilment of any of the conditions specified therein, the decision of the Board for the purposes of the Code shall be final.

By sect. 3 of Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), the term "parent" includes "guardian & every person who is liable to maintain or has the actual custody of any child"; & the Elementary Education Act, 1900 (c. 53), s. 2, enacts that poor law guardians "may contribute towards such of the expenses of providing, enlarging, or maintaining, any public elementary school as are certified by the Board of Education to have been incurred wholly or partly in respect of scholars taught at the school, who are . . . boarded out by the guardians."

A local education authority, with the sanction of the Board of Education, refused to allow boarded out poor law children resident in their district to attend their public elementary school unless the poor law guardians made a special payment towards the expenses of maintaining the school in connection with the teaching of the children. The guardians objected that they were under no duty to make a special payment & brought an action against the education authority to restrain it from excluding the children:—Held: (1) under Education Acts & the Code the guardians, as the parents of the boarded out poor law children, have a statutory right to have free education given to their children attending the public elementary school, without payment of any fees whatever; (2) neither the Board nor the local education authority has any power either under the Acts or the Code to require the guardians, as parents, to make any special payment towards the expenses of maintaining the school; (3) the Board has no jurisdiction under the Acts or the Code to determine legal rights as between a parent & the local education authority; (4) the exclusive jurisdiction conferred on the Board in the Code is limited to the purposes of the Code, namely, to determine whether the education authority has fulfilled all the conditions of the Code so as to obtain the annual parliamentary grant—e.g. whether a child was excluded from attending the school on other than reasonable grounds, such as illness, want of cleanliness, & such like matters.

The obligation to maintain & keep efficient is to maintain & keep the school as a school, that is to say, as a means of giving elementary education to children, & that such education is to be available for children resident in the area without distinction (WAIRINGTON, L.J.).—GATESHEAD UNION v. CARDIFF CORPN. (1904), 20 T. L. R. 317.

12. — Power of council to alter—Mode of retirement of members.]—By the scheme for the constitution of the education committee of the Barry Urban District Council, approved by the Board of Education on Apr. 16, 1903, it was provided that the committee should consist of nine members, & that the members of it should hold office for a period of three years, provided, nevertheless, that one-third should go out of office on May 1, 1904, & in each succeeding year, "The council shall determine the order in which they shall retire." On Apr. 20, 1903, the council passed resolutions under which pltf. was to be a member of the committee & retire at the end of the second year. On Apr. 18, 1904, the council, purporting to act under their standing orders, passed a resolution rescinding so much of the resolution of Apr. 20, 1903, as decided that pltf. should retire at the end of the second year, namely, on May 1, 1905, & directing that in lieu thereof he should retire on May 1, 1904 :—Held : (1) the council had power to make a final scheme & determine the method of retirement; (2) when they had once fixed the dates of retirement they could not alter them without a new scheme; (3) the resolution of Apr. 18, 1904, was ultra vires.—MILWARD v. BARRY URBAN COUNCIL, [1904] 2 Ch. 481; 73 L. J. Ch. 804; 91 L. T. 200; 68 J. P. 569; 53 W. R. 21; 20 T. L. R. 705; 48 Sol. Jo. 651; 2 L. G. R. 1222.

13. Delegation of powers—By local authority to education committee—Dismissal of teachers.]—Pltf. was engaged as mistress of a non-provided school, a school maintained but not provided by the local education authority under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), under an agreement with the managers of the school, one of the terms of which was that either party might terminate the agreement on giving the other party three calendar months' notice in writing. That Act came into operation in the district in Aug. 1903, & the Berkshire County Council was the "local education authority." The county council, acting under sect. 17 of the Act, delegated all its powers under the Act, except the power of raising a rate or borrowing money, to an education committee; the committee under Sched. I., A (6), appointed a sub-committee to deal with the appointment & dismissal of teachers; & the sub-committee appointed a section to deal with the details "surrounding" the dismissal of teachers, & to make recommendations to the sub-committee. In these circumstances the managers came to the conclusion that pltf. was out of harmony with them & that this was detrimental to the best interests of the school, & on Oct. 17, 1905, at a meeting at which pltf. attended the managers passed a resolution that pltf. should be asked to resign, & that if she refused notice should be sent to the education committee that the managers desired to terminate their engagement with her. As pltf. did not resign, the managers on Nov. 23 wrote to the education committee asking for its consent to the dismissal of pltf. forthwith on payment of three months' salary. On Nov. 25 the section gave its consent, & on Nov. 28 the education secretary wrote: "The committee will approve the notice given by your managers to Miss Y."—pltf.—"to terminate her engagement." On Nov. 30 the managers gave notice in writing of dismissal, stating that the notice had the approval of the education committee & enclosing a cheque for three months' salary in lieu of notice. On Dec. 9 the sub-committee approved & adopted the action of the section. On Dec. 18 pltf. commenced an action to restrain defts. from acting on the notice to her, & on Jan. 19 applied for an injunction. On Jan. 20, before the argument was concluded the education committee passed a resolution consenting to the dismissal :—Held : (1) the effect of the delegation under sect. 17 was that the education committee was, in respect of any powers as to the dismissal of teachers, the educational authority; (2) to the sub-committee there was delegated power to determine, & not merely to report to the committee upon, the question whether consent to dismissal should be given; (3) the section was only a subordinate body, the duty of which was to consider & report to the sub-committee, & the action of which required the sub-committee's approval & therefore, the consent of the education authority had not been obtained at the time of the dismissal; (4) if consent to dismissal was required, it was not a condition precedent to dismissal, but if given subsequently operated as a ratification of dismissal with the provisional consent of the section; (5) the effect of sect. 7 was that unless the education authority intervened, the power to appoint & dismiss teachers rested with the managers; (6) if the education authority intervened, the managers either would have to yield to that authority's wishes, or disqualify the school for maintenance from public funds; (7) the requirements of the Act as to consent were operative only as between the managers & the education authority, & gave no right to the teacher.—YOUNG v. CUTBERT, [1906] 1 Ch. 451; 75 L. J. Ch. 217; 94 L. T. 191; 70 J. P. 130; 51 W. R. 206; 22 T. L. R. 251; 4 L. G. R. 356.

17. Negligence of education authority—Defective state of playground.]—Pltf., a pupil at a public elementary school provided by defts., a county council, as the local education authority, fell, while playing in the playground attached to the school, through his foot being caught in a hole existing in the asphalt pavement of the playground, & in consequence, sustained injury. In an action brought by pltf. against the county council to recover damages for the injury so sustained by him, the jury found that he was injured through the negligence of defts.:—Held: the action was maintainable on the ground that, by Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), a statutory duty of keeping the school premises in a state of repair was imposed upon defts., & they were responsible for neglect of that duty by those who actually managed the school.—*CHING v. 18. — Dangerous door.]—Pltf., a girl aged seven, attended a public elementary school provided by defts., the local education authority for the district. This school had formerly belonged to a school board, & was transferred to defts. upon the coming into operation of the Education Act, 1902 (c. 12). The only mode of entrance into & egress from a classroom in the school was by a doorway closed by a heavy swing door with a powerful spring, which door had been put up by the school board, defts.' predecessors. Pltf. while leaving the classroom, was injured through this door closing on her fingers. The door was in good repair & in the same condition as it was in when the school was taken over by defts. In an action brought by pltf. in respect of the injury sustained by her, the jury found that the door was not a suitable one for use by young children, when put up in the first instance, & that defts. were guilty of negligence in allowing it to remain after the school was transferred to them:—Held: as it was the duty of defts. to keep the school premises in proper condition for the purposes of a school, they were responsible for a breach of duty in not discovering & remedying the improper construction of the door in question, when the school was transferred to them, & therefore, the action was maintainable.—*MORRIS v. 19. — Conveyance of children to school—Failure to provide attendant.]—A person who provides anything for the use of another is bound to provide a thing reasonably safe for the purpose for which it is intended, even though the person using it uses it only by the permission or consent of the person providing it & has no legal claim to the use of it.

Where an education authority in pursuance of their statutory powers, provided a vehicle to convey certain children, who lived at a distance, to & from their school, & a child who lived nearer to the school & was not one of those for whom the vehicle was provided, was conveyed in it with the consent of the education authority, & while getting out of it, fell & was injured in consequence of there being no second person in addition to the driver to help the children to get in & out:—Held: there was evidence of negligence on the part of the education authority, & they were liable for the injury so caused to the child.—SHRIMPTON v. HERTFORDSHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL (1911), 104 L. T. 145; 75 J. P. 201; 27 T. L. R. 251; 55 Sol. Jo. 270; 9 L. G. R. 397, H. L.

20. — Circular saw in technical school—Without guard.]—At technical classes provided by defts., a borough council, pltf., a lad of nineteen years of age, used a small circular saw driven by electricity which had no guard or "sword" to it. Pltf.'s hand was drawn into the machine so that his thumb had to be amputated. Pltf., in giving evidence against defts. in an action for negligence on the ground that there was no such guard or "sword," said that he knew the saw was dangerous, & that it would be less dangerous if guarded, but he had never suggested to the instructor that it should be guarded:—Held: the maxim volenti non fit injuria applied, & judgment was entered for defts.—SMERKINICH v. NEWPORT CORPN. (1912), 76 J. P. 454; 10 L. G. R. 959, D. C.

201. Negligence of education authority

—Circular saw in technical school.]

—A pupil at a school under the control of deft. board was injured by a dangerous circular saw owned by said board while he was using it during an examination in the manual arts. The examination was conducted, not by deft., but by examiners appointed by the department of education, which had, under School Ordinance, c. 75, C. O., the right to use deft.'s school & the apparatus therein for the purposes of the examination, & pltf.'s application for the examination was made to the department:—Held: deft. board was not liable.—*SMILES v. m. — Loss of garments from cloakroom.]—Boards of Education are not insurers of school children's clothing; they are responsible for its loss or injury only when it is caused by their negligence. Where a pupil at a school left her coat in the cloakroom, & it was taken therefrom by some person unknown:—Held: no want of reasonable care was proved. Sem: the case would be different, if experience had shown the cloakroom to be an unsafe place.—*STEVENSON v. n. — Defective gate on school premises.]—A child of seven years attending a public school was injured through the fall of an iron gate, which formed part of the school premises. The gate was in a defective condition & fell in consequence of school children swinging on it:—Held: it was the duty of the school board to keep the gate in a safe condition, & they were liable in damages for the injury.—CORMACK v. WICK & PULFENEY TOWN SCHOOL BOARD (1889), 16 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 812.—SCOT.

o. — —.]—An iron gate at the entrance of a public school fell upon a boy who was passing & injured him. In an action for damages against the school board it was averred that the gate was in a defective condition & that, in consequence of some of the boys swinging on it, it was

21. — & contractor—Dangerous materials left in playground.]—A contractor, who was to carry out certain repairs at a public elementary school, left a quantity of rough stuff composed of sand & lime in a truck in a corner of the school playground. The headmaster of the school gave instructions to the school caretaker to have the stuff removed, as he considered it was dangerous, & the caretaker telephoned to the contractor asking him to remove it. The stuff, however, was not removed. When the boys came out of school the stuff was left unguarded & one of the boys threw a portion of the stuff at plff., who was also a scholar at the school, injuring his eye: Held: there was evidence upon which the jury could find that both the education authority & the contractor had been guilty of negligence. — JACKSON v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL & CHAPPELL (1912), 76 J. P. 217; 28 T. L. R. 359; 56 Sol. Jo. 428; 10 L. G. R. 318, C. A.

22. Negligence of teacher. Injury to pupil—Obeying teacher's orders.] Plff., who was a child of fourteen years of age, was being educated at a provided school. One of the teachers of the school directed her to go to a room used in common by the teachers, & to attend to the fire in that room. The fire was used for cooking this particular teacher's food. While she was attending to the fire plff.'s clothes became alight & she was injured:—Held: (1) the teacher was liable; (2) the education authority were also liable on the ground that the teacher was put by them in a position in which it was intended that her orders should be obeyed by the children, & that the order given by her in the present case was therefore one for which the education authority were liable.

23. — — — — — Playing with toy.]—Plff. a child of five years of age, was a scholar at a non-provided school. With the leave of the teacher another scholar had brought certain toy soldiers to the school. While playing with these soldiers, plff. fell on a toy "lancer" with the result that the lance pierced his eye, which had subsequently to be removed. In an action against the school managers & the education authority for damages for negligence:—Held: the accident being one which might have happened in any nursery where children play with toy soldiers, there was no evidence of negligence & defts. were entitled to succeed. *CHILVERS v. wrenched away & fell. It was not averred that the boys who were swinging were school children at the school or that the accident happened during school hours, or that defenders knew that the gate was used as a swing:—Held: as there was no obligation on the defenders to provide gates which were suitable as swings for passing boys, the pursuers' averments were irregular & action dismissed. — *M'URRAY v. 22 i. Negligence of teacher—Injury to pupil.]—The schoolmaster of a public school established under 43 Vict., No. 23, was making preparations to deliver a lesson in chemistry, & sent a pupil into another room to fetch him a tumbler, giving him no instructions as to its contents. The tumbler contained dilute sulphuric acid, which the pupil mistook for dirty water, & whilst returning he threw the liquid away. Plff., another pupil, who was passing received some of the acid in his eye, & sued the Govt. to recover damages for the schoolmaster's negligence:—Held: the Govt. were not liable at the suit of plff. *HOLE v. The local education authority issued a direction to the managers of the school that after a certain date no secular instruction was to be given in the school except to children in standards 1 to 3. accommodation furnished by the second school, & having vested in them, by sect. 92 (21), the management of the schools in their district, had impliedly given them the power to make all regulations necessary or advisable, not only for the management of the schools, but for determining the portion of the district that could be most suitably served by each of the schools, or the children who should attend each; & so long as the trustees acted bona fide & to the best of their judgment for the purpose of securing the better conduct or more efficient management of the schools under their charge, their discretion in these respects could not be interfered with.—PATRICK v. b. Power to define limits of separate school.]—Application for a mandamus to the board of school trustees of the city of Toronto, to authorise the establishment of a separate Roman Catholic school in section 9, in St. James's ward.—Held: the board, & not appcs, should prescribe the limits of separate schools; & the application should therefore be for one or more such schools, in general terms, leaving it to the board of trustees to define the same.—Re HAYES & TORONTO SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1853), 3 C. 30. — Supply of water.]—Prior to the passing of Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), a water co. supplied the managers of a voluntary school with water by meter, payment being made therefor by the managers. After the Act came into force the school became a non-provided school, & water was supplied as before. A supply of water was necessary for the maintenance of the school. There was no contract between the water co. & the local education authority with regard to the supply of water other than might be implied from the fact of the supply, the purpose for which the water was supplied, the course of dealing, & the circumstances under which water had been previously supplied to the school. The water co. continued, as before the Act came into operation, to send their demand note to the managers of the school for the water supplied, & since the Act the managers of the school included the amount of such demand note in the accounts of their expenditure which they sent every quarter to the local education authority, by whom payment was then made to the water co. direct, & a receipt given therefor by the co. to the local education authority. For a considerable time the local education authority paid the demand notes of the water co. in this way, but in respect of the supply for a certain period they refused to pay, contending that they were not, & that the managers were, in law liable for the supply of water to the school. In an action by the water co. against the local education authority, the county ct. judge gave judgment for the water co.:—Held: (1) having regard to the facts that the local education authority were under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), bound to maintain the school, & therefore, to provide a supply of water, & had control of the expenditure necessary for that purpose, the local education authority had power under the Act to make themselves liable to the water co. for the water supplied; (2) there was evidence upon which the county ct. judge could properly find that the local education authority were the persons with whom the contract for the supply of the water in question was made.—TROWBRIDGE WATER CO. v. WILTS COUNTY COUNCIL, [1909] 1 K. B. 824; 78 L. J. K. B. 406; 101 L. T. 35; 73 J. P. 280; 25 T. L. R. 388; 53 Sol. Jo. 448; 7 L. G. R. 484.

Two new non-provided schools were opened as public elementary schools & each school was subsequently placed by the Board of Education upon the annual grant list as from the respective dates of opening. All the furniture for one school was supplied & paid for by the local education authority, before it was opened; the other school, when opened, was provided with furniture belonging to the managers, which was unsuitable & afterwards, but before the date when the Board of Education placed the school upon the grant list as from the date of opening, was removed

g. Language of instruction.—Restriction of French.—In Ontario there are two classes of free primary schools, namely, public schools & separate schools, the latter being denominational schools established under the Separate Schools Act, 1863 (26 Vict. c. 5, Upper Canada). Appts. were the elected trustees of the Roman Catholic separate school in Ottawa, & under the above Act had power to determine the "kind & description" of separate schools to be established therein & power to manage them. In 1913 the Department of Education for the province, under provincial statutory powers to make regulations, issued a regulation restricting the use of French in schools, whether public or separate, in which French was a language of instruction & communication. Sect. 93 of the British North America Act, 1867, enacts that for each province the Legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to education, but by sub-s. 1 provides that "nothing in any such laws shall prejudicially affect any right or privilege with respect to denominational schools which any class of persons have in the province at the Union." Appts. contended that the regulation was invalid under the above sub-sect. & was not binding on them:—Held: (1) the class of persons for whom the protection of the sub-section is claimed must be a class determined by religious belief & not by race or language; (2) the power of appts. as trustees to determine the "kind & description" of schools did not extend to determining whether English or French should be the language of instruction; (3) the regulation did not prejudicially affect any right or privilege secured by law at the Union of Roman Catholics in the province, & it was consequently valid & binding upon appts.—*OTTAWA SEPARATE SCHOOLS TRUSTEES v. 33. Whether attendance at theatrical performance included.—The power of a local education authority to authorise visits to "places of educational value & interest" in school hours under Art. 44 (b) of the Education Code does not extend to defraying out of public funds the cost of providing such places. Nor does attendance at a theatrical performance fall within the words "visits to places of educational value & interest." Expenditure on special performances of Shakespearean plays for school children was therefore rightly disallowed.—R. v. LYON, Ex p. GATTI, [1922] 1 K. B. 232; 91 L. J. K. B. 139; 126 L. k. Right to send coloured persons to common school.—Where no separate school.—Upon the facts:—Held: either no separate school, extending to app't, had been established for coloured persons within the statute, or it had been discontinued, & he was therefore entitled to a mandamus to the trustees to admit his daughter to the common school. The erection of a separate school suspends but does not annul the rights of those for whom it was established, as regards the common schools. When it is no longer kept up those rights revive.—Re STEWART & SANDWICH EAST SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1864), 23 U. C. R. 634.—CAN.

Right to exclude others.—Appet. the father of two children by a coloured wife, obtained their admission in the only public undenominational school in the school district of K. & paid the necessary fees. The parents of the other pupils in the school withdrew or threatened to withdraw their children if appet. children were allowed to remain, whereupon the School Committee refused to allow appet.'s children to continue their attendance & tendered back the fees which appet. refused to accept. Compulsory education for children of European parentage or extraction was in force in the district & there were two mission schools in the district

35. Jurisdiction of Board of Education to determine—Secular instruction.

—For many years prior to 1905 it had been the custom of the managers of the M. School, a non-provided school under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), to take the children from school to church on saints' days & holy days during the hours allowed for religious instruction. The time-table of the school, which had been approved by H.M. inspector, provided that religious observance & religious instruction should be given from 9 a.m., when the school opened, to 9.55; that at 9.55 the registers should be marked; & that secular education should commence at 10 a.m. & continue till noon. At the foot of the time-table was a note providing that on saint's days & holy days the registers should be marked at 9 a.m., the object being to enable the children to be taken to church at 11 a.m. In Sept. 1904, the local education authority under the 1902 Act issued a direction that secular instruction in all schools within their district should commence not later than 9.45 a.m. & occupy the school hours for the rest of the day. The managers did not comply with this direction, & continued to take the children to church on saints' days & holy days, & took no steps to revise their time-table to bring it into accordance with the direction of the local education authority. On Mar. 25, 1905, the local education authority ceased to maintain the school, & on Mar. 27, 1905, sent their inspector to the school, who closed it, informing the children that they must attend other schools in the neighbourhood, & offering the teachers appointments in other schools, which they accepted. The managers appealed to the Board of Education, but the Board confirmed the action of the local education authority. In an action brought by the managers claiming (1) a declaration that the local education authority were bound to continue to maintain the school, & (2) damages for trespass & illegal acts in closing the school & inducing the teachers to leave the service of the managers without due justification:—Held: (1) the direction of the local education authority was a direction as to secular instruction under s. 7, s-s. 1 (a), of 1902 Act, & the question, being therefore one which arose under s. 7 of that Act, was one for the decision of the Board of Education under s-s. 3 of that sect., & the jurisdiction of the ct. was therefore excluded; (2) the managers, by virtue of their appointment under 1902 Act, had not, in the absence of a special arrangement with the owner, such a possession of the school premises as would enable them to support an action of trespass; no such arrangement had been proved; & the claim for trespass therefore failed; (3) the local education authority had not induced the teachers to break their contracts with the managers without justification.—BLENCOWE v. NORTHAMPTONSHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL, [1907] 1 Ch. 504; 76 L. J. Ch. 276; 96 L. T. 385; 71 J. P. 258; 23 where children of other than European parentage could attend:—Held: it was part of the policy of Cape School Board Act of 1905 to promote the establishment of separate public undenominational schools for children of European parentage or extraction. Appet.'s children were of other than European parentage or extraction & consequently he was not entitled to an order compelling the School Committee to receive his children as pupils. —*MOLLER v. It being the duty of the local education authority under that sect. to pay the wages of the school cleaner appointed by the managers, a dispute between the managers & the local education authority as to the proper amount of such wages is a matter which the Board of Education alone can determine, & a county et. has no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon it.—WEST SUFFOLK COUNTY COUNCIL v. 39. Validity of acts of manager.—Before declaration signed as member of Church of England;—(1) The final order made by the Board of Education under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), in respect of a non-provided elementary Church of England school provided that the foundation managers should be members of the Church of England, & that no person should "be entitled to act as a foundation manager" until he had signed a declaration that he was a member of the Church of England. At the date when the body of managers of the school in question purported to dismiss the headmaster, three of the foundation managers had not signed the required declaration. Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), Sched. I., B. (3), provides that the proceedings of a body of managers "shall not be invalidated by any defect in the election, appointment, or qualification of any manager":—Held: the words of the final order did not amount to an absolute prohibition against any foundation manager acting until he had signed the declaration in question, & the provision in Sched. I., B. (3), applied to validate the acts of the body of managers.

(2) Objections were also taken to the validity of the appointment of the two nominated managers

& of the co-optative manager:—Held: having regard to the same provision in Sched. I., B. (3), any objections to the appointment of the three managers in question, founded upon any invalidity in the appointment of any of them, or the alleged want of authority in those who appointed them, did not invalidate the proceedings of the body of managers; (3) the notice dismissing the headmaster could not be impeached, & his action claiming a declaration that it was inoperative must be dismissed.—MEYERS v. KENNELL, [1912] 2 Ch. 256; 81 L. J. Ch. 794; 106 L. T. 1010; 76 J. P. 321; 28 T. L. R. 424; 56 Sol. Jo. 538.

40. Powers of—Transfer of non-provided school.]

—Under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 23, managers of elementary schools are empowered to make arrangements for the transfer of schools to school boards formed under the Act, but it is provided that where there is any instrument declaring the trusts of a school, & such instrument contains any provision for the alienation of the school by any person in any manner or subject to any consent, such an arrangement shall only be made by the persons in the manner & with the consent so provided: & it is also provided that the Education Department of the Privy Council shall consider & have due regard to any objections & representations respecting a proposed transfer which may be made by any person who has contributed to the establishment of such schools. Sect. 14 of the Act also provides that no religious catechism or formulary which is distinctive of any particular denomination shall be taught in any board school. In the case of a school established by & united with the National Society, on the express condition that the children attending it were to be instructed in the Holy Scriptures & in the Liturgy & Catechism of the Church of England, the instrument declaring the trusts of the school providing that the school was to be always in union with, & conducted according to the principles of, & in furtherance of the ends & designs of, the National Society, but containing no provision whatever for its alienation:—Held: the consent of the National Society was not required to a transfer of the school to a school board, & the proper mode for the society to give effect to any objections to a transfer was by appearing before the Education Department. NATIONAL SOCIETY v. LONDON SCHOOL BOARD, A-G. v. ENGLISH (1874). L. R. 18 Eq. 608; 41 L. J. Ch. 229; 31 L. T. 22; 23 W. R. 2.

41. Management vested in subscribers —

Right to refuse new subscriber.—In a case in which the management of a school, & the right to appoint the teachers were, under a deed, vested in the subscribers to the school to the amount of 20s. & upwards:—Held: certain persons, on behalf of whom subscriptions were sent to the treasurer of the school on the day of the election of headmaster, with a view to their voting at such election, & whose subscriptions were returned by him to the person sending same, were not bona fide subscribers with a right to vote at such election.

to close school. A school committee is not justified in closing a school within its district on the ground of alleged illegal action of the education board in regard to appointments of pupil-teachers, & with the object of compelling the board to act in accordance with the committee's view of the law, even should the action of the board be in fact illegal & the view of the committee correct.—MARLBOROUGH EDUCATION

42. — Control of religious instruction—In accordance with trust deed.—Under a scheme confirmed by the Ct. of Ch. in 1845 provision was made for the maintenance of a day school at B. out of certain charitable funds. The scheme gave a preference to the vicar & churchwardens in the appointment of trustees, & provided that the master & mistress of the school should teach certain specified subjects & other such things as the trustees should direct, & that there should be read in the school a portion of the scriptures & suitable prayers every morning & evening. It also provided for the children going to church & Sunday school, but gave relief in this respect to the children of dissenters, & it placed the school under the superintendence of the clergymen of B. who was empowered to visit the school & instruct & examine the children. Since its foundation the school had been conducted as a Church of England School. Since 1871, except for a short interval, the school had been conducted as a public elementary school in receipt of a parliamentary grant. On the construction of the scheme:—Held: the school was intended to be carried on as a school at which religious instruction in accordance with the doctrine of the Church of England should be given & thereore, having regard to Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (6), the managers were entitled to authorise religious instruction of that character to be given by the regular teachers on weekdays during school hours.—*Re WREXHAM PAROCHIAL EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION, A-G. v. 45. — — — — ——Pltf. was engaged as master of a non-provided school under an agreement with the managers under which either party might terminate the agreement by giving three months' notice. An examination of the school in its proficiency in religious instruction was held by the assistant diocesan inspector who reported adversely upon the result of the examination. Pltf. wrote a letter of protest to the inspector in consequence of which the managers gave him three months' notice to determine his engagement. The consent of the local education authority was not given to the dismissal. There were six managers of the school, three of whom were irregularly elected. Upon action by pltf. to restrain the managers from acting upon the notice:—Held: (1) (PETERSON, J.) Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (1) (c), which provided that in the case of non-provided schools the consent of the local education authority should "be required to the dismissal of a teacher, unless the dismissal were on the grounds connected with the giving of religious instruction in the school" was merely a condition of the maintenance of the school by the local education authority, & did not confer any rights on a teacher as between him & the managers; (2) (CT. OF APPEAL) without deciding whether Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (1) (c), conferred any rights on teachers, upon the evidence the ground of dismissal here was "connected with the giving of religious instruction in the school" within sect. 7 (1) (c), & the consent of the local education authority to pltf.'s dismissal was not, therefore, necessary; (3) the notice of dismissal was not invalidated by the irregular election of three of the managers, having regard to Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), Sched. I., B. (3).—HARRIES v. CRAWFORD, [1918] 2 Ch. 158; 87 L. J. Ch. 485; 119 L. T. 200; 34 T. L. R. 448; 62 Sol. Jo. 621; 16 L. G. R. 663, C. A.; affd., [1919] A. C. 717; 88 L. J. Ch. 477; 121 L. 46. Statutory relations between local authority & managers—Confer no rights on teachers.—YOUNG v. CUTHBERT, No. 13, ante.

47. — — — — ——Pltf. was headmaster of a non-provided public elementary school. Under his agreement with the school managers he was liable to be given three months' notice by them terminating same. In May, 1912, defts. as the local education authority instructed the managers to dismiss pltf. Thereupon, the managers gave him three months' notice. Defts., however, allowed the operation of the notice to be suspended by the managers. In Oct. 1912, defts. again instructed the managers to dismiss pltf. "on educational grounds." In Dec. 1912, the managers appealed to the Board of Education under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (3). The Board of Education drew attention to the suspension of the notice, & added that no question had arisen unless the direction to dismiss was operative. In Mar. 1913, defts. again directed the managers to dismiss pltf. The managers declined to dismiss him, & asked for the actual grounds of defts.' requirements. In May, 1913, defts. gave, "on educational grounds," three months' notice to pltf., terminating his engagement. In June, 1913, the managers submitted to the Board of Education the question whether educational grounds existed:—Held: it not being challenged that the notice in question was given on any grounds other than those on which it was purported to be given—namely "educational grounds"—pltf. had made out no case for the interference of the ct.—MITCHELL v. EAST SUSSEX COUNTY COUNCIL (1913), 109 L. T. 778; 78 J. P. 41; 58 Sol. Jo. 66; 12 L. G. R. 1, C. A.

48. — — — — ——The provision contained in Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7 (1), requiring the consent of the local education authority to the dismissal of a teacher by the managers of a non-provided school on grounds not connected with the giving of religious instruction, was inserted, not in the interests of the teacher so as to give the teacher a right to be heard before such consent is given, but in the interest of the education authority so as to prevent instruction, for which they pay & are responsible, from being interfered with without their consent.

An agreement between the managers of a non-provided school & a teacher provided that the agreement might be determined by either party by three months' previous notice to the other party, & that, where such notice by the managers required the consent of the education authority, confirmation by such authority should be sufficient. The managers duly gave the teacher notice determining the agreement. Although the grounds of the dismissal were not stated, it was admitted that no misconduct was alleged & that the dismissal was not on the grounds connected with the giving of religious instruction. The teacher commenced the action to restrain the managers from proceeding until the consent of the education authority had been obtained & she had been heard in her own defence. Subsequently the education authority confirmed the dismissal:—Held: neither under her agreement nor under the above Act had pltf. any such right to be heard.—BLANCHARD v. DUNLOP, [1917] 1 Ch. 105; 85 L. J. Ch. 791; 115 L. T. 467; 81 J. P. 9; 15 L. G. R. 25, C. A.

B. Liability for Negligence.

50. Negligence of teacher—Injury to pupil.—Pltf. was a scholar in a voluntary school, & deft., as vicar of the parish, was a trustee of the school, & a member of the committee of management. Pltf. was injured by the fall of a blackboard which was being used by a pupil teacher, who was in charge of the class in which pltf. was. The schoolmistress was appointed by the committee of management, but neither they nor deft. had any control over the way in which the school was managed beyond the power of dismissing the mistress subject to an appeal by her to the bishop of the diocese:—Held: the mere fact of the fall of the board was not evidence of negligence on the part of the mistress or the pupil teacher; & if there had been negligence on the part of either of them deft. would not have been liable.—CRISP v. THOMAS (1890), 63 L. T. 756; 55 J. P. 261, C. A.

52. Negligence of managers—Injury to teacher.—Pltf., the head master of a non-provided school, sued the managers of the school for damages for personal injury occasioned by the bursting of a boiler. The defective condition of the boiler had been pointed out to some of the managers by pltf., but not to all those who were managers at the date of the accident. The managers relied on Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7, s-s. 1 (d), & further contended that pltf. accepted the risk, & that as he knew of the defective condition of the boiler he was debarred from recovering:—Held: (1) the managers were liable to keep the school-house in repair, whether required to do so by the local education authority or not; (2) the managers were not a legal body with succession, & so notice given to the managers at one time would not operate as against managers subsequently appointed; but (3) each manager had been guilty of negligence on appointment in not ascertaining & remedying the defect in the heating apparatus; (4) pltf. was not negligent & did not voluntarily incur the risk.—ABBOTT v. ISHAM (1920), 90 L. J. K. B. 309; 121 L. T. 734; 85 J. P. 30; 37 T. L. R. 7; 18 L. G. R. 719.

a. School fees—Non-resident pupils.]

The managers transferred the school, & "so far as they lawfully could," the endowment to the School Board for London, the latter undertaking the management, & in consideration of the endowment agreeing to pay the then master of the school a pension of £100 a year:—Held: the school had not by its transfer been "materially altered" within the meaning of the scheme, & the School Board were entitled to the £90 a year.—*LONDON SCHOOL BOARD v. 59. Whether consent of Charity Commissioners necessary—Action for account against official trustees by local authority—Transfer of income for benefit of local authority—Subsequent transfer of corpus to official trustees.—The buildings & the income of the endowments of a national school were leased by the managers to a school board, under the powers given by Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 23, for a term of years. At a subsequent date the then trustee of the endowments transferred them to the Charity Comrs., & defts., as official trustees of charitable trusts, received the income arising from the funds. The school board brought an action against defts. to recover the sums so received by them & for an inquiry as to the trust funds:—Held: the claim of plffs. was under the trusts affecting the endowments & not a relief sought adversely to a charity, & they were not entitled to bring the action without the consent of the Charity Comrs., under Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 17.—*LLANBADARNFAWR SCHOOL BOARD v. SECT. 1.—DUTY OF PARENT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See 1921 Act (c. 51), s. 42.

61. Duty to educate child.—In absence of reasonable excuse.—(1) The duty of a parent under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 70), s. 4, to cause his child to receive efficient elementary education is an absolute duty, unless the parent can show one of the reasonable excuses specified in sect. 11; & where the parent habitually & without such "reasonable excuse," though without personal default, neglects to provide such instruction, the ct. of summary jurisdiction ought to make an attendance order under sect. 11.

(2) The truancy of the child is not such "reasonable excuse."—LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. HEARN (1909), 78 L. J. K. B. 414; 100 L. T. 438; 73 J. P. 211; 25 T. L. R. 303; 7 L. G. R. 312, D. C.

62. Child in custody of mother.—Husband at sea.—The mother of a child having its actual custody & control is liable for neglecting to cause the child to attend school while her husband is at sea, whether or not he is the father of the child.—HANCE v. BURNETT (1880), 45 J. P. 51, D. C.

63. Child in custody of relations.—Liability of parent.—Resp. was summoned for non-compliance with an order under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 70), s. 11, to educate a child of which she was the parent. The child was not residing with resp., but with a relative, & the magistrate on that ground refused to convict:—Held: Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 3, which declared that the term parent should include "guardian & every person who is liable to maintain, or has the actual custody of any child," did not affect the primary liability of the parent, if there was one, & resp. ought to have been convicted.—LONDON SCHOOL BOARD v. JACKSON (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 502; 50 L. J. M. C. 134; 45 J. P. 750; 30 W. R. 47, D. C.

64. School attendance order.—Irregular attendance.—Habitual neglect of parent.—Proceedings for penalty not applicable.—A child above five years of age did not attend school, & the school board officer summoned the parent under a bye-law, & required a magistrate to order the parent under a penalty to cause the child to attend school. At the hearing it being proved that the parent habitually neglected to send the child to school:—Held: Elementary Education Act, 1816 (c. 79), s. 11, applied, & the remedy was not to proceed for a penalty under the bye-law, but to order the child to attend some certified efficient school.—Re MURPHY (1877), 2 Q. Neither of the children were in any employment, nor attending any school, nor had either of them obtained any certificate under sect. 5 of above Act:—Held: the words "any child who is under this Act prohibited from being taken into full time employment" applied to any child prohibited from being taken into employment by sect. 5, & therefore, an attendance order could be made in respect of each child.—*WINYARD v. 71. — Equipment of school inefficient. Magistrate may order attendance elsewhere.—Applt. was summoned for neglecting to provide efficient elementary instruction for a child. Evidence was given that the child was attending a private school where there was only one room which was contiguous to a factory, & that the general equipment was not efficient. It was also proved that the child was not being provided with efficient elementary instruction at the school in question. The magistrate found that applt., as the parent of the child, had habitually & without reasonable excuse neglected to provide efficient elementary instruction, & he made an order that the child should attend another school:—Held: even although the evidence as to the building & equipment of the school which the child was attending was irrelevant, the magistrate was justified in making the order in question.—SHIERS

72. — Form of order.—Evidence need not appear.—The education authority of the county borough of O. obtained an order against the parent of a defective child requiring him to send the child to a specified school until it attained the age of sixteen years. The parent disobeyed the order & sent the child, at the age of fourteen, to work in a mill. Upon an information being preferred against the parent for non-compliance with the order, it was urged on his behalf: that there was nothing in the order to show that the child had been found to be defective in intellect; that the child had regularly attended school as required by the Education Acts until it had attained the age of fourteen years; that the child was living apart from its parent & outside the jurisdiction of the ct.; & that the offence was of so trifling a nature that the parent ought not to be convicted. The justices were of opinion that the contentions of the parent were well founded & dismissed the information:—Held: (1) the order for attendance at school need not show upon the face of it the evidence upon which it had been made; (2) as the order had been regularly made, the only question which the justices had to decide was whether the order had or had not been obeyed; (3) since there had been a wilful disobedience of the order, the justices were not entitled to treat it as a trivial offence of such a character as to dismiss it under Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (c. 17), s. 1.—*RENNIE v. (b) that the child has been prevented from attending school by sickness or an unavoidable cause ;
(c) that there is no public elementary school open which the child can attend within two miles.

(3) From May 18 to Sept. 23 resp., an engine-driver caused, his child to be sent daily from home in time to arrive at school when it opened. He did not receive any notice that the child had not duly attended, except on two occasions. On both occasions resp.'s wife corrected the child. Nevertheless it often failed to attend school. At the hearing of an information, which charged that resp. on & ever since May 18 had neglected the bye-law in not causing this child to attend school, the justices found that he had done all that could reasonably be expected of him to secure the attendance of the child at school, & had reasonable grounds for believing, & did believe, the child was duly attending school, & had, therefore, a "reasonable excuse" for not causing the child to attend school :—Held : there might be other "reasonable excuses" within the meaning of the bye-law besides the three reasons therein specified, & the justices were right.—*HELPER SCHOOL ATTENDANCE COMMITTEE v. (2) The reasonable excuse referred to must be one of those described in sect. 11—namely—that there is not within two miles from the residence of such child any public elementary school which the child can attend, or that the absence of the child from school has been caused by sickness or any unavoidable cause.

(3) The parent of a child on whom an attendance order has been served under sect. 11 gave as an excuse that he had used every endeavour, short of taking the child to the school, to insure its regular attendance, but that the child had played truant against his wish :—Held : the failure to comply with the attendance order was without any "reasonable excuse" within the Act, & the magistrate had therefore jurisdiction to order the child to be sent to an industrial school.—*HEWETT v. Where it was shown that non-attendance was caused by the child, a girl aged twelve, with fair elementary instruction, having been in respectable employment, earning wages, which she gave to her parents, who were poor, industrious, & respectable people, & applied them to the support of their other children, whom otherwise, from no fault of the parents, they would have been unable sufficiently to support :—Held : these facts constituted a "reasonable excuse" for non-attendance.—*LONDON SCHOOL BOARD v. 79. ——— Child in beneficial employment—

What is beneficial employment—Nursing.]—Bye-laws were made by a local education authority under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 74, as amended by Education Acts, 1876 to 1902, by one of which it was provided that "The parent of every child of not less than five nor more than fourteen years of age shall cause such child to attend school unless there be a reasonable excuse for non-attendance." By another bye-law it was provided that "A child between thirteen & fourteen years of age shown to the satisfaction of the local authority to be beneficially employed shall not be required to attend school" if certain other conditions were complied with. By the direction of the local education authority a complaint was preferred before justices against a parent for unlawfully committing a breach of the bye-laws by not causing his daughter, a child between five & fourteen years of age, to attend school. Before the justices the parent stated in substance that he had kept the girl, who had attained the age of thirteen years & a half, at home owing to sickness in his family in order that she might help in nursing. The justices dismissed the complaint upon the ground that the prosecution had not proved that the child was not beneficially employed, & that if she were employed in nursing the sick it was beneficial employment. On appeal to a Div. Ct. :—Held : the decision of the justices was wrong upon the ground that the onus was on the parent of proving affirmatively that the child was beneficially employed, & under the bye-laws the education authority & not the justices were the judges of whether a particular occupation was or was not a beneficial employment, & in giving their decision upon that point the justices had usurped the function of the education authority.

They [the justices] will not be entitled to say generally that nursing is a reasonable excuse (LORD ALVERSTONE, C.J.).—HOLLOWAY v. CROW, [1911] 1 K. B. 636 ; 80 L. J. K. B. 153 ; 104 L. T. 73 ; 75 J. P. 77 ; 27 T. L. R. 140 ; 9 L. G. R. 80, D. C.

82. ———— Failure to send child to selected school.—[—Under the bye-laws of the S. School Board, the parent of every child not less than five or more than thirteen years of age shall cause such child to attend school unless there shall be a reasonable excuse for non-attendance. The child of applt. was ten years of age, & had up to May, 1898, attended at St. G. School, which was a voluntary & public elementary school, but had then been refused admission. The Education Department had confirmed the action of the managers in refusing admission. Since then applt. had & still declined to send the child to any other school than St. G. School. He had had notice of the managers' refusal, & was informed by the S. School Board that he must send his child to another school, & the board had mentioned to him certain schools within two miles that would receive the child. On several occasions applt. sent the child, between May & Sept., to the doors of St. G. School, but it was always refused admission.—Held: the offering did not constitute an attendance, & no reasonable excuse for the non-attendance had been proved.—JONES v. ROWLAND (1899), 80 L. Its condition was capable of remedy by means within the reach of the parent & might have been easily cured. Upon an information against the parent for not "causing the child to attend school," the justices were of opinion that the parent had used some means but not the best to cleanse the child & that its condition could have been cured, but they were also of opinion that the condition of the child would not have prevented it from receiving instruction, & they held that the refusal to admit the child was a "reasonable excuse" for non-attendance, & they dismissed the information.—Held: the parent having knowingly sent the child to school in such a condition that admission would be refused had not "caused the child to attend school" within the meaning of the bye-laws applicable, & that he had no "reasonable excuse" & ought to have been convicted.—WALKER v. CUMMINGS (1912), 107 L. T. 304; 76 J. P. 375; 28 T. L. R. 442; 10 L. G. R. 728; 23 Cox, C. C. 157, D. C.

84. ———— Failure to attend special class in another school.—[—The Board of Education's code of regulations for public elementary schools for 1912 provides for annual parliamentary grants to be given for special instruction in certain specified subjects, including cookery, which may be taught at centres to scholars from more than one school. Resp.'s daughter, aged eleven years, who ordinarily attended a public elementary school at L., had been selected by the local education authority with other scholars from that school to receive special instruction in cookery & to attend a cookery centre at a school at F., which was within two & a half miles of the child's residence. On a day when, as resp. knew, the child was required to attend the cookery centre at F. school, resp. sent the child to L. school, where she was refused admittance. Resp. was charged with having on the day in question unlawfully neglected & omitted to cause his child to attend school contrary to a bye-law of the local education authority.—Held: the attendance of the child at the F. school for the purpose of receiving instruction in cookery was compulsory & resp. had committed a breach of the bye-law.—BUNT v. A member of that Church desired to send his child to church on that day, & withdrew it from school for that purpose.—Held: (1) he was entitled to the protection of those sects. from prosecution under a bye-law which directed him to cause his child to attend school; (2) those facts constituted a "reasonable excuse" under that bye-law for withdrawing the child from school in order to attend one service.—MARSHALL v. Since the date of the attendance order the child had been withdrawn from the school mentioned in the order, & had been entered at another public elementary school of the local education authority, but had only attended 29 times in five weeks out of 46 times that the school was open.—Held: no reasonable excuse within sect. 12 of the above Act had been shown for non-compliance with the attendance order as the child was not attending the other school at which she had been entered so as to constitute a reasonable excuse.—ISLE OF WIGHT COUNTY COUNCIL v. Sect. 3.—Reasonable excuse for non-attendance.
Sect. 4. Part VI. Sects. 1, 2 & 3. Part VII.

Elementary Education Act, 1876 (c. 70), s. 12, for non-compliance with an attendance order:—Held: the parent was entitled to call witnesses for the purpose of showing that he was providing efficient elementary instruction for the child at home, inasmuch as the meaning of the expression "reasonable excuse" in sect. 12 of that Act was not confined to the two reasons mentioned in sect. 11 as being a reasonable excuse but included the reason mentioned in Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 74, namely, that the child was under efficient instruction in some other manner.—*R. v. 88. — By private teacher.—Efficiency question for magistrates.—By a bye-law made under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 74, as amended by Education Acts, 1876 to 1902, it was provided "that the parent of every child of not less than five years or more than fourteen shall cause such child to attend school unless there be a reasonable excuse for non-attendance," & that the following reason should be a reasonable excuse, namely, "that the child is under efficient instruction in some other manner." An information was laid charging a parent with having unlawfully & without reasonable excuse neglected & omitted to cause his child to attend school as required by the bye-law. The parent had arranged with a lady for the education of the child, & the justices found as a fact that the education the child was receiving was efficient & dismissed the information upon that ground:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to decide that the education the child was receiving was efficient without deciding that it was as efficient as he would have received at a public elementary school.—BEVAN v. SHIRARS, [1911] 2 K. B. 936; 80 L. J. K. B. 1325; 105 L. T. 795; 75 J. P. 478; 27 T. L. R. 516; 9 L. G. R. 1066, D. C.

89. — No school within three miles.—By nearest road. What constitutes a "road".—A bye-law of a local education authority provided that it should be a reasonable excuse for a child's not attending school if there was no elementary school within three miles, measured "according to the nearest road," from the child's residence. The route from a child's residence to a school consisted in part of a cart track which passed through a field forming part of a farm in the occupation of the child's father, & which constituted the approach to the house from the highway. The distance from the house to the school by this route was less than three miles:—Held: the word "road" in the bye-law was not confined to roads of any particular class & included a cart track of the above description, & the child was, therefore, not excused from attending the school.—HARES v. CURTIN, [1913] 2 K. B. 328; 82 L. J. K. B. 707; 108 L. T. 974; 76 J. P. 313; 10 L. G. R. 753; 23 Cox, C. C. 411, D. C.

90. — Child looking after younger children at home.—Applt., who was the father of a child of twelve years of age, failed after due notice to cause the child to attend a public elementary school. Applt. was an agricultural labourer earning 38s. a week & had a wife & seven children, of whom the eldest was fourteen years of age & earning 14s. a week. The second child, which was the child in question, was kept at home to look after the younger children during the mother's absence at work. Applt. had to pay 2s. 6d. a week for rent & £3 for food & clothing for himself & his family. On an information against applt. for failing to cause the second child to attend school without reasonable excuse, the justices held that the facts did not constitute a reasonable excuse & convicted him:—Held: the justices could not be said to have gone wrong in law, & the conviction must be affirmed.—NEAVE v. HILLS (1919), 121 L. T. 225; 83 J. P. 217; 17 L. G. R. 485, D. C.

91. — Verminous condition of children at school.—Admissibility of judicial evidence.—Applt., who was the matron & proprietress of a children's home containing a number of children, & was the lawful guardian of the children, was summoned for not sending certain of the children to school in breach of a bye-law providing that any of the following excuses should be a reasonable excuse; that the child was under efficient instruction in some other manner, & that the child had been prevented from attending school by sickness or any unavoidable cause. Applt. stated that she did not send the children to the school because there had been two cases of ringworm at the school, & she tendered the evidence of a doctor to show the alleged dirty & verminous condition of children at the school, but the justices refused to accept such evidence & convicted applt.:—Held: the evidence ought to have been admitted, & the case must be remitted to the justices to hear the evidence & to determine whether there was a reasonable excuse for non-attendance.—SYMES v. BROWN (1913), 109 L. T. 232; 77 J. P. 345; 29 T. L. R. 473; 11 L. G. R. 1171; 23 Cox, C. C. 519, D. C.

92. — Refusal of local authority to readmit child.—For non-compliance with directions.—Directions ultra vires.—An information was preferred by applt., a school attendance officer, against resp. for that he habitually & without reasonable excuse neglected to provide efficient elementary education for his daughter, a child of school age. She had suffered from ringworm, & having recovered was sent by resp. to school with a certificate from resp.'s own doctor, a duly qualified medical practitioner. She was refused admission on the ground that under art. 53 of the Code, the local education authority had directed that no children who had been suffering from disease should be readmitted if the school medical officer was not satisfied that such children could attend school without risk to themselves or others. They had further directed the school medical officer not to be satisfied in cases of skin diseases until the child had attended the clinic of a dermatologist employed by the local education authority & had been pronounced fit to return to school by him. Resp. was willing that the dermatologist should examine the child, either at home or at school, but would not consent to her attending a clinic established for children with infectious skin diseases as he considered there was risk of essential.—School Attendance Act enacts that a parent, etc., shall not be liable to penalty if "in the opinion of a school inspector, as certified in writing

... the child is under efficient instruction at home or elsewhere".—Held: the non-existence of the certificate by reason of its refusal by

re-infection. The local authority insisted on attendance at the clinic, & refused to readmit the child to school. After six months they took out this summons on which the justices refused to make an attendance order:—Held: the justices were right & the directions given to the school medical officer not to be satisfied except by the certificate of a particular dermatologist went far beyond anything contemplated by the Code, & there was abundant evidence on which the justices could find that resp. had reasonable excuse.—BOWEN v. HODGSON (1923), 93 L. J. K. B. 76; 130 L. T. 207; 87 J. P. 180; 40 T. L. R. 31; 68 Sol. Jo. 187; 21 L. G. R. 778; 27 Cox, C. C. 551, D. C.

The father died, leaving the child without any means of support, & there was no relation who was legally liable to maintain the child. The child's place of settlement was in S. The education authority claimed that the guardians of the S. Union were liable, under Elementary Education (Blind & Deaf Children) Act, 1893 (c. 42), s. 9 (1), to contribute towards the expenses of the maintenance & education of the child since the death of the father, as being "liable to maintain" the child & therefore, the "parent" within the sect., inasmuch as, if the child became chargeable, they would be bound to support him:—Held: the fact that, if the child became chargeable, the guardians of the union would be bound to support him did not make them "liable to maintain" him, & therefore, they were not the "parent" of the child within the sect. & were not liable to contribute towards the expenses.—*SOUTHWARK UNION v. 102. Overcrowding in day school—Nuisance—Order to Inspect—Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55).]

—Resp. was a mistress of a high school for girls where no boarders were received. A complaint having been received as to the over-crowding of the class-rooms, resp. refused to allow the inspector to enter. An application was made to the justices for an order under sect. 102 of the above Act, requiring resp. to admit the inspector to the school, & in support of such application a complaint on oath was made by the inspector. An order was made by the justices. Resp. appealed to quarter sessions, who were of opinion that the scholars attending the school were not "inmates" within sect. 91 (5) of the Act, & that applts. had not alleged the existence of any nuisance within the Act, or shown reasonable grounds for suspecting such a nuisance, & quashed the order of the justices:—Held: (1) "house" in sect. 91 (5) of the Act include a day school, & "inmates" include scholars; (2) where an application is made to a justice under sect. 102 of the Act for an order to enter premises where a nuisance is alleged to exist, the justice, although he has not to decide the fact of the existence of such a nuisance, may consider whether there are reasonable grounds for such suspicion, & receive evidence for that purpose; (3) if an order is made the form of the order should state that it is in reference to a particular subject-matter.—*WIMBLEDON URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL v. 103. Cleansing of verminous children—Service of notice—Local Act.]—By Liverpool Corporation Act, 1913 (c. lxxxi.), s. 35, if a child is found attending a public elementary school in a foul & filthy condition, the medical officer of health is authorised to serve a notice in writing upon the parent or guardian or other person having charge of the child requiring that the child shall have its person & its clothing properly cleansed within 24 hours of the service of the notice, & if the cleansing is not carried out by the parent or guardian, the medical officer of health may have the child cleansed. If after the child has been thus cleansed the parent or guardian allows it to get into a condition requiring a repetition of cleansing, he or she shall be liable to a penalty. The notice in writing is deemed to be properly served by giving it to the person to whom it is addressed, or by leaving it for such person with some inmate of his residence. A notice in accordance with the above sect., requiring that a certain child should be cleansed, was left at the residence of resp., D., addressed to him, & was taken in by the child who was the subject of the complaint, & who was, at the time, the only person in resp.'s place of residence:—Held: it was no objection to the service that the child referred to in the notice was the inmate who actually received the notice, & for the purpose of calculating the 24 hours required between the service of the notice & the time of cleansing, the period of 24 hours began to run from the time of the service upon the child at resp.'s residence.—HOPE v. DEVANEY (1914), 111 L. T. 571; 78 J. P. 343; 12 L. G. R. 1286; 24 Cox, C. C. 303.

104. —Refusal of child to submit to medical examination—Responsibility of parent.]—(1) Children Act, 1908 (c. 67), s. 122, empowers a local education authority to direct their medical officer to examine in any public elementary school the person & clothing of any child attending the school, with a view to the cleansing of verminous children. Applt.'s daughter, aged twelve years, ordinarily attended a public elementary school in the borough of H. On three successive occasions, acting under the instructions or guidance of applt., she refused to submit to the medical examination directed by the local education authority in accordance with the above sect. She was accordingly reported to the education authority, & they excluded her from the school for persistent insubordination, informing applt. of their resolution. Applt. subsequently sent her to the school, but she was refused admittance. He was then charged with having unlawfully & without reasonable cause failed to comply with an attendance order previously made by the borough justices & was convicted by them:—Held: applt. had not taken reasonable steps to comply with the order & was rightly convicted.

(2) Sect. 122 of the Act imports an obligation upon the child to submit to the examination therein directed, & if a child, acting under the instructions or guidance of its father, refuses to submit, the father becomes responsible for the refusal.

108. Right of local authority to regulate—Validity of bye-law.—By Workshop Regulation Act, 1867 (c. 146), s. 14, every child "employed in a workshop shall attend school for at least ten hours in every week." By Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 74, every school board may make bye-laws. The school board for B. by its bye-laws directed that the parents of every child should cause him to attend a school during the whole time it should be open for instruction, but that nothing in the bye-laws should have any effect in so far as it might be contrary to anything contained in any Act for regulating the education of children employed in labour. Resp.'s child was employed in a workshop at B. & attended a school pursuant to sect. 14 of the former Act, but did not attend the school during the whole time it was open by the bye-laws:—Held: the bye-laws were not contrary to that Act & were capable of being enforced, & resp. had committed a breach of them. —BURY v. CHERRYHOLM (1876), 1 Ex. D. 457; 35 L. T. 403; 41 J. P. 21, D. C.

109. ——— Application of Factory Acts.

—(1) A school board is not entitled to enforce the provisions of its bye-laws with regard to the hours of attendance of children at school, in the case of children employed in factories who are attending efficient elementary schools pursuant to Factory Acts.

110. ————(1) A school authority, acting under powers conferred by Elementary Education Acts, made bye-laws applicable to children up to fourteen years of age. The bye-laws contained a proviso that a child between twelve & fourteen years of age should not be required to attend school, if such child had received a certificate that it had reached the sixth standard; but they contained no provision giving total exemption from the obligation to attend school to a child between twelve & fourteen who had only obtained the certificate of previous due attendance at school referred to in Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), s. 71:—Held: a child of thirteen years of age, who had obtained a certificate of previous due attendance, but had not received a certificate of having reached the sixth standard, could not lawfully be employed in a factory on full time; (2) the bye-laws contained no provision for partial exemption from the obligation to attend school in the case of a child of the age of twelve who had received a certificate of previous due attendance at school:—Held: notwithstanding the absence of any such provision in the bye-laws, such a child might lawfully be employed in a factory on half time, inasmuch as Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), s. 68, by making provision for the compulsory education of half-timers, necessarily sanctioned partial exemption. —*STEVENSON v. 112. ————One of the bye-laws of a local education authority providing that "a child under fourteen, shall not be employed on school days except between 5 p.m. & 6.30 p.m." is neither ultra vires nor unreasonable, & a person who employs such a child to deliver milk between 8 a.m. & 9 a.m. on a school day contravenes it. —*ROBERTS v. 113. ——— On report of medical officer—Production of report before magistrates.—Pursuant to Education Act, 1918 (c. 39), s. 15 (1), a local education authority passed a resolution which stated that they, being satisfied by a report of the school medical officer that a certain child was being employed in a manner prejudicial to his health & physical development, thereby prohibited his employment; & notice of the resolution was served upon the employers of the child. At the hearing by justices of an information at the instance of the authority against the employers for an alleged contravention of the Act in employing the child contrary to the resolution, the justices required the authority to produce the report mentioned in the resolution or other evidence upon which they had acted in passing the resolution, but the authority refused to do so, & the justices thereupon dismissed the information. On a case stated by the justices:—Held: the justices were entitled to require the authority to produce the report or other evidence upon which they had relied, & on their failure to do so the justices had rightly dismissed the information. —*MARGERISON v. 115. — Child doing light work—On medical advice.—A father whose child of the age of thirteen was subject to fits, acting on medical advice, allowed such child to come into his workshop when he pleased & do such work as he was minded & able to do. He never compelled the child to work or go into the workshop :—Held : the father had not taken the child into his employment within Elementary Education Act, 1876 (c. 79), s. 47.—R. v. AUSTIN, Ex p. LEAH (1906), 96 L. T. 29 ; 71 J. P. 29 ; 5 L. G. R. 126 ; 21 Cox, C. C. 347, D. C.

116. Employment by agent -- Responsibility of employer.—By a bye-law made under Employment of Children Act, 1903 (c. 45), s. 3 (1), no child shall be employed between certain hours ; & by sect. 6, sub-sect. 3, of the Act, "where an employer is charged" with any offence under the Act he shall be entitled upon information laid by him to have the person whom he charges as the actual offender brought before the ct., & if "after the commission of the offence has been proved" the ct. is satisfied that the employer had used due diligence to comply with the provisions of the Act, & that the other person had committed the offence in question without the employer's knowledge, consent, or connivance, the other person shall be summarily convicted of the offence, & the employer shall be exempt from any fine. A vanman in the employment of resp., a baker, employed for his own convenience & benefit a child to deliver bread to resp.'s customers during hours forbidden by the bye-law. The child was actually engaged & his wages paid by the vanman, & his engagement was a voluntary & gratuitous act on the part of the vanman & formed no part of any arrangement between him & resp. Resp. had no knowledge that the child was so employed except during permitted hours. Resp. was charged with having unlawfully employed the child during prohibited hours contrary to the bye-law :—Held : (1) the mere fact that resp. was charged with the offence did not, in the absence of any evidence of a contract of employment of the child during prohibited hours by or on behalf of resp., make it incumbent upon him, under sect. 6, sub-sect. 3, of the Act, in order to claim exemption from a fine, to charge the vanman as the actual offender ; (2) as there was no evidence of any unlawful employment of the child by resp., either directly or by an agent purporting to employ the child on his behalf, no offence by resp. had been proved.—*ROBINSON v. Therefore, the remedy of a person whose lands are injuriously affected by the works of the school board, but no part of whose land is taken, is by proceeding for compensation under sect. 68 of the Former Act, & not by bill for an injunction.—*CLARK v. b. Acquisition of land—By school trustees—Reference to freeholders.—A board of school trustees cannot, under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 48, & 16 Vict. c. 185, without any reference to the freeholders, select & purchase the site for the school house, & impose a rate therefor.—DAVEY v. RANSKY (1855), 12 U. C. R. 377.—CAN.

c. — Order on municipality to pay cost.—The trustees of a school sect. in an incorporated village applied to the village municipality to levy a sum required for a school site which they had contracted to purchase. The municipality refused :—Held : the trustees should first have given an order to the person from whom they had agreed to purchase, upon the treasurer of the municipality.—RE GALT SCHOOL TRUSTEES & VILLAGE OF GALT (1858), 13 U. d. — Liability of town council to pay cost.—The communication of a board of trustees to the town council of a resolution of the board, that the chairman do authorise the secretary of the board to notify the town council to furnish the board with a sum of money immediately to purchase a site & erect a school house is not such compliance with 13 & 14 Vict. c. 48, as to render the council liable to be compelled to pay the amount by mandamus.—PORT HOPE SCHOOL TRUSTEES v. PORT HOPE TOWN (1856), 4 C. P. 418.—CAN.

e. — Repudiation of contract.—A school trustee, by desire of the board, bought for the board property for a school site, & signed the contract with his own name only. The board during three years, unanimously recognised the purchase as their own, & paid three instalments of the purchase money. Trustees were afterwards elected, a majority of whom determined to repudiate the purchase. In a suit against the board by the purchaser :—Held : purchaser was entitled to indemnification in respect of remainder of the purchase money.—SMITH v. BELLEVILLE SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1869), 16 Gr. 130.—CAN.

f. — Approval of school electors.—At two meetings of the duly-qualified electors of the school section, proposals to purchase a site, build a school house, & borrow money therefor, were carried, upon which a bye-law was passed, authorising the issue of debentures to raise money for the above purposes :—Held : this was a sufficient submission to & approval of the proposal by the duly-qualified school electors of the section.—MCCORMICK & TOWNSHIP OF COLCHESTER SOUTH (1881), 46 U. m. — Le B. conveyed land to the municipal council of the district of D., on condition of their erecting within a year a school house thereon. The deed did not state that it was to be a model school house, but that was the only school they could then establish. The land formed part of what was afterwards incorporated as the town by B. & subsequently the city of O., while the district of D. became the county of C. 37 Vict. c. 28 (O), empowered the public school board of the city to take possession of all public school property, & to hold,

as a corporation, all such property acquired or given at any time for public purposes in the city by any title whatsoever. Defts. took possession, claiming the land as being vested in them under this Act, & plffs. then brought ejectment:—Held: plffs. were entitled to recover. — CARLETON COUNTY v. OTTAWA PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD (1875), 25 C. P. 137.—CAN.

n. — Objection to validity of.]—The principal objection to land being taken for a school site was that it was an orchard, but the facts showed that the owner had only, after the selection was first spoken of, planted some trees, which, on the movement to take the land being stopped, were suffered to die out; & these were renewed on a subsequent movement of the trustees to take possession:—Held: this was not such orchard as should prevent the trustees from appropriating the land for school purposes. — JOHNSON v. HOWARD SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1878), 26 Gr. 201.—CAN.

o. — Conviction for wrongful acquisition.]—A conviction under school Act, Sask., s. 50, was quashed because (1) it stated that the accused, "did proceed to acquire" a school site whereas the offence under the Act was for "acquiring" a school site in violation of the Act, & (2) because accused did not "acquire" a site but built on a site previously acquired. — R. v. ALLPRESS (1920), 1 W. W. R. 723.—CAN.

p. Change of site. — Power of county council. — Union of grammar school with common school.]—The power of a county council to change the site of a grammar school is not lost by the union of the grammar school with a common school; though, if the new site is not also adopted by the means provided by law for the case of a common school, the change may render necessary the separation of the schools. — *MALCOLM v. t. — Approval of municipal council. — Issue of certificate.]—Trustees of a school district took proceedings to select a new school site, & the council of the municipality approved of a new site. No certificate of approval was asked for or issued. Before any steps were taken towards acquiring the site, proceedings for the determination of a school site were again commenced, & the municipal council approved of the old site. A certificate of approval was asked for & issued:—Held: the second proceedings were regular & the certificate of approval was sufficient authority to the trustees to proceed to erect the building on the old site. — *CARMAN v. 126. — Intermediate school.—A county council were the local education authority & also the governing body of an intermediate school erected under Welsh Intermediate Education Act, 1889 (c. 40). Further accommodation being required for that school, & there being no facilities for teaching subjects like laundry & cookery to girls, & wood-carving & woodwork to boys, in eight schools, in four parishes adjacent to the place where the intermediate school was situated, the county council decided with the approval of the Board of Education to erect new buildings for the intermediate school to be used for both elementary & secondary school purposes. About 240 elementary pupils from the eight schools in the four parishes attended the school. The secondary pupils used the whole of the first floor, & the elementary pupils used part of the ground floor. Only the special subjects mentioned above were taught to the elementary pupils; the provisions of the Day School Code were never complied with in the building in question. The expense of erecting the building was met by a loan repayable by annual sums representing a sinking fund & interest. The county council sought to levy, under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 18 (1) (8), a portion of that annual sum by means of a rate on the four parishes from which

VII. c. 39, ss. 65 (9) & 71 (1), which provide that the public school trustees are to submit to the municipal council an estimate of the expenses of the schools under their charge for the current year, & that the council shall levy & collect upon the taxable property of the municipality such sums as may be required by the trustees, & shall pay the same to the treasurer of the public school board—the right of the school board in preparing their estimate, is to include therein everything that in their best judgment may be needed to meet legitimate expenditure. The right & duty of the council is to examine the estimate so far as to ascertain that it is for purposes intra vires of the school board. The council has no voice in the control or management of the affairs which are committed by law to the school board; its duty is to levy & collect & pay out, from time to time, as required, the moneys shown by the estimate to be necessary for lawful school purposes.—Re TORONTO PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD & TORONTO CITY (1903), 22 C. u. ——The effect of School Assessment Ordinance, C. O. c. 105, s. 24, & of Municipal District Act, c. 49, 1918, ss. 295 & 308, is that a municipality is liable for the payment to the trustees of the school districts therein of the amounts covered by the trustees' requisitions, but that to indemnify itself against that liability it can & must collect from the ratepayers of the districts the amount of the requisitions, making due allowance for non-payment of the taxes. The accounts between the municipality & a school district are open running accounts, which are never closed. If, at any time, there is a balance to the credit of the district, it should be utilised in meeting the next requisition. A school tax levy is illegal when the municipality has on hand to the credit of the district funds more than ample to meet the requisitions.—Re SPRUCE GROVE & HURON SCHOOL DISTRICT & SPAN SCHOOL DISTRICT RURAL MUNICIPALITY, [1919] 1 W. v. ——Public Schools Act, s. 57 (c), declares the duty of the trustees of rural school districts to call on the municipal council to levy & collect by rate, sums required for school purposes during the year, but regard must be paid to ss. 203 224 dealing with the borrowing of money & creation of debt, & by which borrowing money for the purchase of a school site or the erection of a school-house or for other purposes mentioned is restricted to $5,000 if the bye-law is not submitted to a vote of the ratepayers; where a bye-law to issue debentures for $30,000 for the purchase of a site & the erection of a school-house was twice defeated by a vote of the ratepayers.—Held: it was ultra vires for the trustees to request the municipality to raise $30,000 for the purpose by a levy in a single year.—*PHILLIPS v. d. ——Time for submission.—By 22 Vict. c. 37, the mayor, etc., of St. John, were authorised, "on or before Apr. 1, in each year," to assess the city for certain purposes. By Common Schools Act, 1871, s. 58, the board of trustees was authorised to determine annually the amount required for the support & maintenance of schools, etc., in the district, & "previous to the order for assessment for general city purposes," notify the common council of the amount required, & the council was to cause the same to be levied & collected at the time of levying & collecting other city taxes.—Held: the Act was imperative as to the time of notifying the common council of the amount required for school purposes; & therefore, where the general city assessment was ordered on Mar. 3, but the board of trustees did not notify the council of the amount required for schools till Apr. 25, an assessment made for the latter purpose was bad.—*Ex p. Industrial schools—Removal of child from immoral surroundings—Magistrates bound to order—Mother's consent not necessary.—If it can be proved that a child under fourteen years of age brought before a magistrate under Industrial Schools Acts, 1866 (c. 115) & 1880 (c. 15), is living in a house resided in or frequented by prostitutes for the purpose of prostitution, the magistrate is bound to make an order for his or her removal to an industrial school, even although such child there is imposed upon the Minister by School Act, II. s. A., 1922, c. 51, s. 71, a judicial duty to determine the due proportion of the assets & liabilities of the district from which the portion is withdrawn which belong to the area withdrawn or the district to which it is added, & to prescribe the method of adjusting the same.—R. l. Aid to supplement government grant.—How assessed. The three united counties of S. D. & G. were formed into five high school districts:—Held: under 36 Vict. c. 48, s. 383, ss. 6, & 37 Vict. c. 27, s. 45 (O), the aid granted by the corpn. to the high schools to supplement the govt. grant must be by an equal rate upon the assessable property of the united counties, not upon each high school district for the sum apportioned to its schools.—Re CHAMBERLAIN & COUNTIES OF STORMONT, DUNDAS & GLENAGARRY (1877), 42 U. m. Bound to support model school.—In town within its territorial limits.—The town of T. territorially within the limits of the county of Y., but a separate town within the provisions of the Municipal Act, & as a municipality not under the jurisdiction of the county council, is yet part of the county, within the meaning of 1 Edw. n. Apportionment of school funds—Validity of bye-law.—A township bye-law enacted that the interest arising on the invested funds for schools in a township should be apportioned on & according to the numbers of days the schools had been open in each half year. o. Common school fund—Provincial contributions—Arbitration.—By submission the provinceness of O. & Q. referred the "ascertainment & determination of the amount of the principal of the common school fund & the method of computing" interest thereon, & of the amount for which O. was liable:—Held: a claim by Q. that O. should be debited with a claim for wilful neglect & in the nature of damages, not suggested in but heterogeneous to the matters actually specified in the submission, was not, on its true construction, included therein.—A.-G. FOR ONTARIO v. A.-G. FOR QUEBEC, (1903) A. C. 39.—CAN.

p. District municipality—Liability for resident children.—Attending city schools.—Under Public Schools Act, R. S. B. C., c. 208, s. 15, a city municipality may claim a contribution from a district municipality for the expense of educating children who reside in the district municipality but attend the public schools of the city municipality.—VICTORIA v. OAK BAY DISTRICT, [1918] 1 W. W. R. 158; 38 D. L. R. 238; 21 B. C. R. 516.—CAN.

q. Upon the taking over of the school by the School Board under School Board Act, 1905, the Council claimed from that body the sums so expended as liabilities of the old school committee:—Held: the Council had supplied the furniture & the funds to the school because it had a legal obligation to do so; there was no resulting liability to the Council on the part of the committee, & therefore no liability on the part of the School Board.—MOLTESO SCHOOL BOARD v. MOLTESO MUNICIPALITY (1912), App. D. 772.—S. AF.

PART XII. SECT. 1.

r. Reformatory schools—Order for detention—Appeal.—The right of appeal given by Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, s. 43 (11), is not limited to cases where a fine or imprisonment is imposed. An appeal lies to quarter sessions from a conviction & sentence imposing detention in a reformatory under (Children Act, 1908, s. 57.—R. (HIGGINS) v. DUBLIN JJ., [1917] 2 L. R. 45.—IR.

s. Inapplicable to minor offenders.—Held: minor offences did not come within Reformatory Schools Act, 1866, s. 14, which was intended to apply to minor grades of serious crimes.—McQUIRE v. FAIRBAIRN (1881), 9 R. (C. of Sess.) 4; 19 Sc. L. R. 72.—SCOT.

t. Industrial schools—Warrant bad is living in such house with his or her mother who is not a prostitute. The consent of the mother to such removal is not necessary.—HISCOCKS v. JERMONSON (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 360; 52 L. J. M. 131. — Magistrates must issue summons against child—Warrant on non-appearance.—Industrial Schools Act, 1886 (c. 118), s. 14, provides that there shall be a power to any person to bring before two justices or a magistrate, any child, apparently under the age of fourteen years, that comes within certain descriptions therein set out, to which Industrial Schools Act Amendment Act, 1880 (c. 15), s. 1, adds the following descriptions, namely, "that is lodging, living, or residing with common or reputed prostitutes, or in a house resided in or frequented for the purpose of prostitution; or that frequents the company of prostitutes." The ct. is always desirous of doing all that can be done to carry out the beneficent object of these Acts, & will require justices to whom complaint has been made to issue a summons against the child. If the child does not appear, then a warrant may be issued to bring her before the justices.—HAMPSHIRE JJ., Re A FEMALE CHILD (1888), 52 J. P. 311.

132. — Private person may institute proceedings—Application to local authority not necessary.—(1) Any private person may bring a child before the justices with a view to the justices sending such child to an industrial school.

(2) It is not necessary to show that an application has been made to the local authority requiring such local authority to bring the child before the justices.—WALKER v. LAXTON (1894), 70 L. T. 690; 58 J. P. 571; 10 R. 404, D. C.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. R. v. Stewart (1896), 65 L. J. M. C. 83.

133. — Failure of criminal charge—Fresh summons not necessary.—Industrial Schools Act, 1886 (c. 118), does not contain a code of criminal procedure & is not punitive in its character, but is intended for the protection of children coming within its operation. Where, therefore, a child apparently under fourteen years of age is charge before a ct. of summary jurisdiction with larceny, & the charge is dismissed, but evidence is given that he frequents the company of reputed thieves, he may be sent to an industrial school under s. 14 of the Act, upon an application under that sect. without being brought afresh before the ct. by summons or otherwise.—R. v. JENNINGS, [1896] 1 Q. B. 64; 65 L. J. M. C. 26; 73 L. T. 412; 18 Cox, C. C. 205; sub nom. R. v. JENNINGS, ETC. DEVONSHIRE JJ., Ex p. SYMONS, 60 J. P. 199; 44 W. R. 128; 12 T. L. R. 37; 40 Sol. 134. — Child convicted of offence punishable by imprisonment—Power of magistrates to send child to industrial school.—Under Children Act,

1908 (c. 67), s. 58 (3), justices have jurisdiction to order a child to be sent to a certified industrial school, as well where he has been guilty of an offence the maximum punishment of which would in the case of an adult be less than penal servitude, as where he has been guilty of an offence which in the case of an adult would be punishable with penal servitude.—*TYDEMAN v. 135. How determined—"Constructive residence" with parents—Children Act, 1908 (c. 67), s. 74 (7).—The words "place of residence of a youthful offender" in sect. 74 (7), of the above Act, mean the place where the youthful offender is actually living. Therefore if he is not in fact living with his parents he cannot be considered as constructively residing with them.—STOCK-ON-TRENT BOROUGH COUNCIL v. CHESHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL, [1915] 3 K. 136. ——A child, on being charged with certain offences, was ordered to be sent to an industrial school, his residence being specified in the order in accordance with sect. 74 (2) of the above Act, as being in the district of resps. Resps. thereupon applied under sect. 74 (7) of the Act for an order transferring the liability to maintain the child to appls., on the ground that the child resided at S. in the West Riding. At the hearing it was proved that before Dec. 1910 the child resided with his father & stepmother at S. but since the war the father had been absent on military service. About Dec. 1910, the child ran away to his aunt at C., having stolen articles from his parents' house, & his aunt wrote to his stepmother to take him back. His father, on hearing of the matter, wrote to the police to take him into custody, & he stated in evidence that if he had been at home he would have fetched the child back, & that he never intended the child to stay at C. The child slept & had his meals at his aunt's house, & work was procured for him in C. & his employers would have kept him permanently if he had been suitable. After working for three days the child committed a theft at C. for which he was arrested in form—Habeas corpus—P., an infant under the age of 11 years, was detained under a warrant which stated that he had been "found wandering about the streets." & was committed to an industrial school as above stated. The justices found that as the child left S. against his father's wishes the child was resident at S. at the time of the offence, & they made an order transferring to applts. the liability for his maintenance. By sect. 74 (8) of the above Act, "For the purpose of the foregoing provisions of this section a youthful offender or child shall be presumed to reside in the place where the offence was committed, or the circumstances which rendered him liable to be sent to a certified school occurred, unless it is proved that he resided in some other place":—Held: there was evidence on which the justices could find as a fact that at the time of the offence the child resided at his father's house at S. & therefore their decision must be affirmed.—*YORKSHIRE WEST RIDING COUNCIL v. 137. — Presumption as to residence—Children Act, 1908 (c. 67), s. 74.—On Apr. 18, 1918, a boy was convicted of larceny by the stipendiary magistrate of B. & ordered to be sent to a reformatory school, his place of residence being specified as H. The magistrate on July 3, 1918, on the application of the S. Corpn., under sect. 74 (7) of the above Act, decided that the residence of the boy was L., & transferred the liability for his maintenance from the corpn. of S. to that of L. The latter appealed. The facts were that the boy, having been convicted of larceny by the H. justices on Nov. 27, 1917, was placed on probation in L. He remained there until Mar. 7, 1918, when he absconded, & on Mar. 11 he went to B., where he obtained work. He remained at B. until Apr., except for several short absences, when he returned to B. On Apr. 18, 1918, he was convicted & ordered to be sent to a reformatory school as above stated:—Held: there was evidence before the magistrate upon which he could find that the residence of the boy was L., the presumption being displaced of residence in the place where the offence was committed, & the ct. could not interfere with his decision.—*LEICESTER CORPN. v. 138. — — On Feb. 15, 1922, a child, apparently under the age of twelve years, was charged with larceny at B., where he then resided, & was placed on probation, one of the conditions of his recognisance being that he should report any change of address to the probation officer. After other changes which he failed to report, he came to L. & resided in applts. area with his parents. In Feb. 1923, he was arrested & charged at B. with a breach of recognisance, & was ordered to be sent to a certified industrial school, the place of residence specified in the order being in H. Applts. applied under Children Act, 1908 (c. 67), s. 74 (7) to the B. ct. to transfer the liability to maintain to B. on the ground that he resided there at the time of the larceny in 1922. The stipendiary declined to transfer the liability, but stated a case:—Held: (1) the breach of the recognisance was neither an "offence" nor yet a "circumstance which rendered him liable to be sent to a certified school"; (2) it was the original larceny in B. which rendered him liable to be sent to a certified industrial school: under Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (c. 17), s. 6 (5), it was only the original offence for which he could be sentenced on the breach of his recognisance; (3) his residence at the date of the original offence was that which determined liability to maintain, & residence at the date of the breach of recognisance was immaterial.—*LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. SECT. 3.—DISTRICT BOARDS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

141. Dissolution of district—Effect on Board of Management—Vesting of property.—(1) A school district formed under sect. 40 of Poor Law Amendment Act, 1844 (c. 101), & the board of management for that district formed under sect. 42 of that Act, are distinct & separate entities, the latter being by sect. 45 of the same Act constituted a corp'n. to hold the property of the district; & when the district is dissolved by virtue of an order of Local Government Board made under sect. 1 of Metropolitan Poor Amendment Act, 1869 (c. 63), the corp'n. created by sect. 45 of the Act of 1844 remains in existence.

(2) In such a case the property of the district does not automatically vest in the last acting managers of the corp'n. by virtue of the words "shall be transferred to & vested in" in sect. 12 of the Dissolved Boards, etc., Act, 1870 (c. 2), but must be transferred to them or to other parties, as the case may be, by a proper document, & the last acting managers or the survivors of them, as the last acting corporators, can for that purpose affix the seal of the corp'n. to the document.

Qu. : (3) whether the Local Government Board, when they have issued an order under sect. 1 of the Act of 1869 dissolving & fixing a date for the dissolution of a school district, have power from time to time by subsequent orders to postpone the date of dissolution; (4) whether, when an order is issued under sect. 1 of the Act of 1869, dissolving a school district, the Local Government Board ought not, "prior to" issuing such order, make an order under the sect. for the sale of the property of the managers of the district & the application of the proceeds.

Semble : when the Local Government Board make an order under sect. 1 of the Dissolved Boards, etc., Act, 1870 (c. 2), extending the period for which the last acting managers of a dissolved district are to continue in office, the order should follow the words of the sect., & should state the "special purpose" for which the last acting managers are to continue to act.—MORTON v. 144. — Residence at—What constitutes—Mandamus.—Rule to show cause why a mandamus should not issue to Oxford University Hebdomadal Council & Vice-Chancellor. E. was the vicar of F., which was distant nine miles from Oxford, & he resided at the parsonage house; but he rented a set of rooms within St. John's College, of which he was a resident fellow, which he had furnished, & for which he paid rent, & which were not occupied by any one else. When he visited Oxford, he sometimes slept there, but he generally returned to F. the same day:—Held: there must be an actual as distinguished from a constructive residence, & E. was not a resident within Oxford University Act, 1854 (c. 81), s. 48.—R. v. OXFORD (VICE-CHANCELLOR) (1872), 1 L. R. 7 Q. B. 471; 26 L. T. 506; 38 J. P. 520.

145. — Religious tests for fellows—Universities Tests Act, 1871 (c. 26)—Newly created college.—By Hertford College Act, 1874 (c. 55), Magdalen Hall in the University of Oxford was dissolved, Hertford College created & the property of Magdalen Hall transferred to Hertford College. An endowment for a lay fellowship restricted to members of certain specified churches was afterwards accepted by Hertford College. T., who was not a member of any of the specified churches tendered himself for examination as a candidate & was informed that he might be examined if he desired it, but he must understand that he would not be elected even if he stood at the head of the list. T. did not present himself for examination & M. a duly qualified candidate was elected after examination to the fellowship. After the election T. applied to the Q. B. Div. for a mandamus:—Held: (1) there was no refusal to examine T.; (2) assuming that T. was refused examination, the office being full of a candidate properly qualified, a mandamus would not lie commanding the college to examine T., & to proceed to an election; & T.'s remedy if any, was by way of appeal to the visitor; (3) the operation of 1871 Act is confined to colleges subsisting before it was passed & the Act does not prevent the creation in the universities of fresh colleges, the endowments of which are confined to the members of a particular religious community; (1) 1871 Act is not incorporated with 1874 Act, & sect. 13 of the latter Act which provides that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to repeal any of the provisions of 1871 Act does not render Hertford College a "subsisting college" within the former statute.—R. v. HERTFORD COLLEGE (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 693; 47 L. J. Q. B. 649; 39 L. T. 18; 42 J. P. 772; 27 W. R. 347, C. A.

146. — — — — ——By a will dated in 1723, lands were directed to be purchased & conveyed to pltf. corp., upon trust to divide the rents & profits between ten of the servitors of Christ Church College in Oxford, to be recommended by the dean & certain other members of the college, a. University of Toronto—Status of Governors.—Held: the Governors of the university of Toronto were a body corporate, liable to be sued as such & were in no sense Crown officers, even though appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.—*SCOTT v. 1. Queen's University—Power to accept supplemental charter—Right of private persons to sue.—A petition was filed by three graduates of the Queen's University praying that it might be declared that the Supplemental Charter of 1866 was inconsistent with that of 1864; that the resolution of the senate accepting the Supplemental Charter might be declared void; & for an injunction against doing any act to accept the same, or conferring any degrees in pursuance of its provisions. To this suit the university & members of the senate were made parties resp., but the Attorney-General was not a party.—Held: the suit should have been by information in the name of the Attorney-General, & the petition was unsustainable for want of interest in the petitioners.—MACCORMACK v. QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY (1867), 1 L. R. Eq. 160.—IR.

g. Dublin University—Power of Crown to alter charter.—Where the Crown has created a corp., by charter it cannot alter or recall the charter except in three cases: (1) where the Crown has in the original charter (or in a subsequent charter made valid by acceptance) expressly reserved power to alter the charter; (2) where the corp., is wholly or partially

"for their sobriety, diligence at their studies, & of parts fit for a minister of the gospel & designed for holy orders." This benefaction was known as the Pouncefort Charity. By the Universities of Oxford & Cambridge Act, 1877 (c. 48), comrs. were appointed to make statutes for the universities & colleges, & they were empowered to make provision for altering the conditions of eligibility to any emolument or office held in any college, & for modifying the conditions of any college endowment; but they were to have regard to the main design of the founder, except where the conditions affecting the emolument had been altered in substance by or under any other Act; then a certain time was allowed for appealing against the proposed statutes; & it was provided that every statute approved by Order in Council should be effectual notwithstanding any instrument of foundation. By a statute made for Christ Church in pursuance of this Act, & duly approved, the Pouncefort benefaction was to be applied to the support of the college exhibitioners, without any condition being attached as to taking holy orders. Upon a summons by plffs. to determine the question whether the condition as to holy orders ought still to be observed:—Held: without deciding whether the trust was affected by the Universities Tests Act, 1871 (c. 26), that the statute was binding upon plffs., & the condition as to holy orders was no longer in force.—*Re POUNCEFORT, SONS OF GLEGGY CORPN. v. The majority of the corp. of Trinity College, Dublin, proposed to affix the corporate seal of the college to an application to the King for a King's Letter altering the constitution of the corp. without the consent & against the protest of a minority:—Held: the ct. ought not to, & could not, restrain the action of University of London—Nomination to Council of Medical Education—Vests in senate.—By Medical Act (c. 90), s. 4, the General Council of Medical Education & Registration is to consist of one person chosen from time to time by each of the several bodies therein named, & amongst them, by the University of London:—Held: the authority to choose such member is vested in the Senate, consisting of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor & Fellows for the time being, & not in the whole body of graduates of the university.—R. v. STORRAR (1859), 2 E. & B. 133; 28 L. J. Q. B. 326; 33 L. T. O. S. 250; 5 Jur. N. S. 1301; 7 W. R. 612; 121 E. R. 51.

151. ——— Jurisdiction of courts—In matters within jurisdiction of visitor.—The University of London conferred upon plff. a gold medal, as being the candidate who had obtained the highest number of marks in the examination of 1861 for the LL.D. degree. Two years afterwards, it was discovered by the Senate of the University, that, according to the construction put by the Senate on the regulations for the LL.D. examination, the Examiners had miscarried in the mode which they had adopted in ascertaining the highest number of marks; & the Senate thereupon determined to confer a second gold medal upon the candidate to whom according to their view the medal ought to have been awarded. Plff. filed his bill, alleging, in effect, that before becoming a candidate he made inquiry of the Registrar of the University, & had been informed by him that the examination would be conducted upon the principle & the marks ascertained in the mode upon & in which they were in fact subsequently conducted & ascertain, & that he had become a candidate & paid his examination fee upon that footing, & praying that the University might be restrained from awarding such other medal. Upon demurrer:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the matter being one solely within the jurisdiction of the visitor; & even if the matter was one which might, in its nature, fall within the cognisance of the ct., plff. had not alleged any sufficient ground of equity.—*THOMSON v. 154. Right of nomination—Construction of grant—Mandamus to college.]—The right of nomination to a fellowship being in dispute between two parties claiming under the same grant, the ct. directed an issue to try "whether plff. had a better right than deft. to nominate." On the trial it appeared that deft. had nominated for nearly twenty years, & that vacancies occurred about once in five years; that the right of nomination was limited, by the grant, to the heirs male of E. with limitation over in default of such heirs; that the eldest son of E. had three sons; that plff. was lineally descended from the third; but that in 1634 the two elder sons were living, and one had then living male issue. No further evidence was given:—Held: plff. might recover upon this evidence without showing that the two elder branches were extinct.—SANDYS v. SANDYS (1840), 1 Q. B. 316, n.; 113 E. 157. To take oath of fellow.]—The Ct. of King's Bench will grant a mandamus to the master of a college to compel him to take the oaths of the fellows, as prescribed by 1 Will. & Mar. c. 8; but a mandamus directed to the master & fellows of a college, commanding them to remove certain members of the college for not having taken the oaths, is bad, unless the members complained of are made parties to the writ.—R. v. St. John's College, Cambridge (1693), 4 Mod. Rep. 233; Skin. 393; Comb. 279; Holt, K. B. 436; 87 E. R. 366.

SUB-SECT. 4.—OTHER CASES.

161. Chaplain of Christ Church, Oxford—Removal for marriage—Usage of university & college.]—Upon a question whether the chaplain of Christ Church had been properly deprived by the dean of Christ Church of his chaplainship on of the Governor in Council, to remove any of the professors, etc., without any formal proceedings in the nature of a trial, & such removal not being a judicial act, the supreme ct. has no power by certiorari to remove the proceedings & inquire into it.—Ex p. JACOBS (1861), 5 All. 153; distd. Ex p. LITTLE, 33 N. B. R. 222, 263.—CAN.

1. —.]—By letters patent under the great seal certain persons were created a body corporate by the account of marriage. In the absence of any general statute of the University, or any particular statute relating to the foundation of Christ Church as a college:—Held: from the general usage of the universities of England prohibiting fellows from marrying, & from general reputation relating to this foundation, & from particular usage of this society, in like cases, which prohibited students from marrying, marriage was a lawful cause for a chaplain of Christ Church being expelled or removed from his chaplainship.—Ex p. LAMPREY (1737), West temp. Hard. 209; 25 E. R. 809.

162. Inspection of public books of foundation—No liberty to commoner—Not belonging to college.—Ex p. DAVISON (1772), cited in 1 Cowp. 319; 98 E. R. 1107.

164. Profits of fellowship—Assignable by way of mortgage.—An assignment by a fellow of King's College, Cambridge, of the profits of his fellowship, by way of mtge. for securing the repayment of a sum of money advanced to him, & interest thereon, is not contrary to public policy, in respect of the duties incident to the situation or office; neither is there anything in the nature of the income of the fellowship from which it can be inferred that the emoluments are not assignable in equity. Although the assignment is contrary to the implied intention of the founder of the college, & to the spirits of the name of "Queen's College at Kingston," with the style & privilege of a university, with power to appoint professors & other officers, & in case of complaint made to the trustees to institute inquiry, & in the event of any impropriety of conduct being duly proved, to admonish, reprove, suspend, or remove the person offending:—Held: there was no jurisdiction in equity to interfere for the restoration of a professor removed, & under the charter, a sufficient number of trustees might remove in their discretion.—WHEIR v. MATTHEWSON (1865), 3 E. & A. 123.—CAN.

m. —.—.—]—Where the appointment of university professors is "during pleasure," they may be removed without notice & without a hearing; but the discretionary power of removal must be exercised bona fide.—Re UNIVERSITY ACT, Re SANKATHEWAN & MACLAURIN UNIVERSITY (1920), 2 W. W. R. 823.—CAN.

n. —.—.—]—A contract of employment between a college & one of its professors contained no definite agreement as to its duration:—Held: (1) not a contract permanent or at pleasure, nor one for six years, but for one year definite, to be continued from year to year without notice, terminable at the end of any year on one year's notice or on tender of one year's salary in lieu of notice; (2) the fact that such contract discloses that the salary is to commence at $4,500 with five annual increases of $100 each until a salary of $5,000 is reached does not of itself raise any presumption that the tenure is for six years.—SMITH v. WESLEY COLLEGE, [1923] 3 W. W. R. 195.—CAN.

o. —.—.—]—Appointment of—Powers of senate.—The five conditions laid down in the proviso to Specific Relief Act, s. 45, are cumulative & all have to be fulfilled. The senate of the university is only bound by its resolutions.

It cannot be held bound by representations, made by any individual officer without the sanction or authority of the university. Where a person deals with a corp., whose rights are defined by statute, he must be deemed to have informed himself of those rights. In this case the resolution of the senate cannot be interpreted as having appointed the appt. without the sanction of the Governor-General, or even that it was intended to appoint him without such sanction. No legal right can be said to exist, because the petitioner had lectured the previous year.—Re ABDUL HASUL (1913), 1 L. R. 41 Calc. 518.—IND.

p. —.—.—]—Under Madras University Act, 1857, & Indian University Act, 1904, the senate of Madras University is the legislative & the syndicate the executive government of the university. No sanction of govt. is required for the syndicate's application of the general rules made by the senate, & the syndicate is entitled to make its own standing orders & subject to the regulations of the university, to regulate its business without the sanction of the senate. A power given to the university by Universities Act of 1904, s. 3, to appoint professors & lecturers & to make regulations under sect. 25 for their appointment & duties are exercisable only by the senate & not by the syndicate.—Re NATHAN & RAMANATHAN (1916), 1 L. r. —.—.—]—Assistant of professor—Power of Crown to appoint.—The Crown, being statutes regulating the college, & may be a violation of the duty of the fellow to the college, it is nevertheless not void. In a suit instituted by the assignee against the fellow, the assignor, & the college, the ct. directed the fines already apportioned to the assignor to be applied in satisfaction of pltf.'s demand, & the necessary accounts to be taken of all sums then or thereafter to be appropriated to the fellow by the College.—*FEISTEL v. 165. Appointment of new trustees of property—By master & fellows.—In a petition praying the appointment of the present master & fellows of a college, as trustees of property given for the foundation of two scholarships, it was prayed that the master & fellows of the college might have power from time to time, under their corporate seal, to appoint new trustees of the property, & the ct. directed that provision should be made accordingly.—*Re SIDNEY SUSSEX COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE, Ex p. 167. Sale of college property—Re-investment of proceeds—Universities & College Estates Amendment Act, 1880 (c. 46).—The effect of sects. 2 & 4 of the above Act, 1880, in conjunction with Universities & Colleges Estates Act, 1858 (c. 44), patron of the chair, has the power of appointing a permanent assistant to the professor of mathematics in the United College of St. Andrews, with his concurrence, with right to teach.—ST. ANDREWS UNIVERSITY v. LEIGH (1850), 21 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 566; 31 Sc. Jur. 303.—SCOT.

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY* (1889), 18 O. R. 165.—CAN.

u. —.—.—]—Disqualification of candidates—Powers of senate.—Held: the senate of a university is under Indian Universities Act, s. 25, empowered to make rules disqualifying a candidate who cheats at an examination from passing it & from appearing at any university examination for a period of two years from the date of his disqualifications & that a candidate against whom the rule has been enforced has no remedy by civil action against the university.—*TAJ AHMAD v. 171. — Nomination to curacy.—Of person educated at the school.—Qualification.]—By an Act for the better government & regulation of the Shrewsbury School, the preamble of which recited certain grants to the bailiffs & burgesses of Shrewsbury, including that of the presentation to the living of St. Mary, as having been made for the advancement of the school, & referred to certain rules & ordinances touching the revenues & government of the school, some of which rules prescribed that the persons from time to time appointed to serve the ministry in the church of St. Mary should be such a fit man as had been brought up at the school, & a graduate, being a burgess's son of Shrewsbury, if any such could be found; & also recited, that many of the existing rules had been found inexpedient; & that it would tend to the advancement & good of the school that other rules better adapted in the present situation of the school, & more calculated for the due management of its revenues, should be established; it was enacted, that the existing rules should be repealed; & amongst other things, it was declared, that the right of nomination to St. Mary's was in the mayor, aldermen, & assistants of Shrewsbury, & their successors; & it was enacted, that they should appoint "a fit & proper person duly qualified according to law," provided that in such appointment such person should be preferred, ceteris paribus, who should have been brought up at the school, & should be a graduate, & also the son of a burgess of Shrewsbury; & if there were no burgess's son of that description, then a preference should be given in like manner to such person of the above description born in C. Except that it should be lawful to bestow the living upon either of the masters of the said school after he should have resigned his mastership, notwithstanding any such claim or preference as aforesaid; & that such master should be capable of holding the living "equally the same as if he had been of the description hereinbefore mentioned":—Held: the words ceteris paribus in the statute referred to the previously specified qualification of being fit & proper, & duly qualified according to law, & not to the general qualifications of a candidate for the duties of a clergyman.—A. G. v. POWIS (EARL) (1853), Kay. 186; 2 Eq. Rep. 566; 24 L. J. Ch. 218; 2 W. R. 140; 69 E. R. 79.

172. Harrow School.—Crown as visitor.—Jurisdiction of courts.—Regulation of school.]—(1) Information for the regulation of Harrow School dismissed as to the removal of governors, unduly elected according to the founder's statutes, not being inhabitants, the Ct. of Ch. having no jurisdiction with regard to either the election, or amotion, of corporators of any description, eleemosynary corps. being the subject of visitatorial jurisdiction, therefore, in the case of the Crown becoming visitor for want of an heir of the founder, the removal of a corporator de facto to be sought by petition to the Great Seal; not by bill or information.

(2) As to the revenues, including the management of the estates, & the application of the income, inquiries directed to ascertain, whether the estates are properly & advantageously managed with a view to prospective regulation & a lease to one of the governors, though without fraud, set aside upon general principles, as inconsistent with his duty, charging him with the full value, if exceeding the rent reserved.

(3) The application of the income, to purposes partly specified by the founder's rules, & partly left to discretion, not being in all respects agreeable to the founder's directions, though with no improper motives, to be ascertained by a scheme, having regard, on the one hand, to the founder's directions; on the other, to the alteration of circumstances; which might render a literal adherence to them adverse to their general object & spirit.

(4) An alteration in the constitution of the school, with the view of reducing it to a mere parochial school, by restraining the number of foreigners, i.e., boys not on the foundation, refused. The admission of foreigners, without prejudice to the children of the poor inhabitants, being

e. Bursars.—Election of.]—Testamentary trustees were directed to apply part of the trust estate to founding bursaries at the Universities of Edinburgh, Glasgow & St. Andrews, which were to be "as the gift & appointment" of the trustees under the condition that the bursaries were to be conferred after competitive examinations for which the trustees were to appoint 3 examiners who were "to report upon the qualifications of the candidates" but "the opinion of the examiners as to the qualifications of the candidates" was to be "subject to the review" of the trustees. In pursuance of these directions the trustees advertised three bursaries of equal value to be competed for at the same examination—one at each of the favoured universities—to be open to "students about to enter on their first session" at the university:—Held: the trustees in refusing to appoint the pursuer to hold the Glasgow bursary had not acted in breach of any contract between them & him.—MARTINE v. MACDOUGALLS TRUSTEES (1885), 13 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 274; 23 Sc. L. R. 190.—SCOT.

D. who had competed in the examination raised an action for declarator that he had been duly elected & was entitled to the bursary & for payment of the value of it for the period prescribed by the trustee & alternatively for a sum of damages:—Held: as the pursuer was not elected he was not entitled to decree of declarator & payment.—*M'DONALD v. expressly directed, & the small result of the latter not proved the result of abuse.

(5) No objection to encourage attention to parish scholars by an allowance to the master for each.

(6) The expenditure not to be measured by the number of parish boys, who are to be immediately benefited by it, if fairly referable to the purposes of the school. A considerable allowance therefore to the master towards repairs, & a considerable expenditure in enlarging & improving his house for the accommodation of boarders, considered upon the whole not extravagant, as a benefit from the increased revenue in that shape, instead of an increased salary; nor improper, with reference to the general advantage of the school.

(7) The course of education & internal discipline left to the governors & masters. The governors being expressly authorised to alter the founder's rules, alterations, long known & acquiesced in, presumed to have been by their authority; though the precise order does not appear. Any substantial deviation from the principle & purpose of the institution the subject of visitatorial interposition. —A.-G. v. CLARENDON (EARL) (1810), 17 Ves. 491; 34 E. R. 190.

175. Rugby School—Scholars Qualifications for admission.—(1) The ct. being of opinion that Lord Eldon on a previous occasion had considered that exhibitions belonging to a free school might be given to scholars not on the foundation, declined interfering so as to give the free scholars a priority over those who were not "foundations." (2) The entrance of boys under twelve years of age into a free school having been discouraged. On petition under Charities Procedure Act, 1812 (c. 101):—Held: such a course of proceeding was prejudicial to the objects of the charity, & ought to be corrected.

(3) The school was designated by the founder as a grammar school, but the boys were to be taught writing & arithmetic in all its branches:—Held: those who were qualified in other respects, ought to be admitted if they could read English & were capable of being taught the first elements of grammar.—Re RUGBY SCHOOL (1839), 1 Beav. 457; 48 E. 176. — Dismissal of head master—Powers of governing body.—Pltf., who was appointed head master of Rugby School in Nov. 1869, by the old trustees of the school, the existing governing body, & was dismissed by the new governing body, appointed under Public Schools Act, 1868 (c. 118), in Dec. 1873, filed his bill against the governing body, alleging that his dismissal was due to the influence of certain members of the governing body who, prior to their election, had shown hostility to pltf.'s appointment, & had formed a scheme to procure its annulment; & praying that the resolution of dismissal might be declared invalid:—Held: (1) the ct. was not justified in interfering; (2) although pltf. was appointed by the old trustees in 1869, the new governing body, were not bound by the rules & regulations in force previously to their appointment, but had a power of dismissal unfettered by those restrictions.—*HAYMAN v. 179. — — — — ——Aekworth School was established in 1779 by subscriptions collected from members of the Society of Friends, for the education of children who were members of the society in Great Britain whose parents were not in affluence. The rules of the school provided that when the school was not full there should be eligible for admission at the discretion of the controlling committee, children from beyond the limits of Great Britain being members of the society, failing whom, children closely connected with the society, or failing whom, children not in the membership of the society. The object of the school was to train up the children in the principles & practices of the Christian religion as professed by the Society of Friends, & to impart to them a sound English education. The school was supported by substantial fees paid by the parents of the children, by the income arising from its invested property, by annual subscriptions & other donations & legacies, & was under the direction of a general meeting appointed by the provided by him between the years 1876 & 1883. In the latter year he endowed the college with a sum of £300,000 & directed that sum to be applied for the benefit of the college, in paying off the building debt, if any, in furnishing & equipping the college, in establishing scholarships, exhibitions, & prizes, in paying the salaries of professors & teachers, & otherwise in defraying the domestic & other expenses incurred. The average income from the endowment under the trust & from other benefactions for the last four years had been £7,800 per annum, & from the fees of students about £1,000 per annum. The students paid £90 each a year, which covered all expenses except laundry, medical attendance, fees for university examinations & individual lessons in special subjects. For that sum each student received, in consequence of the mode in which the endowment was used, more educational advantages & greater material comforts than could be supplied to her for the fees paid:—Held: (1) the mere fact that in a boarding school in which a considerable fee is charged the inmates obtain various advantages & comforts from the endowment is not sufficient to constitute the school "a charity school" within House Tax Act, 1808 (c. 55), sched. B.; (2) the words "charity school" in schedule B., must be interpreted as "school primarily intended for the supply of gratuitous education"; (3) in the case of Holloway College there did not appear to have been an intention to supply gratuitous instruction to any pupil rich or poor.—*SOUTHWELL v. A. In General.

189. Application of endowments—Power to alter—By charity commissioners—Exhibitions applied to larger area.—Where the comrs. by their scheme provided that certain endowments which had theretofore been applied in carrying on the schools of a particular parish, should thenceforth be applied in exhibitions for the benefit of a larger area of schools:—Held: (1) this was within their powers under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 50), s. 9, & being so the way in which those powers had been exercised was not the proper subject of appeal; (2) a charity which has no instrument of foundation or statutes, or duly authorised regulations impressing upon it a denominational character does not fall within 1869 Act, clause 19, or Endowed Schools Act, 1873 (c. 87), clause 7. Its trustees cannot impress upon it that character, nor is any practice for the time being as to the application of its funds sufficient evidence of there ever having been regulations in existence which prescribed it. Where a charity is established by subscriptions, the original subscribers alone are the founders the later benefactions are on the footing of the original foundations. If its regulations are relied upon as impressing upon it a denominational character they must be shown to have been authorised by all the founders & to have been issued before fifty years from their deaths.—Re ST. 190. ——— Ouster of High Court.—Property, producing an annual income of about £900, was held in trust, first, to pay thereout an annual stipend of £40 to the minister for the time being of a specified parish, & next in the maintenance of eighteen exhibitioners in the College of Christ Church, Oxford, or in any other college or colleges at Oxford, & then in the maintenance of an annual prize of £100, the eighteen exhibitioners were to be chosen from six schools, viz., four from Shrewsbury, three from Bridgnorth, four from Newport, three from Shifnal, two from Wem, & two from Donnington. If on any vacancy there should not be a properly qualified candidate from the school whence the vacancy ought to be supplied, the vacancy was to be filled by the election of a properly qualified candidate from any of the other schools. The annual prize was to be open to the competition equally of the scholars of all the six schools. Shrewsbury School was a "public school" within Public Schools Act, 1868 (c. 118), the other five schools were "endowed schools" within Endowed Schools Acts:—Held: the exhibitions were "educational endowments" within Endowed Schools Acts, & they formed part of the endowments of the six schools respectively; but inasmuch as Shrewsbury School was not solely interested in the endowment, the Charity Comrs. had jurisdiction to make a scheme for the management of the whole charity, & the jurisdiction of the High Court was entirely excluded.—A.-G. v. 191. ——— Power to remove site of school.—(1) The removal of the site of a school is within the scope of Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 50), & the powers conferred on the Charity Comrs. by sect. 9.*

(2) An annual sum temporarily applied to the purposes of the school is an endowment within sect. 5.

(3) The interest of a boy on the foundation of a school is not saved or directed to be compensated by 1869 Act, unless he was there at the date of the passing thereof.

(4) In 1861 a Chancery scheme for a school contained a "conscience clause" allowing parents to object to their boys receiving Church of England instruction:—Held: the comrs. were bound in making a new scheme for the school to embody the provisions of the "conscience clauses" of 1869 Act, ss. 15, 16.—Re FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL & HOSPITAL OF ARCHBISHOP HOLGATE AT HEMSWORTH, & GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT BARNLEY (1887), 12 App. Cas. 444; 56 L. 192. Modification of scheme—Powers under Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 (c. 56), 1873 (c. 87)—What constitutes “vested interests.”—In an appeal under 1869 Act, s. 30, by the corp. of Sutton Coldfield against two schemes of the Charity Comrs., by which it was proposed to withdraw from that part of the funds of the corp. which was applicable for educational purposes a sum equal to £15,000 to be applied as part of the foundation of Sutton Coldfield Grammar School:—Held: (1) the scheme could not be regarded as wanting in the finality required by the Act because it was expressed to be without prejudice to a future scheme to be framed in accordance with the Acts of Parliament words to that effect being surplusage; (2) 1869 Act, s. 11, protects vested interests only, that is the privileges or educational advantages to which the class of persons thereby or by later Acts designated have a legal title & cannot be invoked to protect benefits which have been enjoyed by the permission or bounty of another.

(3) In a similar appeal by the inhabitants of the locality:—Held: such inhabitants had no locus standi to present it.—Re SUTTON COLDFIELD GRAMMAR SCHOOL (1881), 7 App. Cas. 91; 51 L. J. P. 193. — Powers of Board of Education.—A testator who died in 1721 gave his residue to trustees on trust to pay half the income for the redemption of Barbary slaves, one-fourth for certain educational charities, & one-fourth for certain non-educational charities. In 1816, for want of Barbary slaves, the slave fund income was applied by a ct. scheme to assisting charity schools. By Board of Education Act, 1899 (c. 33), s. 2 (2), the powers of the Charity Comrs. in matters appearing to relate to education may be transferred by Ord. in Council to the Board of Education, provided that any question whether any part of an endowment “is held for or ought to be applied to educational purposes” shall be determined by the Charity Comrs. By the Board of Education (Powers) Ord. in Council, 1902, it is ordered that all powers, except the powers of appointing official trustees & making vesting orders, shall, so far as those powers relate to endowments “held solely for educational purposes,” be transferred to the Board, & where the Charity Comrs., in exercise of the powers conferred on them by Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1894, or Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 to 1899, determine by scheme or otherwise what part of a mixed endowment is “held for educational purposes,” that part shall, “for the purposes of this order,” be treated as an educational endowment “held solely for educational purposes.” In 1907 the Charity Comrs. made a scheme under Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1894, determining (inter alia) that the slave fund income was “held for & ought to be applied to educational purposes.” The trustees appealed, contending that the effect of the determination scheme would be to devote the income permanently & in all events to educational purposes. At present, notwithstanding free education, there were managers’ purposes to which the income was & could be applied under the scheme of 1816 without relieving the rates, but when these expenses also were thrown on the rates there would be no proper objects left under the scheme of 1816. On that event the income ought to be applied cy-près the will as a non-educational charity:—Held: the determination scheme merely determined the controlling body for the time being, & did not in any way restrict, alter, or affect the objects of the charity or prevent the income being applied by a future scheme to non-educational purposes.—Re BETTON'S CHARITY, [1908] 1 Ch. 205; 77 L. J. Ch. 193; 98 L. T. 35; 72 J. P. 105; 24 T. L. R. 143; 6 L. G. R. 638.

194. — Effect of Local Government Act, 1894 (c. 73), s. 14 (5).—The B. Grammar School was an ancient foundation & had been regulated from time to time by schemes settled by the Ct. of Ch. which conferred certain educational privileges on the inhabitants of the parishes of B. & N.

In 1877 the Endowed Schools Comrs. made a scheme for the regulation of the school which as altered by a scheme made in 1903 by the Board of Education, who had succeeded to the powers of the Charity Comrs. preserved the educational privileges of the inhabitants by providing that the tuition fees should in the case of boys whose parents were resident in one or other of the parishes of B. & N. be reduced by one-third. In 1905 the Board of Education, under Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 (c. 110), s. 6, gave public notice of a proposal by them to make a new scheme, & under the above sub-sect. sent a draft of the proposed scheme to the parish councils of B. & N. The draft scheme preserved the privilege of the inhabitants of B. & N. to a remission of one-third of the tuition fees, but made it a condition that the parents to be entitled to receive it must have resided seven years in one or other of the parishes. The scheme was objected to by the parish councils & by the governors of the school, & for a time remained in abeyance. In 1907, without giving any further notice either under 1860 Act, or 1894 Act, the Board sealed a modified scheme. The scheme as modified abolished the privilege of the inhabitants of B. & N. to a remission of one-third of the tuition fees, but substituted therefor a provision giving a preference as to admission to the school to the children of the inhabitants of B. & N. over other children, & a provision that a yearly sum of not less than £100 nor more than £200 should be applied in establishing bursaries, tenable at the school by boys whose parents or guardians were resident in the parishes of B. & N., & who were, in the opinion of the governors, in need of assistance to enable them to continue to attend the school:—Held: (1) the Board had jurisdiction under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 28, to alter the scheme of 1877 in the manner provided by the scheme of 1907; (2) in making the scheme of 1907 the Board had had “due regard” to the educational interests of the inhabitants of B. & N. within Endowed Schools 1869 Act, s. 11; (3) the Board having given public notice as required by 1860 Act, s. 6, of the draft scheme of 1905, had an absolute discretion to determine whether or not the modifications introduced into the scheme of 1907 were such as to render a fresh notice desirable; (4) the Board having given to the parish councils the notice required by 1894 Act, s. 14 (5), were under no obligation to give them a further notice of the modified scheme.

Semhle: the directions as to notice in 1894 Act, s. 14 (5), are merely directory, & in no way affect the jurisdiction of the Board to make a scheme.—Re BERKHAMSTED GRAMMAR SCHOOL, [1908] 2 Ch. 25; 77 L. J. Ch. 571; 99 L. T. 147; 72 J. P. 273; 24 T. L. R. 514; 6 L. G. R. 791.

the age of manhood, does not make the endowment or any part of it less an "educational endowment" within Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), ss. 5, 24, than it would have been if no such privilege had been granted to those persons; the whole endowment being applicable "for the purposes of the education at school of boys or girls," & no part of it being applicable or applied to any "other charitable use." Sect. 19 of the Act prevents the comrs. from making particular religious opinions more or less necessary than they were before to qualify generally for the office of governor under the scheme. It does not prohibit them from making the office of the rector of a parish a qualification for a place on the governing body of a Church of England school. It is not ultra vires the Charity Comrs. under 1869 Act, s. 23, to provide in a scheme a species of visitatorial jurisdiction sufficient to indemnify the governors & to bind the objects of the charity in reference to proceedings "under the scheme." Scheme remitted to the Charity Comrs. inasmuch as sufficient provision had not been made therein to satisfy existing educational interests according to the requirements of 1869 Act, s. 11.—Re HODGON'S SCHOOL (1878), 3 App. Cas. 857; 47 L. An application for a mandamus to the Charity Comrs. to hear & determine such a matter is not a just & convenient course; the proper remedy is by an application with the sanction of the A.-G. to a judge at chambers under Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 28.—*R. v. B. Vested Interests.

198. Who have vested interests—Not inhabitants & ratepayers generally.]—A petition having been presented against a scheme of the Charity Comrs. relating to certain endowed schools by some inhabitants & ratepayers, on the ground that they & the class represented by them had a right by the founder's deed to have their children taught free of expense in the school, & that this right would be taken away or subjected to change by the scheme:—Held: the appeal could not be entertained. No individual petitioner complained that he had a child at the school whose status would be interfered with; & the general interests of the class under the founder's will did not come within the category of "vested interests" saved, or required to be saved, by Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56).—Re SHAFTOE'S CHARITY (1878), 3 App. Cas. 872; 47 L. No such meeting ever had at the date of appeal been convened, & no such majority had at that date ever had existence. In a petition presented under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 39:—Held: (1) applt. had a vested interest in his office & the emoluments thereof within sect. 13 of the latter Act, which interest must, under the sect. in any scheme by the Charity Comrs. relating to the college, be saved or duly compensated for; (2) as it appeared that such interest had neither been saved nor duly compensated for, the scheme would be remitted to the Comrs., with costs to be paid out of the funds of the endowment.—Re ALLEYN'S COLLEGE, DULWICH (1875), 1 App. Cas. 68; *sub nom. (2) Endowments given subsequently to Aug. 2, 1810, & legitimately spent in improving or maintaining the hospital property, need not be traced & excluded from the Comrs. scheme as requiring the consent of the governing body thereto under sect. 14 (1).

(3) The scheme requiring persons in charge of a boarding house to allow their boarders exemptions from prayers & religious worship was in that respect unauthorised by the Act.

Whether specific religious instruction must be provided for—Not directed in modern endowment.]—In an appeal under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 39, against a scheme framed by the Charity Comrs. under the Welsh Intermediate Education Act, 1889 (c. 40):—Held: (1) the policy of the scheme could not be considered. It could only be modified so far as it was not within the legal powers of its framers.

(2) Where there was no direction to that effect in the original instrument of foundation, nor any regulations prescribed by the founder or under his authority in his lifetime or within fifty years after his death, the scheme need not provide for instruction in religion according to the Established Church. Such regulation could not be presumed from any practice to that effect which may have obtained for many years.

(3) Welsh Intermediate Education Act (c. 40), s. 13, 1889, does not apply to rights of patronage which are not, at the date of the Act, exercised by a member of the governing body or possessed in consequence of his gift or donation.

(4) A modern endowment under the Welsh Act is one which had been given since the Act of 1869. Such endowment applied in fitting up a crypt, being part of the old endowment, as a chapel, is so mixed therewith that it cannot be conveniently separated therefrom, & must be deemed to be part thereof.—Re SWANSEA FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL, [1894] A. 215. — Scheme to include excepted endowments—Jurisdiction of court.]—In 1890 a scheme was approved of under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), dealing with certain of the endowments of Christ's Hospital. Among the endowments excluded from the scheme of 1890 were educational & non-educational endowments which were of less than fifty years' standing on Aug. 2, 1869, the time limited for the commencement of the above Act. By the scheme of 1890 it was provided that the endowments dealt with by it should be administered by the governing bodies thereby constituted, namely, the governors & the council of almoners, in accordance with the scheme under the name of Christ's Hospital, the result being that with regard to the endowments comprised in the scheme the charity was reconstituted, but with regard to the excepted endowments the old governing body & its powers & duties as constituted & existing at the date of the scheme were left intact, & were wholly exempted from the operation of the scheme. The scheme under consideration proposed that all the excepted educational endowments should be made over to the governing body constituted by the scheme of 1890, in augmentation of the endowments already comprised therein, & should be dealt with & administered according to that scheme. The scheme was opposed by the existing governing body of the excepted endowments:—Held: it was beyond the jurisdiction of the ct. to sanction the scheme in the face of the opposition of the existing governing body, their title being founded on Royal Charter & established by Act of Parliament, & no breach of trust being charged.

Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 14, has left the jurisdiction of the ct. untouched in regard to endowments within the fifty years' limit; it has neither diminished nor increased the jurisdiction. The sect. can at most assist the ct. in the exercise of its discretion.—A.-G. v. CHRIST'S HOSPITAL (GOVERNORS), [1896] 1 Ch. 879; 65 L. J. Ch. 646; 74 L. T. 96; 60 J. P. 246; 44 W. R. 379; 12 T. L. Where such endowments were actually given more than fifty years before the passing of the Act:—Held: such subsequent appropriation of them as aforesaid could not be

(2) Where the scheme of the Charity Comrs. increased the amount of tuition fees previously payable by a certain class of boys & added the condition that the trustees should be satisfied that aid was needed by their parents:—Held: such provision did not fail in due regard to their educational interests within Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 (c. 56), s. 11, & 1873 (c. 87), s. 5.—*ROSS v. SUB-SECT. 4.—APPORTIONMENT OF MIXED CHARITIES.

219. Less than half endowment for educational purposes—Consent of governing body—Jurisdiction of court.]—An ancient charitable corpn. was regulated by a scheme contained in an Act of Parliament, which provided that the directions of the ct. might, whenever needed, be obtained by application in a certain information. Under the Act the charity was partly educational & partly non-educational, but less than one half was applicable to education. The corpn. refused to assent to a scheme being framed under Endowed School Acts appointing new trustees & altering the mode of dealing with the estates, & it subsequently presented a petition to the ct. asking that alterations might be made in the existing scheme:—Held: (1) the jurisdiction of the ct. was not excluded by Endowed Schools Acts; (2) the corpn. was the governing body; (3) there was no power to frame a scheme under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 24 (3), appointing new trustees of the non-educational part of the endowment where the governing body refused to assent; (4) Endowed Schools Act, 1874 (c. 87), s. 6, consequently did not apply; (5) the ct. would not refuse to exercise its jurisdiction, because if the corpn. had assented, a scheme might have been made under Endowed Schools Acts.—*A-G. v. SUB-SECT. 5.—TENURE OF OFFICE OF MASTERS.

222. Dismissal of assistant master—Notice of dismissal—Power to dismiss.]—A scheme made under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), with regard to an endowed school, provided that the foundation should be administered by a body of governors, who should appoint the headmaster of the school, & that the headmaster should have the sole power of appointing, & might "at pleasure" dismiss, all assistant masters in the school. In an action for wrongful dismissal by a pltf. who had been an assistant master in the school against the governors in respect of his dismissal by the headmaster without notice, the jury found that a custom existed entitling assistant masters in endowed schools to a term's notice of dismissal:—Held: such a custom as above-mentioned was excluded by the terms of the scheme, & therefore, pltf. was not entitled to notice of dismissal, & in any case the action was not maintainable against the governors.—WRIGHT v. ZETLAND (MARQUIS) [1908] 1 K. B. 63; 77 L. J. K. B. 152; 97 L. T. 807; 24 T. L. R. 48, C. A.

224. — School premises sold by governors.]

—The governors of the grammar school of G. were incorporated by Royal Charter, & were seised in fee of the school, of the school-house, & premises; they were to find a house in which the school should be fitly kept; they had also power to elect & remove the master as often as, according to their discretion, they might see necessary & convenient. W. was appointed master in 1843, & put into possession of the school-house, with a garden & play-ground attached to it. The appointment of W. was subject to the terms that he should keep the school-house in repair; that he should take certain articles at a valuation, & when he should quit the mastership, leave them to be taken by the succeeding master at a valuation; that he should give three calendar months' notice, ending on June 21, or Dec. 21, if he wished to relinquish his appointment; & that, upon the same notice, two-thirds of the governors, with the sanction of the bishop, should have the power of removing him. In 1843 a railway co. bought of the governors part of the premises of which W. was in possession as master of the school, for a sum which was to include compensation for all damage & incumbrance sustained by the governors or W. by reason of the co. taking the land. The interest of W. in the residue of the premises was injuriously affected, & he proceeded, under Land Clauses Act, 1845 (c. 18), s. 68, to determine the amount of his compensation. Upon mandamus to the co. to take up the award of the arbitrator:—Held: W. had no greater interest in the house than as tenant for a year, or from year to year, & therefore, was not entitled to have his claim settled by arbn. under sect. 68 of the above Act, but could obtain compensation only by the determination of two justices, under sect. 121.—*R. v. SECT. 9.—CONVERSION OF NON-EDUCATIONAL CHARITIES TO EDUCATION.

225. Powers of Charity Commissioners—Pendency of scheme—Jurisdiction of Court of Chancery.—If the Endowed Schools Comrs. have not made a declaration under Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (c. 56), s. 30, that it is desirable to apply, for the advancement of education, the income of a charitable endowment not previously applicable to education, the mere pendency of a scheme before the Comrs. is no reason why the Ct. of Ch. should not exercise its jurisdiction to settle a scheme for the management of the charity; but the governing body of the charity ought to have an opportunity of proposing their own scheme in chambers, in opposition to the scheme of the A.-G. The right of appeal from an order of the Vice-Chancellor, under Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 28 extends to cases where the aggregate income of several charities dealt with by the order exceeds £100, although the income of each charity separately is less than that amount.—*Re CHARITABLE GIFTS FOR PRISONERS, Ex p. SECT. 10.—GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

See Grammar Schools Act, 1840 (c. 77).

226. Misapplication of revenue—Jurisdiction of court.—The ct. will not interfere where particular powers are given by charter as to a school though not appointing general visitors but will as to management of the revenue & make the master on collusion with the usher account for fifteen years salary.—A.-G. v. BEDFORD CORPN. (1751), 2 Ves. Sen. 505; 28 E. R. 323, L. C.

Annotation:—Re Bedford Charity (1833), 5 Sim. 578.

227. Breach of duty in managing school—Not amounting to trust—Proper remedy through visitor.—If, on the true construction of the statutes of a college, the college are trustees for the maintenance of a free grammar school for the public, the ct. having authority to enforce the execution of the trust, any breach of trust will be redressed by it in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction; but if the master & usher of the school are only officers appointed to perform certain duties of the college, & the duty of appointing them is not otherwise annexed to the mere property of the college than by the necessity of paying certain fixed stipends, & not in the nature of a trust the execution of which is within the jurisdiction of the ct. to enforce, but the observance of which is to be enforced by the visitor of the college, the breach of duty, whatever it may be, must be redressed by the authority of the visitor, & not in this ct.—A.-G. v. MAGDALEN COLLEGE, OXFORD (1847), 10 Beav. 402; 7 Hare, 504; 16 L. J. Ch. 391; 10 L. T. O. S. 85; 11 Jur. 681; 50 E. R. 637.

Annotation:—Fidd. Whiston v. Rochester (1819), 7 Hare, 532.

228. Alteration of scheme of education—Commercial subjects not allowed.—The nature of a charity can be changed by an application to objects different from those intended by the founder, only, where it is clear, that by a strict adherence to the plan his general object will be destroyed; not upon the notion of advantage to the inhabitants of the place. Therefore, the foundation being a free grammar school at Leeds, for teaching grammatically the learned languages:—Held: permission for the application of part of the funds to procure masters for French, German, & to other establishments with a view to commerce would be refused.—A.-G. v. WHITELEY (1805), 11 Ves. 211; 32 E. R. 1080, L. C.

229. — Confined to classical education.—Where a school upon the true construction of the instruments establishing it, ought to be a grammar school for instruction in the classics, the trustees will not be permitted to convert it into a school for teaching merely English, writing, & arithmetic, though it had ceased, from before the time of living memory, to be a place for classical education, & though it appeared from old regulations, that elementary instruction in English had always been one of the objects of the institution.—A.-G. v. MANSFIELD (EARL) (1827), 2 Russ. 501; 38 E. R. 423, L. C.

231. — Funds insufficient.—Where the funds of a grammar school are not greater than are required to carry out the objects of the founder, the ct. will be unwilling to extend the system of education, more particularly where the scholars would probably lose the benefit of exhibitions at the universities, & where instruction in other branches of education is given for the payment of a small annual sum.—Re Marlborough School (1843), 13 L. J. Ch. 2; 2 L. T. O. S. 93; 7 J. P. 223; 7 Jur. 1047, L. C.

232. ——An extended scheme of gratuitous education, which had been settled by the ct. in 1849, for the regulation of a free grammar school, having become impracticable through the diminution of the charity fund, a new scheme, on the application of the trustees, had been drawn up, & sanctioned. On appeal:—Held: (1) it would be confirmed so far as it provided for the increase of funds by the admission of additional scholars on the payment of capitation fees, & for the expenditure of such funds for the benefit of all classes of scholars, but would be varied, so far as it made a competitive examination the instrument of selection of the free scholars, & established distinctions, other than the payment of capitation fees, between the free & the paying scholars; (2) the scheme would be remodelled as to the order of introduction of the new purposes in case the income should not be sufficient for all, & also, with a view to increase the proportion of masters to scholars.

(3) Provisions tending to the introduction into a free school of boys of different degrees of social standing, are neither in themselves adverse to the original constitution of the school as a free school, nor necessarily detrimental to the interests of the poorer class.

(4) Provisions for the selection of scholars of a free school by means of a competitive examination are in favour of clever boys & the children of the wealthier classes, & are not in accordance with the presumable intention of the founder in favour of education generally.

(5) Where a scheme for the management of a charity has become impracticable in any of its details, it is the positive duty of the trustees to

234. ——Peter Blundell, the founder of Tiverton Grammar School, by his will, made in the year 1599, gave the following directions touching the said school:—"My will & meaning is, that in the said school shall not be taught above the number of 150 scholars at any one time, & those from time to time of children born, or for the most part before their age of six years brought up, in the town of Tiverton aforesaid; & if the same number be not filled up, my will is, that the want shall be supplied with the children of foreigners, & those foreigners only to be received & admitted with the assent & allowance of such ten householders of Tiverton aforesaid as for the time being shall be most in the subsidy-books of our Sovereign Lady the Queen's Majesty, & of her successors; & my meaning & desire is, that they from time to time will make choice of the children of such foreigners as are of honest reputation & fear God, without regarding the rich above or more than the poor." No boy to be above the age of eighteen or under the age of six years, & none under a grammar scholar; the master to receive £50 a year, the usher 20 marks, " & my hope & desire & will is, that they hold themselves satisfied & content with that recompense for their trouble, without seeking or exacting more either of parent or children, which procureth favour to givers, & the contrary to such as do not or cannot give, for my meaning is, that it shall be for ever a free school, & not a school of exaction." Six scholarships in divinity to be founded at the Universities, to be given to the most toward in learning of the said scholars. It became a practice at a very early date of the said school to allow the headmaster & undermaster to take boarders, & to allow such boarders to participate in the exhibitions & scholarships, & such practice had continued down to the present time. Upon information:—Held: (1) there being a surplus income, the system of taking boarders should be abolished, & the masters should not take any payment from any of the boys educated at the school; (2) foreigners, in contradistinction to the first objects of the founder, meant any children not born, nor for the most part before their age of six years brought up, in the parish of Tiverton, the term "foreigners," in reference to another subject-matter in the will, being confined to mean, of & in other places adjoining the parish of Tiverton; (3) the ct. would refuse to remove feoffees of the charity on the ground of their residing at a distance; (4) reference to inquire as to increasing the salaries of the masters, etc., & as to settling a qualification in lieu of the subsidy-books, no longer existing; (5) the propriety . . . of extending the education of the scholars to matters of science & literature, including one or more of the modern languages, ought to be referred to one of the masters of the ct.—*A.-G. v. (3) Several donations partly for the support of a school, & partly for the support of a grammar school being devoted by the comrs. of charitable uses in 1623, to the maintenance of a grammar school, & that decree having since been followed, the whole revenues must be applied to the use of the grammar school, at least during the continuance of a master appointed under the present system.—*A.-G. v. 239. ——The statutes of Manchester Free Grammar School declared that the master & usher, for whom stipends were provided by the foundation deeds, should teach, freely & indifferently, every scholar coming to the school, without any money or other rewards taken therefor; that no scholar, of what county or shire soever, should be refused; that no scholar should bring meat or drink into, nor should any one lodge in, the school; that vacancies in the trusteeship should be supplied by honest gentlemen & honest persons within the parish of Manchester; & that the trustees should have full power to augment, increase, expound & reform the provisions of the statutes only concerning the schoolmaster, usher & scholars. The master & usher had for several years taken boarders, & the boarders had participated in all the benefits of the charity; & the trustees of the school had been generally noblemen & gentlemen residing, not in the parish of Manchester, but in Lancashire & the adjoining counties: Held: (1) the master & usher ought not to be allowed to take any more boarders; (2) the trustees thereafter to be appointed ought to be honest gentlemen & honest persons residing within the parish of Manchester, & persons who occupied & carried on business in manufactories, etc., in the town or parish, & had dwelling-houses within six miles of the schoolhouse, were to be considered as being within the parish, for the purpose of being eligible to be trustees.—*A.-G. v. (2) The ct., in 1860, refused to alter a scheme made in 1847, prohibiting the masters of the Bristol Free Grammar School taking boarders, the school being very prosperous, & there appearing on necessity for admitting them.

(3) In those grammar schools which are, from their position & neighbourhood, well attended by free scholars, boarders should not be admitted, unless to such a limited extent as not to interfere with the general character of the school; & when a school has attained a great amount of success under this system, it would be foreign to the duty or province of this ct. to interfere with or alter the system.—Re BRISTOL FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL, (1860), 28 Beav. 161; 29 L. 243. Boarders permitted.—A school having been founded by letters patent in the town of B., & afterwards incorporated by statute, for "the teaching of children in grammar freely, without any exaction or request of money, not exceeding the number of 144":—Held: (1) instruction in Latin & Greek was made imperative by the terms of the foundation; (2) the average number of scholars presenting themselves from the town of B. & its neighbourhood having never exceeded fifty, the ct. would refuse to adopt a proposal for increasing the number of scholars by throwing the school open to the whole world, & establishing dames' houses in the town, & would sanction a scheme for enlarging the school by allowing the headmaster to take boarders; (3) an offer of a grant of money to an endowed school, accompanied by conditions that exhibitions to the university of like amount to the interest of the grant should be maintained out of the school revenues, & the capital of the grant applied in restoration & enlargement of the masters' houses, would be accepted by the ct.

(4) A scheme having been settled in 1857, providing that £5 a year should be paid to the masters for each foundation boy out of the school revenues, so far as they would extend, & when they failed, then by the parents of such foundation boy; & that £9 a year should be paid by the parents of each boy not on the foundation, the

ct. varied the scheme by directing that a fee of £3 3s. a year should be paid for each foundation boy, to the number of fifty out of the school revenues, & that 144 foundation scholars should be elected, with preference to town boys, for whom capitation fees were to be paid out of the revenues of the school, so far as the income would extend, but that no town boy should pay more than £3 3s. as a capitation fee.—BERKHAMPSTEAD SCHOOL CASE (1865), L. A testator in 1614 founded a preachership, a school & almshouses, but neither by the will nor by the Royal Charter of foundation was any provision made as to the religious instruction of the scholars; the latter empowered the governors to make such reasonable statutes for the "good rule & governance" of the school as they should think proper, so as not to be repugnant to the laws of the realm. Statutes were accordingly made, requiring the scholars to attend church & receive religious instruction:—Held: (1) this was not a Church of England school; (2) the ct. would order, in a proposed new scheme, that children, whose parents objected, should neither be compelled to attend church, or to receive religious instruction.—*A.-G. v. 250. ———.]—(1) The free grammar school of C. was founded by Royal Charter of Edward VI., for the education & instruction of boys & youths in grammar, & endowed with the lands of certain dissolved chantries. By the charter, the government of the possessions & revenues of the school were vested in four governors, who were incorporated, with perpetual succession, & had power, with the advice of the bishop of the diocese, to make statutes & ordinances for the regulation of the school; & on the death of a governor, the election of his successor was vested in the survivors, with certain restrictions as to his qualifications. In a scheme for the better regulation of the school:—Held: the ct. would refuse to sanction the appointment of a board of trustees to act as a check upon the governors, considering that they had a sufficient check already in the bishop & the Lord Chancellor as visitor of the school.

(2) Religious instruction is a necessary part of education in a grammar school, & where there is reason to believe that such instruction was originally intended to be according to the doctrines & principles of the Church of England, it must be according to those doctrines & principles, & the ct. will not sanction the insertion of a clause in the scheme exempting those scholars whose parents conscientiously object thereto from receiving such instruction.—Re CHILMSFORD GRAMMAR SCHOOL (1855), 1 K. & J. 543; 3 Eq. 251. ——— Powers of trustees.—The governing body of a grammar school founded by Edward VI. was empowered, with the advice of the bishop of the diocese, to make statutes & ordinances:—Held: (1) this was a Church of England school, & the trustees must be of that persuasion; (2) the ct., on directing a scheme would refuse to give any special directions as to religious instruction, further than that it was to be in accordance with the statutes & ordinances made, from time to time, by the trustees & the bishop. Re STAFFORD CHARITIES (1857), 25 Beav. 28; 27 L. 257. Augmented endowments — New scheme enforced — Management not impeached.]—(1) In charity cases, where there is a visitor, the Ct. of Ch. will not interfere with the visitatorial power, as to internal regulations & management, unless there be a breach of trust.

(2) Where the Crown is the founder, the King is the visitor, & the ct. does not interfere as to the internal regulations & management, but where the charity is founded by a private individual, & no visitor is appointed, & the Crown by Royal Charter has incorporated the governors, & authorised them to make rules, this ct. will interfere if the existing rules do not carry into effect the views & wishes of the founder, & to further the founder's intention, it directs a scheme, rendered necessary by the altered state of circumstances & the progress of civilisation. A grammar school, previously founded, was endowed in 1571, & the governors were, in 1577, incorporated by Royal Charter, giving them powers to make rules & elect governors. Afterwards, various other charitable gifts were made to the governors connected with the school:—Held: though improper conduct was not even alleged against the governors, this was a proper case for a scheme, for the purpose of putting the whole under one uniform system of management.—A.-G. v. 259. Failure of purpose—Reverter to estate of donor.—In 1868 S. executed a deed poll under School Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38), s. 2, conveying to the minister & churchwardens of a parish a piece of land for the purposes of the Act & upon trust to permit the premises & all buildings to be erected thereon to be used as a school for the education of children & adults of the poorer classes of the parish & for no other purpose. The schools were to be open to the inspection of the Established Church inspectors & managed by the principal minister of the parish, who was to superintend the religious & moral instruction of the scholars & might use the premises for a Sunday school. A school was erected on the land & used till 1907 as a public elementary school, when it ceased to be used except as a Sunday school. S. claimed that the premises had reverted to him under the Act; the Board of Education contended that they were still devoted to charity & that a scheme ought to be settled for the future administration thereof:

Held: inasmuch as the school had ceased to be used for the purposes specified in the deed poll it had reverted to the estate of S., the donor, although it had been continuously used for other purposes specified in the Act.—*A.-G. v. 260. Gift within year of donor's death—Direction in will to executors to execute conveyance—Technical & Industrial Institutions Act, 1892 (c. 29), sects. 2, 6, & 10.—By his will, dated Mar. 1908, the testator, by clause 2, gave all his real & personal estate, with certain exceptions, to his exors. upon the trusts thereafter declared, & by clause 5, after referring to a technical trade school which the testator had erected on his freehold land, & which he intended to endow, he directed his exors., in case he might not have executed a conveyance of the school & premises, & of other real & personal property, which by reason of his death within twelve months from its execution should have become void, to execute & enrol a conveyance. By deed dated Oct. 20, 1908, & duly enrolled, the testator conveyed to a trustee the freehold lands & buildings described in the first schedule thereto, upon trusts therein declared, for the maintenance of the school & the education of the scholars. Part 1, of the first schedule comprised the site of the school; Part 2 comprised freehold ground-rents as an endowment for the school; & Part 3 comprised the freehold residence of the testator. The testator died in Aug. 1909:—Held: the site of the school described in Part 1 of the schedule to the deed of Oct. 20, 1908, passed by that deed by virtue of the provisions of the above Act; the remainder of the property described in Parts 2 & 3 of the schedule to the deed passed under the testator's will to the exors.; & clause 5 of the will operated as a good equitable devise of that property to charitable uses.—Re STANLEY'S TRUST DEED, *STANLEY v. 261. Trustee as "owner"—School Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38).—A charity school was established in W. on premises granted under the provisions of the above Act of which applt. was a trustee, receiving no rent, & deriving no profit therefrom. The Local Board of Health of W., acting under Public Health Act, 1848 (c. 63), s. 69, gave proper notice that certain works therein mentioned should be done in a street upon which the school abutted, which works not being effected the board themselves did them, & charged the expenses to applt. as "owner," as described by sect. 2 of the 1848 Act: Held: they were justified in so doing.—*BOWDITCH v. 262. Whether charge enforceable by order for sale.—Under sect. 6 of the above Act, a piece of land was conveyed in the form given in sect. 10 to trustees for ever for the purposes of the Act, as a site for a National School, " & for no other purpose whatever "; & a National School was afterwards erected upon it. The local authority under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), s. 150, made up a street on part of which the school premises abutted, & served the trustees with notice under that Act to pay the apportioned expenses:—Held: (1) the trustees were liable for those expenses as "owners" within the 1875 Act, & therefore the expenses were, until recovery thereof, a "charge" upon the premises under sect. 257; & (2) the local authority could not enforce the charge by an order for sale of the school premises since such an order would be in contravention of the 1841 Act.—*HORNSEY DISTRICT COUNCIL v. 265. Breach by parent of school rules—Right of headmaster to decline to receive pupil back.]—Deft.'s son was a pupil at pltf.'s school, one of the rules of which, deft. having notice of it, was that no "exeat" or permission to leave the school & remain away for one night, was allowed during Easter term. During Easter term deft. requested that his son might be allowed to come home & remain for the night, which pltf. refused to allow; but subsequently, on deft. repeating the request & sending a servant for the boy, pltf. allowed him to go home, writing to deft. at the same time that he did so on the understanding that the boy returned the same night. On the boy reaching home, deft. telegraphed to pltf. that it was not convenient to send the boy that day, but he could return the next morning, to which pltf. telegraphed in reply, that unless deft.'s son returned that night, he should not receive him back. In consequence of the last telegram deft. did not send the boy back, & the present action was brought to recover the school fees due on the first day of Easter term, of which term less than three weeks had expired when the boy left. Deft. paid £13 into ct. with a denial of liability, & counter-claimed damages for breach of contract by pltf. :—Held: (1) pltf.'s contract was to board, lodge & educate deft.'s son for the term on the condition that he should be at liberty to enforce with regard to the boy the rules of the school, or such of them as were known to deft.; this condition having been broken by deft., pltf. had the right to refuse to complete his contract, & was consequently entitled to succeed in this action both on claim & counter-claim.

under Victorian Public Service Act, 1883, s. 49, every school teacher employed in a State school at the date of the Act was directed to be classified as in the Act provided, & the classifiers thereunder assigned to resp. the status of a junior assistant :—Held: according to the true construction of the Act, resp. not being in point of fact at the date of the Act a junior assistant, could not legally be classified as such; but having had at that time a definite status as assistant teacher, she was entitled to be classified accordingly. The term "junior assistant" was not interpreted by the Act, & did not denote any denomination of teacher existing at its date, & there was no power under the Act to apply the term

SUB-SECT. 1.—EXPULSION OF PUPILS.

266. Authority of master—Must be exercised reasonably.]—(1) Although the master of a school has the same authority over the scholars as the parents would have, & therefore, may impose reasonable restraints upon their persons, either by way of prevention, or punishment of disorderly conduct, yet he has not a discretionary power of expulsion; but only for reasonable cause. In judging of the cause, however, great regard must be had to his necessary discretion as to the enforcement of discipline; & the wilful breach of its reasonable rules may be sufficient cause, & the repetition of acts of disobedience, each in itself separately insufficient, may be sufficient, as showing a persistent disregard of discipline, & a habit of disobedience. But, if the expulsion is justified on the ground of some particular act, or conduct, not only as likely to be seriously injurious to the peace & good order of the establishment, but as committed with that object, it must appear that it was of that character, or the justification would fail.

To a declaration for an assault & false imprisonment of a youth, & forcibly taking from him a pocket-book & manuscripts, deft. pleaded a special plea setting forth, in effect, that deft. was superior at a college; that pltf. was a pupil there under his charge; that a society, or combination, had been formed among the pupils for purposes subversive of the discipline of the school, & that pltf. was a member & promoter of that society; that, in order to ascertain the particulars of such society, he authorised deft. to enquire of pltf. thereon, & to detain him while so doing, & to take the pocket-book & manuscripts which contained entries relating to the society, & justifying the matters charged in the first count as necessarily done to obtain possession of the pocket-book with a view to preserve the discipline & due government of the to resp., so as to alter her position.—MAIN v. STARK (1890), 15 App. Cas. 384.—AUS.

g. Responsibility of trustees.]—On Dec. 3, 1884, a school teacher dismissed pltf. for disobedience, etc. The matter was brought before the trustees, & on Jan. 6 they passed a resolution that the boy could return to school on his expressing regret for his misconduct. After the receipt of a soir's letter on behalf of the father, the trustees, on Feb. 10, passed a resolution that the boy could return to school after one day's suspension. On Feb. 11, another resolution was passed school; & that having found therein proof of the conspiracy, he sentenced plff. to expulsion, & confined him to his room, until he could be conveniently expelled, in order to prevent communication with the other boys. On other pleas, a similar justification was pleaded: one set of pleas averring that such a society had, in fact, been established among the pupils; another, that deft. had reasonable ground for believing that such was the fact. Issue being joined on these pleas:—Held: deft. having been informed that the pocket-book contained the proofs & particulars of such a conspiracy as was described, he was justified in demanding & forcibly taking it; the subsequent imprisonment could only be justified if the expulsion was justified; the expulsion could only be justified upon good & sufficient legal cause; the supposed association would afford such a justification if it had the serious object & design alleged, but not otherwise.

(2) As to going to public-houses, it is most reasonable that there should be a rule against it, & against frequenting them for purposes of diversion (COCKBURN, C.J.).

(3) As to pistol firing, it is most reasonable that there should be a general rule against the use of fire-arms by the boys at the school (COCKBURN, C.J.).

(4) It is incidental to the authority of a headmaster to expel from the school over which he presides any scholar or student whose conduct is such that he cannot any longer be permitted to remain without danger to the school. This is not a power to be exercised arbitrarily—it may be questioned; & although, no doubt, a large discretion must be allowed, it must not be exercised wantonly or capriciously (COCKBURN, C.J.).

(5) A parent when he places his child with a schoolmaster, delegates to him all his own authority, so far as it is necessary for the welfare of the child (COCKBURN, C.J.).

(6) There is an implied contract between the parent & the preceptor that the latter will continue to educate the child so long as his conduct does not warrant his expulsion from the school (COCKBURN, C.J.).—FITZGERALD v. NORTHOTE (1865), 4 F. & F. 656.

Act had the force of a statute, provided that the headmaster should have the power of expelling a boy for any adequate cause to be judged by him. The headmaster having expelled a boy for an offence alleged against him, an action was brought by the boy's father against the headmaster claiming damages for breach of contract:—Held: the terms of the scheme were binding upon the boy's father, & in the absence of mala fides upon deft.'s part in expelling the boy (which was not alleged) no action was maintainable against him.—WOOD v. PRESTWICH (1911), 104 L. T. 388; 75 J. P. 285; 27 T. L. R. 268; 55 Sol. Jo. 292.

270. By school manager—Forcible ejection—Assault.—A certain school was, prior to Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), an elementary school provided & maintained by Roman Catholics for the education of Roman Catholics children, & it has since been managed by managers appointed in accordance with that Act, & applt., a Roman Catholic priest, was the chairman of the managers. Owing to some disturbance in the school he had given order that a certain girl, a pupil in the school, should not return to the school. Applt. again came to the school during the time for religious instruction & seeing the girl present told her to leave the school, but the girl, who had been told by the headmistress not to leave, refused to leave, & thereupon applt. caught hold of her & forcibly pulled her out of her seat & pushed her out on to the highway. Applt., having been summoned for assault, contended that as school manager & priest he had a right to order any child's name to be struck off the register, & was justified in ejecting the girl, & further set up that there was a bona fide claim of title to be decided, which ousted the jurisdiction:—Held: (the justices having convicted) there was no such title to land or interest in land involved as would oust the jurisdiction of the justices under Offences against the Person Act, 1861 (c. 100), s. 46, & there was nothing on the facts as found to oust their jurisdiction.—LUCAN v. BARRETT (1915), 84 L. J. K. B. 2130; 113 L. T. 737; 70 J. P. 463; 31 T. L. R. 508; 13 L. G. R. 1361; 25 Cox, C. C. 103, D. C.

* SUB-SECT. 2. PUNISHMENT OF PUPILS.

271. Corporal punishment—Moderate & reasonable.—A schoolmaster who, on the second day after a boy's return to school, wrote to the parent proposing to beat him severely to subdue his alleged obstinacy, & on receiving the father's reply, assenting, beat the boy for two hours & a half secretly, in the night, & with a thick stick, until reinstating the resolution of Jan. 6. The father was not notified nor was he present at the meetings of Jan. 6 & Feb. 11; but he was notified of, & was present at, the meeting of Feb. 10. The boy returned to school, but, relying on the resolution of Feb. 10, made no apology, & remained there for several days, but was not interfered with by the teacher, who, however, would give him no instruction. In an action against the teacher & trustees for an alleged wrongful dismissal:—Held: the action must be dismissed against the trustees; it was not their act, but that of the teacher, that caused the boy's removal; the passing of the resolution as to apologising was not an expulsion; the teacher in not instructing the boy was not acting under the trustees' direction; & they were not liable for not compelling her to give the

b. Discretion of trustees & master.—A pupil at a public school having injured the top of a school desk by cutting it, he was ordered by the schoolmaster to replace the top with his own hands, & was suspended till he should do so. The suspension was on Feb. 20, 1888, & on May 7, 1889, notice of motion was served by the father of the pupil for a warrant to compel the trustees to re-admit the son. In the meantime appeals had been made by the father to three of the trustees to the public school board, & to the annual school meeting, on all of which applications the action of the teacher was sustained. During this time the pupil attended another public school:—

Held: the discretion exercised by the master & trustees should not be interfered with, especially after the delay & change in the position of affairs.—Re McCallum & Brant School Trustees (1889), 17 O. R. 451. CAN.

PART XVII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.

k. Corporal punishment.—Deft., a teacher in one of the public schools, was charged before the magistrate, for assaulting, beating & ill-using J., one of the pupils under his care, & was acquitted on the ground that there was not evidence of malice on the part of deft. or of permanent injury to the child:—Held: the only question properly before the stipendiary magistrate was whether the punishment was reasonable under the circumstances, or, in other words, whether there was he died:—Held: (1) liable to a charge of manslaughter.

(2) A parent or a schoolmaster (who for this purpose represents the parent & has the parental authority delegated to him), may for the purpose of correcting what is evil in the child inflict moderate & reasonable corporal punishment, always, however, with this condition, that it is moderate & reasonable. If it be administered for the gratification of passion or of rage, or if it be immoderate & excessive in its nature or degree, or if it be protracted beyond the child's powers of endurance, or with an instrument unfitted for the purpose & calculated to produce danger to life or limb; in all such cases the punishment is excessive, the violence is unlawful, & if evil consequences to life or limb ensue, then the person inflicting it is answerable to the law, & if death ensues it will be manslaughter (COCKBURN, C.J.).

(3) It is true that the father authorised the chastisement, but he did not, & no law could, authorise an excessive chastisement (COCKBURN, C.J.).—R. v. HOPLEY (1860), 2 F. & F. 202.

272. — Delegation to monitors.—Re BANGSTOCKE SCHOOL (1877), 41 J. P. Jo. 118.

273. — Delegation to assistant teacher—Forbidden by school regulations—Liability for assault.—An assistant teacher in a public elementary school has authority to inflict corporal punishment on a pupil if the punishment inflicted is moderate, is not dictated by any bad motive, is such as is usual in the school, & such as the parent of the child might expect that the child would receive if it did wrong; & the fact that by the regulations of the school assistant teachers are forbidden to inflict corporal punishment will not of itself render the assistant teacher liable in an action by the pupil for assault.—MANSSELL v. GRIFFIN, [1908] 1 K. B. 947; 77 L. J. K. B. 676; 90 L. T. 132; 72 J. P. 179; 21 T. L. R. 431; 52 Sol. Jo. 376; 6 L. G. R. 548, C. A.

274. — What is proper method—Caning on hand.—A magistrate, being of opinion that caning on the hand was attended by risk of serious injury, convicted a board schoolmaster of an assault for giving a pupil four strokes, though the boy deserved corporal punishment, & the caning was inflicted unobjectionably & did not cause serious injury:—Held: the magistrate was wrong in his reasons & the conviction must be quashed. GARDNER v. BYGRAVE (1889), 53 J. P. 743; 6 T. L. R. 23, D. C.

275. — For misconduct, outside school premises.—The authority delegated by the parent of a pupil to a schoolmaster to punish a pupil is not limited to offences committed by the pupil on the premises of a school, but extends to acts done by such pupil while on his way to & from school.—CLEARY v. BOOTH, [1893] 1 Q. B. 465; 62 L. J. M. C. 87; 68 L. T. 349; 57 J. P. 375; 41 W. R. 391; 9 T. L. R. 260; 37 Sol. Jo. 270; 17 Cox, C. C. 611; 5 R. 263, D. C.

276. — Pupil leaving school on threat of punishment—Right of master to determine whether offence serious.—GOLDNEY v. KING (1910), Times, Feb. 7.

277. — Cathedral music master—No right to punish chorister.—A music-master of a cathedral is not justified in even moderately beating a chorister for singing at a catch club, though that might be injurious to his performing in the cathedral. Evidence of the practice of other cathedrals not admissible.—NEWMAN v. BENNETT (1819), 2 Chit. 195.

278. Detention at school—Action for false imprisonment—Knowledge of infant necessary.—An infant cannot maintain an action for assault & false imprisonment against a schoolmaster, who has improperly refused to deliver him up to his mother, without evidence that he knew of such refusal, and of some actual restraint upon him.—HERRING v. BOYLE (1834), 1 Cr. M. & R. 377; 6 C. & P. 406; 4 Tyr. 801; 3 L. J. Ex. 344; 140 E. R. 1120.

280. — To learn home lessons—Whether assault on child.—R. v. WATSON (1884), 48 J. P. Jo. 149.

281. — For not doing home lessons—Liability for assault.—Elementary Education Acts, 1870 (c. 75), & 1876 (c. 79), do not authorise the setting of lessons to be prepared at home by children attending a board school. The detention at school after school hours of a child for not doing home lessons is therefore unlawful, & renders the master who detains the child liable to be convicted for an assault.—HUNTER v. JOHNSON (1884), 13 Q. B. 11; 225; 53 L. J. M. C. 182; 51 L. T. 791; 48 J. P. 603; 32 W. R. 857; 15 Cox, C. C. 600, D. C.

m. — Petty corrections.—It is within the powers of the head of a school to inflict moderate & reasonable punishment on a boy, such as a couple of smacks on the cheek, for correcting unruly conduct or breaches of discipline.

The education rules which provide that "corporal punishment shall not be inflicted except in the case of moral delinquency or flagrant insubordination & shall be limited to six cuts on the hand" do not prohibit or regulate the petty corrections such as that in question which are necessary for maintaining the ordinary discipline of

n. — Authority of master.—The authority of a schoolmaster to correct his pupil by corporal punishment arises not out of any supposed delegation of the parents' authority, but out of the relation of master & pupil & the necessities of the case; & the master of a public school under Education Act, 1877, has authority to administer such correction notwithstanding that that Act makes attendance at school compulsory. The principle adopted is that, in determining whether a punishment administered by a master was reasonable & for a sufficient cause, considerable allowance should be made to him by way of protecting him in the exercise of his discretion, & if there is a reasonable doubt whether the punishment was excessive he should have the benefit of the doubt. The master's own word must have great weight when a question arises whether a pupil's failure to do his work arose from stubbornness or inattention, or other conduct deserving correction.—HANSEN v. CULE (1891), 9 N. Z. L. R. 272.—N.Z.

whereby the master lost his fees, amounting to 30s. per week. He claimed compensation under the Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), s. 308 :—Held : no claim was competent, the power to close being given by the Education Code, 1886, s. 98, & not by the above Act.—ROBERTS v. FALMOUTH SANITARY AUTHORITY (1888), 52 J. P. 741; 4 T. L. R. 294.

284. Superannuation fund—Right to return of contributions—After resignation.]—A school board established & managed a superannuation fund for the payment of allowances to their officers & teachers upon their superannuation. This fund was provided by annual deductions from the salaries of the officers & teachers, made in pursuance of contracts between them & the board :—Held : the officers & teachers could not recover back the amount of the deductions from their salaries, for (a) even if it was ultra vires for the board to pay the expenses of managing the fund out of the school rates, it was no part of the contract between the board & the officers & teachers that this should be done, & the making of the contract was therefore not ultra vires; (b) assuming that the board could not undertake the management of the fund, in the absence of power under the Elementary Education Acts to do so, the money having been applied to the purposes for which it was subscribed, & the subscribers having had the right to participate in the benefits of the fund, there had been no failure of consideration. —PHILLIPS v. LONDON SCHOOL BOARD, COCKERTON v. SAME, [1898] 2 Q. B. 447; 67 L. J. Q. B. 874; 70 L. T. 50; 46 W. R. 658; 14 T. L. R. 501, C. A. Annotat. :—Mentd. Sinclair v. Brougham, [1914] A. C. 398.

285. Absence through illness—What constitutes.]—Pltf. was appointed headmistress in a board school in 1900 by the predecessors of defts. at a salary of £60 a year, which subsequently rose to £120. There was no formal contract between the parties. In 1901 she was married, & in 1902 her first child was born, in consequence of which she was absent from duty for a month on full pay. In 1903 a second child was born, & pltf. sent a substitute to do her work while she was absent from duty. In 1904 defts. became the local education authority, & pltf. retained her position as headmistress on the old terms. It was an express or implied term of the employment that she should be entitled to one month's pay during illness, & that she should be entitled to three months' notice to determine her employment.

In Aug. 1906, she was delivered of a third child; but as the confinement took place during vacation no question arose. In Sept. 1910, pltf. was expecting another child, & in compliance with a request of defts. she remained away from work until the end of the year. Her child was born on Jan. 5, & she returned to her duties on Feb. 5. Her salary being only paid for Sept. & for one month in addition, she brought the present action for £32 8s. 9d., being arrears of salary. Defts. contended that it was their duty to determine what was "illness," & that in the circumstances they were entitled to regard pltf. as having been absent through illness between Sept. & Jan. :—Held : (1) "absence through illness" was not confined to absence through actual illness, but includes absence reasonably caused through illness, & covers the period of convalescence & also absence occasioned by approaching illness; (2) the absence of pltf. from Sept. to Dec. was absence, not through illness, but at the request of defts., & defts. were liable for her salary during that time.—DAVIES v. EBBW VALE URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL (1911), 75 J. P. 533; 27 T. L. R. 543; 9 L. G. R. 1226.

287. Increase of salary—Share in supplementary grant—Discretion of education authority.]—It is not ultra vires for an education authority in their discretion to impose upon teachers a condition that they shall not be entitled to a share in the supplementary grant given to the authority for educational purposes in a particular year unless they have been in the service of the authority on a certain date.—GLASSON v. ESSEX COUNTY COUNCIL (1910), 88 L. J. Ch. 439; 121 L. T. 59; 83 J. P. 153; 35 T. L. R. 478; 63 Sol. Jo. 516.

288. — Above Burnham scale of pay—Special contract.]—Pltf. was engaged by defts., in 1900, as an uncertificated teacher in a special day school, under a contract whereby she was to receive £10 a year more than an ordinary uncertificated teacher in an ordinary school of similar standing from time to time. In 1921 the Burnham scale of pay was adopted by deft. authority. The maximum allowed under this scale was £182, & pltf. claimed arrears of salary on the footing that she was entitled, under her special contract, to receive £10 a year in excess of that maximum. The county ct. judge decided in her favour, but the Div. Ct. reversed that decision, holding that there was no evidence of any special contract of

p. — Attachment for debt—Whether exempt.]—The contract of a teacher in the common schools for the performance of his duties being made with the trustees of the action in which he is employed, his salary is not exempted from attachment for debt under the principle of cases applicable to officers employed in the public services, but as the amount coming to such a teacher for salary cannot be reached by ordinary legal execution or garnishee process, a receiver will be appointed where necessary by way of equitable execution.—FISHER v. COOK (1899), 32 N. S. R. 226.—CAN.

q. — Unlicensed teacher—Liability of trustees.]—Pltf., an unlicensed teacher, was employed to teach in a school district for one term under a written contract purporting to be made by defts., who are school trustees, incorporated under Schools' Act, C. C. 1903, c. 50. The contract was signed by two out of the three trustees but the corporate seal was not affixed to it &

no meeting of the trustees was held to authorise the contract. Under this contract pltf. taught for one full term. In an action to recover the amount agreed to be paid to her :—

Held : the contract was made by the school trustees as a corpn. & not as individuals; the contract is unenforceable because under the above Act, it is ultra vires of the school trustees to employ an unlicensed teacher; defts. are not liable on a quantum meruit for the services of pltf. because the employment of pltf. was ultra vires & there was no completed work which the trustees could accept or reject.—BRIGHT SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 74, TRUSTEES v. YERXA (1910), 40 N. B. R. 351; 10 E. L. R. 1.—CAN.

r. Arrears of salary—Remedies for recovery.]—The ct. refused a mandamus to compel school trustees to pay a sum awarded to a teacher for arrears of salary observing that there were other remedies open.—Re O'LEARY & BLANDFORD SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1890), 19 U. C. R. 556.—CAN.

t. Provision of fuel—Special agreement.]—Pltf., a teacher, sued upon a special agreement stated to have been made by defts. as trustees, to furnish him with fuel when required, under 9 Vict. c. 20. Defts. demurred, because no request with time & place had been alleged to furnish fuel, & because defts. were charged as individuals :—Held : declaration had on both grounds.—ANDERSON v. u. Claim for extra work done—Absence of formal agreement.] Public Schools Act, R. S. Sect. 7.—Dismissal and resignation.]

The committee, with great reluctance & under protest, to effect economy, decided to dismiss teachers sixty years of age & upwards entitled to a pension who were of lesser efficiency, & following on a report on that matter more than half of the 71 head teachers were given notices of dismissal, purporting to be given on educational grounds in pursuance of 1921 Act (c. 51), s. 29 (2) (a). As no part of the expense of pensions came from ratepayers, & the younger teachers appointed to the positions of the dismissed teachers would receive considerably less salary, the dismissals would save ratepayers. The managers of plffs.' schools having refused to comply with the direction for dismissal given by the local education authority, that authority, in accordance with the power given them by the above sub-sect., themselves gave notices of dismissal to plffs., purporting to be given on the ground that they would not be able to perform their duties as efficiently as younger teachers, or to do full justice to their pupils. No complaints as to the efficiency of plffs. had been received prior to the report being drawn up as to which of the teachers of sixty years & upwards were less efficient, & it was agreed by education authorities in general that the teachers who had reached the age for pensions were among the wisest & most efficient of the staff. It having been decided on the evidence that the real & only grounds for dismissal were financial, the educational grounds given being merely colourable:—Held: (1) the notices to economise was not an educational ground for dismissal within the sub-sect.; (2) if bona fide educational grounds had existed for the dismissals, as the reasons would then have consisted of mixed financial & educational grounds, the notices were invalid, having regard to the above sub-sect. & sect. 29 (6) of the Act, which require that the grounds for dismissal by the local education authority shall be educational only; (3) as the power given to the local education authority, by sect. 29 (2) (a) of the Act, to dismiss teachers on educational grounds was a discretionary power, it was not well exercised if any other grounds for the dismissal were taken into consideration.—SADLER v. SHEFFIELD CORPN., DYSON v. SHEFFIELD CORPN., [1924] 1 Ch. 483; 93 L. J. Ch. 209; 88 J. P. 45; 40 T. L. R. 259.

300. — Appointment during pleasure.—Failure to comply with regulations.—Where a person has been appointed head teacher of a public elementary school by a county council, during board to consult with the committee before removing, suspending, or dismissing a teacher, is a condition precedent to the right to dismiss, & an injunction will be granted restraining a Board from dismissing a teacher without such consultation. Such consultation should be a bona fide asking of advice with a view to obtaining it, & the Board should lay before the Committee all the material necessary to enable it to give such advice.—WILKINSON v. OTAGO EDUCATION BOARD (1888), 6 N. Z. L. R. 307.—N.Z.

n. ———.—[Education Act, 1877, s. 47, gives or preserves to an education board a power of summarily dismissing a teacher which is distinct from the power of dismissal given by sect. 45, & can be exercised by the Board without consulting the School Committee.—WILSON v. HAWKES BAY EDUCATION BOARD (1891), 9 N. Z. L. R. 257.—N.Z.

o. ———.—"Gross misbehaviour"—

Question for jury.—Plff., a school-master, sued defts. for wrongful dismissal. Defts. justified the dismissal on the ground that plff. had been guilty of "gross misbehaviour." In support of this plea defts. put in evidence certain offensive letters written by plff. to defts. & their secretary. Education Act, 1877, authorises defts. to dismiss any school-teacher in their district for "immoral conduct or gross misbehaviour," but it does not define the duty of the teacher towards defts. At the trial the judge directed the jury that one of the letters put in evidence was an act of insubordination, & left it to them to say whether it amounted to gross misbehaviour. The jury found for plff. Defts. then obtained a rule nisi to set aside the verdict on the ground that the judge should have directed the jury that the facts amounted to "gross misbehaviour" within Education Act, 1877, s. 47:—Held: it was properly left to the jury their pleasure, & subject to their regulations & to the Code of Regulations for Public Elementary Schools in Wales, s. 15 (a) (1), he can be dismissed for non-compliance with a regulation that head teachers should live within a specified distance of their schools.—WILLIAMS v. GLAMORGAN COUNTY COUNCIL (1910), 85 L. J. Ch. 752; 32 T. L. R. 532; 14 L. G. R. 741.

301. — Contract to pay during military service.—Absence of consideration.—Effect of Local Government (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1916 (c. 12), s. 1.—Plff. was in June, 1914, appointed by defts., a local education authority, assistant master in a school, & his duties were to begin on Aug. 1914, the appointment to be terminable by a month's notice. Plff. was at the time a member of the Territorial Forces, & after the outbreak of war in Aug. 1914, his unit was mobilised. In Nov. 1914, the secretary of defts.' Education Committee wrote to plff. that the education committee had passed a resolution that defts.' employees who were called up for military duty should be paid their usual salary less the amount received from the Army. In Nov. 1916, the secretary of the Education Committee wrote to plff. that his employment was determined. In an action for a declaration that plff. was still in the employment of defts.:—Held: (1) there was no contract by defts. to keep plff. in their employment for the duration of the war; (2) there was no consideration for defts.' alleged promise as plff. was already in the Territorial Army & would have remained there whether any promise was given or not; (3) the absence of consideration was not remedied by above sect., as a promise which was not binding on a private employer was not by that sect. made binding on a local authority.—SANDERSON v. WORKINGTON BOROUGH COUNCIL (1918), 34 T. L. R. 386; 92 Sol. Jo. 535.

302. — Acting within statutory powers.—Jurisdiction of court.—Plff. was a married woman teacher suing on behalf of 57 other married women teachers in the district of deft. council, who were employed under contracts entered into on Apr. 1, 1919. On Dec. 3, 1919, the Education Committee of deft. council unanimously passed a resolution that the engagements of married women teachers under their authority be terminated, provided that teachers who had not completed the minimum period of recorded service prescribed by School Teachers (Superannuation) Act, 1918 (c. 55), should be allowed to continue up to the date of such period of recorded service; & notice was accordingly given to the teachers affected by the resolution to terminate their engagements on to say whether the facts amounted to gross misbehaviour.—DOHERTY v. WELLINGTON DISTRICT EDUCATION BOARD, 4 J. R. N. S. 78.—N.Z.

p. Dismissal by school board.—Decision irregular.—Plff. was the master of a public school. The contract between him & the school board gave either party the right to terminate it on one month's notice. There were eight members of the school board, & at a meeting on Feb. 19, a resolution was passed instructing the secretary to notify plff. that the contract between him & the board should cease on Mar. 31, which he accordingly did. The notice of the meeting given to the members of the board did not state that the matter of determining plff.'s contract was to be considered, & some of the members had no knowledge of this fact, nor had plff. any knowledge or notice of the meeting. Only six members of the board attended the meeting, of whom four voted in favour

July 31, 1920. On Sept. 20, 1920, a circular from the Education Committee headed "Termination of Engagements" was sent by B. as Director of Education to pltf. & the other teachers referring to the resolution of Dec. 3, 1919, & stating that their engagements would terminate automatically on the date when the period of minimum recorded service expired, & asking them to state the dates upon which they would respectively complete the period of recorded service entitling them to a pension. Replies were received from all the teachers giving the required information. On July 7, 1922, the Education Committee passed a resolution by a majority of 25 to 3 that, having regard to the large number of certificated teachers who would complete their course of training in the month of July without any prospect of securing employment, the authority took into consideration the advisability of terminating the engagements of all married women teachers, other than those there specified, & the director was authorised to give all the married women teachers thereby affected notice to terminate their engagements on Oct. 31 then next. The resolution was duly confirmed by the council. Accordingly on July 24, 1922, B., as Director of Education, gave notice by letter to pltf. & the other teachers terminating their engagements on Oct. 31, 1922, the notices to the head teachers being for three months as from Aug. 1, that to the assistant teachers as from Oct. 1. Under clause 75 of the regulations for the district, head teachers were entitled to receive three & assistant teachers one calendar month's notice, every notice to be given on the first day of a month. In an action by pltf. claiming a declaration that the notices of July 24, 1922, were invalid on various grounds, & for an injunction to restrain deft. council from acting on them:—Held: (1) it was not possible to construe the circular of Sept. 20, 1920, as a new offer of employment down to a particular date, & even if it were such an offer there was no enforceable contract created, as there was no mutuality in the suggested modification, & no consideration for the concession; (2) the authority of B. was limited to communicating the resolution, & he had no authority to make the alleged offer on behalf of the council; (3) under Elementary Education Act, 1870 (c. 75), s. 35, the statutory powers of the education authority must be so exercised as to make the tenure of the engagements at the pleasure of the Board, although reasonable notice might properly be provided for in contracts with teachers so engaged; (4) the resolution of July 7, 1922, dismissing the married women teachers was passed in exercise of the statutory powers & duties of the council, & the preface to the resolution indicating the desire to put an end to unemployment was inserted bonâ fide of the resolution, & two against it:—Held: the above resolution & notice to pltf. in pursuance of it was not a fair or proper exercise of the power & option to determine pltf.'s contract contained in it, & the agreement with pltf. was not terminated thereby.—*GREENLEES v. The action was accordingly dismissed.—PRICE v. RHONDDA URBAN COUNCIL, [1923] 2 Ch. 372; 93 L. J. Ch. 1; 88 J. P. 69; 155 L. T. Jo. 387; 67 Sol. Jo. 530; 21 L. G. R. 753.

(2) A pltf. who, prior to the above Act, has entered into a contract with the old managing body of a non-provided public elementary school cannot maintain an action to enforce his contract against the new managing body appointed under sect. 6 (2) of the Act, where that new managing body does not include the original contracting parties.—*JONES v. On Oct. 28, 1911, defts., the present managers of the school, gave pltf. a month's notice to determine her agreement, alleging as their reason that they were not satisfied with the religious instruction given by her in the school. Until that notice was given, no complaint with regard to the religious instruction given by pltf. had ever been made. The consent of the local education authority had not been obtained by defts. to the dismissal of pltf. On Nov. 30, 1911, the notice expired & pltf. left. Pltf. brought the present action for an injunction to restrain defts. from acting on the notice of Oct. 28, 1911, & for a declaration that she was still entitled to exercise the duties of the office of teacher, & moved for an interim order. At the hearing of the motion it appeared from the evidence of defts. that their real ground for dismissing pltf. was that in their opinion she had ceased to be a member of the Church of England. This pltf. denied:—Held: (1) under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 7, the position of pltf. was not merely that of a servant who had entered into a contract of employment with a master, a term of which was that she should not be dismissed except upon his compliance with certain conditions, but that she had a statutory right to the position which she had acquired under the Act, unless & until the requirements of the Act with regard to her dismissal had been complied with; (2) the ground of dismissal appearing by the evidence was not a ground "connected with the giving of religious instruction in the school" within the meaning of sect. 7 (1) (c) & therefore the consent of the local education authority to the pltf.'s dismissal was necessary; (3) pltf. was entitled to the injunction & declaration she asked.

(4) In order to render a dismissal without the consent of the local education authority a valid dismissal under sect. 7 (1) (c) of the Act, it is necessary not merely that the managers should in their own minds consider that a ground for dismissal connected with the giving of religious instruction exists, but that the ground should in fact exist.—SMITH v. MACNALLY, [1912] 1 Ch. 816; 81 L. J. Ch. 483; 106 L. T. 915; 76 J. P. 466; 28 T. L. R. 332; 50 Sol. Jo. 397; 10 L. G. R. 434.

d. Dismissal by education department.—Civil servant.—In Mar. 1913, pltf. was appointed teacher of a school under defts. administration, upon terms that the appointment should be subject to three months' notice on either side & subject also to transfer at any time to another part of Rhodesia. In consequence of certain complaints received from parents the Education Dept. without formulating any charge against pltf. directed an inspector to hold an inquiry & on the receipt of his report offered pltf. another post, & on his failure to accept it paid him four months' salary in lieu of notice & terminated his services. In an action brought by pltf. in 1919 for a declaration that the enquiry was irregular & illegal the Trial Ct. found that though pltf. was a member of the Rhodesian Civil Service & therefore came under the disciplinary regulations affecting such members, yet as he had not been punished under the regulations but the ct. had power to grant an interim injunction against the managers.—CRISP v. HOLDEN (1910), 54 Sol. Jo. 784.

The annual session of the schools closed at the end of July. Owing to a reorganisation of the staff the teacher was asked to send in his resignation. He did so on Mar. 22, 1909, adding to the notice of resignation that it was to take effect on Aug. 31, 1909. Pltf. succeeded to the office of schoolmaster in 1851, by appointment of a vestry meeting of the parishioners, on the recommendation of the trustees. 333. ———— .]—By a scheme of the ct. for the regulation of a grammar school authority was given to the trustees "upon such grounds as they should, at their discretion, in the due exercise & execution of the powers & trusts reposed in them, deem just," to remove the master at one & confirm it at a subsequent special meeting. The trustees having grounds of complaint against the master, they, without his knowledge, referred the matter to a committee, who investigated the case in his absence & without his knowledge, & reported against him. The trustees, without communicating the report or hearing him, confirmed it in his absence, & resolved to remove him; & they summoned a second meeting to confirm the resolution. The master then attended & was heard, & the removal was confirmed without any other hearing or inquiry in his presence:—Held: (1) the regulation did not confer upon the trustees an arbitrary power to dismiss the master, upon any grounds which they might deem just, free from any control of the ct.; (2) the master had had no proper opportunity afforded him of defending himself, no sufficient means of explanation & no means of proving his defence, & on motion, the trustees were restrained from enforcing the dismissal & ejecting the master.—*WILLS v. By court—Not where misunderstanding of duty.—With regard to that part of the prayer of this information, which relates to the removal of the master, it is not the habit of this ct. to remove, where there has been any misunderstanding as to the duty; but when that duty is prescribed, the master must determine either to hold the situation, doing the duty, or to discharge himself (LORD ELDON, C.)—*A. 336. By governors—Discretionary power—Validity of bye-law.—To a mandamus by the upper master of a grammar school to the governors to restore him to his office, the return set forth the charter of foundation, by which the governors were empowered to appoint & remove the master, "according to their sound discretion" & of appointing other in his stead. The return then alleged specific instances of misconduct in prosecutor, who being called on to answer, & having a reasonable opportunity, & failing to do so, was, in the exercise of their best discretion, & they deeming him an unfit person, removed him from his office. The pleas severally traversed the alleged instances of misconduct, & set forth a power given by the charter to the governors to make bye-laws for the government of the master, etc., & that by a bye-law of 1748, made by the governors no master should be removed, unless a sufficient cause of complaint was made in writing against him, & allowed to be sufficient. The plea then averred that no such sufficient cause was made in writing against prosecutor before his removal, & allowed as sufficient. On this allegation, as on the traverses of misconduct, issues were joined, & all the findings were in favour of prosecutor:—Held: (1) defendants were entitled to judgment non obstante veredicto; (2) the office of upper master at the school was not a freehold, but held ad libitum only, & as such he was removable without summons or hearing; (3) as the return contained an express allegation that the governors, in the exercise of their best discretion, & deeming him unfit, did remove the prosecutor, which was not traversed, the issues raised were immaterial, & the return was substantially good; (4) the bye-law was invalid, as restraining & limiting the powers originally conferred on the governors.—*R. v. 337. By committee of management—Improperly constituted under trust deed—Master's right to be heard.—A trust deed of a school, dated in 1857, provided that its conduct & the appointment & dismissal of the teachers should be managed by a committee of the vicar, curate, & churchwardens, & five lay members possessing certain property qualifications, & that vacancies should be filled by nomination on the part of subscribers, but that no default of election nor any vacancy during any current year should prevent the continuing members from acting meanwhile. Pltf. was appointed schoolmaster in 1861. Deft. became vicar in 1888. At that time all the original lay members' places had become vacant, & had not been filled up, & the school was managed by the ex-officio members. At Easter, 1891, a vicar's churchwarden was elected, but not a people's churchwarden. In Sept. 1891, a committee meeting was held by the vicar, his curate, & churchwarden, there being present also one or both of the sidesmen, who, though not members of the committee, had been in the habit of attending the meetings, & a resolution was passed to dismiss pltf. & the other teachers. One of the sidesmen voted for the resolution. The people's churchwarden of the previous year had no notice of the meeting, & did not attend. The resolution was on the ground that owing to the financial position of the school it was desirable to rearrange the staff of teachers. Pltf. was not invited to attend the meeting:—Held: (1) the resolution was invalid, because of the unauthorised addition to the committee & because notice of the meeting had not been given to the people's churchwarden; (2) the remaining members of the committee could act although there had been default in previous years to elect, the judge being of opinion also that this would have been so independently of special provision.

(3) The judge stated that he knew of no authority that pltf. was entitled to be heard at the meeting, the resolution being on such grounds as above stated.—LANE v. NORMAN (1891), 61 L. J. Ch. 149; 66 L. T. 83; 40 W. R. 268.

Having elected a schoolmaster, they obliged him to enter into a bond & agreement, stipulating that he should not have or claim a freehold in the school, or estates; & should quit at six months' notice, & should not intermeddle with the estates, & certain other stipulations as to the government & management of the school:—Held: the trustees had exceeded their powers.—Re ROYSTON SCHOOL (1839), 2 Beav. 228; 48 E. 342. ——— Attached to cathedral Summary dismissal by dean & chapter.—The relationship in the ordinary case of trustee & cestui que trust does not exist between the dean & chapter of a cathedral church & the headmaster of the grammar school attached to it, where both the cathedral & school are governed by the statutes of the founder & subject to the jurisdiction of a special visitor, & where the headmaster is paid out of the common funds of the endowment. Where the dean & chapter of the cathedral church of R., in exercise of a power vested in them by one of the statutes of the founder, summarily dismissed the headmaster of the grammar school attached to the cathedral from his office without hearing him in his defence, the ct. refused to interfere by injunction, either durante lite or otherwise, to restrain the dean & chapter from removing him from his office or appointing another headmaster in his stead.—*WHISTON v. dismissal, & he had not had any opportunity of being heard in his defence. There was no evidence that the third vicar had been consulted. 353. Injunction to restrain removal—Whether consent of charity commissioners necessary.]—Pltf. brought an action claiming an injunction to restrain the trustees of a national school founded under School Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38), from removing or dismissing him from his office of headmaster of the school, & from electing or appointing any other person to the said office, & from ejecting him from the schoolhouse or premises occupied by him in virtue of his office, on the ground that the trustees were not duly appointed. Defts. objected that pltf. could not sue for the relief claimed without previously obtaining the consent of the charity comrs., as required by Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (c. 137), s. 17:—Held: the sect. relates exclusively to the administration of trusts, & does not apply to common law rights, legal or equitable modes of enforcing common law rights, or any individual equitable right not relating to the administration of a trust, & as pltf.'s claim was based on contract, & so far as could be seen at the present state of the action, did not involve the administration of the trust, the consent of the comrs. was unnecessary.—*RENDALL v. 362. ——— Proposal not contract—Stamp.]—In an action by a schoolmaster for a sum of money in lieu of three months' notice of the removal of applt.'s (deft.'s) sons from school, it appeared that applt.'s agent having expressed a wish to place applt.'s sons under resp.'s (pltf.'s) care, received from the latter a prospectus, which stated that the terms were sixty guineas per annum, & that three months' notice or payment was required previously to the removal of the pupil. Resp., at the time of delivering the prospectus, agreed, verbally, that the boys should be charged for at the rate of fifty guineas per annum each. The boys were, thereupon, sent to resp.'s school, & were taken away without the stipulated notice:—Held: the prospectus was a proposal, & not an agreement, & no stamp was necessary.—CLAY v. CROFTS (1851), 20 L. J. Ex. 361; 17 L. T. O. S. 231.

(2) Where a letter, written by pltf. to deft., containing terms of agreement, is called for by him at the trial, & produced on notice by deft., it is in the custody of the ct.; & if it appears not to be stamped, the judge will permit pltf. to send a person with it to the Stamp Office, accompanied by an officer of the ct.—*CLEMENTS v. 364. Delivery & acceptance of bill—Evidence of liability—Statute of Frauds.]—A mother took her son to school, & saw the master, but no evidence was given of what passed at that time. Afterwards, a bill was delivered to the boy's uncle, who said it was quite right to deliver the bill to him, for he was answerable:—Held: Stat. Frauds did not apply, & it was proper to leave it to the jury to say under those circumstances, whether the original credit was not given to the uncle.—DARNELL v. TRATT (1825), 2 C. & P. 82.

366. Tuition by correspondence—Refusal of pupil to receive instruction—Right of teacher to recover fees.]—Deft. entered into an agreement with pltf., who carried on a system of tuition by correspondence, for a course of instruction in telephone engineering. By the terms of the agreement it was provided that the fee to be paid by deft. was to cover all instruction until deft. was qualified for a diploma, provided he completed the course of instruction in five years. Deft. agreed to pay a fee of £14 10s. for the course, 10s. at the time of signing the application form, & the remainder by instalments of 10s. a month. Deft. paid the 10s. deposit & one subsequent instalment of 10s., & shortly afterwards gave notice to pltf. that he did not propose to continue the course. Pltf. brought an action to recover £5, being the amount of the instalments due at the time of the commencement of the action. The learned judge held that pltf. were not entitled to recover the whole fee agreed to be paid, but could only claim such instalments as had accrued due down to the time when deft. broke his contract & declined to continue the course, & damages for breach of contract. He found that the contract was broken after one instalment had fallen due, & gave judgment for pltf. for 10s.:—Held: the decision of the learned judge was wrong, & pltf. having always been ready & willing to give the instruction contracted for, deft. had received the consideration for which he had bargained—namely, the right to receive instruction—& consequently pltf. were entitled to sue for the instalments as they became due, whether deft. refused to receive the instruction or not.—INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, LTD. v. PRICE (1806), 2 Bos. & P. N. R. 333; 127 E. R. 655.

369. ———— Liquidated amount — Not penalty.]—The judge should have directed the jury that the amount to be recovered should have been the amount claimed. No condition had been originally made as to notice, but three quarterly accounts had been rendered to applt. containing prominently on the face of them a statement that in lieu of notice one quarter's fee must be paid. This statement had not come to applt.'s knowledge, but it came to the knowledge of his wife, who acted in this business for him:—Held: the notice was sufficient; the quarter's fee must be taken as liquidated damages; & the magistrate's judgment in favour of the respondent was correct.—SIMON v. CARSON (1916), E. D. L. 26.—S. AF.

368 ii. ————]—A child was placed in a boarding-school at an inclusive fee of £31 10s. per term for board & tuition. f. “Quarter’s notice”—Definition.]—The prospectus of the C. school contained a list of boarding fees at so much per quarter & stipulated that a quarter’s notice should be given before the removal of a pupil:—Held: the notice required was of one school quarter & not of one quarter of the year.—HAFT v. FORMAN (1905), 22 S. C. 284.—S. AF.

PART XVIII.

h. School trustees—Action for trespass.]—Under 7 Vict. c. 29, s. 44, the trustees of the school (& not the school master) should sue for a trespass to the school house, unless it can be shown that the trustees have given the school master a particular interest in the building beyond the mere liberty of occupying it during the day for the purpose of teaching.—MONAGHAN v. FERGUSON (1847), 3 U. C. R. 484.—CAN.

k. —Refusal to act—Enforcement of liability.]—Where school trustees become personally responsible under 13 & 14 Vict. c. 48, s. 2 (16), for refusing to exercise their corporate powers, before such liability can be enforced by the warrant of arbitrators under 16 Vict. c. 185, s. 15, it is necessary to show that there has been some adjudication of the fact of wilful refusal, to justify such warrant.—RANNEY v. MACKLEM (1859), 9 C. P. 192; consd. GRAHAM v. HUNGERFORD, 29 U. C. R. 239.—CAN.

l. —Notice of action—Act done in corporate capacity.]—Held: a school trustee who is sued for any act done in his corporate capacity is entitled to notice of action, & the action must be brought within six months. A school trustee, acting in the discharge of his duty as such, is entitled to the protection of, & comes within, 16 Vict. c. 180, notwithstanding he should have signed a warrant individually instead of in his corporate capacity.—SPRY v. MUMBY (1862), 11 C. P. 285.—CAN.

m. ——— Service on secretary.]—A notice of action against school trustees in their corporate capacity may be served on their secretary.—ROBERTS v. SHEDIAK DISTRICT SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1887), 26 N. B. R. 360.—CAN.

n. School Board—Contract with teacher—Liability.]—In an action by a school teacher against the School Board who had hired him, the latter set up as a defence that they were acting in a public capacity, & as such were not personally liable:—Held: defts., being parties to the contract, were liable.—FOX v. CARFAGNINI (1874), 6 Nfld. L. R. 24.—CAN.

o. ——— School committee not consulted—Remedy.]—Where an Education Board appointed two teachers to a new school in a school district without consulting the School Committee of the district:—Held: the proper remedy of the School Committee was to move the ct. for an injunction to compel the Board to cancel the appointments.—LESSINGTON v. WELLINGTON EDUCATION BOARD (1907), 26 N. Z. L. R. 244.—N.Z.
